383-477 Prevention of terrorism

The Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 40-61), Sch 4-6 impose notification requirements on persons dealt with in respect of specified offences relating to terrorism and corresponding foreign offences: see PARAS 477A-477D.

448-449 Encouragement and glorification of terrorism; Disseminating terrorist publications

The offences under the 2006 Act s 1 (encouragement and glorification of terrorism) and s 2 (disseminating terrorist publications) are extended so that those offences apply to United Kingdom established information society service providers in EEA states other than the United Kingdom, but proceedings for such an offence against information society service providers established in an EEA state other than the United Kingdom is restricted: see the Electronic Commerce Directive (Terrorism Act 2006) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1550, regs 3, 4. An information society service provider is not capable of being guilty of an offence under the 2006 Act s 1 or 2 where it merely provides conduit, caching or hosting services: see SI 2007/1550 regs 5-7.

449 Disseminating terrorist publications

NOTES 1-24--Where an offence under the Terrorism Act 2006 s 2 is committed in the United Kingdom, proceedings for the offence may be taken at any place in the United Kingdom and the offence may for all incidental purposes be treated as having been committed at any such place: Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 28(1), (2)(c).

TEXT AND NOTES 25-29--As to the approach of the court when sentencing a defendant for dissemination of a terrorist publication, see R v Rahman; R v Mohammed [2008] EWCA Crim 1465, [2008] 4 All ER 661.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(6) PREVENTION OF TERRORISM/(vii) Terrorist Offences/C. PROMOTION AND ENCOURAGEMENT OF TERRORISM/450. Dissemination of terrorism-related material via the Internet.

450. Dissemination of terrorism-related material via the Internet.

For these purposes, a statement<sup>1</sup> or an article or record<sup>2</sup> is 'unlawfully terrorism-related' if it constitutes, or if matter contained in the article or record constitutes, either:

- 576 (1) something that is likely to be understood<sup>3</sup>, by any one or more of the persons to whom it has or may become available, as a direct or indirect encouragement or other inducement to the commission, preparation or instigation of acts of terrorism<sup>4</sup> or Convention offences<sup>5</sup>; or
- 577 (2) information which is likely to be useful to any one or more of those persons in the commission or preparation of such acts<sup>6</sup> and is in a form or context in which it is likely to be understood by any one or more of those persons as being wholly or mainly for the purpose of being so useful<sup>7</sup>.

A constable who forms the opinion that a statement encouraging terrorism<sup>8</sup> which is published or caused to be published in the course of or in connection with the provision or use of a service provided electronically<sup>9</sup>, or conduct involving the dissemination of terrorist publications<sup>10</sup> which was in the course of or in connection with the provision or use of such a service<sup>11</sup>, is unlawfully terrorism-related may give a notice to that effect<sup>12</sup> requiring a person ('the relevant person') to secure that the statement or the article or record, so far as it is so related, is not available to the public or is modified so as no longer to be so related<sup>13</sup>, failing which that person will be regarded as indorsing the statement or the article or record to which the conduct relates<sup>14</sup>.

Where such a notice has been given to the relevant person in respect of a statement, article or record and he has complied with it<sup>15</sup>, but he subsequently publishes or causes to be published a statement which is, or is for all practical purposes, the same or to the same effect as the statement to which the notice related, or to matter contained in the article or record to which it related (a 'repeat statement')<sup>16</sup>, the repeat statement is to be regarded also as having his indorsement<sup>17</sup> unless in proceedings for a relevant offence<sup>18</sup> he shows that he has, before that time, taken every step he reasonably could to prevent a repeat statement from becoming available to the public and to ascertain whether it does<sup>19</sup>, and either was unaware at that time of the publication of the repeat statement<sup>20</sup> or, having become aware of its publication, has taken every step that he reasonably could to secure that it either ceased to be available to the public or was modified<sup>21</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'statement' see PARA 448 note 1 ante.

2 For the meanings of 'article' and 'record' see PARA 449 note 1 ante.

3 As to the determination of the question of how a statement is likely to be understood see PARA 448 note 1 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'terrorism' see PARA 383 ante; and for the meaning of 'act of terrorism' see PARA 439 note 12 ante.

5 Terrorism Act 2006 s 3(7)(a). For the meaning of 'Convention offence' see PARA 384 ante. The reference in s 3(7) to something that is 'likely to be understood as an indirect encouragement to the commission or preparation of acts of terrorism or Convention offences' includes anything which is likely to be understood as the glorification of the commission or preparation (whether in the past, in the future or generally) of such acts or such offences (s 3(8)(a)) and a suggestion that what is being glorified is being glorified as conduct that should be emulated in existing circumstances (s 3(8)(b)). For the meaning of 'glorification' see PARA 448 note 6 ante.

6 Ibid s 3(7)(b)(i).

7 Ibid s 3(7)(b)(ii).

8 Ie a statement likely to be understood by some or all of the members of the public to whom it is published as a direct or indirect encouragement or other inducement to them to the commission, preparation or instigation of acts of terrorism or Convention offences: see ibid s 1(1); and PARA 448 ante. As to 'publishing' a statement, and as to references to 'the public', see PARA 448 note 1 ante.

9 Ibid s 3(1)(a). As to references to the 'provision' of a service see PARA 449 note 9 ante.

10 Ie conduct falling within ibid s 2(2) (see PARA 449 ante). For the meaning of 'terrorist publication' see PARA 449 ante.

11 Ibid s 3(1)(b).

12 Ibid s 3(3)(a). A notice under s 3(3) may be given to a person only by delivering it to him in person (s 4(1)(a)) or by sending it to him by means of a postal service providing for delivery to be recorded, at his last known address (s 4(1)(b)), except: (1) in the case of a notice to be given to a body corporate, which may be given only by delivering it to the secretary of that body in person (s 4(2)(a)) or by sending it to the appropriate person, by means of a postal service providing for delivery to be recorded, at the address of the registered or principal office of the body (s 4(2)(b)); (2) in the case of a notice to be given to a firm, which may be given only by either delivering it to a partner of the firm in person (s 4(3)(a)), so delivering it to a person having the control or management of the partnership business (s 4(3)(b)), or sending it to the appropriate person, by means of a postal service providing for delivery to be recorded, at the address of the principal office of the partnership (s 4(3)(c)); or (3) in the case of a notice to be given to an unincorporated body or association, which may be given only by delivering it to a member of its governing body in person (s 4(4)(a)) or by sending it to the appropriate person, by means of a postal service providing for delivery to be recorded, at the address of the principal office of the body or association (s 4(4)(b)).

In the case of a company registered outside the United Kingdom, a firm carrying on business outside the United Kingdom or an unincorporated body or association with offices outside the United Kingdom, references above to its 'principal office' include references to its principal office within the United Kingdom (if any): s 4(5). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante. In s 4, 'the appropriate person' means the body itself or its secretary (in the case of a body corporate), the firm itself or a partner of the firm or a person having the control or management of the partnership business (in the case of a firm), and the body or association itself or a member of its governing body (in the case of an unincorporated body or association): s 4(6). In s 4, 'secretary', in relation to a body corporate, means the secretary or other equivalent officer of the body: s 4(8).

13 Ibid s 3(3)(b). The notice must also warn the person in question that a failure to comply with it within two working days will result in the statement, article or record being regarded as having his indorsement (s 3(3)(c)); and must explain how, under s 3(4) (see the text and notes 15-16 infra), he may become liable by virtue of the notice if the statement, article or record becomes available to the public after he has complied with the notice (s 3(3)(d)). 'Working day' means any day other than a Saturday or a Sunday, Christmas Day or Good Friday or a day which is a bank holiday under the Banking and Financial Dealings Act 1971 (see TIME vol 97 (2010) PARA 321) in any part of the United Kingdom: Terrorism Act 2006 s 3(9). For the purposes of s 3, the time at which a notice under s 3(3) is to be regarded as given is either the time at which it is delivered to a person (where it is so delivered) or the time recorded as the time of its delivery (where it is sent by a postal service providing for delivery to be recorded): s 4(7).

14 Ibid s 3(2). The cases in which the statement, or the article or record to which the conduct relates, is to be regarded as having the indorsement of the relevant person at any time include a case in which: (1) a constable has given him a notice under s 3(3) (see the text and notes 6-13 supra) (s 3(2)(a)); (2) that time falls more than two working days after the day on which the notice was given (s 3(2)(b)); and (3) the relevant person has failed, without reasonable excuse, to comply with the notice (s 3(2)(c)).

16 Ibid s 3(4)(b).

17     le the requirements of ibid s 3(2)(a)-(c) (see note 14 supra) are to be regarded as satisfied in the case of the repeat statement in relation to the times of its subsequent publication by the relevant person: s 3(4).

18     le an offence under ibid s 1 (see PARA 448 ante) or s 2 (see PARA 449 ante).

19     Ibid s 3(5)(a).

The Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 40-61), Sch 4-6 impose notification requirements on persons dealt with in respect of specified offences relating to terrorism and corresponding foreign offences: see PARAS 477A-477D.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(6) PREVENTION OF TERRORISM/(xiv) Jurisdiction/477. Attacks and threats of attacks on protected persons.

477. Attacks and threats of attacks on protected persons.

If a person<sup>1</sup> does outside the United Kingdom (1) any act<sup>2</sup> to or in relation to a protected person<sup>3</sup> which, if he had done it in any part of the United Kingdom, would have made him guilty of a specified offence<sup>4</sup>; or (2) in connection with an attack on any relevant premises<sup>5</sup> or on any vehicle<sup>6</sup> ordinarily used by a protected person which is made when a protected person is on or in the premises or vehicle, any act which, if he had done it in any part of the United Kingdom, would have made him guilty of a specified offence<sup>7</sup>, he is in any part of the United Kingdom guilty of such offences of which the act would have made him guilty if he had done it there<sup>8</sup>.

If a person<sup>9</sup> in the United Kingdom or elsewhere (a) attempts to commit an offence which, by virtue of the above provisions, is an offence mentioned in head (1) above against a protected person or an offence mentioned in head (2) above in connection with an attack so mentioned; or (b) aids, abets, counsels or procures, or is art and part in, the commission of such an offence, he is in any part of the United Kingdom guilty of attempting to commit the offence in question or, as the case may be, of aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring, or being art and part in, the commission of the offence or attempt in question<sup>10</sup>.

If a person<sup>11</sup> in the United Kingdom or elsewhere (i) makes to another person a threat that any person will do any act which is an offence mentioned in head (a) above; or (ii) attempts to make or aids, abets, counsels or procures or is art and part in the making of such a threat to another person, with the intention that the other person shall fear that the threat will be carried out, the person who makes the threat or, as the case may be, who attempts to make it or aids, abets, counsels or procures it or is art and part in the making of it is in any part of the United Kingdom guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years and not exceeding the term of imprisonment to which a person would be liable for the offence constituted by doing the act threatened at the place where the conviction occurs and at the time of the offence to which the conviction relates<sup>12</sup>.

For the purposes of the above provisions it is immaterial whether a person knows that another person is a protected person<sup>13</sup>.

Proceedings for an offence which (disregarding the provisions of the Suppression of Terrorism Act 1978, the Nuclear Materials (Offences) Act 1983, the United Nations Personnel Act 1993 and the Terrorism Act 2000) would not be an offence apart from the provisions set out above must not be begun except by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>14</sup>.

1 The Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 refers to a person 'whether a citizen of the United Kingdom and colonies or not'. Under the British Nationality Act 1981 this form of citizenship has been abolished: see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 8, 16 et seq. As to British nationality generally see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 7 et seq. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'act' includes omission: Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(5).

3 For these purposes, 'a protected person' means, in relation to an alleged offence, any of the following:

72 (1) a person who, at the time of the alleged offence, is a head of state, a member of a body which performs the functions of head of state under the constitution of the state, a head of government or a minister for foreign affairs, and is outside the territory of the state in which he holds office (ibid s 1(5));

- 73 (2) a person who, at the time of the alleged offence, is a representative or official of a state or an official or agent of an international organisation of an inter-governmental character, is entitled under international law to special protection from attack on his person, freedom or dignity, and does not fall within head (1) supra (s 1(5));
- 74 (3) a person who, at the time of the alleged offence, is a member of the family of another person mentioned in either of heads (1) and (2) supra, and (a) if the other person is mentioned in head (1) supra, is accompanying him; (b) if the other person is mentioned in head (2) supra, is a member of his household (s 1(5)).

If in any proceedings a question arises as to whether a person is or was a protected person, a certificate issued by or under the authority of the Secretary of State and stating any fact relating to the question is conclusive evidence of that fact: s 1(5).

4 For the purposes of head (1) in the text, the specified offences are: murder (see PARA 89 et seq ante); manslaughter (see PARA 92 et seq ante); culpable homicide (an offence under Scottish law); assault occasioning actual bodily harm (see PARA 149 ante) or assault causing injury (an offence under Scottish law); kidnapping (see PARA 136 ante); abduction (see infra); false imprisonment (see PARA 135 ante) or plagium (an offence under Scottish law); or an offence under the Offences against the Person Act 1861 s 18 (as amended) (see PARA 118 ante), s 20 (as amended) (see PARA 120 ante), s 21 (as amended) (see PARA 121 ante), s 22 (as amended) (see PARA 122 ante), s 23 (as amended) (see PARA 124 ante), s 24 (as amended) (see PARA 124 ante), s 28 (as amended) (see PARA 125 ante), s 29 (as amended) (see PARA 126 ante), s 30 (as amended) (see PARA 130 ante) or the Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 2 (see PARA 127 ante) or an offence listed in the Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(1A) (as added): s 1(1)(a) (amended by the Sexual Offences Act 2003, s 139 Sch 6 para 22). The Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(1A) (as added) lists the following offences: in Scotland or Northern Ireland: rape; in England and Wales: an offence under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 1 or s 2 (see PARAS 165, 167 ante); an offence under s 4, where the activity caused involved penetration within s 4(4) (a)-(d) (see PARA 171 ante); an offence under s 5 or s 6 (see PARAS 166, 168 ante); an offence under s 8, where an activity involving penetration within s 8(3)(a)-(d) was caused (see PARA 172 ante); an offence under s 30, where the touching involved penetration within s 30(3)(a)-(d) (see PARA 201 ante); an offence under s 31, where an activity involving penetration within s 31(3)(a)-(d) was caused (see PARA 201 ante): Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(1A) (added by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 Sch 6 para 22).

The offences of abduction under the Sexual Offences Act 1956 were repealed by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 140, Sch 7. The reference to 'abduction' in the list of specified offences is to be construed as not including an offence of child abduction under the Child Abduction Act 1984: see s 11(3).

5 'Relevant premises' means premises at which a protected person resides or is staying or which a protected person uses for the purpose of carrying out his functions as such a person: Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(5).

6 'Vehicle' includes any means of conveyance: ibid s 1(5).

7 Ibid s 1(1)(b). For the purposes of head (2) in the text, the specified offences are offences under: the Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 2 (see PARA 127 ante); the Criminal Damage Act 1971 s 1 (see PARA 334 ante); the Criminal Damage (Northern Ireland) Order 1977, SI 1977/426, art 3; or the offence of wilful fire-raising (an offence under Scottish law): Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(1)(b).

9 See note 1 supra.

10 Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(2). 'Art and part' is the equivalent under Scottish law of secondary liability under English criminal law.

11 See note 1 supra.

12 Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 1(3).

13 Ibid s 1(4).

14 Ibid s 2(1)(a) (amended by the Nuclear Materials (Offences) Act 1983 s 4(1); the United Nations Personnel Act 1997 s 7, Sch para 2; and the Crime (International Co-operation) Act 2003 s 91(1), Sch 5 paras 1, 2). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

Nothing in the Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 prejudices any rule of law relating to attempts to commit offences, the Accessories and Abettors Act 1861 s 8 (as amended) (see PARA 49 ante) or any rule of law in Scotland relating to art and part guilt: Internationally Protected Persons Act 1978 s 2(3).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(6) PREVENTION OF TERRORISM/(xiv) Jurisdiction/477B. Persons to whom notification requirements apply.

477B. Persons to whom notification requirements apply.

The notification requirements apply to a person who is aged 16 or over at the time of being dealt with for an offence to which the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 40-61) applies (see PARA 477A), and is made subject in respect of the offence to a sentence or order within s 45 (see below): s 44. The notification requirements apply to a person who in England and Wales has been convicted of an offence to which Pt 4 applies and sentenced in respect of the offence to (1) imprisonment or custody for life; (2) imprisonment or detention in a young offender institution for a term of 12 months or more; (3) imprisonment or detention in a young offender institution for public protection under the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 225 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 73 et seq); (4) detention for life or for a period of 12 months or more under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 91 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 78); (5) a detention and training order for a term of 12 months or more under s 100 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 89); (6) detention for public protection under the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 226 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 82-83); or (7) detention during Her Majesty's pleasure (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 81): Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 45(1)(a), (4). The notification requirements also apply to a person who in England and Wales has been (a) convicted of an offence to which Pt 4 applies carrying a maximum term of imprisonment of 12 months or more; (b) found not guilty by reason of insanity of such an offence; or (c) found to be under a disability and to have done the act charged against them in respect of such an offence, and made subject in respect of the offence to a hospital order: s 45(1)(b), (4). Similar provision is made in relation to a person who has been sentenced or made the subject of a hospital order in Scotland or Northern Ireland: see s 45(2)-(4). The Secretary of State may by order amend the provisions of s 45 referring to a specified term or period of imprisonment or detention: see Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 46.

If a person to whom the notification requirements apply is absent from the United Kingdom for any period, then during the period of absence the period for which the notification requirements apply continues to run, but the applicability of ss 47-49, 53(7) is modified: see Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 55. Provision is also made in relation to a person to whom the notification requirements apply who returns to the United Kingdom after a period of absence: see Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 56.

Where a person has been dealt with outside the United Kingdom in respect of a corresponding foreign offence the chief officer of police may apply to the High Court for a notification order applying the notification requirements to that person: see Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 57, Sch 4. On an application by the chief officer of police, a magistrates' court may make a foreign travel restriction order, prohibiting travel to a specified country or countries, where the behaviour of a person subject to the notification requirements since the person was dealt with for the offence by virtue of which the notification requirements apply makes it necessary for such an order to be made to prevent the person from taking part in terrorism activity outside the United Kingdom: see Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 s 58, Sch 5. Provision is made for the application of Pt 4 to service offences and related matters: see ss 59, 95, Sch 6.

- 608 (3) obtains<sup>7</sup>, collects, records, or publishes, or communicates<sup>8</sup> to any other person any secret official code word, or pass word, or any sketch, plan, model, article, or note, or other document<sup>9</sup> or information<sup>10</sup> which is calculated to be, or might be, or is intended to be, directly or indirectly useful to an enemy, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years<sup>11</sup>.

1 'Purpose' within the meaning of the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1 (as amended) is to be distinguished from the motive for doing an act; and 'any purpose' means or includes the achieving of the consequence which a person intended or desired to follow directly on his act, ie his direct or immediate purpose as opposed to his ultimate aim; and, even if a person had several purposes, his immediate purpose remained one of them and was within the words 'any purpose': Chandler v DPP [1964] AC 763, 46 Cr App Rep 347, HL. See also R v Bettaney [1985] Crim LR 104, CA (quality of information irrelevant in considering purpose for which it was communicated). As to proof of a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state see PARA 481 post.

2 In the phrase 'interests of the state', 'state' means 'the organised community' or 'the organs of government of a national community'; and 'interests of the state' means those interests according to the policies of the state as they in fact are, not as it might be argued that they ought to be: Chandler v DPP [1964] AC 763, 46 Cr App Rep 347, HL. In that case members of an organisation supporting nuclear disarmament had approached an air base belonging to Her Majesty which was a prohibited place with the admitted purpose of grounding all aircraft, immobilising the airfield and reclaiming the base for civilian purposes. It was held that, where a Secretary of State had declared places within the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 3 (as amended) (see PARA 479 post) to be prohibited places in which damage, destruction, obstruction or interference would be useful to an enemy, the defendant was not entitled to say or lead evidence to show that, although he had done that which would be useful to an enemy, yet his purpose was not prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state since the Crown (which was for present purposes 'the state') alone was entitled to decide the disposition and armament of the armed forces and the propriety of the decision on such matters could not be questioned in a court of law. Lord Devlin said: 'In a case like the present, it may be presumed that it is contrary to the interests of the Crown to have one of its airfields immobilised . . . The thing speaks for itself . . . But the presumption is not irrebuttable': see Chandler v DPP supra at 811 and 389-390. See also R v Bettaney [1985] Crim LR 104, CA.

3 For the meaning of 'prohibited place' see PARA 479 post.

4 'Sketch' includes any photograph or other mode of representing any place or thing: Official Secrets Act 1911 s 12.

5 'Model' includes design, pattern and specimen: ibid s 12.

6 'Enemy' includes a potential enemy with whom there might be war: R v Parrott (1913) 8 Cr App Rep 186, CCA.

7 Expressions referring to obtaining or retaining any sketch, plan, model, article, note, or document, include the copying or causing to be copied the whole or any part of any sketch, plan, model, article, note, or document: Official Secrets Act 1911 s 12.

8 Expressions referring to communicating include any communicating, whether in whole or in part, and whether the sketch, plan, model, article, note, document, or information itself or the substance, effect or description thereof only be communicated; and expressions referring to the communication of any sketch, plan, model, article, note or document include the transfer or transmission of the sketch, plan, model, article, note or document: ibid s 12 (definition amended by the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 16(4), Sch 2).

10 Where information is communicated, its truth or falsity is, it seems, immaterial: see R v M (1915) 32 TLR 1, 11 Cr App Rep 207, CCA (charge of attempting to communicate information to the enemy with the intention of assisting the enemy contrary to the Defence of the Realm (Consolidation) Act 1914 (repealed)).

As to restrictions on prosecutions see PARA 503 post. As to sentencing see R v Prime (1983) 5 Cr App Rep (S) 127, CA (series of offences under the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1(1) (c) (as amended) (see head (3) in the text); consecutive sentences of 14, 14 and seven years upheld having regard to the totality of the sentence); R v Schulze, R v Schulze (1986) 8 Cr App Rep (S) 463, CA (acts preparatory to commission of offence under the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1(1)(c) (as amended); sentence of ten years' imprisonment upheld).

The Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1(1) (as amended) is not limited to offences of spying but extends to the saboteur as much as to the spy: Chandler v DPP [1964] AC 763, 46 Cr App Rep 347, HL. The Official Secrets Acts 1911, 1920 and 1939 are to be construed as one: see the Official Secrets Act 1920 s 11(1); and the Official Secrets Act 1939 s 2(1). Archives of a foreign embassy in England can be the subject of a charge under the Acts: See R v AB [1941] 1 KB 454, sub nom R v Kent (1941) 28 Cr App Rep 23, CCA. As to police powers to obtain information relating to offences under the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1(1) (as amended) see PARA 482 post. As to the facts deemed to constitute evidence of obtaining information useful to an enemy see PARA 480 post.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/480. Evidence of obtaining information useful to an enemy.

480. Evidence of obtaining information useful to an enemy.

In any proceedings against a person for spying or sabotage<sup>1</sup> the fact that he has been in communication with, or attempted to communicate with, a foreign agent<sup>2</sup>, whether within or outside the United Kingdom, is evidence that he has, for a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state, obtained or attempted to obtain information which is calculated to be, or might be, or is intended to be, directly or indirectly useful to an enemy<sup>3</sup>. Unless he proves the contrary, a person is deemed, for the purpose of the above provisions, to have been in communication with a foreign agent if he has, either within or outside the United Kingdom, visited the address<sup>4</sup> of a foreign agent or consorted or associated with a foreign agent; or if, either within or outside the United Kingdom, the name or address of (or any other information regarding) a foreign agent has been found in his possession, or has been supplied by him to, or obtained by him from, any other person<sup>5</sup>.

1    le for an offence under the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1: see PARA 478 ante.

2    'Foreign agent' includes any person who is or has been or is reasonably suspected of being or having been employed by a foreign power either directly or indirectly for the purpose of committing an act, either within or outside the United Kingdom, prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state, or who has or is reasonably suspected of having, either within or outside the United Kingdom, committed, or attempted to commit, such an act in the interests of a foreign power: Official Secrets Act 1920 s 2(2)(b). The jury must consider the activities of the alleged foreign agent as evidence against the defendant only in so far as those activities show that the alleged foreign agent was indeed a foreign agent and that the defendant was in communication with him: R v Kent as reported in (1941) 28 Cr App Rep 23 at 31, CCA.

3    Official Secrets Act 1920 s 2(1). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

4    Any address, whether within or outside the United Kingdom, reasonably suspected of being an address used for the receipt of communications intended for a foreign agent, or any address at which a foreign agent resides, or to which he resorts for the purpose of giving or receiving communications, or at which he carries on any business, is deemed to be the address of a foreign agent, and communications addressed to such an address to be communications with a foreign agent: ibid s 2(2)(c).

5    Ibid s 2(2)(a). Section 2(2) is without prejudice to the generality of s 2(1) (see the text and notes 1-3 supra): s 2(2).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/481. Proof of purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state.

481. Proof of purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state.

On a prosecution for spying or sabotage<sup>1</sup> or for an offence<sup>2</sup> involving the proof of a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state, it is not necessary to show that the defendant was guilty of any particular act tending to show a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state; and, notwithstanding that no such act is proved against him, he may be convicted if, from the circumstances of the case, or his conduct, or his known character as proved, it appears that his purpose was a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state; and if any sketch<sup>3</sup>, plan, model<sup>4</sup>, article, note, document<sup>5</sup>, or information relating to or used in any prohibited place<sup>6</sup> or anything in such a place or any secret official code word or pass word, is made, obtained<sup>7</sup>, collected, recorded, published, or communicated<sup>8</sup> by any person other than a person acting under lawful authority, it is deemed to have been made, obtained, collected, recorded, published, or communicated for a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state unless the contrary is proved<sup>9</sup>.

2    Ie an offence under the Official Secrets Act 1920 s 1(1) (see PARA 491 post) or s 1(2)(a) (see PARA 492 post): see s 1(3).

9    Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1(2) (amended by the Official Secrets Act 1920 s 10, Sch 1). As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/482. Power of police to obtain information relating to spying or sabotage.

482. Power of police to obtain information relating to spying or sabotage.

Where a chief officer of police<sup>1</sup> is satisfied that there is reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence of spying or sabotage<sup>2</sup> has been committed and for believing that any person is able to furnish information as to the offence or suspected offence, he may apply to a Secretary of State for permission to exercise the powers described below; and, if such permission is granted, he may authorise a superintendent of police<sup>3</sup>, or any police officer not below the rank of inspector, to require the person believed to be able to furnish information to give any information in his power relating to the offence or suspected offence, and, if so required and on tender of his reasonable expenses, to attend at such reasonable time and place as may be specified by the superintendent or other officer<sup>4</sup>. Where a chief officer of police has reasonable grounds to believe that the case is one of great emergency and that in the interest of the state immediate action is necessary, he may give such authorisation without applying for or being granted the permission of a Secretary of State; but, if he does so, he must forthwith report the circumstances to the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>.

A person who fails to comply with any such requirement or knowingly gives false information is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'chief officer of police' see PARA 380 note 1 ante; definition applied by the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. References in the Official Secrets Act 1920 s 6 (as substituted) to a chief officer of police are to be construed as including references to any other officer of police expressly authorised by a chief officer of police to act on his behalf for these purposes when by reason of illness, absence, or other cause he is unable to do so: s 6(3) (s 6 substituted by the Official Secrets Act 1939 s 1)).

2 I.e. under the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 1 (as amended): see PARA 478 ante.

3 'Superintendent of police' includes any police officer of like or superior rank and any person on whom the powers of a superintendent of police are for this purpose conferred by a Secretary of State: ibid s 12 (definition amended by the Official Secrets Act 1920 s 10, Sch 1); Official Secrets Act 1920 s 11(1).

4 Official Secrets Act 1920 s 6(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

5 Ibid s 6(2) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

6 Ibid s 6(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 Official Secrets Act 1920 s 8(2) (amended by virtue of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2)); Criminal Justice Act 1948 s 1(2); Criminal Law Act 1967 s 1. As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141. As to restrictions on prosecutions see PARA 503 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/483. Disclosure of security or intelligence information etc.

483. Disclosure of security or intelligence information etc.

A person who is or has been (1) a member of the security and intelligence services; or (2) a person notified<sup>1</sup> that he is subject to these provisions, is guilty of an offence if without lawful authority<sup>2</sup> he discloses any information<sup>3</sup>, document or other article<sup>4</sup> relating to security or intelligence<sup>5</sup> which is or has been in his possession by virtue of his position as a member of any of those services or in the course of his work while the notification is or was in force<sup>6</sup>.

A person who is or has been a Crown servant<sup>7</sup> or government contractor<sup>8</sup> is guilty of an offence if without lawful authority he makes a damaging<sup>9</sup> disclosure of any information, document or other article relating to security or intelligence which is or has been in his possession by virtue of his position<sup>10</sup> as such<sup>11</sup>.

It is a defence for a person charged with either of the above offences to prove<sup>12</sup> that at the time of the alleged offence he did not know, and had no reasonable cause to believe, that the information, document or article in question related to security or intelligence or that<sup>13</sup> the disclosure would be damaging<sup>14</sup>.

A person guilty of either such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>15</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>16</sup>.

1 Notification that a person is subject to these provisions must be effected by a notice in writing served on the person by a Minister of the Crown; and such a notice may be served if, in the minister's opinion, the work undertaken by the person in question is or includes work connected with the security and intelligence services and its nature is such that the interests of national security require that he should be so subject: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 1(6). Such a notification is in force for the period of five years beginning with the day on which it is served, but may be renewed by further notices under s 1(6) for periods of five years at a time: s 1(7). However, such a notification may at any time be revoked by a further notice in writing served by the minister on the person concerned; and the minister must serve such further notice as soon as, in his opinion, the work undertaken by that person ceases to be such as is mentioned in s 1(6): s 1(8).

2 For the meaning of 'lawful authority' see PARA 489 post.

3 The reference to disclosing information relating to security or intelligence includes a reference to making any statement which purports to be a disclosure of such information or is intended to be taken by those to whom it is addressed as being such a disclosure: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 1(2).

4 'Disclose' and 'disclosure', in relation to a document or other article, include parting with possession of it: ibid s 13(1).

5 For these purposes, 'security or intelligence' means the work of, or in support of, the security and intelligence services or any part of them; and references to information relating to security or intelligence include references to information held or transmitted by those services or by persons in support of, or of any part of, them: ibid s 1(9).

6 Ibid s 1(1). A defendant is not entitled to be acquitted if he shows that it was, or he believed that it was, in the public or national interest to make the disclosure in question or if the jury concludes that it might have been, or that the defendant might have believed it to be, in the public or national interest to make the disclosure in question: R v Shayler [2002] UKHL 11, [2003] 1 AC 247, [2002] 2 All ER 477. The offence is compatible with the right to freedom of expression under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 10: R v Shayler supra. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq. According to the Court of Appeal in R v Shayler [2001] EWCA Crim 1977, [2001] 1 WLR 2206, the defence of duress of circumstances is applicable to a charge under the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 1 or s 4 (as amended) (see PARA 486 post); on appeal the House of Lords declined to consider the applicability of that defence, making clear that this was not to be taken as acceptance of what the Court of Appeal said on the matter.

As to the extent of the Official Secrets Act 1989 and the place of trial see PARA 502 post. As to restrictions on prosecutions see PARA 503 post. As to the exclusion of the public during a hearing see PARA 504 post. As to the power to grant a search warrant see PARA 500 post.

Any act done (1) by a British citizen or Crown servant; or (2) by any person in any of the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man or any colony, is, if it would be an offence by that person under any provision of the Official Secrets Act 1989 other than s 8(1), (4) or (5) (see PARA 490 post) when done by him in the United Kingdom, an offence under that provision: s 15(1). As to British citizens see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 23 et seq. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

7 'Crown servant' means (1) a Minister of the Crown; (2) a member of the Scottish Executive or a junior Scottish Minister; (3) any person employed in the civil service of the Crown, including Her Majesty's Diplomatic Service, Her Majesty's Overseas Civil Service, the civil service of Northern Ireland and the Northern Ireland Court Service; (4) any member of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown, including any person employed by an association established for the purposes of the Reserve Forces Act 1996 Pt XI (ss 110-119) (see ARMED FORCES); (5) any constable and any other person employed or appointed in or for the purposes of any police force (including the Police Service of Northern Ireland and the Police Service of Northern Ireland Reserve) or of the Serious Organised Crime Agency; (6) any person who is a member or employee of a prescribed body or a body of a prescribed class and either is prescribed for these purposes or belongs to a prescribed class of members or employees of any such body; (7) any person who is the holder of a prescribed office or who is an employee of such a holder and either is prescribed for these purposes or belongs to a prescribed class of such employees: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 12(1) (amended by the Reserve Forces Act 1996 s 131(1), Sch 10 para 22; the Police Act 1997 s 134(1), Sch 9 para 62; the Scotland Act 1998 s 125, Sch 8 para 26(1), (2); the Northern Ireland Act 1998 ss 74, 99, 100, Sch 4 para 17, Sch 13 paras 9(1), (2), 15; the Police (Northern Ireland) Act 2000 s 78(1), Sch 6 para 9; and the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 59, Sch 4 para 58). As from a day to be appointed 'Crown servant' also means the First Minister for Wales, a Welsh Minister appointed under the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 48, the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government or a Deputy Welsh Minister: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 12(1) (prospectively amended by the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 160(1), Sch 10 para 34(a)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

In the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 12 (as amended and prospectively amended) the reference to a police force includes a reference to the Civil Nuclear Constabulary: s 12(4A) (added by the Energy Act 2004 s 69, Sch 14 para 6). For these purposes, 'prescribed' means prescribed by an order made by the Secretary of State: s 13(1). Any such power of the Secretary of State to make orders is exercisable by statutory instrument; and no order may be made by him for the purposes of s 7(5) (see PARA 489 post), s 8(9) (see PARA 490 post) or s 12 (as amended) unless a draft of it has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament: s 14(1), (2). If, apart from these provisions, the draft of an order under any of ss 7(5), 8(9), 12 (as amended) would be treated for the purposes of the Standing Orders of either House of Parliament as a hybrid instrument, it must proceed in that House as if it were not such an instrument: s 14(3). So far as relates to Wales, functions under s 12 (as amended) have been transferred to the National Assembly for Wales: see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, Sch 1 (as amended).

The Official Secrets Act 1989 (Prescription) Order 1990, SI 1990/200, art 2, Sch 1 (amended by SI 1993/847; SI 2003/1918) lists the bodies and the classes of members or employees of those bodies which are prescribed for the purposes of head (6) supra. The bodies listed and the corresponding classes of members or employees are as follows: British Nuclear Fuels plc (the employees of the company); the Board of British Nuclear Fuels plc (the members of the Board); the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority (the members, officers and employees of the Authority); Urenco Ltd (the employees of the company); the Board of Urenco Ltd (the members of the Board); Urenco (Capenhurst) Ltd (the employees of the company); the Board of Urenco (Capenhurst) Ltd (the members of the Board); Enrichment Technology Company Ltd (the employees of the company); the Board of Enrichment Technology Company Ltd (the members of the Board); Enrichment Technology UK Ltd (the employees of the company); the Board of Enrichment Technology UK Ltd (the members of the Board); Urenco Enrichment Company Ltd (the employees of the company); the Board of Urenco Enrichment Company Ltd (the members of the Board).

The Official Secrets Act 1989 (Prescription) Order 1990, SI 1990/200, art 3, Sch 2 (amended by SI 1999/1042; SI 2004/1823) lists the offices and the classes of employees of the holders of those offices which are prescribed for the purposes of head (7) supra. The offices and corresponding classes of employees are: Comptroller and Auditor General; member of staff of the National Audit Office; Comptroller and Auditor General for Northern Ireland; member of staff of the Northern Ireland Audit Office; Auditor General for Scotland; Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration (the officers of the Commissioner who are not otherwise Crown servants); officer of the Health Service Commissioner for England or Wales being an officer who is authorised by the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration to perform any of his functions and who is not otherwise a Crown servant; Northern Ireland Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration (the officers of the Commissioner who are not otherwise Crown servants); Scottish Public Services Ombudsman (the officers of the Ombudsman who are not otherwise Crown Servants); a private secretary to the Sovereign.

8 'Government contractor' means any person who is not a Crown servant but who provides, or is employed in the provision of, goods or services (1) for the purposes of any Minister of the Crown, of any office-holder in the Scottish Administration, of any of the services, forces or bodies mentioned in s 12(1) (see note 7 supra) or of the holder of any office prescribed under s 12(1); (2) until a day to be appointed, for the purposes of the National Assembly for Wales, and as from that day, for the purposes of the First Minister for Wales, a Welsh Minister appointed under the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 48, the Counsel General to the Welsh Assembly Government or a Deputy Welsh Minister; or (3) under an agreement or arrangement certified by the Secretary of State as being one to which the government of a state other than the United Kingdom or an international organisation is a party or which is subordinate to, or made for the purposes of implementing, any such agreement or arrangement: s 12(2) (amended by the Scotland Act 1998 s 125(1), Sch 8 para 26; and the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 125, Sch 12 para 30; prospectively amended by the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 163, Sch 10 para 34(b), Sch 12). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.).

Where an employee or class of employees of any body, or of any holder of an office, is prescribed by an order made for the purposes of the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 12(1) (see note 7 supra) (a) any employee of that body, or the holder of that office, who is not prescribed or is not within the prescribed class; and (b) any person who does not provide, or is not employed in the provision of, goods or services for the purposes of the performance of those functions of the body or the holder of the office in connection with which the employee or prescribed class of employees is engaged, is not a government contractor for the purposes of the Official Secrets Act 1989: s 12(3).

For these purposes, 'state' includes the government of a state and any organ of its government; and references to a state other than the United Kingdom include references to any territory outside the United Kingdom: s 13(1). 'International organisation' means an organisation of which only states are members and includes a reference to any organ of such an organisation: s 13(1). However, in s 12(2)(b) (see head (3) supra) the reference to an international organisation includes a reference to any such organisation whether or not one of which only states are members and includes a commercial organisation: s 13(2). In determining whether only states are members of an organisation, any member which is itself an organisation of which only states are members, or which is an organ of such an organisation, is to be treated as a state: s 13(3).

9 For these purposes, a disclosure is damaging if (1) it causes damage to the work of, or any part of, the security and intelligence services; or (2) it is of information or a document or other article which is such that its unauthorised disclosure would be likely to cause such damage or which falls within a class or description of information, documents or articles the unauthorised disclosure of which would be likely to have that effect: ibid s 1(4).

10 Ie otherwise than as mentioned in ibid s 1(1) (see the text and notes 1-6 supra).

11 Ibid s 1(3). See also note 6 supra.

12 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

13 Ie in the case of an offence under the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 1(3) (see the text and note 11 supra).

14 Ibid s 1(5).

15 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

16 Official Secrets Act 1989 s 10(1). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

484 Damaging disclosure of defence information etc

NOTE 9--The natural meaning of the 1989 Act s 2(3) is incompatible with the presumption of innocence guaranteed by the European Convention on Human Rights art 6, and therefore should be read down so as to treat the burden of proof imposed on the defendant as no more than an evidential burden: R v Keogh [2007] EWCA Crim 528, [2007] 3 All ER 789.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/485. #### 485. Damaging disclosure of information etc relating to international relations.

A person who is or has been a Crown servant<sup>1</sup> or government contractor<sup>2</sup> is guilty of an offence if without lawful authority<sup>3</sup> he makes a damaging disclosure<sup>4</sup> of:

- 614 (1) any information, document or other article<sup>5</sup> relating to international relations<sup>6</sup>;
- 615 (2) any confidential<sup>7</sup> information, document or other article which was obtained from a state other than the United Kingdom or an international organisation, being information or a document or article which is or has been in his possession by virtue of his position as a Crown servant or government contractor<sup>8</sup>. It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove<sup>9</sup> that at the time of the alleged offence he did not know, and had no reasonable cause to believe, that the information, document or article in question was such information as is mentioned above<sup>10</sup> or that its disclosure would be damaging<sup>11</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>12</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>13</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'Crown servant' see PARA 483 note 7 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'government contractor' see PARA 483 note 8 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'lawful authority' see PARA 489 post.

4 For these purposes, a disclosure is damaging if (1) it endangers the interests of the United Kingdom abroad, seriously obstructs the promotion or protection by the United Kingdom of those interests or endangers the safety of British citizens abroad; or (2) it is of information or of a document or article which is such that its unauthorised disclosure would be likely to have any of those effects: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 3(2). In the case of information or a document or article within s 3(1)(b) (see head (2) in the text), the fact that it is confidential, or its nature or contents, may be sufficient to establish for the purposes of s 3(2)(b) (see head (2) supra) that the information, document or article is such that its unauthorised disclosure would be likely to have any of those effects: s 3(3). As to British citizens see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 23 et seq. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'disclosure' in relation to a document or other article see PARA 483 note 4 ante.

6 For these purposes, 'international relations' means the relations between states, between international organisations or between one or more states and one or more such organisations and includes any matter relating to a state other than the United Kingdom or to an international organisation which is capable of affecting the relations of the United Kingdom with another state or with an international organisation: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 3(5). For the meaning of 'state', 'international organisation' and 'state other than the United Kingdom' see PARA 483 note 8 ante.

7 For these purposes, any information, document or article obtained from a state or organisation is confidential at any time while the terms on which it was obtained require it to be held in confidence or while the circumstances in which it was obtained make it reasonable for the state or organisation to expect that it would be so held: ibid s 3(6).

8 Ibid s 3(1). As to the extent of the Official Secrets Act 1989 and place of trial see PARA 502 post. As to restrictions on prosecutions see PARA 503 post. As to the exclusion of the public during a hearing see PARA 504 post. As to the power to grant a search warrant see PARA 500 post.

The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

10 le such as is mentioned in Official Secrets Act 1989 s 3(1) (see the text and notes 1-8 supra).

11 Ibid s 3(4). 'Damaging' means damaging within the meaning of s 3(1) (see note 4 supra): s 3(4).

12 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). #### 486. Disclosure of information etc related to crime and special investigation powers.

UPDATE

485 Damaging disclosure of information etc relating to international relations

NOTE 11--The natural meaning of the 1989 Act s 3(4) is incompatible with the presumption of innocence guaranteed by the European Convention on Human Rights art 6, and therefore should be read down so as to treat the burden of proof imposed on the defendant as no more than an evidential burden: R v Keogh [2007] EWCA Crim 528, [2007] 3 All ER 789.

A person who is or has been a Crown servant<sup>1</sup> or government contractor<sup>2</sup> is guilty of an offence if without lawful authority<sup>3</sup> he discloses any specified information, document or other article<sup>4</sup> which is or has been in his possession by virtue of his position as such<sup>5</sup>. The specified information, document or other article is any information, document or other article:

- 1 (1) the disclosure of which (a) results in the commission of an offence; or (b) facilitates an escape from legal custody<sup>6</sup> or the doing of any other act prejudicial to the safekeeping of persons in legal custody; or (c) impedes the prevention or detection of offences or the apprehension or prosecution of suspected offenders; or
- 2 (2) which is such that its unauthorised disclosure would be likely to have any of those effects<sup>7</sup>.

It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence (i) in respect of a disclosure falling within head (1) above to prove<sup>8</sup> that at the time of the alleged offence he did not know, and had no reasonable cause to believe, that the disclosure would have any of the effects there mentioned<sup>9</sup>; (ii) in respect of any other disclosure, to prove that at the time of the alleged offence he did not know, and had no reasonable cause to believe, that the information, document or article in question was information or a document or article to which the above provisions apply<sup>10</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>11</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'Crown servant' see PARA 483 note 7 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'government contractor' see PARA 483 note 8 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'lawful authority' see PARA 489 post.

4 For the meaning of 'disclosure' in relation to a document or other article see PARA 483 note 4 ante.

5 Official Secrets Act 1989 s 4(1). A defendant is not entitled to be acquitted if he shows, that it was, or he believed that it was, in the public or national interest to make the disclosure in question or if the jury concludes that it might have been, or that the defendant might have believed it to be, in the public or national interest to make the disclosure in question: R v Shayler [2002] UKHL 11, [2003] 1 AC 247, [2002] 2 All ER 477. The offence is compatible with the right to freedom of expression under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 10: R v Shayler supra. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq. According to the Court of Appeal in R v Shayler [2001] EWCA Crim 1977, [2001] 1 WLR 2206, the defence of necessity is applicable to a charge under the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 1 or s 4 (as amended); on appeal the House of Lords declined to consider the applicability of that defence, making clear that this was not to be taken as acceptance of what the Court of Appeal said on the matter.

As to the extent of the Official Secrets Act 1989 and place of trial see PARA 502 post. As to restrictions on prosecutions see PARA 503 post. As to the exclusion of the public during a hearing see PARA 504 post. As to the power to grant a search warrant see PARA 500 post.

6 For these purposes, 'legal custody' includes detention in pursuance of any enactment or any instrument made under an enactment: ibid s 4(6).

7 Ibid s 4(2). Section 4 also applies to: (1) any information obtained by reason of the interception of any communication in obedience to a warrant issued under the Interception of Communications Act 1985 s 2 (repealed) or under the authority of an interception warrant under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 5 (see PARA 509 post), any information relating to the obtaining of information by reason of any such interception and any document or other article which is or has been used or held for use in, or has been obtained by reason of, any such interception; or (2) any information obtained by reason of action authorised by a warrant issued under the Security Service Act 1989 s 3 (repealed) or under the Intelligence Services Act 1994 s 5 (as amended) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 474) or by an authorisation given under s 7 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 474), any information relating to the obtaining of information by reason of any such action and any document or other article which is or has been used or held for use in, or has been obtained by reason of, any such action: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 4(3) (amended by the Intelligence Services Act 1994 s 11(2), Sch 4 para 4; and the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 82(1), Sch 4 para 5).

8 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the European Convention on Human Rights art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post.

9 Official Secrets Act 1989 s 4(4).

10 Ibid s 4(5).

11 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). Where a person<sup>1</sup>, owing either (1) to his duties as a member of any Euratom<sup>2</sup> institution or committee, or as an officer or servant of Euratom; or (2) to his dealings in any capacity official or unofficial with any Euratom institution or installation or with any Euratom joint enterprise, has occasion to acquire, or obtain cognisance of, any classified information<sup>3</sup>, he is guilty of an offence if, knowing or having reason to believe that it is classified information, he communicates it to any unauthorised person or makes any public disclosure of it, whether in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, and whether before or after the termination of those duties or dealings<sup>4</sup>, and is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

1 The European Communities Act 1972 refers to a person 'whether a British subject or not', but this term is now used to refer only to a narrow class of British national. As to British nationality see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 7 et seq.

2 'Euratom' means the European Atomic Energy Community: ibid s 1(2), Sch 1 Pt II.

3 For these purposes, 'classified information' means any facts, information, knowledge, documents or objects that are subject to the security rules of a member state or of any Euratom institution: ibid s 11(2). 'Member' in the expression 'member state' refers to membership of the European Communities: Sch 1 Pt II.

4 Ibid s 11(2). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante. Section 11(2) is to be construed, and the Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1939 are to have effect, as if the European Communities Act 1972 s 11(2) were contained in the Official Secrets Act 1911, but so that s 10(1)-(3) and s 11 (see PARA 501 post) do not apply: European Communities Act 1972 s 11(2). As to restrictions on prosecutions see PARA 503 post. As to communication of information concerning atomic energy plants see PARA 499 post.

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/494. Prohibition of disclosures relating to nuclear industry.

494. Prohibition of disclosures relating to nuclear industry.

A person is guilty of an offence if he discloses<sup>1</sup> any information or thing the disclosure of which might prejudice the security of any nuclear site<sup>2</sup> or of any nuclear material<sup>3</sup> (1) with the intention of prejudicing that security; or (2) being reckless as to whether the disclosure might prejudice that security<sup>4</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>5</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted in England and Wales, except by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>7</sup>.

The above provisions apply to acts done outside the United Kingdom, but only if they are done by a United Kingdom person<sup>8</sup>. Proceedings for an offence committed outside the United Kingdom may be taken, and the offence may for incidental purposes be treated as having been committed, in any place in the United Kingdom<sup>9</sup>.

1 'Disclose' and 'disclosure', in relation to a thing, include parting with possession of it: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 79(4).

2 'Nuclear site' means a site in the United Kingdom (including a site occupied by or on behalf of the Crown) which is (or is expected to be) used for any purpose mentioned in the Nuclear Installations Act 1965 s 1(1) (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1487); Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 79(4). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

3 'Nuclear material' has the same meaning as in the Energy Act 2004 Pt 1 Ch 3 (see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1528); Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 79(4) (definition substituted by the Energy Act 2004 s 69, Sch 14 para 10(2)).

4 Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 79(1). The reference in s 79(1) to nuclear material is a reference to: (1) nuclear material which is being held on any nuclear site; or (2) nuclear material anywhere in the world which is being transported to or from a nuclear site or carried on board a British ship (including nuclear material which is expected to be so held, transported or carried): s 79(2). For these purposes, 'British ship' means a ship (including a ship belonging to Her Majesty) which is registered in the United Kingdom: s 79(4). See further FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1562.

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 79(3). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

7 Ibid s 81(1)(a).

8 Ibid s 79(5). Nothing in s 79(5) affects any criminal liability arising otherwise than under that provision: s 79(7).

In ss 79, 80, 'United Kingdom person' means a United Kingdom national, a Scottish partnership or a body incorporated under the law of any part of the United Kingdom: s 81(2). For these purposes, a United Kingdom national is an individual who is: (1) a British citizen, a British overseas territories citizen, a British National (Overseas) or a British overseas citizen; (2) a person who under the British Nationality Act 1981 is a British subject; or (3) a British protected person within the meaning of that Act: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 81(3) (amended by virtue of the British Overseas Territories Act 2002 s 2(3)). As to British citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 23-43; as to British overseas territories citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 44-57; as to the status of British National (Overseas) see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 63-65; as to British overseas citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 58-62; as to British subjects under the British Nationality Act 1981 see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 66-71; and as to British protected persons within the meaning of s 50(1) see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 72-76.

495. Prohibition of disclosures of uranium enrichment technology.

The Secretary of State may make regulations<sup>1</sup> prohibiting the disclosure<sup>2</sup> of information<sup>3</sup> about the enrichment of uranium<sup>4</sup>, or any information or thing which is, or is likely to be, used in connection with the enrichment of uranium<sup>5</sup>. A person who contravenes such a prohibition is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>6</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>7</sup>. Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>8</sup>.

1 The power to make the regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 80(6). The regulations may not be made unless a draft of the regulations has been laid before and approved by each House of Parliament: s 80(7). As to the terms of this regulation-making power see s 80(4), (5). As to the regulations made see the Uranium Enrichment Technology (Prohibition on Disclosure) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1818.

2 'Disclosure', in relation to a thing, includes parting with possession of it: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 80(8).

3 'Information' includes software: ibid s 80(8).

4 For these purposes, 'the enrichment of uranium' means any treatment of uranium that increases the proportion of the isotope 235 contained in the uranium: ibid s 80(1).

5 Ibid s 80(1), (2). See further FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1563.

If any person in the vicinity<sup>1</sup> of any prohibited place<sup>2</sup> obstructs, knowingly misleads, or otherwise interferes with or impedes the chief officer<sup>3</sup> or a superintendent<sup>4</sup> or other officer of police, or a member of Her Majesty's forces engaged on guard, sentry, patrol or other similar duty in relation to the prohibited place, he is guilty of an offence<sup>5</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>6</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>7</sup>.

1 'In the vicinity of' means 'in or in the vicinity of': Adler v George [1964] 2 QB 7, [1964] 1 All ER 628, DC.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/497. Attempts; incitement; preparatory acts.

497. Attempts; incitement; preparatory acts.

Any person who attempts<sup>1</sup> to commit any offence under the Official Secrets Act 1911 or the Official Secrets Act 1920, or solicits or incites or endeavours to persuade another person to commit an offence, or aids or abets and<sup>2</sup> does any act preparatory to the commission of an offence under those Acts<sup>3</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to the same penalty and to be proceeded against in the same manner as if he had committed the corresponding substantive offence<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to attempts see PARA 79 et seq ante.

2 In order to produce an intelligible result, the words 'abets and does any act' must be read as if 'or' were substituted for 'and': R v Oakes [1959] 2 QB 350, 43 Cr App Rep 114, CCA. See also R v Bingham [1973] QB 870, 57 Cr App Rep 439, CA.

3 This (ie doing 'any act preparatory to the commission of an offence') is a very special kind of offence based on a provision which . . . contemplates something which is even more remote from the substantive offence than an attempt to commit it: R v Bingham [1973] QB 870 at 875, 57 Cr App Rep 439 at 443-444, CA (approach to foreign embassy by wife with a view to her husband supplying information). In a prosecution for this offence it is sufficient for the prosecution to prove that at the time of doing the act the defendant must have realised that the substantive offence might follow; it is not necessary for the prosecution to show that the defendant realised that it was a probable consequence of this act: R v Bingham supra.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/498. Harboursing offenders.

498. Harboursing offenders.

If any person (1) knowingly harbours<sup>1</sup> any person whom he knows, or has reasonable grounds for supposing, to be a person who is about to commit or who has committed an offence under the Official Secrets Act 1911 or the Official Secrets Act 1920; or (2) knowingly permits any such persons to meet or assemble in premises in his occupation or under his control; or (3) having harboured any such person or permitted any such persons to meet or assemble in premises in his occupation or under his control, wilfully omits or refuses to disclose to a superintendent of police<sup>2</sup> any information which it is in his power to give in relation to any such person, he is guilty of an offence<sup>3</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>4</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>5</sup>.

1 'Harbour' means to give shelter; an alleged harbourer need not have any interest in the relevant place (and may even be a trespasser there): Darch v Weight [1982] 2 All ER 245, 79 Cr App Rep 40, DC (harbouring escaped prisoner contrary to the Criminal Justice Act 1961 s 22(2)); and see also R v Mistry, R v Asare [1980] Crim LR 177, CA (harbouring illegal immigrants contrary to the Immigration Act 1971 s 25(2)).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) OFFICIAL SECRETS AND COMMUNICATION OF INFORMATION/(i) Offences in respect of Official Secrets/499. Communication of information concerning atomic energy plants.

499. Communication of information concerning atomic energy plants.

Except as otherwise provided<sup>1</sup>, any person<sup>2</sup> who, without the consent of the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup>, communicates to any other person except an authorised person<sup>4</sup> any document, drawing, photograph, plan, model or other information whatsoever which to his knowledge describes, represents or illustrates (1) any existing or proposed plant<sup>5</sup> used or proposed to be used for the purpose of producing or using atomic energy<sup>6</sup>; (2) the purpose or method of operation of any such existing or proposed plant; or (3) any process operated or proposed to be operated in any such existing or proposed plant, is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine<sup>8</sup> or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>9</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>10</sup>. Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>11</sup>.

1 It is not an offence under the Atomic Energy Act 1946 s 11(1) to communicate information with respect to any plant of a type in use for purposes other than the production or use of atomic energy unless the information discloses that plant of that type is used or proposed to be used for the production or use of atomic energy: s 11(1) proviso. Where any information has been made available to the general public otherwise than in contravention of s 11(1), any subsequent communication of that information does not constitute an offence: s 11(4). The Secretary of State may by order grant exemption from s 11(1) in such classes of cases, and to such extent and subject to such conditions, as may be specified in the order: s 11(3). Any such order is subject to annulment by resolution of either House of Parliament within 40 days of the order being laid: see s 15(1). See also the Atomic Energy (Disclosure of Information) (No 1) Order 1947, SR & O 1947/100.

The Atomic Energy Act 1946 s 11 does not apply to anything done by or to the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority: Atomic Energy Authority Act 1954 ss 1(1), 6(4), Sch 3.

2 Where an offence has been committed by a body corporate, every person who at the time of the commission of the offence was a director, general manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or was purporting to act in any such capacity, is deemed to be guilty of that offence unless he proves that the offence was committed without his consent or connivance and that he exercised all such diligence to prevent the commission of the offence as he ought to have exercised having regard to the nature of his functions in that capacity and to all the circumstances: Atomic Energy Act 1946 s 14(3). As to the criminal capacity of corporations see PARA 38 ante.

3 The functions of the former Minister of Supply under the Atomic Energy Act 1946 are now exercised by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 507; FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 601. The Secretary of State may not withhold consent if satisfied that the information proposed to be communicated is not of importance for purposes of defence: s 11(2).

4 'Authorised person' means a person to whom, by virtue of a general authority granted by the Secretary of State, information on that subject may be communicated: ibid s 11(1).

5 'Plant' includes any machinery, equipment or appliance whether affixed to land or not: ibid s 18(1).

6 'Atomic energy' means the energy released from atomic nuclei as a result of any process, including the fission process, but does not include energy released in any process of natural transmutation or radioactive decay which is not accelerated or influenced by external means: ibid s 18(1). 'Production or use of atomic energy' includes the carrying out of any process preparatory or ancillary to such production or use: s 18(4).

7 Ibid s 11(1).

8 Where a person convicted on indictment of an offence under the Atomic Energy Act 1946 is a body corporate, the provisions of s 14(1) (as amended) limiting the amount of the fine which may be imposed do not apply and the body corporate is liable to a fine of such amount as the court thinks just: s 14(2).

9 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

10 Atomic Energy Act 1946 s 14(1) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1948 s 1(1), (2); the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 32(1); and the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2)). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

(ii) Enforcement Powers

500. Power to search premises.

If a justice of the peace is satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence under the Official Secrets Act 1911 or (with some exceptions) the Official Secrets Act 1989<sup>1</sup> has been or is about to be committed, he may grant a search warrant authorising any constable to enter at any time any premises or place named in the warrant, if necessary by force, and to search the premises or place and every person found there and to seize any sketch<sup>2</sup>, plan, model<sup>3</sup>, article, note, or document<sup>4</sup> or anything of a like nature or anything which is evidence of an offence under the Act having been or being about to be committed, which he may find on the premises or place or on any such person, and with regard to or in connection with which he has reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence under the Act has been or is about to be committed<sup>5</sup>.

Where it appears to a superintendent of police<sup>6</sup> that the case is one of great emergency and that in the interests of the state immediate action is necessary, he may by a written order under his hand give to any constable the like authority as may be given by the warrant of a justice<sup>7</sup>.

5 Official Secrets Act 1911 s 9(1) (amended by the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 ss 119(2), 120, Sch 7 Pt I). The Official Secrets Act 1911 s 9(1) (as amended) has effect as if references to offences under that Act included references to offences under any provision of the Official Secrets Act 1989 other than s 8(1), (4) or (5) (see PARA 490 ante); and the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 9(2) (exclusion of items subject to legal privilege and certain material from powers of search conferred by previous enactments: see PARA 874 post), and s 9(1), Sch 1 para 3(b) (access conditions for the special procedure laid down in that Schedule: see PARA 878 post) apply to the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 9(1) (as amended) as extended by the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 11(3) as they apply to the Official Secrets Act 1911 s 9(1) as originally enacted: Official Secrets Act 1989 s 11(3). The Official Secrets Act 1911 s 9(1) (as amended) must be read subject to the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 Pt II (ss 8-23) (as amended): see PARA 871 et seq post. As to additional powers of seizure from premises (and the obligations relating to them) see the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 50, s 55 (as amended), s 60 (as amended), s 66 (as amended), Sch 1 paras 3, 86; and PARA 890 et seq post.

6 For the meaning of 'superintendent of police' see PARA 482 note 3 ante.

7 Official Secrets Act 1911 s 9(2). Section 9(2), unlike s 9(1) (as amended), has not been extended to offences under the Official Secrets Act 1989.

(iii) Proceedings and Evidence

501. Official Secrets Acts 1911-1920: extent and place of trial.

The Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1920 apply to all acts which are offences under them when committed in any part of Her Majesty's dominions<sup>1</sup>, or when committed by British officers or British nationals<sup>2</sup> elsewhere<sup>3</sup>. An offence under the Acts, if alleged to have been committed out of the United Kingdom, may be tried by any competent British court in the place where the offence was committed<sup>4</sup>, or in England<sup>5</sup>. For the purposes of the trial of a person for an offence under the Acts, the offence is deemed to have been committed either at the place where it was actually committed or at any place in the United Kingdom where the defendant may be found<sup>6</sup>.

If by any law made<sup>7</sup> by the legislature of any British possession<sup>8</sup> provisions are made which appear to Her Majesty to be of the like effect to those contained in the Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1920, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, suspend the operation of those Acts or any part of them within that British possession so long as that law continues in force there<sup>9</sup>; but such suspension may not extend to the holder of an office under Her Majesty<sup>10</sup> who is not appointed to the office by the government of that possession<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to Her Majesty's dominions see COMMONWEALTH vol 13 (2009) PARA 707.

2 The Official Secrets Act 1911 refers to 'British subjects', but this term is now used to refer only to a narrow class of British national. As to British nationality see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 7 et seq.

3 Official Secrets Act 1911 s 10(1).

4 Such an offence may not, however, be tried by any court out of the United Kingdom which has not jurisdiction to try offences which involve the greatest penalty allowed by law: see ibid s 10(3) (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 10(2), Sch 3 Pt I). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

Except as otherwise provided<sup>1</sup>, any act done by a British citizen<sup>2</sup> or Crown servant<sup>3</sup>, or done by any person in any of the Channel Islands or Isle of Man or any colony, is, if it would be a relevant offence<sup>4</sup> by that person when done by him in the United Kingdom, such an offence<sup>5</sup>. Proceedings for an offence under the Official Secrets Act 1989 may be taken in any place in the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup>.

1 The Official Secrets Act 1989 s 15(1) does not apply to offences under s 8(1), (4) or (5) (see PARA 490 ante); see s 15(1). As to the normal rules of jurisdiction see PARA 1054 et seq post.

503. Prosecutions for offences under the Official Secrets Acts.

Subject to one exception<sup>1</sup>, no prosecution for an offence under the Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1989<sup>2</sup> may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>3</sup>.

Offences under the Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1920 which are punishable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction<sup>4</sup> may not be dealt with summarily except with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>5</sup>.

1 The Official Secrets Act 1989 s 9(1) does not apply to an offence in respect of any such information, document or article as is mentioned in s 4(2) (see PARA 486 ante); but no prosecution for such an offence may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions: s 9(2). #### 504. Exclusion of public during hearing.

In addition and without prejudice to any powers which a court may possess to order the exclusion of the public from any proceedings<sup>1</sup>, if, in the course of proceedings before a court against any person for an offence under the Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1989 or the proceedings on appeal, or in the course of the trial of a person for any offence under the Acts, application is made by the prosecution, on the ground that the publication of any evidence to be given or of any statement to be made in the course of the proceedings would be prejudicial to the national safety, that all or any portion of the public be excluded during any part of the hearing, the court may make an order to that effect<sup>2</sup>. The passing of sentence must, however, in any case take place in public<sup>3</sup>.

505. Offences by corporations.

Where the person guilty of an offence under the Official Secrets Acts 1911 to 1989 is a company or corporation, every director and officer of the company or corporation is guilty of the like offence, unless he proves<sup>1</sup> that the act or omission constituting the offence took place without his knowledge or consent<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception/506. Unlawful interception.

(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS

(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception

506. Unlawful interception.

A person<sup>1</sup> who intentionally and without lawful authority intercepts<sup>2</sup>, at any place in the United Kingdom, a communication<sup>3</sup> in the course of its transmission<sup>4</sup> by means of a public postal service<sup>5</sup> or a public telecommunication system<sup>6</sup> is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup>. A person who (1) intentionally and without lawful authority; and (2) otherwise than in circumstances in which his conduct is excluded<sup>8</sup> from criminal liability<sup>9</sup>, intercepts at any place in the United Kingdom, any communication in the course of its transmission by means of a private telecommunications system<sup>10</sup> is guilty of an offence<sup>11</sup>. A person who is guilty of either of these offences<sup>12</sup> is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>13</sup>.

There is lawful authority for an interception if, and only if: (a) it is authorised by or under certain provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000<sup>14</sup>; or (b) it takes place in accordance with an interception warrant<sup>15</sup>; or (c) it is in exercise, in relation to any stored communication, of any statutory<sup>16</sup> power that is exercised<sup>17</sup> for the purpose of obtaining information or of taking possession of any document<sup>18</sup> or other property<sup>19</sup>.

Where the United Kingdom is a party to an international agreement which relates to the provision of mutual assistance in connection with, or in the form of, the interception of communications, and requires the issue of a warrant, order or equivalent instrument in cases in which assistance is given, and is designated for the purposes of this provision by an order made by the Secretary of State, it is the duty of the Secretary of State to secure that no request for assistance in accordance with the agreement is made on behalf of a person in the United Kingdom to the competent authorities of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom except with lawful authority<sup>20</sup>.

Any interception of a communication which is carried out at any place in the United Kingdom by, or with the express or implied consent of, a person having the right to control the operation or the use of a private telecommunication system is actionable in civil proceedings at the suit or instance of the sender or recipient, or intended recipient, of the communication if it is without lawful authority and is either (i) an interception of that communication in the course of its transmission by means of that private system; or (ii) an interception of that communication in the course of its transmission, by means of a public telecommunication system, to or from apparatus comprised in that private telecommunication system<sup>21</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'person' includes any organisation and any association or combination of persons: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 81(1).

2 For these purposes, a person intercepts a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a telecommunication system if, and only if, he:

- 77 (1) so modifies or interferes with the system, or its operation;
- 78 (2) so monitors transmissions made by means of the system; or
- 79 (3) so monitors transmissions made by wireless telegraphy to or from apparatus comprised in the system, as to make some or all of the contents of the communication available, while being transmitted, to a person other than the sender or intended recipient of the communication: ibid s 2(2). For the meanings of 'wireless telegraphy' and 'interfere' see the Wireless Telegraphy Act 1949 (see TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 227); definitions applied by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 81(1).

References to the interception of a communication do not include references to the interception of any communication broadcast for general reception: s 2(3). The interception of a communication takes place in the United Kingdom if, and only if, the modification, interference or monitoring or, in the case of a postal item, the interception, is effected by conduct within the United Kingdom and the communication is either intercepted in the course of its transmission by means of a public postal service (see note 5 infra; and POST OFFICE) or public telecommunication system, or intercepted in the course of its transmission by means of a private telecommunication system (see note 10 infra; and TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING) in a case in which the sender or intended recipient of the communication is in the United Kingdom: s 2(4). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

For the purposes of s 2, references to the modification of a telecommunication system include references to the attachment of any apparatus to, or other modification of or interference with any part of the system, or any wireless telegraphy apparatus used for making transmissions to or from apparatus comprised in the system: s 2(6). In the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000, 'modification' includes alterations, additions and omissions; and cognate terms are to be construed accordingly: s 81(1).

For the purposes of s 2, the times while a communication is being transmitted by means of a telecommunication system must be taken to include any time when the system by means of which the communication is being, or has been, transmitted is used for storing it in a manner that enables the intended recipient to collect it or otherwise to have access to it: s 2(7).

For the purposes of s 2, the cases in which any contents of a communication are to be taken to be made available to a person while being transmitted include any case in which any of the contents of the communication, while being transmitted, are diverted or recorded so as to be available to a person subsequently: s 2(8).

References to the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a postal service or telecommunication system do not include references to: (a) any conduct that takes place in relation only to so much of the communication as consists in any traffic data comprised in or attached to a communication (whether by the sender or otherwise) for the purposes of any postal service or telecommunication system by means of which it is being or may be transmitted; or (b) any such conduct, in connection with conduct falling within head (a) supra, as gives a person who is neither the sender nor the intended recipient only so much access to a communication as is necessary for the purpose of identifying traffic data so comprised or attached: s 2(5). 'Traffic data', in relation to any communication, means:

- 80 (i) any data identifying, or purporting to identify, any person, apparatus or location to or from which the communication is or may be transmitted;
- 81 (ii) any data identifying or selecting, or purporting to identify or select, apparatus through which, or by means of which, the communication is or may be transmitted;
- 82 (iii) any data comprising signals for the actuation of apparatus used for the purposes of a telecommunication system for effecting (in whole or in part) the transmission of any communication; and
- 83 (iv) any data identifying the data or other data as data comprised in or attached to a particular communication, and that expression includes data identifying a computer file or computer program access to which is obtained, or which is run, by means of the communication to the extent only that the file or program is identified by reference to the apparatus in which it is stored: s 2(9). 'Apparatus' includes any equipment, machinery or device and any wire or cable: s 81(1).

In s 2, references, in relation to traffic data comprising signals for the actuation of apparatus, to a telecommunication system by means of which a communication is being or may be transmitted include references to any telecommunication system in which that apparatus is comprised, and references to traffic data being attached to a communication include references to the data and the communication being logically associated with each other: s 2(10). In s 2, 'data', in relation to a postal item, means anything written on the outside of the item (s 2(10)); and 'postal item' means any letter, postcard or other such thing in writing as may be used by the sender for imparting information to the recipient, or any packet or parcel (s 2(11)).

A telephone conversation tape recorded by one of the parties to the conversation, without the knowledge of the other party, does not amount to interception of a communication: R v Hardy [2002] EWCA Crim 3012, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep 494.

A recording of what a person says on the telephone, picked up by a surveillance device (which does not record any speech by the other party), is not an interception of a communication 'in the course of its transmission' within the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000: see s 2(2) (which phrase also appears in s 1(1), (2)). The natural meaning of the phrase denotes some interference with, or abstraction of, a signal during the process of transmission. The recording of a voice does not become an interception simply because the words spoken are then transmitted by a telecommunications system. Moreover, for the purposes of s 2(2), interception is concerned with what happens 'in the course of transmission' by a 'telecommunications system'; that system begins at the point a sound wave created by a speaker is converted into electromagnetic energy. What was recorded on the facts was independent of the telecommunications system; it was made at the same time as being transmitted but the transmission was not recorded, just the voice from the sound waves in the car where the surveillance device has been placed: R v E [2004] EWCA Crim 1243, [2004] 1 WLR 3279, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep 484.

3 'Communication' includes (except in the definition of 'postal service' in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 2(1) (see note 5 infra)) anything transmitted by means of a postal service, anything comprising speech, music, sounds, visual images or data of any description, and signals serving either for the impartation of anything between persons, between a person and a thing or between things or for the actuation or control of any apparatus: s 81(1).

4 See note 2 supra.

5 'Public postal service' means any postal service which is offered or provided to, or to a substantial section of, the public in any one or more parts of the United Kingdom: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 2(1). 'Postal service' means any service which consists in the following, or in any one or more of them, namely, the collection, sorting, conveyance, distribution and delivery, whether in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, of postal items, and which is offered or provided as a service the main purpose of which, or one of the main purposes of which, is to make available, or to facilitate, a means of transmission from place to place of postal items containing communications: s 2(1).

6 'Public telecommunication system' means any such parts of a telecommunication system by means of which any public telecommunications service is provided as are located in the United Kingdom: ibid s 2(1). 'Telecommunication system' means any system (including the apparatus comprised in it) which exists (whether wholly or partly in the United Kingdom or elsewhere) for the purpose of facilitating the transmission of communications by any means involving the use of electrical or electro-magnetic energy: s 2(1).

7 Ibid s 1(1). Where an offence under any provision of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 other than a provision of Pt III (ss 49-56) (as amended) (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 512 et seq) is committed by a body corporate and is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he (as well as the body corporate) is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 79(1). Where an offence under any provision of that Act other than a provision of Pt III (as amended) is committed by a Scottish firm, and is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, a partner of the firm, he (as well as the firm) is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 79(2). For these purposes, 'director', in relation to a body corporate whose affairs are managed by its members, means a member of the body corporate: s 79(3). See PARA 38 ante.

Nothing in any of the provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 by virtue of which conduct of any description is or may be authorised by any warrant, authorisation or notice, or by virtue of which information may be obtained in any manner, is to be construed: (1) as making it unlawful to engage in any conduct of that description which is not otherwise unlawful under that Act and would not be unlawful apart from that Act; (2) as otherwise requiring: (a) the issue, grant or giving of such a warrant, authorisation or notice; or (b) the taking of any step for or towards obtaining the authority of such a warrant, authorisation or notice, before any such conduct of that description is engaged in; or (3) as prejudicing any power to obtain information by any means not involving conduct that may be authorised under that Act: s 80.

8 Ie excluded by ibid s 1(6), which provides that the circumstances in which a person makes an interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a private telecommunication system are such that his conduct is excluded from criminal liability under s 1(2) (see the text and note 11 infra) if: (1) he is a person with a right to control the operation or the use of the system; or (2) he has the express or implied consent of such a person to make the interception. 'Control' in s 1(6) means 'to authorise and forbid'; it does not extend to a person who merely has the right to access or operate the system: see R v Stanford [2006] EWCA Crim 258, [2006] 1 WLR 1554.

9     Ie criminal liability under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 1(2) (see the text and note 11 infra).

10    'Private telecommunication system' means any telecommunication system which, without itself being a public telecommunication system, is a system in relation to which the following conditions are satisfied: (1) it is attached, directly or indirectly and whether or not for the purposes of the communication in question, to a public telecommunication system; and (2) there is apparatus comprised in the system which is both located in the United Kingdom and used (with or without other apparatus) for making the attachment to the public telecommunication system: ibid s 2(1).

12    Ie under ibid s 1(1) or s 1(2): see the text and notes 1-11 supra.

13    Ibid s 1(7). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. No proceedings for an offence under s 1(1) or 1(2) may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions: s 1(8). For the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

14    Ie under ibid s 3 or s 4: see PARAS 507-508 post.

15    Ie under ibid s 5: see PARA 509 post.

16    'Statutory', in relation to any power or duty, means conferred or imposed by or under any enactment or subordinate legislation: ibid s 81(1). 'Enactment' includes an enactment passed after 28 July 2000: s 81(1).

19    Ibid s 1(5). Conduct (whether or not prohibited by s 1) which has lawful authority for the purpose of s 1 by virtue of head (a) or (b) in the text is to be taken to be lawful for all other purposes: s 1(5). A person would have 'lawful authority' within head (c) in the text where his interception was done in order to comply with the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 9, Sch 1 para 11 (see PARA 877 post) which required him not to destroy material to which an application for an order under Sch 1 para 4 related; consequently no offence under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 1(1) was committed by a telecommunications company, obliged to intercept emails (so as to avoid their destruction) by a notice of an application under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984, because it had lawful authority to do so: R (on the application of NTL Group Ltd) v Crown Court at Ipswich [2002] EWHC 1585 (Admin), [2003] QB 131, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep 225.

20    Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 1(4). The Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Designation of an International Agreement) Order 2004, SI 2004/158, designates the Convention on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters between the Member States of the European Union (Brussels, 29 May 2000; Misc 7 (2001); Cmd 5229) as a designated international agreement for the purposes of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 1(4).

The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 complies with EC Council Directive 97/66 (OJ L24, 30.01.98, p 1) concerning the processing of personal data and the protection of privacy in the telecommunications sector, which requires member states to ensure the confidentiality of communications, and compatibility with the right to respect for private and family life under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 8: R v E [2004] EWCA Crim 1243, [2004] 1 WLR 3279, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep 484. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

508. Power to provide for lawful interception.

Conduct by any person<sup>1</sup> ('the interceptor') consisting in the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a telecommunication system<sup>2</sup> is authorised<sup>3</sup> if: (1) the interception is carried out for the purpose of obtaining information about the communications of a person who, or who the interceptor has reasonable grounds for believing, is in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>; (2) the interception relates to the use of a telecommunications service<sup>5</sup> provided to persons in that country or territory which is either a public telecommunications service<sup>6</sup> or a telecommunications service that would be a public telecommunications service if the persons to whom it is offered or provided were members of the public in a part of the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup>; (3) the person who provides that service (whether the interceptor or another person) is required by the law of that country or territory to carry out, secure or facilitate the interception in question<sup>8</sup>; (4) the situation is one in relation to which such further conditions as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State are required to be satisfied before conduct may be treated as authorised<sup>9</sup>; and (5) the conditions so prescribed are satisfied in relation to that situation<sup>10</sup>.

The Secretary of State may by regulations<sup>11</sup> authorise any such conduct described in the regulations as appears to him to constitute a legitimate practice reasonably required for the purpose, in connection with the carrying on of any business<sup>12</sup>, of monitoring or keeping a record of (a) communications by means of which transactions are entered into in the course of that business; or (b) other communications relating to that business or taking place in the course of its being carried on<sup>13</sup>. Nothing in any such regulations may authorise the interception of any communication except in the course of its transmission using apparatus<sup>14</sup> or services provided by or to the person carrying on the business for use wholly or partly in connection with that business<sup>15</sup>.

Conduct taking place in a prison<sup>16</sup> is authorised under specified circumstances<sup>17</sup>. Conduct taking place in any hospital premises<sup>18</sup> where high security psychiatric services<sup>19</sup> are provided is authorised if it is conduct in pursuance of, and in accordance with, any direction given under the National Health Service Act 1977<sup>20</sup> to the body providing those services at those premises<sup>21</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 506 note 1 ante.

2 As to the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a telecommunication system, see the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 2; and PARA 506 note 2 ante. As to the meaning of 'communication' see PARA 506 note 3 ante.

3 Is authorised by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 4.

4 Ibid s 4(1)(a). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'telecommunications service' see PARA 507 note 6 ante.

6 'Public telecommunications service' means any telecommunications service which is offered or provided to, or to a substantial section of, the public in any one or more parts of the United Kingdom: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 2(1).

7 Ibid s 4(1)(b).

8 Ibid s 4(1)(c).

9 Ibid s 4(1)(d). The Secretary of State has prescribed the following conditions: (1) the interception must be carried out for the purposes of a criminal investigation; (2) that investigation must be being carried out in a country or territory that is party to an international agreement designated for the purposes of s 1(4) (see PARA 506 ante); see the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Conditions for the Lawful Interception of Persons outside the United Kingdom) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/157, reg 3.

Any power of the Secretary of State to make any order, regulations or rules under any provision of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 78(1), (2). Such a statutory instrument, apart from one which has been approved in draft form, is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: see s 78(3), (4) (s 78(3) amended by the Crime (International Co-operation) Act 2003 s 91(1), Sch 5 paras 78, 80). Any order, regulations or rules may make different provisions for different cases and contain such incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision as the Secretary of State thinks fit: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 78(5).

10 Ibid s 4(1)(e).

11 As to the regulations that have been made see the Telecommunications (Lawful Business Practice) (Interception of Communications) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/ 2699.

Conduct is authorised if it consists of interception of a communication, in the course of its transmission by means of a telecommunication system, which is effected by or with the express or implied consent of the system controller for the purpose of:

- 84 (1) monitoring or keeping a record of communications (a) in order to establish the existence of facts, or in order to ascertain compliance with regulatory or self-regulatory practices or procedures which are applicable to the system controller in the carrying on of his business or applicable to another person in the carrying on of his business where that person is supervised by the system controller in respect of those practices or procedures, or in order to ascertain or demonstrate the standards which are achieved or ought to be achieved by persons using the system in the course of their duties; or (b) in the interests of national security; or (c) for the purpose of preventing or detecting crime; or (d) for the purpose of investigating or detecting the unauthorised use of that or any other telecommunication system; or (e) where that is undertaken in order to secure, or as an inherent part of, the effective operation of the system (including any monitoring or keeping of a record which would be authorised by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 3(3) if the conditions in s 3(3)(a), (b) were satisfied (see PARA 507 ante)) (Telecommunications (Lawful Business Practice) (Interception of Communications) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/ 2699, reg 3(1)(a)); or
- 85 (2) monitoring communications for the purpose of determining whether they are communications relevant to the system controller's business which fall within reg 2(b)(i) (see infra (reg 3(1)(b))); or
- 86 (3) monitoring communications made to a confidential voice-telephony counselling or support service which is free of charge (other than the cost, if any, of making a telephone call) and operated in such a way that users may remain anonymous if they so choose (reg 3(1)(c)).

Conduct is authorised by heads (1)-(3) supra only if (i) the interception in question is effected solely for the purpose of monitoring or (where appropriate) keeping a record of communications relevant to the system controller's business; (ii) the telecommunication system in question is provided for use wholly or partly in connection with that business; (iii) the system controller has made all reasonable efforts to inform every person who may use the telecommunication system in question that communications transmitted by means of it may be intercepted; and (iv) in a case falling within head (1)(b) supra, the person by or on whose behalf the interception is effected is a person specified in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 6(2)(a)-(i) (see PARA 510 post), and in a case falling within head (2) supra, the communication is one which is intended to be received (whether or not it has been actually received) by a person using the telecommunication system in question: Telecommunications (Lawful Business Practice) (Interception of Communications) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2699, reg 3(2). Conduct falling within head (1)(a) supra is authorised only to the extent permitted by art 5 of EC Parliament and Council Directive 2002/58 (OJ L201, 31.07.2002, p 37) concerning the processing of personal data and the protection of privacy in the electronic communications sector: Telecommunications (Lawful Business Practice) (Interception of Communications) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/ 2699, reg 3(3) (substituted by SI 2003/2426).

For these purposes, 'public authority' means any public authority within the meaning of the Human Rights Act 1998 s 6 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS) other than a court or tribunal: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 81(1). ### 509. Interception warrants.

The Secretary of State may<sup>1</sup> issue a warrant authorising or requiring the person<sup>2</sup> to whom it is addressed, by any such conduct as may be described in the warrant, to secure any one or more of the following: (1) the interception in the course of their transmission by means of a postal service<sup>3</sup> or telecommunication system<sup>4</sup> of the communications described in the warrant<sup>5</sup>; (2) the making, in accordance with an international mutual assistance agreement<sup>6</sup>, of a request for the provision of such assistance in connection with, or in the form of, an interception of communications as may be so described<sup>7</sup>; (3) the provision, in accordance with an international mutual assistance agreement, to the competent authorities of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>8</sup> of any such assistance in connection with, or in the form of, an interception of communications as may be so described<sup>9</sup>; (4) the disclosure, in such manner as may be so described, of intercepted material<sup>10</sup> obtained by any interception authorised or required by the warrant, and of related communications data<sup>11</sup>.

The Secretary of State may not issue an interception warrant<sup>12</sup> unless he believes that the warrant is necessary on specified grounds, and that the conduct authorised by the warrant is proportionate to what is sought to be achieved by that conduct<sup>13</sup>. The specified grounds are that it is necessary (a) in the interests of national security<sup>14</sup>; (b) for the purpose of preventing or detecting serious crime<sup>15</sup>; (c) for the purpose of safeguarding the economic well-being of the United Kingdom<sup>16</sup>; or (d) for the purpose, in specified circumstances<sup>17</sup>, of giving effect to the provisions of any international mutual assistance agreement<sup>18</sup>.

The conduct authorised by an interception warrant includes: (i) all such conduct (including the interception of communications not identified by the warrant) as it is necessary to undertake in order to do what is expressly authorised or required by the warrant<sup>19</sup>; (ii) conduct for obtaining related communications data<sup>20</sup>; and (iii) conduct by any person which is conduct in pursuance of a requirement imposed by or on behalf of the person to whom the warrant is addressed to be provided with assistance with giving effect to the warrant<sup>21</sup>.

1 This power of the Secretary of State is subject to the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ss 5-20 (see PARAS 510-520 post): s 5(1).

2 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 506 note 1 ante.

3 As to the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a postal service see PARA 506 note 2 ante. For the meaning of 'postal service' see PARA 506 note 5 ante.

12 An 'interception warrant' is a warrant under ibid s 5: s 81(1).

As to courts-martial see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARAS 448 et seq, 480 et seq.

An interception warrant<sup>1</sup> may not be issued except under the hand of the Secretary of State, or, in specified cases, under the hand of a senior official<sup>2</sup>. The specified cases are: (1) an urgent case in which the Secretary of State has himself expressly authorised the issue of the warrant in that case<sup>3</sup>; and (2) a case in which the warrant is for the purposes of a request for assistance made under an international mutual assistance agreement<sup>4</sup> by the competent authorities of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>5</sup> and either it appears that the interception subject<sup>6</sup> is outside the United Kingdom, or the interception to which the warrant relates is to take place in relation only to premises outside the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup>.

An interception warrant must be addressed to the specified person<sup>8</sup> by whom, or on whose behalf, the application for the warrant was made, and, in the case of a warrant issued under the hand of a senior official, must contain, according to whatever is applicable, one of the relevant statements<sup>9</sup>.

512. Contents of interception warrants.

An interception warrant<sup>1</sup> must name or describe either one person<sup>2</sup> as the interception subject<sup>3</sup>, or a single set of premises as the premises in relation to which the interception<sup>4</sup> to which the warrant relates is to take place<sup>5</sup>. The provisions of an interception warrant describing communications the interception of which is authorised or required by the warrant must comprise one or more schedules setting out the addresses, numbers, apparatus<sup>6</sup> or other factors, or combination of factors, that are to be used for identifying the communications that may be or are to be intercepted<sup>7</sup>. Any factor or combination of factors so set out must be one that identifies communications which are likely to be or to include: (1) communications from, or intended for, the person named or described in the warrant; or (2) communications originating on, or intended for transmission to, the premises so named or described<sup>8</sup>.

These provisions do not apply to an interception warrant if (a) the description of communications to which the warrant relates confines the conduct authorised or required by the warrant to conduct falling within a specified type<sup>9</sup>; and (b) at the time of the issue of the warrant, a certificate (called a 'section 8(4) certificate') applicable to the warrant has been issued by the Secretary of State certifying<sup>10</sup>: (i) the descriptions of intercepted material the examination of which he considers necessary; and (ii) that he considers the examination of material of those descriptions necessary<sup>11</sup>. A certificate must not be issued except under the hand of the Secretary of State<sup>12</sup>.

513. Duration, cancellation and renewal of interception warrants.

An interception warrant<sup>1</sup> ceases to have effect at the end of the relevant period<sup>2</sup>, but may be renewed (at any time before the end of that period) by an instrument under the hand of the Secretary of State or, in specified cases<sup>3</sup>, under the hand of a senior official<sup>4</sup>. An interception warrant must not be renewed unless the Secretary of State believes that the warrant continues to be necessary<sup>5</sup>. The Secretary of State must cancel an interception warrant if he is satisfied that the warrant is no longer necessary<sup>6</sup>.

An instrument under the hand of a senior official that renews an interception warrant must contain: (1) a statement that the renewal is for the purposes of a request for assistance made under an international mutual assistance agreement<sup>7</sup> by the competent authorities of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>8</sup>; and (2) whichever of the following statements is applicable: (a) a statement that the interception subject appears to be outside the United Kingdom<sup>9</sup>; or (b) a statement that the interception to which the warrant relates is to take place in relation only to premises outside the United Kingdom<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'interception warrant' see PARA 509 note 12 ante.

2 'The relevant period' (1) in relation to an unrenewed warrant issued in a case falling within the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 7(2)(a) (see PARA 511 ante) under the hand of a senior official, means the period ending with the fifth working day following the day of the warrant's issue (s 9(6)(a)); (2) in relation to an unrenewed warrant which is indorsed under the hand of the Secretary of State with a statement that the issue of the warrant is believed to be necessary on grounds falling within s 5(3)(a) or (c) (see PARA 509 ante), means the period of six months beginning with the day of the warrant's issue (s 9(6)(ab) (added by the Terrorism Act 2006 s 32(1), (2))); (3) in relation to a renewed warrant the latest renewal of which was by an instrument indorsed under the hand of the Secretary of State with a statement that the renewal is believed to be necessary on grounds falling within the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 5(3)(a) or (c) (see PARA 509 ante), means the period of six months beginning with the day of the warrant's renewal (s 9(6)(b)); and (4) in all other cases, means the period of three months beginning with the day of the warrant's issue or, in the case of a warrant that has been renewed, of its latest renewal (s 9(6)(c)). For the meaning of 'senior official' see PARA 511 note 2 ante. 'Working day' means any day other than a Saturday, a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday or a day which is a bank holiday under the Banking and Financial Dealings Act 1971 in any part of the United Kingdom: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 81(1). The Secretary of State must cancel an interception warrant if, at any time before the end of the relevant period, he is satisfied in a case in which:

87 (1) the warrant is one which was issued containing the statement set out in s 7(5) that the interception subject appears to be outside the United Kingdom (see PARA 506 ante), or has been renewed by an instrument containing the statement set out in s 9(5)(b)(i) (see head (a) in the text); and

- 88 (2) the latest renewal (if any) of the warrant is not a renewal by an instrument under the hand of the Secretary of State, that the person named or described in the warrant as the interception subject is in the United Kingdom: s 9(4). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 506 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'interception subject' see PARA 511 note 6 ante.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception/514. Modification of interception warrants and certificates.

514. Modification of interception warrants and certificates.

The Secretary of State may at any time modify the provisions of an interception warrant<sup>1</sup>, or modify a section 8(4) certificate<sup>2</sup> so as to include in the certified<sup>3</sup> material any material the examination of which he considers to be necessary<sup>4</sup>. If at any time the Secretary of State considers that any factor set out in a schedule to an interception warrant<sup>5</sup> is no longer relevant for identifying communications<sup>6</sup> which, in the case of that warrant, are likely to be or to include certain specified communications<sup>7</sup>, he must modify the warrant by the deletion of that factor<sup>8</sup>. If at any time the Secretary of State considers that the material certified by a section 8(4) certificate includes any material the examination of which is no longer necessary<sup>9</sup>, he must modify the certificate so as to exclude that material from the certified material<sup>10</sup>.

A warrant or certificate may not be modified under these provisions except by an instrument under the hand of the Secretary of State or of a senior official<sup>11</sup>. Unscheduled parts<sup>12</sup> of an interception warrant may not be modified under the hand of a senior official except in an urgent case in which the Secretary of State has himself expressly authorised the modification<sup>13</sup>, and a statement of that fact is indorsed on the modifying instrument<sup>14</sup>. A section 8(4) certificate may not be modified under the hand of a senior official except in an urgent case in which (1) the official in question holds a position in respect of which he is expressly authorised by provisions contained in the certificate to modify the certificate on the Secretary of State's behalf<sup>15</sup>; or (2) the Secretary of State has himself expressly authorised the modification and a statement of that fact is indorsed on the modifying instrument<sup>16</sup>.

Where modifications are expressly authorised by provision contained in the warrant, the scheduled parts of an interception warrant may, in an urgent case, be modified by an instrument under the hand of the person to whom the warrant is addressed, or a person holding any such position subordinate to that person as may be identified in the provisions of the warrant<sup>17</sup>. Where a warrant or certificate is modified by an instrument under the hand of a person other than the Secretary of State, and a statement<sup>18</sup> is indorsed on the instrument, or the modification is expressly authorised by provision contained in the warrant<sup>19</sup>, that modification ceases to have effect at the end of the fifth working day<sup>20</sup> following the day of the instrument's issue<sup>21</sup>.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception/515. Implementation of interception warrants.

515. Implementation of interception warrants.

Effect may be given to an interception warrant<sup>1</sup> either by the person<sup>2</sup> to whom it is addressed, or by that person acting through, or together with, such other persons as he may require<sup>3</sup> to provide him with assistance with giving effect to the warrant<sup>4</sup>. For the purpose of requiring any person to provide assistance in relation to an interception warrant, the person to whom it is addressed may serve a copy of the warrant on such persons as he considers may be able to provide such assistance, or make arrangements under which a copy of it is to be or may be so served<sup>5</sup>. The copy of an interception warrant that is so served on any person may, to the extent authorised by the person to whom the warrant is addressed, or by the arrangements made by him, omit any one or more of the schedules to the warrant<sup>6</sup>.

Where a copy of an interception warrant has been served by or on behalf of the person to whom it is addressed on (1) a person who provides a postal service<sup>7</sup>; (2) a person who provides a public telecommunications service<sup>8</sup>; or (3) a person who does not provide a public telecommunications service but who has control of the whole or any part of a telecommunication system<sup>9</sup> located wholly or partly in the United Kingdom<sup>10</sup>, that person must take all such steps for giving effect to the warrant as are notified to him by or on behalf of the person to whom the warrant is addressed<sup>11</sup>. A person who is obliged to take such steps cannot be required to take any steps which it is not reasonably practicable for him to take<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'interception warrant' see PARA 509 note 12 ante.

As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS

vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment on summary conviction is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

A person's duty under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 11(4) to take steps for giving effect to a warrant is also enforceable by civil proceedings by the Secretary of State for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief: s 11(8). For the meaning of 'civil proceedings' see PARA 509 note 15 ante.

12 Ibid s 11(5). The steps which it is reasonably practicable for a person to take in a case in which obligations have been imposed on him by or under s 12 (see PARA 516 post) include every step which it would have been reasonably practicable for him to take had he complied with all the obligations so imposed on him: s 11(6).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception/516. Maintenance of interception capability.

516. Maintenance of interception capability.

The Secretary of State may by order provide for the imposition by him on persons<sup>1</sup> who are providing public postal services<sup>2</sup> or public telecommunications services<sup>3</sup>, or are proposing to do so, of such obligations as it appears to him reasonable to impose for the purpose of securing that it is and remains practicable for requirements to provide assistance in relation to interception warrants<sup>4</sup> to be imposed and complied with<sup>5</sup>. This power is exercisable by the giving, in accordance with the order, of a notice requiring the person who is to be subject to the obligations to take all such steps as may be specified or described in the notice<sup>6</sup>. The only steps that may be specified or described in a notice are steps appearing to the Secretary of State to be necessary for securing that that person has the practical capability of providing any assistance which he may be required to provide in relation to relevant interception warrants<sup>7</sup>. A person is not liable to have such an obligation imposed on him by reason only that he provides, or is proposing to provide, to members of the public a telecommunications service<sup>8</sup> the provision of which is or, as the case may be, will be no more than (1) the means by which he provides a service which is not a telecommunications service; or (2) necessarily incidental to the provision by him of a service which is not a telecommunications service<sup>9</sup>.

Where a notice is given to any person<sup>10</sup>, that person may, before the end of a period as specified in an order<sup>11</sup>, refer the notice to the Technical Advisory Board<sup>12</sup>. Where such a notice is referred to the Technical Advisory Board (a) there is no requirement for the person to comply<sup>13</sup> with any obligations imposed by the notice<sup>14</sup>; (b) the Board must consider the technical requirements and the financial consequences, for the person making the reference, of the notice referred to the Board and must report its conclusions on those matters to that person and to the Secretary of State<sup>15</sup>; and (c) the Secretary of State, after considering any report of the Board relating to the notice, may either withdraw the notice or give a further notice<sup>16</sup> confirming its effect, with or without modifications<sup>17</sup>.

It is the duty of a person to whom a notice is so given to comply with the notice<sup>18</sup>. The duty is enforceable by civil proceedings<sup>19</sup> by the Secretary of State for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief<sup>20</sup>.

Before making such an order the Secretary of State must consult with such of the following persons as he considers appropriate: (1) persons appearing to him to be likely to be subject to the obligations for which it provides; (2) the Technical Advisory Board; (3) persons representing persons falling within head (1) supra; and (4) persons with statutory functions (see PARA 506 note 16 ante) in relation to persons falling within head (1) supra: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 12(9). The Secretary of State must not make such an order unless a draft of the order has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: s 12(10).

6 Ibid s 12(2). Such a notice must specify such period as appears to the Secretary of State to be reasonable as the period within which the steps specified or described in the notice are to be taken: s 12(8). The specified or described steps are those steps appearing to the Secretary of State to be necessary for securing that the service provider has the practical capability of meeting the obligations set out in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Maintenance of Interception Capability) Order 2002, SI 2002/1931, Schedule: see art 3.

7 Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 12(3). 'Relevant interception warrant' means (1) in relation to a person providing a public postal service, an interception warrant relating to the interception of communications in the course of their transmission by means of that service; and (2) in relation to a person providing a public telecommunications service, an interception warrant relating to the interception of communications in the course of their transmission by means of a telecommunication system used for the purposes of that service: s 12(12). As to the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a postal service or of a telecommunication system see s 2; and PARA 506 note 2 ante.

The question whether a person has the practical capability of providing assistance in relation to relevant interception warrants is to include the question whether all such arrangements have been made as the Secretary of State considers necessary (a) with respect to the disclosure of intercepted material; (b) for the purpose of ensuring that security and confidentiality are maintained in relation to, and to matters connected with, the provision of any such assistance; and (c) for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out of any functions in relation to Pt I Ch I (ss 1-20) of the Interception of Communications Commissioner (see PARA 524 post): s 12(11). Before determining for the purposes of the making of any order, or the imposition of any obligation, under s 12 what arrangements he considers necessary for the purpose mentioned in head (c) supra, the Secretary of State must consult the Commissioner: s 12(11). The number, and distribution of membership, is provided by an order, made by the Secretary of State, a draft of which must have been laid before Parliament and approved by both Houses of parliament: s 13(1), (2), (3). The Technical Advisory Board consists of 13 persons: Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Technical Advisory Board) Order 2001, SI 2001/3734, art 2(1). Out of 12 of those persons: (1) six must be persons holding an office, rank or position with either a person on whom obligations may be imposed under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 12, or a body representing the interests of such persons; and (2) six must be persons holding an office, rank or position with either a person by or on whose behalf applications for interception warrants may be made, or a body representing the interests of such persons: Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Technical Advisory Board) Order 2001, SI 2001/3734, art 2(3). The remaining person, who does not fall within either head (1) or head (2) supra, is to be appointed chairman: art 2(2).

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to ensure that such arrangements are in force as are necessary for securing that a person<sup>1</sup> who provides a postal service<sup>2</sup> or a telecommunications service<sup>3</sup> receives such contribution as is, in the circumstances of that person's case, a fair contribution towards the costs incurred, or likely to be incurred, by that person in consequence of the following matters: (1) in relation to a person providing a postal service, the issue of interception warrants<sup>4</sup> relating to communications<sup>5</sup> transmitted by means of that postal service; (2) in relation to a person providing a telecommunications service, the issue of interception warrants relating to communications transmitted by means of a telecommunication system<sup>6</sup> used for the purposes of that service; (3) in relation to each description of person, the imposition on that person of obligations provided for by an order<sup>7</sup>.

7 Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 14(1), (2). The order referred to in the text is an order under s 12 (see PARA 516 ante). For the purpose of complying with his duty, the Secretary of State may make arrangements for payments to be made out of money provided by Parliament: s 14(3).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception/518. Restrictions on use of intercepted material.

518. Restrictions on use of intercepted material.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to ensure, in relation to all interception warrants<sup>1</sup>, that such arrangements are in force as he considers necessary for securing: (1) that both of two sets of specified requirements<sup>2</sup> are satisfied in relation to the intercepted material<sup>3</sup> and any related communications data<sup>4</sup>; and (2) in the case of warrants in relation to which there are section 8(4) certificates<sup>5</sup>, that the requirements in respect of extra safeguards<sup>6</sup> are also satisfied<sup>7</sup>.

The first set of specified requirements are satisfied in relation to the intercepted material and any related communications data if each of the following is limited to the minimum that is necessary for the authorised purposes: (a) the number of persons to whom any of the material or data is disclosed or otherwise made available; (b) the extent to which any of the material or data is disclosed or otherwise made available; (c) the extent to which any of the material or data is copied; and (d) the number of copies that are made<sup>8</sup>.

The second set of specified requirements are satisfied in relation to the intercepted material and any related communications data if each copy made of any of the material or data (if not destroyed earlier) is destroyed as soon as there are no longer any grounds for retaining it as necessary for any of the authorised purposes<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'interception warrant' see PARA 509 note 12 ante.

2 I.e. the requirements specified by the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 15(2), (3) (see the text and notes 8-9 infra).

3 For the meaning of 'intercepted material' see PARA 509 note 10 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'related communications data' see PARA 509 note 11 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'section 8(4) certificate' see PARA 512 ante.

6 I.e. the requirements of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 16. Those requirements are that the intercepted material is read, looked at or listened to by the persons to whom it becomes available by virtue of the warrant to the extent only that it has been certified as material the examination of which is necessary as mentioned in s 5(3)(a), (b) or (c) (see PARA 509 ante), and falls within s 16(2): s 16(1). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 506 note 1 ante.

Intercepted material falls within s 16(2) so far only as it is selected to be read, looked at or listened to otherwise than according to a factor which (1) is referable to an individual who is known to be for the time being in the British Islands; and (2) has as its purpose, or one of its purposes, the identification of material contained in communications sent by him, or intended for him: s 16(2). As to the meaning of 'communication' see PARA 506 note 3 ante. For the meaning of 'British Islands' see PARA 511 note 16 ante.

Intercepted material falls within s 16(2), notwithstanding that it is selected by reference to any such factor as is mentioned in head (1) or head (2) supra, if (a) it is certified by the Secretary of State for the purposes of s 8(4) (see PARA 512 ante) that the examination of material selected according to factors referable to the individual in question is necessary as mentioned in s 5(3)(a), (b) or (c) (see PARA 509 ante) (s 16(3)(a)); and (b) the material relates only to communications sent during a period specified in the certificate that is no longer than the permitted maximum (s 16(3)(b) (s 16(3)(b), (5)(c) amended, and s 16(3A), (5A) added, by the Terrorism Act 2006 s 32(1), (5)-(7))). For this purpose, 'the permitted maximum' means either six months (in the case of material the examination of which is certified for the purposes of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 8(4) as necessary in the interests of national security) (s 16(3A)(a) (as so added)) or three months (in any other case) (s 16(3A)(b) (as so added)).

Intercepted material also falls within s 16(2), notwithstanding that it is selected by reference to any such factor as is mentioned in head (1) or head (2) supra, if (i) the person to whom the warrant is addressed believes, on reasonable grounds, that the circumstances are such that the material would fall within s 16(2); or (ii) the conditions set out in s 16(5) are satisfied in relation to the selection of the material: s 16(4). The conditions in s 16(5) are satisfied if: (A) it has appeared to the person to whom the warrant is addressed that there has been such a relevant change of circumstances as (but for head (ii) supra) would prevent the intercepted material from falling within s 16(2) (s 16(5)(a)); (B) since it first so appeared, a written authorisation to read, look at or listen to the material has been given by a senior official (s 16(5)(b)); and (c) the selection is made before the end of the permitted period (s 16(5)(c) (as so amended)). The reference to its appearing that there has been a relevant change of circumstances is a reference to its appearing either that the individual in question has entered the British Islands, or that a belief by the person to whom the warrant is addressed in the individual's presence outside the British Islands was in fact mistaken: s 16(6). 'The permitted period' means either the period ending with the end of the fifth working day after it first appeared as mentioned in s 16(5)(a) to the person to whom the warrant is addressed (in the case of material the examination of which is certified for the purposes of s 8(4) (see PARA 512 ante) as necessary in the interests of national security) (s 16(5A)(a) (as so added)) or the period ending with the end of the first working day after it first so appeared to that person (in any other case) (s 16(5A)(b) (as so added)). For the meaning of 'senior official' see PARA 511 note 2 ante. For the meaning of 'working day' see PARA 513 note 2 ante.

7 Ibid s 15(1). Arrangements in relation to interception warrants which are made for the purposes of s 15(1): (1) are not required to secure that the requirements of s 15(2), (3) (see the text and notes 8-9 infra) are satisfied in so far as they relate to any of the intercepted material or related communications data, or any copy of any such material or data, possession of which has been surrendered to any authorities of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom; but (2) are required to secure, in the case of every such warrant, that possession of the intercepted material and data and of copies of the material or data is surrendered to authorities of a country or territory outside the United Kingdom only if the requirements of s 15(7) are satisfied: s 15(6). 'Copy', in relation to intercepted material or related communications data, means any of the following, whether or not in documentary form:

- 89 (a) any copy, extract or summary of the material or data which identifies itself as the product of an interception; and
- 90 (b) any record referring to an interception which is a record of the identities of the persons to or by whom the intercepted material was sent, or to whom the communications data relates, and 'copied' is to be construed accordingly: s 15(8). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

The requirements of s 15(7) are satisfied in the case of a warrant if it appears to the Secretary of State: (i) that requirements corresponding to those of s 15(2), (3) (see the text and notes 8-9 infra) will apply, to such extent (if any) as the Secretary of State thinks fit, in relation to any of the intercepted material or related communications data possession of which, or of any copy of which, is surrendered to the authorities in question; and (ii) that restrictions are in force which would prevent, to such extent (if any) as the Secretary of State thinks fit, the doing of anything in, for the purposes of or in connection with any proceedings outside the United Kingdom which would result in such a disclosure as, by virtue of s 17 (see PARA 519 post), could not be made in the United Kingdom: s 15(7).

8 Ibid s 15(2). For the purposes of s 15, something is necessary for the authorised purposes if, and only if: (1) it continues to be, or is likely to become, necessary as mentioned in s 5(3) (see PARA 509 ante); (2) it is necessary for facilitating the carrying out of any of the functions under Pt I Ch I (ss 1-20) of the Secretary of State; (3) it is necessary for facilitating the carrying out of any functions in relation to Pt I (ss 1-25) of the Interception of Communications Commissioner (see PARA 524 post) or of the Tribunal established under s 65, Sch 3 (as amended) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS); (4) it is necessary to ensure that a person conducting a criminal prosecution has the information he needs to determine what is required of him by his duty to secure the fairness of the prosecution; or (5) it is necessary for the performance of any duty imposed on any person by the Public Records Act 1958: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ss 15(4), 81(1). For the meaning of 'criminal prosecution' see PARA 509 note 15 ante. As to orders allocating proceedings to the Tribunal see s 66; as to exercise of the Tribunal's jurisdiction see s 67; as to Tribunal procedure see s 68 (as amended); and see further CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. Its rules are set out in the Investigatory Powers Tribunal Rules 2000, SI 2000/2665, made under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 69.

The arrangements for the time being in force under s 15 for securing that the requirements of s 15(2) are satisfied in relation to the intercepted material or any related communications data must include such arrangements as the Secretary of State considers necessary for securing that every copy of the material or data that is made is stored, for so long as it is retained, in a secure manner: s 15(5).

9 Ibid s 15(3). As to what is necessary for any of the authorised purposes see s 15(4); and note 8 supra.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(i) Unlawful and Authorised Interception/519. Exclusion of matters from legal proceedings.

519. Exclusion of matters from legal proceedings.

No evidence may be adduced, question asked, assertion or disclosure made or other thing done in or for the purposes of or in connection with any legal proceedings<sup>1</sup> which (in any manner) (1) discloses, in circumstances from which its origin in anything falling within the specified provision<sup>2</sup> may be inferred, any of the contents of an intercepted communication<sup>3</sup> or any related communications data<sup>4</sup>; or (2) tends, apart from any such disclosure, to suggest that anything falling within the specified provision<sup>5</sup> has or may have occurred or be going to occur<sup>6</sup>. The following fall within the specified provision: (a) conduct by a specified person<sup>7</sup> that was or would be an offence of unlawful interception<sup>8</sup>; (b) a breach by the Secretary of State of his duty under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000<sup>9</sup>; (c) the issue of an interception warrant<sup>10</sup>; (d) the making of an application by any person for an interception warrant<sup>11</sup>; (e) the imposition of any requirement on any person to provide assistance with giving effect to an interception warrant<sup>12</sup>.

The above rule about the exclusion of evidence does not apply in relation to: (i) any proceedings for a relevant offence<sup>13</sup>; (ii) any civil proceedings for failure to give effect to an interception warrant<sup>14</sup>; (iii) any proceedings before the Tribunal<sup>15</sup>; (iv) any proceedings on an appeal or review of a decision of the Tribunal<sup>16</sup>; (v) any control order proceedings or any proceedings arising out of such proceedings<sup>17</sup>; (vi) any proceedings before the Special Immigration Appeals Commission or any proceedings arising out of proceedings before that Commission<sup>18</sup>; (vii) any proceedings before the Proscribed Organisations Appeal Commission<sup>19</sup> or any proceedings arising out of proceedings before that Commission<sup>20</sup>.

The above rule does not prohibit anything done in, for the purposes of, or in connection with, so much of any legal proceedings as relates to the fairness or unfairness of a dismissal on the grounds of any conduct constituting an offence<sup>21</sup>. Nor does it prohibit any such disclosure of any information that continues to be available for disclosure as is confined to (A) a disclosure to a person conducting a criminal prosecution<sup>22</sup> for the purpose only of enabling that person to determine what is required of him by his duty to secure the fairness of the prosecution; or (B) a disclosure to a relevant judge<sup>23</sup> in a case in which that judge has ordered the disclosure to be made to him alone; or (C) a disclosure to the panel of an inquiry held under the Inquiries Act 2005 in the course of which the panel has ordered the disclosure to be made to the panel alone<sup>24</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'legal proceedings' see PARA 509 note 15 ante.

2 Ie falling within the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 17(2): see the text and notes 7-12 infra.

3 'Intercepted communications' means any communication intercepted in the course of its transmission by means of a postal service or telecommunication system: ibid s 17(4). As to the meaning of 'communication' see PARA 506 note 3 ante. As to the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a postal service or by means of a telecommunication system see s 2; and PARA 506 note 2 ante. For the meaning of 'postal service' see PARA 506 note 5 ante; and for the meaning of 'telecommunication system' see PARA 506 note 6 ante. Section 17 covers both public and private telecommunication systems and covers events taking place before the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 came into force: A-G's Reference (No 5 of 2002) [2003] EWCA Crim 1632, [2004] 1 Cr App Rep 11.

4 Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 17(1)(a). Section 17(1)(a) does not prohibit the disclosure of any of the contents of a communication if the interception of that communication was lawful by virtue of s 1(5) (c) (see PARA 506 ante), s 3 (see PARA 507 ante) or s 4 (see PARA 508 ante): s 18(4). Where any disclosure is proposed to be or has been made on the grounds that it is authorised by s 18(4), then s 17(1) does not prohibit the doing of anything in, or for the purposes of, so much of any proceedings as relates to the question whether that disclosure is or was so authorised: s 18(5) (amended by the Inquiries Act 2005 ss 48(1), 49(2), Sch 2 para 21, Sch 3). Section 17(1) does not operate in criminal proceedings to prevent evidence being adduced, questions asked, assertion or disclosure made or other thing done so as to ascertain whether a telecommunication system is a public or private one, irrespective of whether the evidence or question relates to events prior to the implementation of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000: A-G's Reference (No 5 of 2002) [2004] UKHL 40, [2005] 1 AC 167, [2005] 1 Cr App Rep 307. It is also permissible in criminal proceedings, where an interception has taken place on a private system, to ask questions or adduce evidence that the interception carried out by or for the person with the right to control the operation or use of the system where the interception took place before implementation of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000, and also, subject to the facts of the case, after its implementation: A-G's Reference (No 5 of 2002) supra.

Lawful acquisition and disclosure of communications data.

(ii) Acquisition and Disclosure of Communications Data

521. Lawful acquisition and disclosure of communications data.

The Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 contains provisions relating to 'relevant conduct', that is: (1) any conduct in relation to a postal service<sup>1</sup> or telecommunication system<sup>2</sup> for obtaining communications data<sup>3</sup>, other than conduct consisting in the interception of communications in the course of their transmission by means of such a service or system<sup>4</sup>; and (2) the disclosure to any person of communications data<sup>5</sup>.

Relevant conduct is lawful for all purposes if (a) it is conduct in which any person is authorised or required to engage by an authorisation or notice<sup>6</sup>; and (b) the conduct is in accordance with, or in pursuance of, the authorisation or requirement<sup>7</sup>.

A person is not subject to any civil liability in respect of any conduct of his which is incidental to any conduct that is so lawful<sup>8</sup>, and is not itself conduct an authorisation or warrant for which is capable of being granted under a relevant enactment<sup>9</sup> and might reasonably have been expected to have been sought in the case in question<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'postal service' see PARA 506 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'telecommunication system' see PARA 506 note 6 ante.

3 In the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 Pt Ch II (ss 21-25), 'communications data' means any of the following: (1) any traffic data comprised in or attached to a communication (whether by the sender or otherwise) for the purposes of any postal service or telecommunication system by means of which it is being or may be transmitted; (2) any information which includes none of the contents of a communication (apart from any information falling within head (1) supra) and is about the use made by any person (a) of any postal service or telecommunications service; or (b) in connection with the provision to or use by any person of any telecommunications service, of any part of a telecommunication system; (3) any information not falling within head (1) or head (2) supra that is held or obtained, in relation to persons to whom he provides the service, by a person providing a postal service or telecommunications service: ss 21(4), 25(1).

In s 21, 'traffic data', in relation to any communication, means: (i) any data identifying, or purporting to identify, any person, apparatus or location to or from which the communication is or may be transmitted; (ii) any data identifying or selecting, or purporting to identify or select, apparatus through which, or by means of which, the communication is or may be transmitted; (iii) any data comprising signals for the actuation of apparatus used for the purposes of a telecommunication system for effecting (in whole or in part) the transmission of any communication; and (iv) any data identifying the data or other data as data comprised in or attached to a particular communication: s 21(6). However, 'traffic data' includes data identifying a computer file or computer program access to which is obtained, or which is run, by means of the communication to the extent only that the file or program is identified by reference to the apparatus in which it is stored: s 21(6). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 506 note 1 ante; and as to the meaning of 'apparatus' see PARA 506 note 2 ante. In s 21, in relation to traffic data comprising signals for the actuation of apparatus, references to a telecommunication system by means of which a communication is being or may be transmitted include references to any telecommunication system in which that apparatus is comprised: s 21(7)(a). References in s 21 to traffic data being attached to a communication include references to the data and the communication being logically associated with each other: s 21(7)(b). In s 21, 'data', in relation to a postal item, means anything written on the outside of the item: s 21(7).

4 Ibid s 21(1)(a). As to the interception of communications in the course of their transmission by means of a postal system or telecommunications system see PARA 506 note 2 ante.

5 Ibid s 21(1)(b).

6 Ibid s 21(2)(a). The reference to authorisation or a notice is a reference to authorisation or a notice granted or given under Pt I Ch II (ss 21-25): see s 21(2)(a).

7 Ibid s 21(2)(b).

8 Is lawful under ibid s 21(2) (see the text and notes 6-7 supra): s 21(3)(a).

9 'Relevant enactment', in ibid s 21, means (1) an enactment contained in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000; (2) the Intelligence Services Act 1994 s 5 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 474); or (3) an enactment contained in the Police Act 1997 Pt III (ss 91-108) (as amended) (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 483 et seq): Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 21(5). As to the meaning of 'enactment' see PARA 506 note 16 ante.

10 Ibid s 21(3)(b).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) INTERCEPTION, ACQUISITION AND DISCLOSURE OF COMMUNICATIONS/(ii) Acquisition and Disclosure of Communications Data/522. Obtaining and disclosing communications data: authorisations and notices.

522. Obtaining and disclosing communications data: authorisations and notices.

Where a designated person<sup>1</sup> believes that it is necessary on specified grounds<sup>2</sup> to obtain any communications data<sup>3</sup>, he may grant an authorisation for persons holding offices, ranks or positions with the same relevant public authority<sup>4</sup> as the designated person to engage in any relevant conduct<sup>5</sup>. Where a designated person believes that it is necessary on specified grounds<sup>6</sup> to obtain any communications data and it appears to the designated person that a postal or telecommunications operator<sup>7</sup> is or may be in possession of, or be capable of obtaining, any communications data, the designated person may, by notice to the postal or telecommunications operator, require the operator: (1) if the operator is not already in possession of the data, to obtain the data; and (2) in any case, to disclose all of the data in his possession or subsequently obtained by him<sup>8</sup>.

The designated person must not grant an authorisation, or give a notice, unless he believes that obtaining the data in question by the conduct authorised or required by the authorisation or notice is proportionate to what is sought to be achieved by so obtaining the data<sup>9</sup>.

1 The persons designated are the individuals holding such offices, ranks or positions with relevant public authorities as are prescribed by an order made by the Secretary of State: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 25(1), (2). As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 506 note 1 ante. The Secretary of State may by order impose restrictions (1) on the authorisations and notices under Pt I Ch II (ss 21-25) that may be granted or given by any individual holding an office, rank or position with a specified public authority; and (2) on the circumstances in which (or the purposes for which) such authorisations may be granted or notices given by any such individual: s 25(3). For persons so designated, and restrictions so imposed, see the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Communications Data) Order 2003, SI 2003/3172, arts 1-11, Schs 1, 2 (amended by SI 2004/3168; SI 2005/1083; SI 2005/2060; SI 2005/2929; SI 2006/594; SI 2006/1878).

'Relevant public authority' means any of the following: (a) a police force (see PARA 519 note 7 ante); (b) the Serious Organised Crime Agency (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 430 et seq); (c) the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (see PARA 354 note 2 ante); (d) any of the intelligence services (ie the Security Service, the Secret Intelligence Service or GCHQ); (e) any such public authority not falling within the heads listed supra as may be specified by an order made by the Secretary of State: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 ss 25(1), 81(1) (s 25(1) amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 59, Sch 4 paras 131, 135(1), (2)); Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7). For public authorities specified under head (e) supra see the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Communications Data) Order 2003, SI 2003/3172, art 3, Schs 1, 2 (as so amended). The Secretary of State may (i) by order remove any person from the list of persons who are for the time being relevant public authorities; and (ii) make such consequential amendments, repeals or revocations in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 or any other enactment as appear to him to be necessary or expedient: s 25(4) (substituted by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 131, 135(1), (4)). The Secretary of State may not make an order (A) that adds any person to the list of persons who are for the time being relevant public authorities for the purposes of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 Pt I Ch II (ss 21-25); or (B) that by virtue of head (ii) supra amends or repeals a provision of an Act, unless a draft of the order has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 25(5) (substituted by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 131, 135(1), (4)). References in the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 Pt I Ch II to an individual holding an office or position with the Serious Organised Crime Agency include references to any member of staff of that Agency: s 25(3A) (added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 Sch 4 paras 131, 135(1), (3)).

2 The specified grounds are that it is necessary: (1) in the interests of national security; (2) for the purpose of preventing or detecting crime or of preventing disorder; (3) in the interests of the economic well-being of the United Kingdom; (4) in the interests of public safety; (5) for the purpose of protecting public health; (6) for the purpose of assessing or collecting any tax, duty, levy or other imposition, contribution or charge payable to a government department; (7) for the purpose, in an emergency, of preventing death or injury or any damage to a person's physical or mental health, or of mitigating any injury or damage to a person's physical or mental health; or (8) for any purpose, not falling within heads (1)-(7) supra, which is specified for the purposes of this provision by an order made by the Secretary of State: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 22(2). For the purposes so specified see the Regulation of Investigatory Powers (Communications Data) Order 2003, SI 2003/3172, Schs 1, 2 (as amended: see note 1 supra). The Secretary of State must not make such an order unless a draft of the order has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 22(9). An order under s 22 must be made by statutory instrument: s 78(1), (2). As to the prevention or detection of crime see PARA 509 note 15 ante.

For the purpose of complying with his duty, the Secretary of State may make arrangements for payments to be made out of money provided by Parliament: s 24(2).

- 632 (1) the exercise and performance by the Secretary of State of certain of his statutory powers and duties in relation to the interception of communications<sup>2</sup>;
  - 633 (2) the exercise and performance, by the persons<sup>3</sup> on whom they are conferred or imposed, of powers and duties in relation to the acquisition and disclosure of communications data<sup>4</sup>;

It is not the function of the Commissioner to keep under review the exercise of any power of the Secretary of State to make, amend or revoke any subordinate legislation<sup>14</sup>.

A person may not be appointed as the Commissioner unless he holds or has held a high judicial office<sup>15</sup>. The Commissioner holds office in accordance with the terms of his appointment, and there must be paid to him out of money provided by Parliament such allowances as the Treasury may determine<sup>16</sup>.

The Secretary of State, after consultation with the Commissioner, must make such technical facilities available to him, and (subject to the approval of the Treasury as to numbers) provide him with such staff as are sufficient to secure that he is able properly to carry out his functions<sup>17</sup>.

526. Reports by the Commissioner.

If it at any time appears to the Interception of Communications Commissioner that there has been a contravention of the provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 in relation to any matter with which the Commissioner is concerned, and that the contravention has not been the subject of a report made to the Prime Minister by the Tribunal<sup>1</sup>, he must make a report to the Prime Minister with respect to that contravention<sup>2</sup>. If it at any time appears to the Commissioner that any arrangements by reference to which certain duties<sup>3</sup> have sought to be discharged have proved inadequate in relation to any matter with which the Commissioner is concerned, he must make a report to the Prime Minister with respect to those arrangements<sup>4</sup>.

As soon as practicable after the end of each calendar year, the Commissioner must make a report to the Prime Minister with respect to the carrying out of his functions<sup>5</sup>. ### (i) Bribery and Obstruction of Public Officers

527. Bribery of judges or other judicial officers.

A person who offers or gives a judge, magistrate or other judicial officer, and any judge, magistrate or other judicial officer who takes, any gift or reward to influence his behaviour, or for anything done, in the conduct of his office commits an offence at common law<sup>1</sup>. Any such offence is punishable by imprisonment for life or any shorter term at the discretion of the court and by fine<sup>2</sup>, and, in the case of an offender who takes a bribe or reward, by loss of office<sup>3</sup>.

The offence is punishable whether the bribe is accepted or not: 3 Co Inst 147. As to bribery of public officers other than judicial officers see PARAS 528-529 post.

If a national of the United Kingdom or a body incorporated under the law of any part of the United Kingdom does anything in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom, and the act, if done in the United Kingdom, would constitute such an offence, the act constitutes the offence concerned and proceedings for the offence may be taken in the United Kingdom: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 109(1), (2), (3). A national of the United Kingdom is an individual who is a British citizen, a British overseas territories citizen, a British National (Overseas) or a British overseas citizen, a person who under the British Nationality Act 1981 is a British subject, or a British protected person within the meaning of that Act: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 109(4) (amended by virtue of the British Overseas Territories Act 2002 s 2(3)). As to British citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 23-43; as to British overseas territories citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 44-57; as to the status of British National (Overseas) see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 63-65; as to British overseas citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 58-62; as to British subjects under the British Nationality Act 1981 see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 66-71; and as to British protected persons within the meaning of s 50(1) see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 72-76. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

For the purposes of any common law offence of bribery it is immaterial if the functions of the person who receives or is offered a reward have no connection with the United Kingdom and are carried out in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 108(1).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(9) OFFENCES BY AND IN RESPECT OF PUBLIC OFFICERS/(i) Bribery and Obstruction of Public Officers/528. Bribery of public officers.

528. Bribery of public officers.

It is an offence<sup>1</sup> at common law for any person to bribe a public officer<sup>2</sup>, or for a public officer to accept a bribe, as an inducement to act contrary to his duty or to show favour or forbear to show disfavour in the discharge of his duty<sup>3</sup>. Any such offence is punishable by imprisonment for life or any shorter term at the discretion of the court and by fine at the discretion of the court<sup>4</sup>.

1 If a national of the United Kingdom or a body incorporated under the law of any part of the United Kingdom does anything in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom, and the act, if done in the United Kingdom, would constitute such an offence, the act constitutes the offence concerned and proceedings for the offence may be taken in the United Kingdom: see the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 ss 108(1), 109; and PARA 527 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

2 A public officer is any officer who discharges any duty in the discharge of which the public is interested: see R v Whitaker [1914] 3 KB 1283, 10 Cr App Rep 245, CCA (where it was held that, where such an officer was described as 'a public and ministerial officer', the addition of the words 'and ministerial' did not affect the matter; every officer who is not a judicial officer is a ministerial officer). 'Public officer' includes an employee of a local authority: R v Bowden [1995] 4 All ER 505, [1996] 1 WLR 98, CA. See also PARA 536 note 1 post.

3 See R v Whitaker [1914] 3 KB 1283, 10 Cr App Rep 245, CCA, where the earlier authorities are reviewed, and where it was held that a colonel of a regiment is a ministerial public officer and was guilty at common law of bribery in accepting sums of money to show favour in the placing of a canteen contract. See also R v Pollman (1809) 2 Camp 229 (receipt of a bribe for procuring an appointment to a public office). The giving of bribes to, and the taking of bribes by, members or officers of public bodies is a statutory offence: see PARA 529 post.

529. Bribery of members and officers of public bodies.

A person<sup>1</sup> commits an offence who by himself or by or in conjunction with any other person (1) corruptly<sup>2</sup> solicits or receives, or agrees to receive, for himself, or for any other person, any gift, loan, fee, reward<sup>3</sup>, or advantage<sup>4</sup> whatever as an inducement to, or reward for, or otherwise on account of, any member, officer or servant of a public body<sup>5</sup> doing or forbearing to do anything in respect of any matter or transaction whatsoever, actual or proposed, in which such public body is concerned; or (2) corruptly gives, promises, or offers any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage whatsoever to any person, whether for the benefit of that person or of another person, as an inducement to, or reward for, or otherwise on account of, any member, officer, or servant of any public body doing or forbearing to do anything in respect of any matter or transaction whatsoever, actual or proposed, in which such public body is concerned<sup>6</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>8</sup>. In addition he is liable (a) to be ordered to pay to such public body the amount or value of any gift, loan, fee or reward received by him or any part thereof<sup>9</sup>; (b) to be adjudged incapable of being elected or appointed to any public office<sup>10</sup> for five years from the date of his conviction, and to forfeit any such office held by him at the time of his conviction<sup>11</sup>; and (c) in the event of a second conviction for a like offence, in addition to the above penalties, to be adjudged to be for ever incapable of holding any public office, and to be incapable for five years of being registered as an elector, or voting at a parliamentary election or an election of members of any public body<sup>12</sup>. If he is an officer or servant in the employment of any public body upon such conviction, he is liable, at the discretion of the court, to forfeit his right and claim to any compensation or pension to which he would otherwise have been entitled<sup>13</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> 'Corruptly' appears in both the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 1 and the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906 s 1 (as amended). These Acts, with the Prevention of Corruption Act 1916, may be cited together as the Prevention of Corruption Acts 1889-1916: see the Prevention of Corruption Act 1916 s 4(1). It has the same meaning in each Act: R v Wellburn, R v Nurdin, R v Randel (1979) 69 Cr App Rep 254 at 265, CA (decided under the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906); R v Parker (1985) 82 Cr App Rep 69 at 73-74, CA (decided under the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889). 'Corruptly' denotes that the person making the offer did so deliberately and with the intention that it should operate on the mind of the offeree, so as to encourage him to enter into a corrupt bargain whether or not the offeror intended to follow it through: R v Smith [1960] 2 QB 423 at 428, 44 Cr App Rep 55 at 60-61, CCA (decided under the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889); R v Harvey [1999] Crim LR 70, CA (decided in respect of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906). In R v Wellburn, R v Nurdin, R v Randel supra, 'corruptly' was described as being a simple English adverb meaning purposefully doing an act which the law forbids as tending to corrupt. Dishonesty is not required: R v Harvey supra; R v Godden-Wood [2001] EWCA Crim 1586, [2001] Crim LR 810 (decided in respect of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906). If a person accepts a gift, knowing that it is a bribe, and intends to keep it, he enters into a corrupt bargain even though he may not intend to carry out and does not carry out his corrupt act: R v Carr [1956] 3 All ER 979n, 40 Cr App Rep 188, CA; R v Mills (1978) 68 Cr App Rep 154 at 158-159, CA (both cases decided under the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906). If the bribe is innocently received, ie the recipient does not understand it to be a reward or inducement, the recipient does not act corruptly: R v Millray Window Cleaning Co Ltd [1962] Crim LR 99, CCA. If the money is received in order to entrap someone or to provide evidence to a listening policeman, the person does not intend to keep the money and it would not be corrupt: R v Mills supra. Receipt of money for a past favour without there having been an agreement beforehand is part of the meaning of 'corruptly': R v Parker supra, applying R v Wellburn supra. There should be a link between the payment and the recipient doing something in pursuance of his public duty; not every payment is therefore unlawful: R v Parker supra. It is not a defence if a councillor thought that what he was doing was not against the interests of the authority: R v Parker supra.

As to the presumption of corruption in instances where the offence charged relates to a contract or proposed contract with Her Majesty, a government department or a public body see PARA 530 post.

Receipt of an extra payment from a public authority for extra duties would not constitute this offence: Edwards v Salmon (1889) 23 QBD 531, CA (decided under the Public Health Act 1875 s 189 (repealed)).

3 'Reward' includes the receipt of money for a past favour without any antecedent agreement: R v Andrews Weatherfoil Ltd [1972] 1 All ER 65, [1972] 1 WLR 118, CA.

4 'Advantage' includes any office or dignity, and any forbearance to demand any money or money's worth or valuable thing, and includes any aid, vote, consent, or influence, or pretended aid, vote, consent, or influence, and also includes any promise or procurement of or agreement or endeavour to procure, or the holding out of any expectation of any gift, loan, fee, reward, or advantage, as before defined: Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 7.

5 The Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 defines 'public body' as any council of a county of a city or town, any council of a municipal borough, also any board, commissioners, select vestry, or other body which has power to act under and for the purposes of any Act relating to local government, or the public health, or to poor law or otherwise to administer money raised by rates in pursuance of any public general Act, and includes any body which exists in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom and is equivalent to any body described above: s 7 (definition amended by the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 108(3)). In addition to the bodies listed above, local and public authorities of all descriptions (including authorities existing in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom) are public bodies for the purposes of the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889: Prevention of Corruption Act 1916 s 4(2) (amended by the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 108(4)). As from a day to be appointed this definition will be extended to include companies which in accordance with the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 are under the control of one or more local authorities: see the Prevention of Corruption Act 1916 s 4(2) (prospectively amended by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 194(1), Sch 11 para 3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. 'Public general Act' includes the Metropolitan Police Acts (as to police generally see POLICE): R v Silbertson (1899) 129 CC Ct Cas 372. For the purposes of the Prevention of Corruption Acts 1889-1916, the Civil Aviation Authority and the Housing Corporation are public bodies, as were the Gas Council (R v Joy and Emmony (1974) 60 Cr App Rep 132) and the Gas Board (DPP v Holly, DPP v Manners [1978] AC 43, 64 Cr App Rep 143, HL). The decision that the National Coal Board was not a public body (R v Newbould [1962] 2 QB 102, 46 Cr App Rep 247) is wrong and should not be followed: DPP v Holly supra. A public body is a body which has public or statutory duties to perform and which performs those duties and carries out its transactions for the benefit of the public and not for private profit: DPP v Holly supra. The National Assembly for Wales (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS) is a public body for the purposes of the Prevention of Corruption Acts 1889-1916: Government of Wales Act 1998 s 79. 'Public body' in the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 7 does not include the Crown or any government department: R v Natji [2002] EWCA Crim 271, [2002] 2 Cr App Rep 302, [2002] 1 WLR 2337.

6 Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 1; Criminal Law Act 1967 s 1. A person is not exempt from punishment under the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 1 by reason of the invalidity of the appointment or election of a person to a public office: s 3(2). A prosecution for an offence under s 1 may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General: s 4 (amended by the Law Officers Act 1997 s 3(2), Schedule). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

If a national of the United Kingdom or a body incorporated under the law of any part of the United Kingdom does anything in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom, and the act, if done in the United Kingdom, would constitute such an offence, the act constitutes the offence concerned and proceedings for the offence may be taken in the United Kingdom: see the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 ss 108(1), 109; and PARA 527 note 1 ante.

It is not necessary to prove that any member, officer or servant of a public body was aware of what was going on when the improper offer was made or the bribe passed, provided that the apparent purpose of the transaction was to affect the conduct of such a person corruptly: Singh v R [2005] UKPC 35, [2005] 4 All ER 781 (case concerned with the Prevention of Corruption Act 1987 s 3 (Trinidad and Tobago) which is closely modelled on the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 1), following R v Harrington (28 September 2000, unreported), CA.

The giving of bribes to, and the taking of bribes by, public officers is also an offence at common law: see PARA 528 ante. An officer or employee of a local government authority who, under colour of his office or employment, accepts any fee or reward other than his proper remuneration is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale: see the Local Government Act 1972 s 117(2), (3); and LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 441. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. As to bribery relating to official contracts see PARA 530 post.

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 2(a) (substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 47(1)). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

9 Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 2(b).

10 'Public office' means any office or employment of a person as a member, officer, or servant of such public body: ibid s 7.

11 Ibid s 2(c) (amended by the Representation of the People Act 1948 s 52(7)).

12 Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 2(d) (amended by the Representation of the People Act 1948 s 52(7)). The enactments for preventing the voting and registration of persons declared by reason of corrupt practices to be incapable of voting (see the Representation of the People Act 1983; and ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 126) apply to a person so adjudged incapable of voting: see the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 s 2(d).

13 Ibid s 2(e).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(9) OFFENCES BY AND IN RESPECT OF PUBLIC OFFICERS/(i) Bribery and Obstruction of Public Officers/530. Bribery relating to official contracts.

530. Bribery relating to official contracts.

Where in any proceedings against a person for an offence under the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906<sup>1</sup> or the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889<sup>2</sup>, it is proved that any money, gift, or other consideration<sup>3</sup> has been paid or given to or received by a person in the employment of Her Majesty or any government department or a public body<sup>4</sup> by or from a person, or agent<sup>5</sup> of a person, holding or seeking to obtain a contract from Her Majesty or any government department or public body, the money, gift or consideration is deemed to have been paid or given and received corruptly as such inducement or reward as is mentioned in such Act unless the contrary is proved<sup>6</sup>.

The presumption does not apply where the public body exists outside (and not inside) the United Kingdom or where the act which constitutes the corruption offence occurs in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup>.

1 See PARA 321 ante.

2 See PARA 529 ante.

3 'Consideration' has the same meaning as in the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906, which states that 'consideration' includes valuable consideration of any kind (see s 1(2); and PARA 321 ante): Prevention of Corruption Act 1916 s 4(3). 'Consideration' bears its legal meaning and connotes the existence of some kind of contract between the parties: R v Braithwaite, R v Girdham [1983] 2 All ER 87, 77 Cr App Rep 34, CA, where the court applied the classic definition in Currie v Misa (1875) LR 10 Exch 153 at 162 per Lush J delivering the judgment of the Court of Exchequer Chamber: 'A valuable consideration, in the sense of the law, may consist either in some right, interest, profit, or benefit accruing to the one party, or some forbearance, detriment, loss, or responsibility, given, suffered, or undertaken by the other'.

4 For the meaning of 'public body' see PARA 529 note 5 ante.

5 'Agent' has the same meaning as in the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906 (see PARA 321 note 1 ante): Prevention of Corruption Act 1916 s 4(3).

6 Ibid s 2. The onus or proof that a payment was in fact not a corrupt payment lies upon the defendant; however, that onus is only to satisfy the jury of the probability of that which he was called upon to establish and, if he satisfies the jury that the probability is that the gift was made innocently, the statutory presumption is rebutted and he is entitled to be acquitted: R v Carr-Briant [1943] KB 607, 29 Cr App Rep 76, CCA.

The presumption does not apply to a charge of statutory conspiracy to commit an offence under the Public Bodies Corrupt Practices Act 1889 or to commit an offence under the Prevention of Corruption Act 1906; such a conspiracy is an offence under the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 1, and not under those Acts: R v A-G, ex p Rockall [1999] 4 All ER 312, [2000] 1 WLR 882, Admin Ct.

7 See the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 110. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

If any person:

- 637 (1) accepts or obtains or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain from any person, for himself or for any other person, for any purpose; or
- 638 (2) gives, or agrees or proposes to give, or offers to any person, any gift, money or valuable consideration<sup>1</sup>, as an inducement or reward for procuring or assisting or endeavouring to procure the grant of a dignity or title of honour to any person, or otherwise in connection with such a grant, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>2</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both; and, where the person convicted received any such gift, money or consideration which is capable of forfeiture, he is in addition to any other penalty liable to forfeit the same to Her Majesty<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to consideration see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 727 et seq.

532. Bribery at elections.

Bribery at a parliamentary<sup>1</sup> or local<sup>2</sup> election was an indictable offence at common law punishable by fine and imprisonment. The common law offence has, however, been superseded by express statutory provisions<sup>3</sup>.

A person is guilty of a corrupt practice<sup>4</sup> if he is guilty of bribery<sup>5</sup>. A person is guilty of bribery:

639 (1) if he, directly or indirectly, by himself or by any other person on his behalf:

11. (a) gives any money<sup>6</sup> or procures any office<sup>7</sup> to or for any voter<sup>8</sup> or to or for any other person on behalf of any voter or to or for any other person in order to induce any voter to vote or refrain from voting; or
12. (b) corruptly does any such act as mentioned in head (a) above on account of any voter having voted or refrained from voting; or
13. (c) makes any such gift or procurement to or for any person in order to induce that person to procure, or endeavour to procure, the return of any person at an election or the vote of any voter<sup>9</sup>; or

640 (2) if upon or in consequence of any such gift or procurement he procures or engages, promises or endeavours to procure, the return of any person at an election or the vote of any voter<sup>10</sup>;

641 (3) if he advances or pays or causes to be paid any money to or for the use of any other person with the intent that that money or any part of it is to be expended in bribery at an election or knowingly pays or causes to be paid any money to any person in discharge or repayment of any money wholly or in part expended in bribery at any election<sup>11</sup>;

642 (4) if, before or during an election, he directly or indirectly by himself or by any other person on his behalf receives, agrees, or contracts for any money, gift, loan or valuable consideration, office, place or employment for himself or for any other person for voting or agreeing to vote or for refraining or agreeing to refrain from voting<sup>12</sup>;

643 (5) if, after an election, he directly or indirectly by himself or by any other person on his behalf receives any money or valuable consideration on account of any person having voted or refrained from voting or having induced any other person to vote or refrain from voting<sup>13</sup>.

A person guilty of a corrupt practice in the above cases is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>14</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>15</sup>.

Where on an election petition it is shown that corrupt practices<sup>16</sup> committed in reference to the election for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of any person at that election have so extensively prevailed that they may reasonably be supposed to have affected the result, his election, if he is elected, is void and he is incapable of being elected to fill the vacancy or any of the vacancies for which the election was held<sup>17</sup>.

5 Ibid s 113(1); and see ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARA 712. The provisions of s 113(1)-(3) do not extend nor are they to be construed to extend to any money paid or agreed to be paid for or on account of any legal expenses incurred in good faith at or concerning an election: s 113(4).

6 For these purposes, references to giving money include references to giving, lending, agreeing to give or lend, offering, promising, or promising to procure or endeavour to procure any money or valuable consideration: ibid s 113(2)(i).

7 For these purposes, references to procuring any office include references to giving, procuring, agreeing to give or procure, offering, promising, or promising to procure or to endeavour to procure any office, place or employment: ibid s 113(2)(ii).

8 For these purposes, 'voter' includes any person who has or claims to have a right to vote: ibid s 113(7); and see ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARA 712.

9 Ibid s 113(2); and see ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARA 712. See also note 5 supra. 'Election' means a parliamentary election, an Authority election (ie an election of the Mayor of London, or any election of a constituency member of the London Assembly or the election of the London members of the London Assembly at an ordinary election) or an election under the Local Government Act 1972: see the Representation of the People Act 1983 ss 202(1), 203(1) (definitions amended by the Greater London Authority Act 1999 s 17, Sch 3 paras 1, 38). The statutory provisions relating to bribery at elections apply with modifications to local authority referendums in England: see the Local Authority (Conduct of Referendums) (England) Regulations, SI 2001/1298. See further ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS.

References to procuring the return of any person at an election include, in the case of an election of the London members of the London Assembly at an ordinary election, references to procuring the return of candidates on a list of candidates submitted by a registered political party for the purposes of that election: Representation of the People Act 1983 s 113(2)(iii) (added by the Greater London Authority Act 1999 Sch 3 para 30).

Similar provisions to those in the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 113 (as amended) apply to elections to the European Parliament: see the European Parliamentary Elections Regulations 2004, SI 2004/293, reg 77. See further ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 712, 720-722.

13 Ibid s 113(6); and see ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARA 722.

14 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

15 Representation of the People Act 1983 s 168(1) (substituted by the Representation of the People Act 1985 s 23, Sch 3 para 8). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. If it appears to the court by which a person holding a licence or certificate under the Licensing Acts is convicted of the offence of bribery or treating that the offence was committed on licensed premises (1) the court must direct the conviction to be entered in the proper register of licences; and (2) the entry must be taken into consideration by the licensing authority in determining whether or not it will grant a renewal of the licence or certificate, and may be a ground, if the authority thinks fit, for refusing its renewal: Representation of the People Act 1983 s 168(7). See ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS.

16 'Corrupt practices' includes bribery: see the text to note 5 supra. Ibid s 164 applies not only to corrupt practices but also to illegal practices or illegal payments, employments or hirings committed in reference to the election for the purpose of promoting or procuring the election of any person at an election: s 164(1). See ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARA 893.

17 Ibid s 164(1). An election is not liable to be avoided otherwise than under s 164 by reason of general corruption, bribery, treating or intimidation: s 164(2). An election under the Local Government Act 1972 may be questioned on the ground that it is avoided under the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 164: see ss 164(3), 203(1) (as amended); and ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(4) (2007 Reissue) PARA 893.

Any person who obtains specified information<sup>1</sup> from any official record<sup>2</sup> by means of any fraud, dishonesty or bribe is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>3</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>4</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'specified information' means information imputing that a named or otherwise identifiable rehabilitated living person has committed or been charged with or prosecuted for or convicted of or sentenced for any offence which is the subject of a spent conviction: Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 s 9(1). For the meanings of 'rehabilitated person' and 'spent conviction' see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 660-661.

2 For these purposes, 'official record' means a record kept for the purposes of its functions by any court, police force, government department, local or other public authority in Great Britain, or a record kept, in Great Britain or elsewhere, for the purposes of any of Her Majesty's forces, being in either case a record containing information about persons convicted of offences: ibid 9(1). OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(9) OFFENCES BY AND IN RESPECT OF PUBLIC OFFICERS/(iii) Misconduct in Public Office and Related Offences/536. Misconduct in public office.

(iii) Misconduct in Public Office and Related Offences

536. Misconduct in public office.

A public officer<sup>1</sup> commits the common law offence of misconduct in a public office if, acting as such, he wilfully neglects to perform his duty and/or wilfully misconducts himself<sup>2</sup>, to such a degree as to amount to an abuse of the public's trust in the office holder<sup>3</sup>, without reasonable excuse or justification<sup>4</sup>. The offence is punishable by imprisonment for life or any shorter term and by fine at the discretion of the court<sup>5</sup>.

1 A 'public officer' in this context includes a judicial officer (R v Borron (1820) 3 B & Ald 432 (magistrate); R v Llewellyn-Jones [1968] 1 QB 429, [1967] 3 All ER 225, CA (County Court Registrar)). In this context a 'public officer' is a person appointed to discharge a public duty who is paid compensation in whatever form, whether from the Crown or otherwise: R v Bowden [1995] 4 All ER 505, [1996] 1 WLR 98, CA. A local authority employee who was responsible for the upkeep of local authority housing and in that capacity was accountable for public money and who received a salary from public funds has been held to be a public officer in the present context (R v Bowden supra), and so has a constable (see R v Dytham [1979] QB 722, 69 Cr App Rep 387, CA).

2 There must be a breach of duty by the officer; it may consist of an act of commission or of an omission to fulfil a duty: A-G's Reference (No 3 of 2003) [2004] EWCA Crim 868 at [55], [2005] QB 73 at [55], [2005] 4 All ER 303 at [55], per Pill LJ. That wilful misconduct must be deliberate, rather than accidental, and accompanied by an awareness of the duty to act or subjective recklessness (ie the concept of recklessness approved in R v G [2003] UKHL 50, [2004] 1 AC 1034, [2004] 1 Cr App Rep 237) as to the existence of the duty: A-G's Reference (No 3 of 2003) supra at [28], [30], [45]. The recklessness test applies to the question whether in particular circumstances a duty arises at all as well as to the conduct of the defendant if it does, and it applies both to the legality of the act or omission and in relation to the consequences of the act or omission: A-G's Reference (No 3 of 2003) supra at [30].

3 'There must be a serious departure from proper standards before the criminal offence is committed; and a departure not merely negligent but amounting to an affront to the standing of the public office held. The threshold is a high one requiring conduct so far below acceptable standards as to amount to an abuse of the public's trust in the office holder. A mistake, even a serious one, will not suffice. The motive with which a public officer acts may be relevant to the decision whether the public's trust is abused by the conduct': A-G's Reference (No 3 of 2003) [2004] EWCA Crim 868 at [58], [2005] QB 73 at [58], [2005] 4 All ER 303 at [58]. The element of culpability 'must be of such a degree that the misconduct impugned is calculated to injure the public interest so as to call for condemnation and punishment': see R v Dytham [1979] QB 722 at 727, 69 Cr App Rep 387 at 394, CA, per Lord Widgery CJ.

It will normally be necessary to consider the likely consequences of the breach in deciding whether the conduct falls so far below the standard to be expected of the officer as to constitute the offence. The conduct cannot be considered in a vacuum: the consequences likely to follow from it (viewed subjectively as in R v G [2003] UKHL 50, [2004] 1 AC 1034, [2004] 1 Cr App Rep 237) will often influence the decision as to whether the conduct amounted to an abuse of the public's trust in the officer. A default where the consequences are likely to be trivial may not possess the criminal quality required; a similar default where the damage to the public or members of the public is likely to be great may do so. There will be some conduct which possesses the criminal quality even if serious consequences are unlikely but it is always necessary to assess the conduct in the circumstances in which it occurs: A-G's Reference (No 3 of 1993) supra at [58].

4 A-G's Reference (No 3 of 2003) [2004] EWCA Crim 868, [2005] QB 73, [2005] 4 All ER 303. See also R v Bembridge (1783) 3 Doug KB 327 at 332; R v Borron (1820) 3 B & Ald 432; R v Dytham [1979] QB 722, 69 Cr App Rep 387, CA; R v Llewellyn-Jones [1968] 1 QB 429, (1967) 51 Cr App Rep 204, CA.

The common law offences of extortion and false accounting by public officers were abolished by the Theft Act 1968 (see s 32(1)(a)) which also abolished the statutory offences of extortion by coroners and sheriffs (see ss 32(1)(b), 33(3), Sch 3 Pt I). As to acceptance of fees and rewards by officers of local government authorities see PARA 529 ante; and as to blackmail see PARA 308 ante.

It is an indictable offence at common law for a duly qualified person to refuse to serve in a public office to which he has been appointed and in which he is by law required to serve<sup>1</sup>. Unless some other penalty is imposed by law<sup>2</sup>, the offence is punishable by imprisonment for life or any shorter term and by fine at the discretion of the court<sup>3</sup>. Payment of a fine imposed by statute for refusal to accept the office, unless the statute provides that the fine is payable in lieu of service, does not, it seems, affect the liability to indictment for the common law offence<sup>4</sup>.

Any person who in the course of his official duties has, or at any time has had, the custody of or access to any official record (that is, a record containing information about persons convicted of offences)<sup>1</sup>, or the information contained therein, is guilty of an offence if, knowing or having reasonable cause to suspect that any specified information<sup>2</sup> he has obtained in the course of those duties is specified information, he discloses it to another person otherwise than in the course of those duties<sup>3</sup>; and he is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale<sup>4</sup>.

Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted except by or on behalf of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>5</sup>. #### (iv) Offences by Particular Officers

540. Interfering with the mail: postal operators.

A person engaged in the business of a postal operator<sup>1</sup> commits an offence if, contrary to his duty and without reasonable excuse, he intentionally delays or opens a postal packet<sup>2</sup> in the course of its transmission by post<sup>3</sup>, or intentionally opens a mail-bag<sup>4</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

The above offences do not apply to:

- 644 (1) the delaying or opening of a postal packet or the opening of a mail-bag under the authority of the Postal Services Act 2000 or any other enactment (including, in particular, in pursuance of a warrant issued under any other enactment), or any directly applicable Community provision<sup>7</sup>;
- 645 (2) the delaying or opening of a postal packet in accordance with any terms and conditions applicable to its transmission by post<sup>8</sup>;
- 646 (3) the delaying of a postal packet as a result of industrial action in contemplation or furtherance of a trade dispute<sup>9</sup>.

1 'Postal operator' means a person who provides the service of conveying postal packets from one place to another by post or any of the incidental services of receiving, collecting, sorting and delivering such packets: Postal Services Act 2000 s 125(1).

2 For the meaning of 'postal packet' see PARA 292 note 2 ante.

3 A postal packet is taken to be in course of transmission by post from the time of its being delivered to any post office or post office letter box to the time of its being delivered to the addressee: Postal Services Act 2000 s 125(3)(a). The delivery of a postal packet of any description to a letter carrier or other person authorised to receive postal packets of that description for the post or to a person engaged in the business of a postal operator to be dealt with in the course of that business is a delivery to a post office: s 125(3)(b). The delivery of a postal packet (1) at the premises to which it is addressed or redirected, unless they are a post office from which it is to be collected; (2) to any box or receptacle to which the occupier of those premises has agreed that postal packets addressed to persons at those premises may be delivered; or (3) to the addressee's agent or to any other person considered to be authorised to receive the packet, is a delivery to the addressee: s 125(3)(c).

4 Ibid s 83(1). See POST OFFICE. 'Mail-bag' includes any form of container or covering in which postal packets in the course of transmission by post are enclosed by a postal operator in the United Kingdom or a foreign postal administration for the purpose of conveyance by post, whether or not it contains any such packets: s 125(1). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 Postal Services Act 2000 s 83(6). The Theft Act 1968 s 27(4) (see PARA 1536 post) applies to proceedings for an offence under the Postal Services Act 2000 s 83 as it applies to proceedings for the theft of anything in the course of transmission by post: s 109(2).

7 Ibid s 83(2).

8 Ibid s 83(3).

9 Ibid s 83(4). 'Trade dispute' has the meaning given by the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 244 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 41 (2009) PARAS 1324-1326) and the reference to industrial action is to be construed in accordance with that Act: Postal Services Act 2000 s 83(5).

If any person with intent to conceal Her Majesty's property in any stores<sup>1</sup> takes out, destroys or obliterates, wholly or in part, any mark appropriated for use in or on Her Majesty's stores to denote Her Majesty's property in stores so marked<sup>2</sup> or any mark whatsoever denoting the property of Her Majesty in any stores, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>3</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>4</sup>.

If any person without lawful authority, proof of which authority lies on the defendant<sup>5</sup>, applies any mark so appropriated in or on any stores, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years<sup>6</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'stores' includes all goods and chattels, and any single store or article: Public Stores Act 1875 s 2. The Public Stores Act 1875 applies to all stores under the care, superintendence or control of a Secretary of State or any public department or office or any person in Her Majesty's service; and 'Her Majesty's stores' means such stores: s 3 (amended by the Defence (Transfer of Functions) (No 1) Order 1964, SI 1964/488, art 2, Sch 1 Pt II).

2 See the Public Stores Act 1875 s 4, Sch 1 (amended by the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993).

3 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

The Public Stores Act 1875 s 5 does not apply to stores issued as regimental or air force necessities: see s 13 (amended by the Territorial Army and Militia Act 1921 s 4(1), Sch 2; the Statute Law (Repeals) Act 1993); and the Air Force (Adaptation of Enactments) (No 2) Order 1918, SR & O 1918/548 (amended by SI 1964/488).

A constable of the metropolitan police force, and any constable, if deputed by a public department, may, within the limits for which he is constable, stop, search, and detain any vessel, boat or vehicle in or on which there is reason to suspect that any of Her Majesty's stores stolen or unlawfully obtained may be found, or any person reasonably suspected of having or conveying in any manner any of Her Majesty's stores stolen or unlawfully obtained: Public Stores Act 1875 s 6. For these purposes, a constable is deemed to be deputed by a public department if he is deputed by any writing signed by the person who is the head of such department, or who is authorised to sign documents on behalf of such department: s 6. As to powers to stop and search see further PARA 859 et seq post.

If it is made to appear by information on oath before a justice of the peace that there is reasonable cause to believe that any person has in his custody or possession or on his premises any stores in respect of which an offence against the Public Stores Act 1875 s 5 has been committed, the justice may issue a warrant to a constable to search for and seize the stores as in the case of stolen goods (see PARA 306 ante): s 12(2) (substituted by the Theft Act 1968 s 33(2), Sch 2 Pt II). As to powers of entry, search and seizure see further PARA 869 et seq post.

5 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. 1 For the meaning of 'stores' see PARA 542 note 1 ante.

2 As from a day to be appointed, the reference to two months' imprisonment is repealed: see the Public Stores Act 1875 s 8 (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 280(1), (3), 332, Sch 25 para 11, Sch 37 Pt 9). OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(10) OFFENCES AFFECTING THE PROPERTY AND PREROGATIVE OF THE CROWN/(ii) Coinage Offences/544. Making counterfeit coins.

(ii) Coinage Offences

544. Making counterfeit coins.

If a person makes a counterfeit<sup>1</sup> of a currency note<sup>2</sup> or of a protected coin<sup>3</sup>, intending that he or another will pass or tender<sup>4</sup> it as genuine, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

If a person makes a counterfeit of a currency note or of a protected coin without lawful authority or excuse, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

1 For these purposes, a thing is a counterfeit of a currency note or of a protected coin (1) if it is not a currency note or a protected coin, but resembles a currency note or protected coin (whether on one side only or on both) to such an extent that it is reasonably capable of passing for a currency note or protected coin of that description; or (2) if it is a currency note or protected coin which has been so altered that it is reasonably capable of passing for a currency note or protected coin of some other description: Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 28(1). For these purposes (a) a thing consisting of one side only of a currency note, with or without the addition of other material, is a counterfeit of such a note; (b) a thing consisting (i) of parts of two or more currency notes; or (ii) of parts of a currency note or of parts of two or more currency notes with the addition of other material, is capable of being a counterfeit of a currency note: s 28(2).

2 For these purposes, 'currency note' means (1) any note which (a) has been lawfully issued in England and Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland, any of the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man or the Republic of Ireland; and (b) is or has been customarily used as money in the country where it was issued; and (c) is payable on demand; or (2) any note which has been lawfully issued in some country other than those mentioned in head (1)(a) supra and is customarily used as money in that country: ibid s 27(1).

3 For these purposes, 'protected coin' means any coin which is customarily used as money in any country, or is specified in an order made by the Treasury: ibid s 27(1). The power of the Treasury so to make an order is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 27(2). A statutory instrument containing such an order must be laid before Parliament after being made: s 27(3).

The following coins have been specified for the purposes of the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 Pt II (ss 14-28): (1) sovereign; half-sovereign; Krugerrand; any coin denominated as a fraction of a Krugerrand; Maria-Theresia thaler bearing the date of 1780: Forgery and Counterfeiting (Protected Coins) Order 1981, SI 1981/1505, art 2, Schedule; (2) any euro coin produced in accordance with EC Council Regulation 975/98 (OJ L139, 11.05.98, p 6) by or at the instance of a member state which has adopted the single currency: Forgery and Counterfeiting (Protected Coins) Order 1999, SI 1999/2095.

4 For these purposes, references to passing or tendering a counterfeit of a currency note or a protected coin are not to be construed as confined to passing or tendering it as legal tender: Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 28(3). For the meaning of 'legal tender' see the Coinage Act 1971 s 2 (as amended); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1279.

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 ss 14(1), 22(1), (2)(a). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. As to powers of search, forfeiture etc see PARA 550 post.

An offence under s 14 is classified as a Group A offence within the Criminal Justice Act 1993 Pt I (ss 1-6) (as amended) (see PARA 362 ante): see s 1(2)(c) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1993 (Extension of Group A Offences) Order 2000, SI 2000/1878, art 2).

The offence under the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 14 is a lifestyle offence for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 6(a) (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 393 note 20). In respect of a lifestyle offence the court may make a financial reporting order under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 76 (not yet in force): see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 475-476.

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). 11 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

12 Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 ss 17(3), 22(3), (4)(e). See also note 6 supra.

13 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

14 Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 17(4). It is an offence at common law to procure coining instruments with intent to make counterfeit coin (R v Roberts (1855) Dears CC 539, CCR) or to procure base coin with intent to make counterfeit coin (R v Fuller, R v Robinson (1816) Russ & Ry 308). Any such offence is punishable by imprisonment and by fine at the discretion of the court: see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 31, 139.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(10) OFFENCES AFFECTING THE PROPERTY AND PREROGATIVE OF THE CROWN/(ii) Coinage Offences/548. Reproduction of British currency notes.

548. Reproduction of British currency notes.

Unless the relevant authority<sup>1</sup> has previously consented in writing<sup>2</sup>, if any person<sup>3</sup> reproduces on any substance whatsoever, and whether or not on the correct scale, any British currency note<sup>4</sup> or any part of a British currency note, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to a fine, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>5</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'the relevant authority', in relation to a British currency note of any particular description, means the authority empowered by law to issue notes of that description: Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 18(2); and see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1278.

2 For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 413 note 1 ante.

3 Where an offence under the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 18 or s 19 (see PARA 549 post) which has been committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 25(1). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, s 25(1) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as if he were a director of the body corporate: s 25(2). See PARA 38 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'British currency note' means any note which (1) has been lawfully issued in England and Wales, Scotland or Northern Ireland; and (2) is or has been customarily used as money in the country where it was issued; and (3) is payable on demand: ibid s 18(2).

5 Ibid ss 18(1), 22(5). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. As to powers of search, forfeiture etc see PARA 550 post.

If a person<sup>1</sup>:

647 (1) makes an imitation British coin<sup>2</sup> in connection with a scheme intended to promote the sale of any product or the making of contracts for the supply of any service; or

648 (2) sells or distributes imitation British coins in connection with any such scheme, or has imitation British coins in his custody or under his control with a view to such sale or distribution, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to a fine, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, unless the Treasury has previously consented in writing<sup>3</sup> to the sale or distribution of such imitation British coins in connection with that scheme<sup>4</sup>.

1 As to the position where an offence under the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 19 has been committed by a body corporate see PARA 548 note 1 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'British coin' means any coin which is legal tender in any part of the United Kingdom; and 'imitation British coin' means any thing which resembles a British coin in shape, size and the substance of which it is made: ibid s 19(2). For the meaning of 'legal tender' see the Coinage Act 1971 s 2 (as amended); and FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1279.

If it appears to a justice of the peace, from information given him on oath, that there is reasonable cause to believe that a person has in his custody or under his control (1) any thing which is a counterfeit<sup>1</sup> of a currency note<sup>2</sup> or of a protected coin<sup>3</sup>, or which is a specified reproduction<sup>4</sup>; or (2) any thing which he or another has used<sup>5</sup>, or intends to use, for the making of any such counterfeit or the making of any such reproduction, the justice may issue a warrant authorising a constable to search for and seize the object in question, and for that purpose to enter any premises specified in the warrant<sup>6</sup>.

A constable may at any time after the seizure of any object suspected of falling within head (1) or head (2) above (whether the seizure was effected by virtue of such a warrant or otherwise) apply to a magistrates' court for an order with respect to the object; and the court, if it is satisfied both that the object in fact falls within head (1) or head (2) above and that it is conducive to the public interest to do so, may make such order as it thinks fit for the forfeiture of the object and its subsequent destruction or disposal<sup>7</sup>.

The court by or before which a person is convicted of a relevant offence<sup>8</sup> may order any thing shown to the satisfaction of the court to relate to the offence to be forfeited and either destroyed or dealt with in such other manner as the court may order<sup>9</sup>.

The court may not, however, order any thing to be forfeited under the above provisions where a person claiming to be the owner of or otherwise interested in it applies to be heard by the court, unless an opportunity has been given to him to show cause why the order should not be made<sup>10</sup>.

The importation, landing or unloading of a counterfeit<sup>1</sup> of a currency note<sup>2</sup> or of a protected coin<sup>3</sup> without the consent of the Treasury is prohibited<sup>4</sup>; and the exportation of a counterfeit or a currency note or of a protected coin without the consent of the Treasury is prohibited<sup>5</sup>. 5 Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 21(1). An offence under the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 21 is classified as a Group A offence within the Criminal Justice Act 1993 Pt I (as amended): see s 1(2)(c).

A counterfeit of a currency note or of a protected coin which is removed to the Isle of Man from the United Kingdom is deemed to be exported from the United Kingdom for the purposes of the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 20, and for the purposes of the Customs and Excise Acts, in their application to the prohibition imposed by the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981 s 21: s 21(2). This is an exception to the general rule, under the Isle of Man Act 1979 s 9(1), that goods removed to the Isle of Man from the United Kingdom are deemed for the purpose of the Customs and Excise Acts not to be exported from the United Kingdom. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante. The expression 'the Customs and Excise Acts' is not defined in the Forgery and Counterfeiting Act 1981; but cf the definition of that expression in the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 1(1) (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 398).

Any person who fires upon any vessel<sup>1</sup>, aircraft or vehicle<sup>2</sup> in Her Majesty's service while it is engaged in the prevention of smuggling<sup>3</sup> is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years<sup>4</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'vessel' includes any boat or other vessel whatsoever and any hovercraft: Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 ss 1(1), 2(1).

2 For these purposes, 'vehicle' includes any railway vehicle: ibid s 1(1).

3 'Smuggling' is not defined in the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979. See, however, R v Hussain [1969] 2 QB 567 at 572, 53 Cr App Rep 448 at 452, CA ('there is no reason to suppose the jury would associate the word 'smugglers' solely with those who seek to evade customs duty . . . in the ordinary use of language today the verb 'to smuggle' is used equally to apply to the importation of goods which are prohibited in import').

4 Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 85(2) (amended by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 46). Any person who, save for just and sufficient cause, interferes in any way with any ship, aircraft, vehicle, buoy, anchor, chain, rope or mark which is being used for the purposes of the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs under the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 Pts III-VII (ss 19-91) (as amended) is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale: ss 1(1), 85(1) (s 1(1) amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(6), Sch 4 paras 20, 22(b)). 1 'Goods' includes stores and baggage: Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 1(1). As to goods the importation of which is subject to duty or is restricted or prohibited see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(2) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1 et seq.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(10) OFFENCES AFFECTING THE PROPERTY AND PREROGATIVE OF THE CROWN/(iv) Trespass on Designated or Nuclear Site/554. Offence of trespassing on designated or nuclear site.

(iv) Trespass on Designated or Nuclear Site

554. Offence of trespassing on designated or nuclear site.

A person commits an offence if he enters, or is on, any protected site<sup>1</sup> in England and Wales as a trespasser<sup>2</sup>. It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove<sup>3</sup> that he did not know, and had no reasonable cause to suspect, that the site in relation to which the offence is alleged to have been committed was a protected site<sup>4</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>6</sup> or to both<sup>7</sup>.

1 A 'protected site' is defined as either a nuclear site or a designated site: Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 128(1A) (s 128(1), (4), (7) amended, and s 128(1A)-(1C) added, by the Terrorism Act 2006 s 12(1), (2)). 'Nuclear site' means: (1) so much of any premises in respect of which a nuclear site licence (within the meaning of the Nuclear Installations Act 1965: see ss 1(1), 26(1); and FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1487) is for the time being in force as lies within the outer perimeter of the protection provided for those premises (Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 128(1B)(a) (as so added)); and (2) so much of any other premises of which premises falling within s 128(1B)(a) (as added) form a part as lies within that outer perimeter (s 128(1B)(b) (as so added)). For this purpose, the outer perimeter of the protection provided for any premises is the line of the outermost fences, walls or other obstacles provided or relied on for protecting those premises from intruders (s 128(1C)(a) (as so added)) and that line is determined on the assumption that every gate, door or other barrier across a way through a fence, wall or other obstacle is closed (s 128(1C)(b) (as so added)). 'Designated site' means a site which is specified or described (in any way) in an order made by the Secretary of State and is designated for these purposes by that order: s 128(2). The Secretary of State may designate a site for these purposes only if: (a) it is comprised in Crown land; (b) it is comprised in land belonging to Her Majesty in Her private capacity or to the immediate heir to the throne in his private capacity; or (c) it appears to the Secretary of State that it is appropriate to designate the site in the interests of national security: s 128(3). For the purposes of s 128 (as amended), 'site' means the whole or part of any building or buildings, or any land, or both; and 'Crown land' means land in which there is a Crown interest or a Duchy interest: s 128(8). For these purposes, 'Crown interest' means an interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Crown; and 'Duchy interest' means an interest belonging to Her Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster or belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall: s 128(9). See further CROWN PROPERTY.

The Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 s 2(1) (rights of public in relation to access land: see OPEN SPACES AND COUNTRYSIDE vol 78 (2010) PARA 583) does not apply to land in respect of which a designation order under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 128 (as amended) is in force: s 131(1)(a), (5)(a). The Secretary of State may take such steps as he considers appropriate to inform the public of the effect of any designation order, including, in particular, displaying notices on or near the site to which the order relates: s 131(2). However, the Secretary of State may only display any such notice, or take any other steps under s 131(2), in or on any building or land if the appropriate person consents: s 131(3). The 'appropriate person' is (i) a person appearing to the Secretary of State to have a sufficient interest in the building or land to consent to the notice being displayed or the steps being taken; or (ii) a person acting on behalf of such a person: s 131(4).

The following sites are designated under s 128 (as amended): Her Majesty's Naval Base Clyde; Northwood Headquarters; RAF Brize Norton; RAF Croughton; RAF Fairford; RAF Feltwell; RAF Fylingdales; RAF Lakenheath; RAF Menwith Hill; RAF Mildenhall; RAF Welford; Royal Naval Armaments Depot Coulport; Sea Mounting Centre Marchwood: Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 (Designated Sites) Order 2005, SI 2005/3447, art 2(1), Schedule.

2 Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 128(1) (as amended: see note 1 supra). As to trespass to land see TORT vol 97 (2010) PARA 562 et seq. For the purposes of s 128 (as amended), a person who is on any protected site as a trespasser does not cease to be a trespasser by virtue of being allowed time to leave the site: s 128(7) (as so amended). No proceedings for an offence under s 128 (as amended) may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General: s 128(6)(a). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

3 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden of proof or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

4 Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 128(4) (as amended: see note 1 supra).

5 After the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(5) (not yet in force), the reference to a maximum term of imprisonment of six months is to be read as if it were a reference to a maximum term of 51 weeks: see the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 128(5), 175(1), (3).

6 As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/555. Riot.

(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC

555. Riot.

Where 12 or more persons who are present together use or threaten unlawful violence<sup>1</sup> for a common purpose<sup>2</sup> and the conduct of them, taken together, is such as would cause a person of reasonable firmness<sup>3</sup> present at the scene<sup>4</sup> to fear for his personal safety, each of the persons using unlawful violence for the common purpose is guilty of riot<sup>5</sup>. A person convicted of riot is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 10 years or to a fine or to both<sup>6</sup>. A person is, however, guilty of riot only if he intends to use violence or is aware that his conduct may be violent<sup>7</sup>.

1 It is immaterial whether or not the 12 or more use or threaten unlawful violence simultaneously: Public Order Act 1986 s 1(2). For the purposes of Pt 1 (ss 1-10) (as amended), 'violence' means any violent conduct, so that: (1) it includes violent conduct towards property as well as violent conduct towards persons; and (2) it is not restricted to conduct causing or intended to cause injury or damage but includes any other violent conduct (eg throwing at or towards a person a missile of a kind capable of causing injury which does not hit or falls short): see s 8. The requirement that the violence be unlawful excludes from riot violence which is justified by law (eg on grounds of reasonable violence being used in self-defence or prevention of crime): R v Rothwell, R v Barton [1993] Crim LR 626, CA. In I v DPP [2001] UKHL 10, [2002] 1 AC 285, [2001] 2 Cr App Rep 216, an affray case, the House of Lords held that the overt possession of weapons can amount to a threat of violence, even though they are not waved or brandished.

2 The common purpose may be inferred from conduct: Public Order Act 1986 s 1(3). It is preferable for the common purpose to be specified in the indictment, but, if it is not, a conviction will be upheld if the prosecution case has clearly identified the common purpose and the judge's direction has been in terms of the need for the jury to be in no reasonable doubt that the purpose was proved: R v Jefferson [1994] 1 All ER 270, 99 Cr App Rep 13, CA.

3 See PARA 557 note 4 post.

4 No person of reasonable firmness need actually be, or be likely to be, present at the scene: Public Order Act 1986 s 1(4).

5 Ibid s 1(1). The offence of riot is perpetrated by those who use unlawful violence; those who merely threaten such violence can be convicted as accomplices if, with the appropriate mens rea for a secondary party, they encourage the unlawful use by others (or another): R v Jefferson [1994] 1 All ER 270, 99 Cr App Rep 13, CA. The common law offences of riot and rout have been abolished: Public Order Act 1986 s 9(1).

Riot may be committed in private as well as in public places: s 1(5).

No prosecution for an offence of riot or incitement to riot may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions: s 7(1). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

For the purposes of the rules against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), s 1 creates one offence: s 7(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 Ibid s 1(6). As to the appropriate sentence for the participants of a serious riot see R v Najeib [2003] EWCA Crim 194, [2003] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 488.

7 Public Order Act 1986 s 6(1). It is important that this is made clear to the jury: R v Blackwood [2002] EWCA Crim 3102, [2003] All ER (D) 239 (Jan). The words 'only if he intends' in the Public Order Act 1986 s 6 do not exclude or cut down in relation to the relevant offence the liability of an aider and abettor: R v Jefferson [1994]

1 All ER 270, 99 Cr App Rep 13, CA. The Public Order Act 1986 s 6(1) does not affect the determination for the purposes of riot of the number of persons who use or threaten violence: s 6(7).

For the purposes of s 6 a person whose awareness is impaired by intoxication is to be taken to be aware of that of which he would be aware if not intoxicated, unless he shows either that his intoxication was not self-induced or that it was caused solely by the taking or administration of a substance in the course of medical treatment: s 6(5). 'Intoxication' means any intoxication, whether caused by drink, drugs or other means, or by a combination of means: s 6(6). As to whether 'he shows' imposes a legal (or persuasive) or evidential burden on the defendant, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/556. Violent disorder.

556. Violent disorder.

Where three or more persons<sup>1</sup> who are present together use or threaten unlawful violence<sup>2</sup> and the conduct of them, taken together, is such as would cause a person of reasonable firmness<sup>3</sup> present at the scene<sup>4</sup> to fear for his personal safety, each of the persons using or threatening<sup>5</sup> unlawful violence is guilty of violent disorder<sup>6</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>8</sup>. A person is, however, guilty of violent disorder only if he intends to use or threaten violence or is aware that his conduct may be violent or threaten violence<sup>9</sup>.

1 No mention need be made of the three persons who have to be present in the indictment provided that: (1) there is evidence satisfying the jury that there were three or more persons involved in the criminal behaviour, though not necessarily those named in the indictment; and (2) the defence is apprised of what it is the defence has to meet, the best way of achieving this being by putting it in the indictment: R v Mahroof (1988) 88 Cr App Rep 317, CA. Where the only persons against whom there is evidence of using or threatening violence are those named in the indictment, the jury should be specifically directed that, if it cannot be sure that three or more of the defendants were using or threatening violence, it should acquit every defendant of violent disorder, even if satisfied that one or more particular defendant(s) was or were unlawfully fighting: R v Fleming, R v Robinson (1989) 153 JP 517, CA. The jury should be warned specifically that, if any one of the three defendants was acquitted, the other two must also be found not guilty, unless the jury is satisfied that some other person not charged was taking part in the violent disorder: R v Worton (1989) 154 JP 201, CA.

2 It is immaterial whether or not the three or more use or threaten unlawful violence simultaneously: Public Order Act 1986 s 2(2). For the meaning of 'unlawful violence' see PARA 555 note 1 ante.

3 See PARA 557 note 4 post.

4 No person of reasonable firmness need actually be, or be likely to be, present at the scene: Public Order Act 1986 s 2(3).

5 The Court of Appeal has held that there was a prima facie case of violent disorder against the defendant(s) where the defendant had been running in a populated area with a group, other members of which were armed and intent on violence, as the defendant knew (R v Church [2000] 4 Archbold News 3, CA) or where the defendants had been members of a group which stalked a man for three-quarters of a mile in the middle of the night, creating an aura of violence (R v Brodie, R v Young, R v Mould [2000] Crim LR 775, CA).

6 Public Order Act 1986 s 2(1). Violent disorder may be committed in private as well as in public places: s 2(4). For the purposes of the rules against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), s 2 creates one offence: s 7(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. If on the trial on indictment of a person charged with violent disorder the jury finds him not guilty of the offence charged, the jury may, without prejudice to the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 6(3) (see PARA 1335 post), find him guilty of an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (see PARA 558 post): s 7(3); and see R v Mahroof (1988) 88 Cr App Rep 317, CA; R v Fleming, R v Robinson (1989) 153 JP 517, (1989) Times, 13 February, CA; R v Carson (1990) 92 Cr App Rep 236, CA; R v O'Brien (1992) 156 JP 925, CA; R v Stanley [1993] Crim LR 618, CA; R v Perrins [1995] Crim LR 432, CA. The Crown Court has the same powers and duties in relation to a person who is convicted of an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 by virtue of s 7(3) as a magistrates' court would have on convicting him of the offence: s 7(4).

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 Public Order Act 1986 s 2(5). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. The common law offence of unlawful assembly has been abolished: s 9(1). As to sentencing for violent disorder see R v Hebron, R v Spencer (1989) 11 Cr App Rep (S) 226, (1989) Times, 12 May, CA; R v Tomlinson (1992) 157 JP 695, CA; R v Tyler, R v Frost, R v Hester (1992) 96 Cr App Rep 332, CA; R v Green [1997] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 191, CA (individual acts of a defendant not the essence of the offence; the essence is participation with others in the whole activity); R v Chapman [2002] EWCA Crim 2346, 146 Sol Jo LB 242 (case of serious disorder); R v Rees [2005] EWCA Crim 1857, (2005) Times, 22 July (where violent disorder is committed by young people who have been binge-drinking, offenders, even if they are of exemplary character, can expect to receive substantial sentences).

9 Public Order Act 1986 s 6(2). Section 6(2) does not affect the determination of the number of persons who use or threaten violence: s 6(7). As to the position where a person's awareness is impaired by intoxication see PARA 555 note 7 ante. As to liability for aiding and abetting see PARA 555 note 5 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/557. Affray.

557. Affray.

If a person uses or threatens<sup>1</sup> unlawful violence<sup>2</sup> towards another and his conduct<sup>3</sup> is such as would cause a person of reasonable firmness<sup>4</sup> present at the scene<sup>5</sup> to fear for his personal safety, he is guilty of affray<sup>6</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>8</sup>. A person is, however, guilty of affray only if he intends to use or threaten violence or is aware that his conduct may be violent or threaten violence<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the offence of affray, a threat cannot be made by the use of words alone: Public Order Act 1986 s 3(3). As to what can constitute a threat of violence see I v DPP [2001] UKHL 10, [2002] 1 AC 285, [2001] 2 Cr App Rep 216; and PARA 555 note 1 ante. See also R v Dixon [1993] Crim LR 579, CA.

In I v DPP supra, the House of Lords also held that affray requires that a threat of unlawful violence must have been directed towards a person or persons actually present at the scene.

2 For these purposes, 'violence' means any violent conduct towards persons (but not towards property), so that it is not restricted to conduct causing or intended to cause injury but includes any other violent conduct (eg throwing at or towards a person a missile of a kind capable of causing injury which does not hit or falls short): Public Order Act 1986 s 8.

3 For these purposes, where two or more persons use or threaten violence, it is the conduct of them taken together that must be considered: ibid s 3(2). Where there has been a continuous course of conduct, as in the case of an indiscriminate mêlée, it is unnecessary for the prosecution to identify and prove particular incidents since the criminal character of the conduct depends on its general nature and effect, and not on particular incidents and events: R v Smith [1997] 1 Cr App Rep 14, CA.

4 It is not incumbent on the judge to direct the jury on the attributes of a person of reasonable firmness or to give examples of reasonable firmness: R v Rafferty [2004] EWCA Crim 968, [2004] All ER (D) 69 (Apr).

5 Ie someone other than the victim: R v Sanchez [1996] Crim LR 572, JP 321, CA; R v Thind [1999] Crim LR 842, CA. It is the hypothetical reasonable bystander who must be put in fear for his personal safety, not the victim himself: R v Sanchez supra. No person of reasonable firmness need actually be, or be likely to be, present at the scene: Public Order Act 1986 s 3(4).

6 Ibid s 3(1). The common law offence of affray has been abolished: s 9(1).

Affray may be committed in private as well as in public places: s 3(5).

For the purposes of the rules against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), s 3 creates one offence: s 7(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

If on the trial on indictment of a person charged with affray the jury finds him not guilty of the offence charged, the jury may, without prejudice to the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 6(3) (see PARA 1335 post), find him guilty of an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (as amended) (see PARA 558 post): s 7(3); and see the cases referred to in respect of s 7(3) in PARA 556 note 6 ante. The Crown Court has the same powers and duties in relation to a person who is convicted of an offence under s 4 (as amended) by virtue of s 7(3) as a magistrates' court would have on convicting him of the offence: s 7(4).

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 Public Order Act 1986 s 3(7). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

9 Ibid s 6(2). As to the position where a person's awareness is impaired by intoxication see PARA 555 note 7 ante. As to liability for aiding and abetting see PARA 555 note 5 ante.

557 Affray

NOTE 5--The likelihood of there having been a bystander at the scene must not be small: Leeson v DPP [2010] All ER (D) 84 (Apr), DC.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/558. Fear or provocation of violence.

558. Fear or provocation of violence.

If a person:

- 649 (1) uses towards another person threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>1</sup> words or behaviour<sup>2</sup>; or
- 650 (2) distributes or displays to another person any writing<sup>3</sup>, sign or other visible representation which is threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>4</sup>, with intent to cause that person to believe that immediate unlawful violence will be used against him or another by any person, or to provoke the immediate use of unlawful violence<sup>5</sup> by that person or another, or whereby that person<sup>6</sup> is likely<sup>7</sup> to believe that such violence<sup>8</sup> will be used or it is likely that such violence will be provoked, he is guilty of an offence<sup>9</sup>. The offence is punishable on summary conviction with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or both<sup>10</sup>. A person is, however, guilty of such an offence only if he intends his words or behaviour, or the writing, sign or other visible representation, to be threatening, abusive or insulting, or is aware that it may be threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>11</sup>.

1 The words 'threatening, abusive or insulting' were contained in the Public Order Act 1936 s 5 (repealed). The decisions on the meaning of that phrase will continue to apply where the phrase appears in the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (as amended) (see the text and notes 2-10 infra): DPP v Clarke (1991) 94 Cr App Rep 359, CA. 'Insulting' is to be given its ordinary meaning and the question whether words or behaviour are insulting is one of fact; this approach applies also to the other words in the phrase: Brutus v Cozens [1973] AC 854, 56 Cr App Rep 799, HL.

The fact that words such as 'threatening, abusive or insulting' involve a question of fact for the magistrates does not leave them with a completely free hand, since their decision on a question of fact can be overturned on appeal if no reasonable bench acquainted with the ordinary use of language could have reached that conclusion: Bryan v Robinson [1960] 2 All ER 173, [1960] 1 WLR 506, DC; Brutus v Cozens supra at 861 and 804 per Lord Reid; Hudson v Chief Constable, Avon and Somerset Constabulary [1976] Crim LR 451, DC. In deciding whether or not a conclusion about the use of language was one that a reasonable bench could reach, the High Court is able to offer guidance as to the limits of a term. The distinction between doing this and positively defining a term (ie making its meaning a question of law) is shown in Brutus v Cozens supra at 866-867 and 872 per Lord Kilbrandon: 'It would be unwise, in my opinion, to attempt to lay down any positive rules for the recognition of insulting behaviour as such, since the circumstances in which the application of the rules would be called for are almost infinitely variable; the most that can be done is to lay down limits . . . in order to ensure that the statute is not interpreted more widely than its terms will bear'.

The following limits appear from Divisional Court decisions in respect of the meaning of 'threatening, abusive or insulting'. Speech or behaviour is not threatening, abusive or insulting merely because it gives rise to a risk that immediate violence will be feared or provoked (Brutus v Cozens supra), nor simply because it gives rise to annoyance, anger, disgust or distress (Parkin v Norman, Valentine v Lilley [1983] QB 92, [1982] 2 All ER 583, DC), nor simply because it is vigorous, distasteful or unmannerly (Brutus v Cozens supra at 862 and 805 per Lord Reid) or offensive or rude (R v Ambrose (1973) 57 Cr App Rep 538, CA). Behaviour which is objectionable may be regarded by another person as insulting by suggesting that he was somebody who would find such conduct in public acceptable: Masterson v Holden [1986] 3 All ER 39, 83 Cr App Rep 302, DC (two homosexual men kissing and cuddling at bus stop; convictions upheld) (decided under the Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54(13) (repealed)); and see also Parkin v Norman, Valentine v Lilley supra (decided under the Public Order Act 1936 s 5 (repealed)). 'Insulting' must be given a meaning compatible with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969): Hammond v DPP [2004] EWHC 69 (Admin), 168 JP 601, DC. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

If conduct is threatening, abusive or insulting, it does not matter whether or not anyone who witnessed it felt himself to be threatened, abused or insulted: Parkin v Norman, Valentine v Lilley supra at 99 and 587.

2 Public Order Act 1986 s 4(1)(a).

3 For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 578 note 3 post.

4 Public Order Act 1986 s 4(1)(b).

5 'Immediate' does not mean 'instantaneous'; a relatively short period of time may elapse between the conduct which is threatening, abusive or insulting and the intended or likely unlawful violence. 'Immediate' connotes proximity in time and in causation; that it is likely that violence will result within a relatively short period of time and without any other intervening occurrence: R v Horseferry Road Metropolitan Stipendiary Magistrates' Court, ex p Siadatan [1991] 1 QB 260, 92 Cr App Rep 257, DC. See also Valentine v DPP [1997] COD 339, DC. 'Unlawful' refers to violence which is not justified in law on grounds of self-defence, prevention of crime or the like. For the meaning of 'violence' see PARA 555 note 1 ante.

6 It is the state of the victim's mind which is crucial rather than the statistical risk of violence actually occurring within a very short space of time: DPP v Ramos [2000] Crim LR 768, DC.

7 See Parkin v Norman, Valentine v Lilley [1983] QB 92, [1982] 2 All ER 583, DC.

8 I.e. immediate, unlawful violence: R v Horseferry Road Metropolitan Stipendiary Magistrates' Court, ex p Siadatan [1991] 1 QB 260, 92 Cr App Rep 257, DC.

9 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 4(1). A constable may enter and search any premises for the purpose of arresting a person for an offence under s 4 (as amended): see the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 17(1)(c)(iii) (as added); and PARA 884 post.

An offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4(1) can be committed in four ways: (1) the defendant must intend the person against whom the conduct is directed to believe that immediate unlawful violence will be used against him or another by any person; (2) the defendant must intend to provoke the immediate use of unlawful violence by that person or another; (3) the defendant must be shown to have used threatening, abusive or insulting words or behaviour by which the person against whom the conduct is directed is likely to believe that such violence will be used; or (4) the defendant must have used such words or behaviour by which it is likely that such violence will be provoked: Winn v DPP (1992) 156 JP 881, DC.

An offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (as amended) may be committed in a public or a private place, except that no offence is committed where the words or behaviour are used, or the writing, sign or other visible representation is distributed or displayed, by a person inside a dwelling and the other person is also inside that or another dwelling: s 4(2). 'Dwelling' means any structure or part of a structure occupied as a person's home or as other living accommodation, whether the occupation is separate or shared with others, but does not include any part not so occupied; and, for this purpose, 'structure' includes a tent, caravan, vehicle, vessel or other temporary or movable structure: see s 8. A communal landing in a block of flats has been held not to be a 'dwelling' for the purposes of s 8: Rukwira v DPP [1993] Crim LR 882, DC.

The words 'uses towards' require that the words or behaviour in question be used in the physical presence of and in the direction of another person directly; thus an offence is not committed under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (as amended) when the threat is made by a person in a dwelling against another person outside that dwelling who has not heard the threat and learned of it only through a third party not under the control or direction of the maker of the threat: Atkin v DPP (1989) 89 Cr App Rep 199, DC.

For the purposes of the rules against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (as amended) creates one offence: s 7(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to proof of identification and participation under s 4 (as amended) see Allen v Ireland [1984] 1 WLR 903, 79 Cr App Rep 206, DC (decided under the Public Order Act 1936 s 5 (repealed)).

10 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 4(4). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

11 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 6(3). As to the position where a person's awareness is impaired by intoxication see PARA 555 note 7 ante. As to liability for aiding and abetting see PARA 555 note 5 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/559. Causing intentional harassment, alarm or distress.

559. Causing intentional harassment, alarm or distress.

If a person, with intent to cause a person harassment, alarm or distress: (1) uses threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>1</sup> words or behaviour, or uses disorderly behaviour; or (2) displays any writing<sup>2</sup>, sign or other visible representation which is threatening, abusive or insulting, thereby causing that or another person harassment<sup>3</sup>, alarm or distress, he is guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup>. The offence is punishable on summary conviction with imprisonment not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or both<sup>5</sup>.

It is a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>6</sup>: (a) that he was inside a dwelling<sup>7</sup> and had no reason to believe that the words or behaviour used, or the writing, sign or other visible representation displayed, would be heard or seen by a person outside that or any other dwelling; or (b) that his conduct was reasonable<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'threatening, abusive or insulting' see PARA 558 note 1 ante. A similar approach applies to 'disorderly', a term which does not require any element of violence, actual or apprehended, or any threatening, abusive or insulting conduct: Chambers and Edwards v DPP [1995] Crim LR 896, DC (a case under the Public Order Act 1986 s 5 (see PARA 560 post)).

2 For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 578 note 3 post.

3 'Harassment' does not require any element of apprehension about one's personal safety: Chambers and Edwards v DPP [1995] Crim LR 896, DC.

4 Public Order Act 1986 s 4A(1) (added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 154). For the purpose of the rules against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), the Public Order Act 1986 s 4A (as added) creates one offence: s 7(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. Such an offence may be committed in a public or a private place, except that no offence is committed where the words or behaviour are used, or the writing, sign or other visible representation is displayed, by a person inside a dwelling and the person who is harassed, alarmed or distressed is also inside that or another dwelling: s 4A(2) (as so added). For the meaning of 'dwelling' see PARA 558 note 9 ante.

Prosecutions for an offence such as that under s 4A (as added) may infringe the defendant's right to freedom of expression under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 10. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

The criminal law should not be involved unless and until it is established that the conduct which is the subject of the charge amounts to such a threat to public order to require the involvement of the criminal law, and not merely the civil law. The prosecution must demonstrate that the prosecution was being brought in pursuance of a legitimate aim and that the prosecution was the minimum necessary to achieve that aim. The court must carefully consider and set out the reasons why it had reached the conclusion that the prosecution had satisfied those requirements: Dehal v DPP [2005] EWHC 2154 (Admin), 169 JP 581, [2005] NLJR 1630, DC.

5 Public Order Act 1986 s 4A(5) (as added: see note 4 supra). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see PARA SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

6 As to whether the burden of proof is a legal (persuasive) or evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the European Convention on Human Rights art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post.

7 For the meaning of 'dwelling' see PARA 558 note 9 ante.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/560. Harassment, alarm or distress.

560. Harassment, alarm or distress.

If a person:

- 651 (1) uses threatening, abusive or insulting words or behaviour, or disorderly<sup>1</sup> behaviour<sup>2</sup>; or
- 652 (2) displays any writing<sup>3</sup>, sign or other visible representation which is threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>4</sup>, within the hearing or sight<sup>5</sup> of a person likely to be caused harassment, alarm or distress<sup>6</sup> thereby, he is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup>. The offence is punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>8</sup>. A person is, however, guilty of such an offence only if he intends his words or behaviour, or the writing, sign or other visible representation, to be threatening, abusive or insulting, or is aware that it may be threatening, abusive or insulting or, as the case may be, he intends his behaviour to be or is aware that it may be disorderly<sup>9</sup>.

It is a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>10</sup> that:

- 653 (a) he had no reason to believe that there was any person within hearing or sight who was likely to be caused harassment, alarm or distress<sup>11</sup>; or
- 654 (b) he was inside a dwelling<sup>12</sup> and had no reason to believe that the words or behaviour used, or the writing, sign or other visible representation, would be heard or seen by a person outside that or any other dwelling<sup>13</sup>; or
- 655 (c) his conduct was reasonable<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'threatening, abusive or insulting' see PARA 558 note 1 ante. See also Vigon v DPP [1998] Crim LR 289, DC (peeping at customers in market stall changing area via a partially concealed video camera capable of amounting to insulting behaviour). As to the meaning of 'disorderly' see PARA 559 note 1 ante.

2 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 5(1)(a). See note 5 infra.

3 For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 578 note 3 post.

4 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 5(1)(b).

5 Some person must actually have seen the abusive or insulting words or behaviour; it is not enough that somebody might have seen or could possibly have seen or heard it: Holloway v DPP [2004] EWHC 2621 (Admin), 169 JP 14, DC; Taylor v DPP [2006] All ER (D) 271 (Apr). The court can infer that there were people who had heard or seen the offending behaviour where the evidence makes clear that it is proper and safe to do so: Holloway v DPP supra. For an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 5(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text) to be proved, there has to be evidence that someone was able to see or hear the words or conduct complained of, but the prosecution does not have to call evidence that the words or conduct were actually heard or seen: Taylor v DPP supra.

6 A police officer can be a person who is likely to be caused harassment, alarm or distress. However, that is not to say that every police officer is to be assumed to be a person who is caused harassment, alarm or distress: DPP v Orum [1988] 3 All ER 449, 88 Cr App Rep 261, DC (only persons present were defendant, girlfriend with whom defendant was having an argument and the two police constables). It is not necessary that the person alarmed was concerned at physical danger to himself; it might be alarm about the safety of an unconnected third party: Lodge v DPP (1988) Times, 26 October, DC.

7 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 5(1). For the purpose of the rules against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), s 5 (as amended) creates one offence: s 7(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. An offence committed under s 5 (as amended) is a penalty offence for the purposes of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 Pt 1 Ch 1 (ss 1-11) (as amended): see s 1 (as amended); and PARAS 586-589 post. Conduct under the Public Order Act 1986 s 5 (as amended) does not have to be directed against another person: R v Ball (1989) 90 Cr App Rep 378, [1989] Crim LR 579, CA.

Such an offence may be committed in a public or a private place, except that no offence is committed where the words or behaviour are used, or the writing, sign or visible representation is displayed, by a person inside a dwelling and the other person is also inside that or another dwelling: Public Order Act 1986 s 5(2). For the meaning of 'dwelling' see PARA 558 note 9 ante. The deposit of a letter containing threatening, abusive or insulting words through a letter-box is not an offence under s 5(1)(a) or (b) (see the text and notes 1-4 supra) because it takes place within a dwelling; but it would be an offence under the Malicious Communications Act 1988 s 1(1) (see PARA 767 post): Chappell v DPP (1988) 89 Cr App Rep 82, DC.

8 See the Public Order Act 1986 s 5(6). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

9 Ibid s 6(4). A subjective test must be applied to determine a defendant's awareness: DPP v Clarke (1991) 94 Cr App Rep 359, DC. As to the position where a person's awareness is impaired by intoxication see PARA 555 note 7 ante. As to liability for aiding and abetting see PARA 555 note 5 ante.

10 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

11 Public Order Act 1986 s 5(3)(a).

12 For the meaning of 'dwelling' see PARA 558 note 9 ante.

13 Public Order Act 1986 s 5(3)(b).

14 Ibid s 5(3)(c). 'Reasonable conduct' means objectively reasonable conduct: DPP v Clarke (1991) 94 Cr App Rep 359, DC. In considering whether conduct was reasonable, the court must have regard to all the circumstances, and to the European Convention on Human Rights art 10(2), which sets out the grounds on which the freedom of expression may be interfered with: Norwood v DPP [2003] EWHC 1564 (Admin), [2003] Crim LR 888; Percy v DPP [2001] EWHC Admin 1125, (2001) 166 JP 93; Hammond v DPP [2004] EWHC 69 (Admin), 168 JP 601. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(1) RIOT, VIOLENT DISORDER, AFFRAY ETC/561. Racially or religiously aggravated public order offences.

561. Racially or religiously aggravated public order offences.

A person is guilty of an offence if he commits:

- 656 (1) an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 relating to creating fear of, or provoking, violence<sup>1</sup>;
- 657 (2) an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 relating to harassment, alarm or distress<sup>2</sup>; or
- 658 (3) an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 relating to intentional harassment, alarm or distress<sup>3</sup>, which is racially or religiously aggravated<sup>4</sup>.

This provision creates three separate offences. The racially or religiously aggravated offences under the Public Order Act 1986 listed in heads (1) and (3) above are punishable on conviction on indictment with a maximum of two years' imprisonment or a fine or both, or on summary conviction with a maximum of six months' imprisonment<sup>5</sup> or with a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both<sup>6</sup>. The aggravated offence under the Public Order Act 1986 listed in head (2) above is punishable on summary conviction with a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale<sup>7</sup>.

1    le an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 4 (as amended): see PARA 558 ante.

For the purposes of the aggravated version of the offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 5 (as amended) (see head (2) in the text), the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 s 28(1)(a) (as amended) (see PARA 154 ante) has effect as if the person likely to be caused harassment, alarm or distress were the victim of the offence: s 31(7).

If, on the trial on indictment of a person charged with an offence under head (1) or head (3) in the text, the jury finds him not guilty of the offence charged, it may find him guilty of the corresponding basic offence: s 31(6). See R v Khela, R v Smith [2005] EWCA Crim 3446, [2005] All ER (D) 191 (Nov).

5    As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6    See the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 s 31(4). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

561 Racially or religiously aggravated public order offences

NOTE 4--See R v Francis (2007) Times, 17 January, CA (police cell not a home or other living accommodation for the purposes of a defence).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(2) INCITEMENT TO RACIAL HATRED/562. Use of words or behaviour or display of written material.

(2) INCITEMENT TO RACIAL HATRED

562. Use of words or behaviour or display of written material.

A person<sup>1</sup> who uses threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>2</sup> words or behaviour<sup>3</sup>, or displays any written material<sup>4</sup> which is threatening, abusive or insulting, is guilty of an offence if:

- 659 (1) he intends thereby to stir up racial hatred<sup>5</sup>; or
- 660 (2) having regard to all the circumstances racial hatred is likely to be stirred up thereby<sup>6</sup>.

A person convicted of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

Such an offence may be committed in a public or a private place, except that no offence is committed where the words or behaviour are used, or the written material is displayed, by a person inside a dwelling<sup>9</sup> and are not heard or seen except by other persons in that or another dwelling<sup>10</sup>. In proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for the defendant to prove that he was inside a dwelling and had no reason to believe that the words or behaviour used, or the written material displayed, would be heard or seen by a person outside that or any other dwelling<sup>11</sup>.

A person who is not shown to have intended to stir up racial hatred is not guilty of such an offence if he did not intend his words or behaviour, or the written material, to be, and was not aware that it might be, threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>12</sup>.

1 Where a body corporate is guilty of an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 Pt III (ss 17-29) (as amended) (see PARAS 563-568 post) and it is shown that the offence was committed with the consent or connivance of a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body, or a person purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 28(1). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, s 28(1) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as it applies to a director: s 28(2). See also PARA 38 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'threatening, abusive and insulting' see PARA 558 note 1 ante.

3 The Public Order Act 1986 s 18 (as amended) does not apply to words or behaviour used, or written material displayed, solely for the purpose of being included in a programme service: s 18(6) (amended by the Broadcasting Act 1990 s 164(1), (2)(a)). For the meaning of 'programme service' see PARA 566 note 2 post.

4 For the purposes of the Public Order Act 1986 Pt III (as amended), 'written material' includes any sign or other visible representation: see s 29. As to the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 578 note 3 post.

5 Ibid s 18(1)(a). For the purposes of Pt III (as amended), 'racial hatred' means hatred against a group of persons defined by reference to colour, race, nationality (including citizenship) or ethnic or national origins: ss 17, 29 (s 17 amended by the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 37, Sch 8 Pt 4).

6 Public Order Act 1986 s 18(1)(b). No proceedings for such an offence may be instituted in England and Wales except by or with the consent of the Attorney General: s 27(1). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

For the purposes of the rules in England and Wales against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), s 18 creates one offence: s 27(2). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As from a day to be appointed, the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 provides that the powers of arrest possessed by persons other than constables under s 24A (as added) (see PARA 925 post) do not apply to an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 Pt III (as amended): Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 24A(5) (prospectively added by the Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006 s 2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

Nothing in the Public Order Act 1986 Pt III (as amended) applies to a fair and accurate report of proceedings in Parliament or, as from a day to be appointed, in the National Assembly for Wales: s 26(1) (prospectively amended by the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 160(1), Sch 10 para 19). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. Similarly, nothing in the Public Order Act 1986 Pt III (as amended) applies to a fair and accurate report of proceedings publicly heard before a court or tribunal exercising judicial authority where the report is published contemporaneously with the proceedings or, if it is not reasonably practicable or would be unlawful to publish a report of them contemporaneously, as soon as publication is reasonably practicable and lawful: s 26(2).

As to the court's power to order forfeiture see PARA 568 post.

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 Public Order Act 1986 s 27(3) (amended by the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 40). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

9 For the purposes of the Public Order Act 1986 Pt III (as amended), 'dwelling' means any structure or part of a structure occupied as a person's home or other living accommodation, whether the occupation is separate or shared with others, but does not include any part not so occupied; and, for this purpose, 'structure' includes a tent, caravan, vehicle, vessel or other temporary or movable structure: see s 29.

A person convicted of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

In proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for a defendant who is not shown to have intended to stir up racial hatred to prove<sup>9</sup> that he was not aware of the content of the material and did not suspect, and had no reason to suspect, that it was threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to offences by corporations see PARA 562 note 1 ante.

Amendments made by Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006 now largely in force: SI 2007/2490.

563 Publishing or distributing written material

NOTE 2--Where publication is to a website hosted by a foreign server, the jurisdiction of the court is not precluded provided that a substantial measure of the activities constituting the offence took place within the jurisdiction: R v Sheppard [2010] EWCA Crim 65, [2010] 1 Cr App Rep 394, [2010] All ER (D) 204 (Jan).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(2) INCITEMENT TO RACIAL HATRED/564. Public performance of play.

564. Public performance of play.

If a public performance<sup>1</sup> of a play<sup>2</sup> is given which involves the use of threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>3</sup> words or behaviour, any person<sup>4</sup> who presents<sup>5</sup> or directs<sup>6</sup> the performance is guilty of an offence<sup>7</sup> if:

- 663 (1) he intends thereby to stir up racial hatred<sup>8</sup>; or
- 664 (2) having regard to all the circumstances, and, in particular, taking the performance as a whole, racial hatred is likely to be stirred up thereby<sup>9</sup>.

A person convicted of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>10</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>11</sup>.

If a person presenting or directing the performance is not shown to have intended to stir up racial hatred, it is a defence for him to prove<sup>12</sup>:

- 665 (a) that he did not know and had no reason to suspect that the performance would involve the use of the offending words or behaviour<sup>13</sup>; or
- 666 (b) that he did not know and had no reason to suspect that the offending words or behaviour were threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>14</sup>; or
- 667 (c) that he did not know and had no reason to suspect that the circumstances in which the performance would be given would be such that racial hatred would be likely to be stirred up<sup>15</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'public performance' includes any performance in a public place within the meaning of the Public Order Act 1936 (see PARA 380 note 2 ante) and any performance which the public or any section of the public (see PARA 563 note 2 ante) is permitted to attend, whether on payment or otherwise: Theatres Act 1968 s 18(1); applied by the Public Order Act 1986 s 20(5).

Section s 20 (as amended) does not, however, apply to a performance given solely or primarily for one of the following purposes: (1) rehearsal; (2) making a recording of the performance; or (3) enabling the performance to be included in a programme service; but if it is proved that the performance was attended by persons other than those directly concerned with the giving of the performance or the doing in relation to it of the things mentioned in head (2) or head (3) supra, the performance is, unless the contrary is shown, to be taken not to have been given solely for the purposes mentioned above: s 20(3) (amended by the Broadcasting Act 1990 s 164(2)(b)). For the meaning of 'programme service' see PARA 566 note 2 post.

2 For these purposes, 'play' means: (1) any dramatic piece, whether involving improvisation or not, which is given wholly or in part by one or more persons actually present and performing and in which the whole or a major proportion of what is done by the person or persons performing, whether by way of speech, singing or acting, involves the playing of a role; and (2) any ballet given wholly or in part by one or more persons actually present and performing, whether or not it falls within head (1) supra: Theatres Act 1968 s 18(1); applied by the Public Order Act 1986 s 20(5).

3 For the meaning of 'threatening, abusive or insulting' see PARA 558 note 1 ante.

4 As to offences by corporations see PARA 562 note 1 ante.

- 677 (B) that the circumstances in which a programme involving the use of the offending material would be so included, or in which a programme so included would involve the use of the offending material, would be such that racial hatred would be likely to be stirred up<sup>18</sup>.

A person who is not shown to have intended to stir up racial hatred is not guilty of such an offence if he did not know, and had no reason to suspect, that the offending material was threatening, abusive or insulting<sup>19</sup>.

(3) INCITEMENT TO RELIGIOUS HATRED

569. Use of words or behaviour or display of written material.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, a person<sup>2</sup> who uses threatening words or behaviour<sup>3</sup>, or displays any written material<sup>4</sup> which is threatening, is guilty of an offence if he intends thereby to stir up religious hatred<sup>5</sup>. A person convicted of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>6</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>7</sup>.

Such an offence may be committed in a public or a private place, except that no offence is committed where the words or behaviour are used, or the written material is displayed, by a person inside a dwelling<sup>8</sup> and are not heard or seen except by other persons in that or another dwelling<sup>9</sup>. In proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>10</sup> that he was inside a dwelling and had no reason to believe that the words or behaviour used, or the written material displayed, would be heard or seen by a person outside that or any other dwelling<sup>11</sup>.

1 The Public Order Act 1986 Pt IIIA (ss 29A-29N) is added by the Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006 s 1, Schedule as from such day as the Secretary of State may appoint by statutory instrument: see s 3(2), (3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 Where a body corporate is guilty of an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 Pt IIIA (as added) and it is shown that the offence was committed with the consent or connivance of a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body, or a person purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 29M(1) (as added: see note 1 supra). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, the Public Order Act 1986 s 29M(1) (as added) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as it applies to a director: s 29M(2) (as so added). See also PARA 38 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'threatening' see PARA 558 note 1 ante. The Public Order Act 1986 s 29M (as added) (see note 1 supra) does not apply to words or behaviour used, or written material displayed, solely for the purpose of being included in a programme service: s 29B(5) (as added: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'programme service' see PARA 573 note 2 post.

4 'Written material' includes any sign or other visible representation: ibid s 29N (as added: see note 1 supra). As to the meaning of 'written' see PARA 578 note 3 post.

5 See ibid s 29B(1) (as added: see note 1 supra). For the purposes of Pt IIIA (as added), 'religious hatred' means hatred against a group of persons defined by reference to religious belief or lack of religious belief: s 29A (as so added).

No proceedings for such an offence may be instituted in England and Wales except by or with the consent of the Attorney General: s 29L(1) (as so added). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

For the purposes of the rules in England and Wales against charging more than one offence in the same count or information (see PARA 1211 post), s 29B (as added) creates one offence: s 29L(2) (as so added). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

A constable may arrest without warrant anyone he reasonably suspects is committing such an offence: s 29B(3) (as so added). Note, however, the wider, general powers of arrest of a constable: see PARA 910 et seq post. As from a day to be appointed, the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 provides that the powers of arrest possessed by persons other than constables under s 24A (as added) (see PARA 925 post) do not apply to an offence under the Public Order Act 1986 Pt IIIA (as added): Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 24A(5) (prospectively added by the Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006 s 2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

Nothing in the Public Order Act 1986 Pt IIIA (as added) applies to a fair and accurate report of proceedings in Parliament (s 29K(1) (as so added)); nor does anything in Pt IIIA (as added) apply to a fair and accurate report of proceedings publicly heard before a court or tribunal exercising judicial authority where the report is published contemporaneously with the proceedings or, if it is not reasonably practicable or would be unlawful to publish a report of them contemporaneously, as soon as publication is reasonably practicable and lawful (s 29K(2) (as so added)).

As to the protection of freedom of expression see PARA 576 post. As to the court's power to order forfeiture see PARA 575 post.

7 Public Order Act 1986 s 29L(3) (as added: see note 1 supra). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

8 For these purposes, 'dwelling' means any structure or part of a structure occupied as a person's home or other living accommodation, whether the occupation is separate or shared with others, but does not include any part not so occupied; and, for this purpose, 'structure' includes a tent, caravan, vehicle, vessel or other temporary or movable structure: see ibid s 29N (as added: see note 1 supra).

9 Ibid s 29B(2) (as added: see note 1 supra).

10 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(4) ALCOHOL CONSUMPTION IN PUBLIC PLACES/577. Alcohol consumption in designated public places.

(4) ALCOHOL CONSUMPTION IN PUBLIC PLACES

577. Alcohol consumption in designated public places.

If a constable reasonably believes that a person is, or has been, consuming alcohol<sup>1</sup> in a designated public place<sup>2</sup> or intends to consume alcohol in such a place, the constable may require<sup>3</sup> the person concerned: (1) not to consume in that place anything which is, or which the constable reasonably believes to be, alcohol; (2) to surrender anything in his possession which is, or which the constable reasonably believes to be, alcohol or a container for alcohol<sup>4</sup>.

A person who fails without reasonable excuse to comply with such a requirement commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale<sup>5</sup>.

Subject to heads (a) to (d) below<sup>6</sup>, a place is a designated public place if it is a public place in the area of a local authority<sup>7</sup> and it is identified in an order made by that authority<sup>8</sup>. A local authority may for these purposes by order identify any public place in its area if it is satisfied that nuisance or annoyance to members of the public or a section of the public, or disorder, has been associated with the consumption of alcohol in that place<sup>9</sup>.

A place is not a designated public place or a part of such a place if it is: (a) premises in respect of which a premises licence or club premises certificate, within the meaning of the Licensing Act 2003, has effect; (b) a place within the curtilage of premises within head (a) above; (c) premises which by virtue of provisions of the Licensing Act 2003 relating to permitted temporary activities<sup>10</sup> may for the time being be used for the supply of alcohol<sup>11</sup> or which, by virtue of that Part, could have been so used within the last 20 minutes; and (d) a place where facilities or activities relating to the sale or consumption of alcohol are for the time being permitted by virtue of a permission granted<sup>12</sup> for the execution of works and use of objects in or over a highway<sup>13</sup>.

In so far as any byelaw which:

- 686 (i) prohibits, by the creation of an offence, the consumption in a particular public place of alcohol (including any liquor of a similar nature which falls within the byelaw); or
- 687 (ii) makes any incidental, supplementary or consequential provision (whether relating to the seizure or control of containers or otherwise), would otherwise<sup>14</sup> have effect in relation to any designated public place, the byelaw ceases to have effect in relation to that place or, where it is made after the order in which it is identified as a public place under the provisions above, does not have effect in relation to that place<sup>15</sup>.

1 'Alcohol' has the same meaning as in the Licensing Act 2003 (see s 191 (as amended); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 30); Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 16(1) (definition added by the Licensing Act 2003 s 198(1), Sch 6 paras 119, 125(a)).

2 'Public place' means any place to which the public or any section of the public has access, on payment or otherwise, as of right or by virtue of express or implied permission: Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 16(1).

Cf the Public Order Act 1936 s 9(1) (as amended) (see PARA 380 note 2 ante); the Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4) (see PARA 680 note 5 post); and the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139 (see PARA 700 note 1 post).

3 A constable who imposes a requirement on a person must inform the person concerned that failing without reasonable excuse to comply with the requirement is an offence: Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 12(5).

4 Ibid s 12(1), (2) (s 12(2) amended by the Licensing Act 2003 ss 198(1), 155(2), Sch 6 paras 119, 121, Sch 7). An offence committed under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 12 (as amended) is a penalty offence for the purposes of Pt 1 Ch 1 (ss 1-11) (as amended): see s 1; and PARAS 586-589 post. A constable may dispose of anything surrendered to him under head (2) in the text in such manner as he considers appropriate: s 12(3).

A constable's powers under s 12(2) (as amended) (power to require actions specified in heads (1) and (2) in the text) and s 12(3) may also be exercised by a community support officer designated for this purpose (see the Police Reform Act 2002 s 38(6), Sch 4 para 5), or by an accredited person (under a community safety accreditation scheme) (see s 41(3), Sch 5 para 4). As to community safety accreditation schemes generally see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 532.

At the date at which this volume states the law, the Violent Crime Reduction Bill was before Parliament: see PARA 707 post. Part 1 of the Bill contains provisions dealing with alcohol-related violence and disorder, including a power to direct a person to leave the locality, and the introduction of drink banning orders and alcohol disorder zones.

7 'Local authority' means: (1) in relation to England, a unitary authority or a district council so far as it is not a unitary authority; (2) in relation to Wales, a county council or a county borough council: ibid s 16(2). 'Unitary authority' means: (a) the council of a county so far as it is the council for an area for which there are no district councils; (b) the council of any district comprised in an area for which there is no county council; (c) a London borough council; (d) the Common Council of the City of London in its capacity as a local authority; (e) the Council of the Isles of Scilly: s 16(3).

9 Ibid s 13(2) (amended by the Licensing Act 2003 Sch 6 paras 119, 122). The power conferred by the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 13(2) (as amended) includes power to identify a place either specifically or by description, and power to revoke or amend orders previously made: s 13(3).

The Secretary of State must make regulations prescribing the procedure to be followed in connection with the making of orders under s 13(2) (as amended): s 13(4). Regulations under s 13(4) must, in particular, include provision requiring local authorities to publicise the making and effect of orders under s 13(2): s 13(5). Regulations under s 13(4) (as amended) must be made by statutory instrument and are subject to annulment in pursuance to a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 13(6). The regulations prescribe that, before making an order, a local authority must consult: (1) the chief officer of police for the police area in which the public place proposed to be identified in the order is situated; (2) the parish or community council in whose area the public place is situated; (3) the chief officer of police, the local authority and the parish or community council for any area near to the public place which it considers may be affected by the designation; and (4) the premises licence holder, the club premises certificate holder or the premises user, as appropriate, in relation to premises in that place which it considers may be affected by the designation and which are premises in respect of which: (a) a premises licence granted under the Licensing Act 2003 Pt 3 (ss 11-59) (as amended) has effect; (b) a club premises certificate granted under Pt 4 (ss 60-97) (as amended) has effect; or (c) a temporary event notice has been given so that the premises may be used for a permitted temporary activity by virtue of Pt 5 (ss 98-110) (as amended): see the Local Authorities (Alcohol Consumption in Designated Public Places) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2831, reg 3(1) (amended by SI 2005/3048). Before making an order, the local authority must also take reasonable steps to consult the owners or occupiers of any land proposed to be identified: Local Authorities (Alcohol Consumption in Designated Public Places) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/2831, reg 3(2). The local authority must consider any representations as to whether or not a particular public place should be identified in an order whether made as a result of consultation under reg 3 (as amended), in response to a notice under reg 5 or otherwise: reg 4.

Before making an order, the local authority must cause to be published in a newspaper circulating in its area a notice: (i) identifying specifically or by description the place proposed to be identified; (ii) setting out the effect of an order being made in relation to that place; and (iii) inviting representations as to whether or not an order should be made: reg 5. No order may be made until at least 28 days after the publication of the notice: reg 6.

After making an order and before it takes effect, the local authority must cause to be published in a newspaper circulating in its area a notice: (A) identifying the place which has been identified in the order; (B) setting out the effect of the order in relation to that place; and (C) indicating the date on which the order will take effect: reg 7.

Before an order takes effect, the local authority must cause to be erected in the place identified such signs as it considers sufficient to draw the attention of members of the public in that place to the effect of the order: reg 8. A copy of any order made must be sent to the Secretary of State: reg 9.

577A. Directions to individuals who represent a risk of disorder.

If the test mentioned below<sup>1</sup> is satisfied in the case of an individual aged 16 or over who is in a public place<sup>2</sup>, a constable in uniform may give a direction to that individual (1) requiring him to leave the locality of that place; and (2) prohibiting the individual from returning to that locality for such period (not exceeding 48 hours) from the giving of the direction as the constable may specify<sup>3</sup>. That test is (a) that the presence of the individual in that locality is likely, in all the circumstances, to cause or to contribute to the occurrence of alcohol-related crime or disorder in that locality, or to cause or to contribute to a repetition or continuance there of such crime or disorder; and (b) that the giving of a direction under these provisions to that individual is necessary for the purpose of removing or reducing the likelihood of there being such crime or disorder in that locality during the period for which the direction has effect or of there being a repetition or continuance in that locality during that period of such crime or disorder<sup>4</sup>. A direction under these provisions (i) must be given in writing; (ii) may require the individual to whom it is given to leave the locality in question either immediately or by such time as the constable giving the direction may specify; (iii) must clearly identify the locality to which it relates; (iv) must specify the period for which the individual is prohibited from returning to that locality; (v) may impose requirements as to the manner in which that individual leaves the locality, including his route; and (vi) may be withdrawn or varied (but not extended so as to apply for a period of more than 48 hours) by a constable<sup>5</sup>. A constable may not give a direction under these provisions that prevents the individual to whom it is given (A) from having access to a place where he resides; (B) from attending at any place which he is required to attend for the purposes of any employment of his or of any contract of services to which he is a party; (C) from attending at any place which he is expected to attend during the period to which the direction applies for the purposes of education or training or for the purpose of receiving medical treatment; or (D) from attending at any place which he is required to attend by any obligation imposed on him by or under an enactment or by the order of a court or tribunal<sup>6</sup>. A constable who gives a direction under these provisions must make a record of (aa) the terms of the direction and the locality to which it relates; (bb) the individual to whom it is given; (cc) the time at which it is given; (dd) the period during which that individual is required not to return to the locality<sup>7</sup>. A person who fails to comply with a direction under the above provisions is guilty of an offence and is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale<sup>8</sup>.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(4) ALCOHOL CONSUMPTION IN PUBLIC PLACES/577B. Alcohol disorder zones.

577B. Alcohol disorder zones.

1. Power to impose charges on licence holders etc in zones

The Secretary of State may, by regulations, make provision for the imposition by a local authority<sup>1</sup> of charges to be paid to the authority for each month by (1) persons who for the whole or a part of that month held premises licences authorising the use of premises in alcohol disorder zones<sup>2</sup> in the authority's area for the sale of alcohol by retail; and (2) clubs which for the whole or a part of that month were authorised by virtue of club premises certificates to use premises in such zones for the supply of alcohol to members or guests<sup>3</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision requiring a local authority that impose charges by reference to an alcohol disorder zone to use sums received by them in respect of those charges for the purposes specified in or determined under the regulations<sup>4</sup>. The rates of charges fixed under these provisions must be such as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for securing that the funds that he considers appropriate are available (after the costs of the scheme have been met from the charges) to be used for any purposes specified or determined under the above provision<sup>5</sup>. Regulations under these provisions fixing the rates of charges may fix different rates for different descriptions of local authority, different descriptions of alcohol disorder zones and different descriptions of premises and may do so either (a) by setting out the different rates in the regulations; or (b) by specifying the methods of computing the different rates in the regulations<sup>6</sup>. Regulations fixing such rates (i) may authorise or require a local authority to grant discounts from the charges; and (ii) must provide for exemptions from the charges for the purpose mentioned below<sup>7</sup>. The only exemptions from charges for which regulations under these provisions may provide are exemptions for the purpose of securing that charges are not imposed in relation to premises where (A) the principal use to which the premises are put does not consist in or include the sale or supply of alcohol; and (B) the availability of alcohol on those premises is not the main reason, or one of the main reasons, why individuals enter or remain on those premises (whether generally or at particular times of the day or on particular days of the week, or both)<sup>8</sup>. Regulations providing for a discount or exemption from charges may make a discount or exemption subject to compliance with conditions which are set out in the regulations; or are specified by the local authority in accordance with provision made under the regulations; and those conditions may include conditions requiring approvals to be given in respect of premises by such persons, and in accordance with such scheme, as may be provided for in the regulations<sup>9</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision about (aa) the payment, collection and enforcement of charges imposed in accordance with regulations under these provisions; (bb) the determination of questions about liability for such charges, about the rate of charge applicable in relation to a particular set of premises or about compliance with the conditions of any exemption or discount; and (cc) appeals against decisions determining such questions<sup>10</sup>. Such regulations may include provision for interest to be charged at such rate and in such manner as may be specified in or determined under the regulations on charges that are overdue; and for the suspension of premises licences and club premises certificates for non payment of a charge<sup>11</sup>.

1 In the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 Pt 1 Ch 2 (ss 15-20) 'local authority' means (1) a district council; (2) a county council for an area for which there are no district councils; (3) a London borough council; (4) the Common Council of the City of London in its capacity as a local authority; (5) the Council of the Isles of Scilly; (6) a county council or a county borough council in Wales: s 20(1).

2 In ibid Pt 1 Ch 2 'alcohol disorder zone' means a locality designated as such a zone under s 16 (see PARA 577B.2): s 20(1). 'Locality' includes a part of a locality: s 20(1).

3 Ibid s 15(1). The powers of the Secretary of State to make regulations under Pt 1 Ch 2 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 20(4). Those powers all include power (1) to make different provision for different cases; (2) to make provision subject to such exemptions and exceptions as the Secretary of State thinks fit; and (3) to make such incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision as he thinks fit: s 20(5). Head (2) is subject to the restriction on exemptions contained in s 15(6): s 20(7). The Secretary of State must not make regulations containing (with or without other provision) any provision that he is authorised to make by Pt 1 Ch 2 unless a draft of the regulations has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: s 20(6). See the Local Authorities (Alcohol Disorder Zones) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/1430.

4 2006 Act s 15(2).

5 Ie under ibid s 15(2): s 15(3). In s 15(3) the reference, in relation to any charges, to the costs of the scheme is a reference to the costs of the arrangements made for or in connection with the imposition, collection and recovery of those charges: s 15(10).

6 Ibid s 15(4).

7 Ie for the purpose mentioned in ibid s 15(6): s 15(5).

8 Ibid s 15(6).

9 Ibid s 15(7).

10 Ibid s 15(8).

11 Ibid s 15(9).

Expressions used in Pt 1 Ch 2 and in the Licensing Act 2003 or in a Part of the 2003 Act have the same meanings in the 2006 Act Pt 1 Ch 2 as in the 2003 Act or Part: 2006 Act s 20(2).

2. Designation of alcohol disorder zones

A local authority<sup>1</sup> may by order designate a locality<sup>2</sup> in their area as an alcohol disorder zone<sup>3</sup> if they are satisfied (1) that there has been nuisance or annoyance to members of the public, or a section of the public, or disorder, in or near that locality; (2) that the nuisance, annoyance or disorder is associated with the consumption of alcohol in that locality or with the consumption of alcohol supplied at premises in that locality<sup>4</sup>; (3) that there is likely to be a repetition of nuisance, annoyance or disorder that is so associated; and (4) that specified provision<sup>5</sup> allows the making of the order<sup>6</sup>. Before designating a locality as an alcohol disorder zone, a local authority must publish a notice (a) setting out their proposal to designate the locality; and (b) inviting persons interested to make representations about the proposal, and about what might be included in the action plan<sup>7</sup>. That notice must require the representations to be made before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the day after publication of the notice<sup>8</sup>. As soon as reasonably practicable after the end of the period for making representations about a proposal by a local authority to designate a locality, the local authority and the local chief officer of police<sup>9</sup> must (i) prepare a document ('the action plan') setting out the steps the taking of which would, in their opinion, make the designation of the locality unnecessary; (ii) publish the action plan in such manner as they consider appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be interested in it; and (iii) send a copy of the plan to every person who holds (A) a premises licence authorising the use of premises in the locality for the sale of alcohol by retail; or (B) a club premises certificate by virtue of which authorisation is given to the use of premises in the locality for the supply of alcohol to members or guests<sup>10</sup>. The steps set out in the action plan may include the establishment and maintenance of a scheme for the making of payments to the local authority<sup>11</sup>. The action plan must also contain proposals by (aa) the local authority in whose area the locality to which the proposed designation relates is situated, and (bb) the local chief officer of police, about what action they will take in relation to that locality if the plan is implemented<sup>12</sup>. The power of the Secretary of State to make regulations<sup>13</sup> is exercisable in relation to sums received by a local authority in accordance with a scheme established under an action plan as it is exercisable in relation to sums received by a local authority in respect of charges imposed by virtue of regulations<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'local authority' see PARA 577B.1.

2 For the meaning of 'locality' see PARA 577B.1.

3 For the meaning of 'alcohol disorder zone' see PARA 577B.1.

4 References in the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 Pt 1 Ch 2 (ss 15-20) to premises' being in a locality (however described) include references to their being partly in that locality: s 20(3).

5 Ie ibid s 16(8).

A local authority may only make an order designating a locality as an alcohol disorder zone if (1) the period of eight weeks beginning with the day after the publication of the action plan has expired without such steps for implementing the action plan having been taken as, in that authority's opinion, make the designation of the locality unnecessary; or (2) the local authority is satisfied (whether before or after the end of that period) that the plan will not be implemented, that the steps required by the plan are no longer being taken or that effect is no longer being given to arrangements made in accordance with the plan: s 15(8).

7 Ie under ibid s 16(4): s 16(2).

8 Ibid s 16(3).

9 In ibid Pt 1 Ch 2 'local chief officer of police', in relation to the designation of a locality as an alcohol disorder zone, means the chief of police of the police force for the police area in which that locality is situated: s 20(1).

10 Ibid s 16(4).

11 Ibid s 16(5).

12 Ibid s 16(6).

13 Under ibid s 15(2) (see PARA 577B.1).

14 Under ibid s 15: s 16(7). See the Local Authorities (Alcohol Disorder Zones) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/1430.

3. Procedure for designation of zones

An order designating an alcohol disorder zone<sup>1</sup> must identify the locality<sup>2</sup> being designated either by name or, if appropriate, by describing its boundaries<sup>3</sup>. A local authority<sup>4</sup> who have designated a locality as an alcohol disorder zone may by order revoke the designation<sup>5</sup>. If a local authority consider that the locality designated by an alcohol disorder zone should be varied, they may (1) make a proposal<sup>6</sup> for a replacement order designating a locality that includes the whole or part of the locality already designated; and (2) in any designation order made to give effect to that proposal, revoke the previous designation with effect from the coming into force of the replacement order<sup>7</sup>. The local authority who have designated a locality as an alcohol disorder zone and the local chief officer of police<sup>8</sup> must (a) as soon as reasonably practicable after the end of three months from the coming into force of the designation, and (b) as soon as reasonably practicable after the end of each subsequent period of three months, together carry out a review of the need for the designation<sup>9</sup>. On each such review the local authority and local chief officer of police must consider whether it would be appropriate for any of the above powers<sup>10</sup> to be exercised<sup>11</sup>. The Secretary of State may make regulations which<sup>12</sup> prescribe additional procedures to be followed in relation to the making or revocation of orders for the designation of a locality as an alcohol disorder zone<sup>13</sup>. Those regulations must include, in particular, provision requiring local authorities to publicise the making and effect of orders designating localities as alcohol disorder zones<sup>14</sup>.

4. Functions of local chief officer of police

It is the duty of a local authority<sup>1</sup> to consider whether to make a proposal for the designation of a locality<sup>2</sup> as an alcohol disorder zone<sup>3</sup> if the local chief officer of police<sup>4</sup> applies to them to do so<sup>5</sup>. If on such an application the local authority decide not to make a proposal, they must (1) give notice of their decision (setting out their reasons) to the local chief officer of police; and (2) send a copy of that notice to the Secretary of State and to the police authority for the police area in which the locality to which the proposal relates is situated<sup>6</sup>. A local authority which (a) are proposing to designate a locality as an alcohol disorder zone, and (b) are not doing so on an application from the local chief officer of police, must consult that chief officer before publishing notice of their proposal<sup>7</sup>. The consent of the local chief officer of police is required for the making of (i) an order designating a locality as an alcohol disorder zone; or (ii) the making of an order<sup>8</sup>.

8     le an order under ibid s 17(2) (see PARA 577B.3): s 18(4). Where the local chief officer of police does not give a consent required by head (i) in the text, he must give notice of his decision (setting out his reasons) to the Secretary of State and to the police authority for his police area: s 18(5).

5. Guidance about the designation of zones

The Secretary of State (1) must issue such guidance as he considers appropriate about the manner in which local authorities<sup>1</sup>, police authorities and chief officers of police are to exercise and perform their powers and duties by virtue of Chapter 2 of Part 1 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006<sup>2</sup>; and (2) may from time to time revise that guidance<sup>3</sup>. The guidance must include guidance about what alternative steps should be considered before a proposal is made for the designation of a locality<sup>4</sup> as an alcohol disorder zone<sup>5</sup>. Before issuing or revising any guidance under these provisions, the Secretary of State must consult (a) persons he considers represent the interests of local authorities; (b) persons he considers represent the interests of chief officers of police; (c) persons he considers represent the interests of police authorities; (d) persons he considers represent the interests of holders of premises licences; (e) persons he considers represent the interests of holders of club premises certificates; and (f) such other persons as he thinks fit<sup>6</sup>. It is the duty of every local authority, police authority and chief officer of police, in exercising their powers and duties by virtue of Chapter 2 of Part 1 of the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006, to have regard to the guidance for the time being in force under the above provisions<sup>7</sup>.

577C. Drunkenness in public places.

Every person found drunk<sup>1</sup> in any highway or other public place<sup>2</sup>, whether a building or not, or on any licensed premises<sup>3</sup>, is liable to a penalty not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale<sup>4</sup>.

Persons on licensed premises in their capacity as residents, such as the licensee and his lodger, cannot be convicted<sup>5</sup>, unless the premises are open to the public (although not necessarily open for the sale of intoxicating liquor) at the material time<sup>6</sup>. However, if a person enters licensed premises for the purpose of using them as such, and remains upon the premises until after closing time, and is then found drunk upon them, he may be convicted<sup>7</sup>.

It is an offence to be drunk on entry to or in a designated sports ground and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'drunk' see Neale v RMJE (A Minor) [1984] Crim LR 485, 80 Cr App Rep 20, DC, where it was taken to mean having taken intoxicating liquor to an extent which affects steady self-control. See also Lanham v Rickwood (1984) 148 JP 737, 148 JPJo 733, DC. A conviction will not be bad if the word 'found' is omitted from the charge sheet: see R v Governor of Holloway Prison (1916) 85 LJB 689, DC. As to the arrest of such a person see PARA 577E; and as to treatment centres for persons drunk and incapable see PARA 577F.

The Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 ss 12-16 (as amended) make provision for combating alcohol-related disorder in designated public places: see PARA 577. For provision relating to alcohol related disorder in public places see PARA 577A. As to alcohol disorder zones see PARA 577B. As to drinking banning orders see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS.

2 'Public place' includes any place to which the public has access, whether on payment or otherwise: Licensing Act 1902 s 8. It appears to include the public rooms in licensed premises: see Cole v Coulton (1860) 2 E & E 695.

3 As to the meaning of 'licensed premises' see Stevens v Dickson [1952] 2 All ER 246, DC, where a room in the licensed premises which had been hired out for a wedding reception and in which alcoholic liquor had been supplied was held to be part of the licensed premises.

4 See the Licensing Act 1872 s 12 (amended by the Statute Law Revision Act 1953; the Criminal Justice Act 1967 s 103(2), Sch 7 Pt I; and the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 38, 46). An offence committed under the Licensing Act 1872 s 12 is a penalty offence for the purposes of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 Pt 1 Ch 1 (ss 1-11): see s 1.

As from a day to be appointed, the Licensing Act 1872 s 12 is further amended so as to refer to 51 weeks instead of one month: s 12 (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 2).

The provisions of the Licensing Act 1964 s 194(1), (2) apply to offences under the Licensing Act 1872 s 12 (as amended): Licensing Act 1964 s 195. Any person who in any public place<sup>1</sup>, is guilty, while drunk<sup>2</sup>, of disorderly behaviour is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>3</sup>.

Every person who is drunk when in possession of any loaded firearms<sup>4</sup> may be apprehended, and is liable to a penalty not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale or, in the discretion of the court, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding one month<sup>5</sup>.

1 'Public place' includes any highway and any other premises or place to which at the material time the public have or are permitted to have access, whether on payment or otherwise: Criminal Justice Act 1967 s 91(4).

2 As to the meaning of 'drunk' see Neale v RMJE (A Minor) [1984] Crim LR 485, 80 Cr App Rep 20, DC; and PARA 577C NOTE 1. On arresting a person who is drunk and incapable, or is guilty, while drunk, of disorderly behaviour in public places<sup>1</sup>, a constable may, if he thinks fit, take him to any place approved for these purposes by the Secretary of State as a treatment centre for alcoholics, and while a person is being so taken he is not deemed to be in lawful custody<sup>2</sup>. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(5) PROCESSIONS AND ASSEMBLIES/578. Advance notice of public processions.

(5) PROCESSIONS AND ASSEMBLIES

578. Advance notice of public processions.

Except where the procession is one commonly or customarily<sup>1</sup> held in the police area<sup>2</sup> (or areas) in which it is proposed to be held or is a funeral procession organised by a funeral director acting in the normal course of his business, written<sup>3</sup> notice<sup>4</sup> must be given of any proposal to hold a public procession<sup>5</sup> intended:

- 688 (1) to demonstrate support for or opposition to the views or actions of any person or body of persons<sup>6</sup>;
- 689 (2) to publicise a cause or campaign<sup>7</sup>; or
- 690 (3) to mark or commemorate an event<sup>8</sup>, unless it is not reasonably practicable to give any advance notice of the procession<sup>9</sup>.

Where a public procession is held, each of the persons organising it is guilty of an offence if: (a) the above requirements as to notice have not been satisfied; or (b) the date when it is held, the time when it starts, or its route, differs from the date, time or route specified in the notice<sup>10</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>11</sup>. It is, however, a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>12</sup> that he did not know of, and neither suspected nor had reason to suspect, the failure to satisfy the requirements or, as the case may be, the different date, time or route<sup>13</sup>; and, to the extent that an alleged offence turns on a difference of date, time or route, it is a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>14</sup> that the difference arose from circumstances beyond his control or from something done with the agreement of a police officer or by his direction<sup>15</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'police area' see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (as amended); and POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 136.

3 Unless the contrary intention appears, 'writing' includes typing, printing, lithography, photography and other modes of representing or reproducing words in a visible form; and expressions referring to writing are to be construed accordingly: see ibid Sch 1.

4 The notice must specify the date when it is intended to hold the procession, the time when it is intended to start it, its proposed route, and the name and address of the person (or of one of the persons) proposing to organise it: Public Order Act 1986 s 11(3). Such notice must be delivered to a police station: (1) in the police area in which it is proposed the procession will start; or (2) where it is proposed the procession will start in Scotland and cross into England, in the first police area in England on the proposed route: s 11(4). If delivered not less than six clear days before the date when the procession is intended to be held, the notice may be delivered by post by the recorded delivery service; but the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (document sent by post deemed to have been served when posted and to have been delivered in the ordinary course of post) does not apply: Public Order Act 1986 s 11(5). If not so delivered, the notice must be delivered by hand not less than six clear days before the date when the procession is intended to be held or, if that is not reasonably practicable, as soon as delivery is reasonably practicable: s 11(6).

5 For the purposes of ibid Pt II (ss 11-16) (as amended), 'public procession' means a procession in a public place; and 'public place' means: (1) any highway; and (2) any place to which at the material time the public or any section of the public has access, on payment or otherwise, as of right or by virtue of express or implied permission: see s 16. A 'procession' has been defined as follows: 'A procession is not a mere body of persons; it is a body of persons moving along a route': Flockhart v Robinson [1950] 2 KB 498 at 502, sub nom Flockhart v Robertson [1950] 1 All ER 1091 at 1093, DC, per Goddard LCJ. Although Lord Goddard's definition did not expressly require the body of persons to move in orderly succession, it is clear from the Divisional Court's decision that there is such a requirement. In that case, after a lawful procession had broken up to disperse, a group moved into an area where processions were prohibited. Initially, the group was in loose formation and not in ranks, and in the form of a rabble, but in due course it spontaneously adopted an orderly formation. The Divisional Court held that at that point it became a procession. See also Kent v Metropolitan Police Comr (1981) Times, 15 May, CA, where Lord Denning MR stated: 'A public procession is the act of a body of persons marching along in orderly succession . . . All kinds of processions take place every day up and down the country - carnivals, weddings, funerals, processions to the Houses of Parliament, marches to Trafalgar Square and so forth'.

The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

The absence of a planned route, or indeed any identifiable organiser, would not necessarily render the giving of notice 'not reasonably practicable' for these purposes: see Kay v Metropolitan Police Comr [2006] EWHC 1536 (Admin), [2006] All ER (D) 304 (Jun), (2006) Times, 3 July, DC.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(5) PROCESSIONS AND ASSEMBLIES/579. Imposing conditions on public processions.

579. Imposing conditions on public processions.

If the senior police officer<sup>1</sup>, having regard to the time or place at which and the circumstances in which any public procession<sup>2</sup> is being held or is intended to be held and to its route or proposed route, reasonably believes that: (1) it may result in serious public disorder, serious damage to property or serious disruption to the life of the community; or (2) the purpose of the persons organising it is the intimidation of others with a view to compelling them not to do an act they have a right to do, or to do any act they have a right not to do, he may give directions imposing on the persons organising or taking part in the procession such conditions as appear to him to be necessary to prevent such disorder, damage, disruption or intimidation, including conditions as to the route of the procession or prohibiting it from entering any public place<sup>3</sup> specified in the directions<sup>4</sup>.

A person who organises a public procession and knowingly fails to comply with a condition so imposed is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both; but it is a defence for him to prove<sup>5</sup> that the failure arose from circumstances beyond his control<sup>6</sup>. A person who takes part in a public procession and knowingly fails to comply with such a condition is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale; but it is a defence for him to prove<sup>7</sup> that the failure arose from circumstances beyond his control<sup>8</sup>. A person who incites another to commit the latter offence is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>9</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'the senior police officer' means: (1) in relation to a procession intended to be held in a case where persons are assembling with a view to taking part in it, the most senior in rank of the police officers present at the scene; and (2) in relation to a procession intended to be held in a case where head (1) supra does not apply, the chief officer of police: Public Order Act 1986 s 12(2). For the meaning of 'chief officer of police' see PARA 380 note 1 ante. A direction so given by a chief officer of police must be in writing: s 12(3). The chief officer of police may delegate, to such extent and subject to such conditions as he may specify, any of his functions under ss 12-14 (as amended) (see the text and notes 2-9 infra; and PARAS 580-581 post) and s 14A (as added and amended) (see PARA 582 post) to an assistant chief constable or, in the City of London and the metropolitan police district, an assistant commissioner of police: s 15 (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(2), Sch 10 para 60; and the Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 s 44, Sch 5 Pt II para 37). 'The City of London' means the City as defined for the purposes of the Acts relating to the City of London police; and 'the metropolitan police district' means that district as defined in the London Government Act 1963 s 76 (as amended) (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 137): see the Public Order Act 1986 s 16. A deputy chief constable may exercise any power of the chief constable during any absence, incapacity or suspension of the chief constable, or during a vacancy in the office of chief constable, or, at any other time, with the consent of the chief constable: Police Act 1996 s 12A(1) (added by the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 124). See POLICE.

3 For the meaning of 'public place' see PARA 578 note 5 ante.

4 Public Order Act 1986 s 12(1). The imposition of conditions on a peaceful procession or assembly engages the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950, TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 11 (freedom of association and assembly), and therefore requires justification under art 11(2): Rassemblement Jurassien, Unité Jurassienne v Switzerland 17 DR 93 (1979), E Comm HR. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

8 Public Order Act 1986 s 12(5), (9).

9 Ibid s 12(6), (10). As from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may by order either provide that this offence is no longer punishable by imprisonment or extend the maximum term for this offence to a maximum term of 51 weeks: see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(1), (2), (7) (not yet in force). Any such order may make such supplementary, incidental, or consequential provision as the Secretary of State considers necessary or expedient, including provision amending any relevant enactment (s 281(3) (not yet in force)), but may not affect the penalty for any offence committed before the commencement of that order (s 281(6)(a) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. A person is liable under these provisions notwithstanding the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 45(3) (inciter liable to same penalty as incited: see PARA 65 note 3 ante): see the Public Order Act 1986 s 12(10).

580. Prohibiting public processions.

If at any time the chief officer of police<sup>1</sup> reasonably believes that, because of particular circumstances existing in any district or part of a district, the powers to impose conditions on public processions<sup>2</sup> will not be sufficient to prevent the holding of public processions<sup>3</sup> in that district or part from resulting in serious public disorder, he must apply to the council of the district for an order prohibiting for such period not exceeding three months as may be specified in the application the holding of all public processions (or of any class of public processions so specified) in the district or part concerned<sup>4</sup>. On receiving such an application, a council may with the consent of the Secretary of State make an order either in the terms of the application or with such modifications as may be approved by the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup>.

A person who organises a public procession the holding of which he knows is prohibited by virtue of such an order<sup>6</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>7</sup>. ### 580 Prohibiting public processions

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(5) PROCESSIONS AND ASSEMBLIES/581. Imposing conditions on public assemblies.

581. Imposing conditions on public assemblies.

If the senior police officer<sup>1</sup>, having regard to the time or place at which and the circumstances in which any public assembly<sup>2</sup> is being held or is intended to be held, reasonably believes that: (1) it may result in serious public disorder, serious damage to property or serious disruption to the life of the community; or (2) the purpose of the persons organising it is the intimidation of others with a view to compelling them not to do an act they have a right to do, or to do any act they have a right not to do, he may give directions imposing on the persons organising or taking part in the assembly such conditions as to the place at which the assembly may be (or continue to be) held, its maximum duration, or the maximum number of persons who may constitute it, as appear to him to be necessary to prevent such disorder, damage, disruption or intimidation<sup>3</sup>.

A person who organises a public assembly and knowingly fails to comply with a condition so imposed is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both; but it is a defence for him to prove<sup>4</sup> that the failure arose from circumstances beyond his control<sup>5</sup>. A person who takes part in a public assembly and knowingly fails to comply with such a condition is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale; but it is a defence for him to prove<sup>6</sup> that the failure arose from circumstances beyond his control<sup>7</sup>. A person who incites another to commit the latter offence is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>8</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'the senior police officer' means: (1) in relation to an assembly being held, the most senior in rank of the police officers present at the scene; and (2) in relation to an assembly intended to be held, the chief officer of police: Public Order Act 1986 s 14(2). A direction so given by a chief officer of police must be given in writing: s 14(3). For the meaning of 'writing' see PARA 578 note 3 ante. For the meaning of 'chief officer of police' see PARA 380 note 1 ante. As to the chief officer of police's powers of delegation see PARA 579 note 1 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'public assembly' means an assembly of two or more persons in a public place which is wholly or partly open to the air: see ibid s 16 (amended by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 57). For the meaning of 'public place' see PARA 578 note 5 ante. An 'assembly' means no more than a gathering of persons, and one which could be stationary or in motion: DPP v Roffey [1959] Crim LR 283, 123 JP 241, DC.

3 Public Order Act 1986 s 14(1). Section 14 (as amended) does not apply in relation to a public assembly which is also a demonstration in a public place in the designated area in the vicinity of Parliament: see the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 132(6); and PARA 583 post. For the compatibility of this provision with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950, TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 11 (freedom of association and assembly) see PARA 579 note 4 ante. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq. The conditions of an order can continue to apply to an individual who leaves the main body of an assembly and is some distance from it; it depends on whether he can be regarded as still part of the assembly, which is a question of fact: Broadwith v Chief Constable of Thames Valley Police [2000] Crim LR 924, DC. When giving written directions imposing conditions on a public assembly the chief officer of police has to identify whether he reasonably believed that there was a risk of serious public disorder, serious damage to property or serious disruption to the life of the community, or whether he reasonably believed that the purpose of the person organising was the intimidation of others: R (on the application of Brehony) v Chief Constable of Greater Manchester Police [2005] EWHC 640 (Admin), (2005) Times, 15 April. Reasons for forming that belief do not have to be given in great detail but should be sufficient to enable the demonstrators to understand why directions had been given and enable a court to assess whether that belief was reasonable: R (on the application of Brehony) v Chief Constable of Greater Manchester Police supra.

A direction to disperse under the Public Order Act 1986 s 14 (as amended) can include a direction to disperse by a specified route and to stay in a specified place for as long as necessary to enable the dispersal to take place safely and without disorder: Austin v Metropolitan Police Comr [2005] EWHC 480 (Admin), [2005] HRLR 20.

As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see s 14(8) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 37(1), (4)(a)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. A person is liable under these provisions notwithstanding the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 45(3) (inciter liable to same penalty as incited: see PARA 65 note 3 ante): see the Public Order Act 1986 s 14(10).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(5) PROCESSIONS AND ASSEMBLIES/582. Trespassory assemblies.

582. Trespassory assemblies.

If at any time the chief officer of police<sup>1</sup> reasonably believes that an assembly<sup>2</sup> is intended to be held in any district at a place on land<sup>3</sup> to which the public<sup>4</sup> has no right of access or only a limited<sup>5</sup> right of access and that the assembly:

691 (1) is likely to be held without the permission of the occupier<sup>6</sup> of the land or to conduct itself in such a way as to exceed the limits of any such permission or the limits of the public's right of access<sup>7</sup>; and he may apply to the council of the district for an order prohibiting for a specified period the holding of all trespassory assemblies in the district or a part of it, as specified<sup>9</sup>. On receiving such an application, a council may with the consent of the Secretary of State make an order either in the terms of the application or with such modifications as may be approved by the Secretary of State<sup>10</sup>.

An order prohibiting the holding of trespassory assemblies operates to prohibit any assembly which is: (i) held on land to which the public has no right of access or only a limited right of access; and (ii) takes place in the prohibited circumstances, that is, without the permission of the occupier of the land or so as to exceed the limits of any such permission or the limits of the public's right of access<sup>11</sup>.

No order prohibiting the holding of a trespassory assembly may prohibit the holding of assemblies for a period exceeding four days or in an area exceeding an area represented by a circle with a radius of five miles from a specified centre<sup>12</sup>.

A person who organises an assembly the holding of which he knows is prohibited by such an order is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>13</sup>. Similarly, a person who takes part in an assembly which he knows is prohibited by such an order is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>14</sup>; and a person who incites another to commit such an offence is also guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>15</sup>.

If a constable in uniform reasonably believes that a person is on his way to an assembly within the area to which an order prohibiting the holding of a trespassory assembly applies which the constable reasonably believes is likely to be an assembly which is prohibited by that order, he may stop that person, and direct him not to proceed in the direction of the assembly<sup>16</sup>. A person who fails to comply with such a direction which he knows has been given to him is guilty of a summary offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'chief officer of police' see PARA 380 note 1 ante. As to the chief officer of police's powers of delegation see PARA 579 note 1 ante.

2 ie an assembly of 20 or more persons: Public Order Act 1986 s 14A(9) (s 14A added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 70). As to the meaning of 'assembly' see PARA 581 note 2 ante.

3 ie land in the open air: Public Order Act 1986 s 14A(9) (as added: see note 2 supra).

4 'Public' includes a section of the public: ibid s 14A(9) (as added: see note 2 supra). As to the meaning of 'section of the public' see PARA 563 note 2 ante.

5 In relation to a right of access by the public to land, 'limited' means that the use of it is restricted to use for a particular purpose (as in the case of a highway or road) or is subject to other restrictions: ibid s 14A(9) (as added: see note 2 supra).

6 'Occupier' means the person entitled to possession of the land by virtue of an estate or interest held by him; and for the purposes of ibid s 14A(1), (4) (as added) (see the text and note 9 infra), includes the person reasonably believed by the authority applying for or making the order to be the occupier: s 14A(9) (as added: see note 2 supra).

7 Ibid s 14A(1)(a) (as added: see note 2 supra).

8 Ibid s 14A(1)(b) (as added: see note 2 supra).

9 See ibid s 14A(1) as added: see note 2 supra). In Wales, the references to 'a district' and to the 'council of the district' are to be construed as references to a county or county borough and to the council of that county or county borough: s 14A(11) (as so added).

Section 14A(1) (as added) does not apply in the City of London or the metropolitan police district: s 14A(3) (as so added). If at any time the Commissioner of Police for the City of London or the Metropolitan Police Commissioner reasonably believes that an assembly is intended to be held at a place on land to which the public has no right of access or only a limited right of access in his police area and that the assembly:

94 (1) is likely to be held without the permission of the occupier of the land or to conduct itself in such a way as to exceed the limits of any such permission or the limits of the public's right of access; and

95 (2) may result: (a) in serious disruption to the life of the community; or (b) where the land, or a building or monument on it, is of historical, architectural, archaeological or scientific importance, in significant damage to the land, building or monument, he may with the consent of the Secretary of State make an order prohibiting for a specified period the holding of all trespassory assemblies in the area or a part of it, as specified: s 14A(4) (as so added). As to the commissioner's powers of delegation see PARA 579 note 1 ante. As to the recording, revocation and variation of any such order see note 10 infra. For the meanings of 'the City of London' and 'the metropolitan police district' see PARA 579 note 1 ante.

The public highway is a public place that the public may enjoy for any reasonable purpose and the holding of a peaceful, non-obstructive demonstration may fall within the purposes for which the public may use the highway: DPP v Jones [1999] 2 AC 240, [1999] 2 All ER 257, HL.

10 Public Order Act 1986 s 14A(2)(a) (as added: see note 2 supra). Any order made under s 14A (as added), if not made in writing, must be recorded in writing as soon as practicable after being made: s 14A(8) (as so added). An order may be revoked or varied by a subsequent order made in the same way (ie in accordance with s 14A(1), (2)(a), (4) (as added)): s 14A(7) (as so added). For the compatibility of the power to prohibit a trespassory assembly with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950, TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 11(2) (freedom of association and assembly) see PARA 579 note 4 ante. See also Application 31416/96 Pendragon v United Kingdom (1999) 27 EHRR CD 179, E Comm HR. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

11 Public Order Act 1986 s 14A(5) (as added: see note 2 supra). It is not necessarily in excess of the public's right of access to the highway to assemble on the highway; an assembly there which does not amount to a public or private nuisance, and does not obstruct the highway by unreasonably impeding the primary right of the public to pass and re-pass, is not in excess of the public's right of access, provided that it is a reasonable use of the highway (which is a matter for the justices to decide): DPP v Jones [1999] 2 AC 240, [1999] 2 Cr App Rep 348, HL.

13 Ibid s 14B(1), (5) (s 14B added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 70). As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see the Public Order Act 1986 s 14B(5) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 37(1), (5)(a)). ### 582 Trespassory assemblies

NOTE 15--1986 Act s 14B(7) amended: Serious Crime Act 2007 Sch 6 para 58, Sch 14.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(5) PROCESSIONS AND ASSEMBLIES/583. Demonstrations in vicinity of Parliament.

583. Demonstrations in vicinity of Parliament.

Special provision is made in relation to demonstrations within the vicinity of Parliament. Any person who:

- 693 (1) organises<sup>1</sup> a demonstration in a public place<sup>2</sup> in a designated area surrounding the Houses of Parliament<sup>3</sup>; or
- 694 (2) takes part in<sup>4</sup> a demonstration in a public place in that area<sup>5</sup>; or
- 695 (3) carries on a demonstration by himself in a public place in that area<sup>6</sup>, is guilty of an offence if, when the demonstration starts<sup>7</sup>, authorisation<sup>8</sup> for the demonstration has not been given<sup>9</sup>. It is a defence for a defendant to show<sup>10</sup> that he reasonably believed that authorisation had been given<sup>11</sup>. A person guilty of an offence under head (1) above is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>12</sup>. A person guilty of an offence under head (2) or head (3) above is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>13</sup>.

Each person who takes part in or organises a demonstration in the designated area is guilty of an offence if:

- 696 (a) he knowingly fails to comply with a condition<sup>14</sup> in an authorisation which is applicable<sup>15</sup> to him<sup>16</sup>; or
- 697 (b) he knows or should have known that the demonstration is carried on otherwise than in accordance with the particulars set out<sup>17</sup> in the authorisation<sup>18</sup>.

It is a defence for a defendant to show<sup>19</sup>:

- 698 (i) in head (a) above, that the failure to comply; or
- 699 (ii) in head (b) above, that the divergence from the particulars, arose from circumstances beyond his control, or from something done with the agreement, or by the direction, of a police officer<sup>20</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence, if the offence was in relation to his capacity as organiser of the demonstration, is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both; otherwise, he is liable to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>21</sup>.

If the senior police officer<sup>22</sup> reasonably believes that it is necessary in order to prevent any of a number of specified<sup>23</sup> things:

- 700 (A) to impose additional conditions on those taking part in or organising an authorised<sup>24</sup> demonstration<sup>25</sup>; or the senior police officer may give directions to those taking part in or organising the demonstration imposing additional conditions or varying any condition already imposed<sup>27</sup>. A person taking part in or organising the demonstration who knowingly fails to comply with a condition which is applicable to him and which is imposed or varied by such a direction is guilty of an offence<sup>28</sup>. It is a defence for him to show<sup>29</sup> that the failure to comply arose from circumstances beyond his control<sup>30</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence, if the offence was in relation to his capacity as organiser of the demonstration, is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both; otherwise, he is liable to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>31</sup>.
- 701 (B) to vary any condition imposed<sup>26</sup>,

A person who is guilty of the offence of inciting another to do anything which would constitute an offence mentioned in the above provisions<sup>32</sup>, or to fail to do anything where the failure would constitute such an offence, is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale<sup>33</sup>.

Subject to various exceptions<sup>34</sup>, a person who operates or permits the operation of a loudspeaker, at any time or for any purpose, in a street<sup>35</sup> in the designated area<sup>36</sup> commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale, together with a further fine not exceeding £50 for each day on which the offence continues after the conviction<sup>37</sup>.

1 References in the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 132-136 (as amended) (see the text and notes 2-33 infra) to any person organising a demonstration include a person participating in its organisation (s 132(7)(c)) but do not include a person carrying on a demonstration by himself (s 132(7)(d)).

2 References in ibid ss 132-136 (as amended) to 'public place' mean any highway or any place to which at the material time the public or any section of the public has access, on payment or otherwise, as of right or by virtue of express or implied permission: s 132(7)(b).

3 Ibid s 132(1)(a). The 'designated area' for the purposes of ss 132-137 (as amended) (which may be specified by description, by reference to a map or in any other way, although no point in the area so specified may be more than one kilometre in a straight line from the point nearest to it in Parliament Square) is the area bounded by an imaginary line starting at the point where Hungerford Bridge crosses Victoria Embankment, continuing along Hungerford Bridge to the point where it crosses Belvedere Road, rightwards along Belvedere Road as far as Chicheley Street, leftwards along Chicheley Street as far as York Road, rightwards along York Road, crossing Westminster Bridge Road into Lambeth Palace Road, along Lambeth Palace Road as far as Lambeth Bridge, over Lambeth Bridge, leftwards along Millbank as far as Thorney Street, along Thorney Street as far as Horseferry Road, leftwards along Horseferry Road as far as Strutton Ground, along Strutton Ground crossing over Victoria Street into Broadway, along Broadway as far as Queen Anne's Gate, along Queen Anne's Gate as far as Birdcage Walk, rightwards along Birdcage Walk as far as Horse Guards Road, along Horse Guards Road as far as the Mall, rightwards along the Mall, across the north end of Whitehall as far as Northumberland Avenue, along Northumberland Avenue as far as Victoria Embankment, and leftwards along Victoria Embankment returning to the starting point: ss 132(7)(a), 138(1)-(3); Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 (Designated Area) Order 2005, SI 2005/1537.

4 References in the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 132-136 (as amended) to a person or persons taking part in a demonstration do not include in s 132(1) a person carrying on a demonstration by himself, but they do otherwise do include such a person: s 132(7)(e).

6 Ibid s 132(1)(c).

7 Ibid s 132(1), on its proper construction, includes demonstrations actually starting before its commencement (ie 1 August 2005: see the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 (Commencement No1, Transitional and Transitory Provisions) Order 2005, SI 2005/1521) as surely as those starting after: R (on the application of Haw) v Secretary of State for the Home Department [2006] EWCA Civ 532, [2006] All ER (D) 94 (May).

8 Ie an authorisation under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 134(2). A person seeking authorisation for a demonstration in the designated area must give written notice to that effect to the Metropolitan Police Commissioner: s 133(1). The notice must be given, if reasonably practicable, not less than six clear days before the day on which the demonstration is to start, or, if that is not reasonably practicable, then as soon as it is, and in any event not less than 24 hours before the time the demonstration is to start: s 133(2). The notice must be given, if the demonstration is to be carried on by more than one person, by any of the persons organising it, or, if it is to be carried on by a person by himself, by that person: s 133(3). The notice must state: (1) the date and time when the demonstration is to start; (2) the place where it is to be carried on; (3) how long it is to last; (4) whether it is to be carried on by a person by himself or not; (5) the name and address of the person giving the notice: s 133(4). Such a notice must be given by delivering it to a police station in the metropolitan police district, or sending it by post by recorded delivery to such a police station: s 133(5). The Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (service of a document is deemed to have been effected at the time it would be delivered in the ordinary course of post) does not apply to such a notice: Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 133(6).

The following provisions apply if a notice complying with the requirements of s 133 is received at a police station in the metropolitan police district by the time specified in s 133(2): s 134(1). The Commissioner must give authorisation for the demonstration to which the notice relates: s 134(2). In giving authorisation, the Commissioner may impose on the persons organising or taking part in the demonstration such conditions specified in the authorisation and relating to the demonstration as in the Commissioner's reasonable opinion are necessary for the purpose of preventing any of the following: (a) hindrance to any person wishing to enter or leave the Palace of Westminster; (b) hindrance to the proper operation of Parliament; (c) serious public disorder; (d) serious damage to property; (e) disruption to the life of the community; (f) a security risk in any part of the designated area; (g) risk to the safety of members of the public (including any taking part in the demonstration): s 134(1), (3). The conditions may, in particular, impose requirements as to: (i) the place where the demonstration may, or may not, be carried on; (ii) the times at which it may be carried on; (iii) the period during which it may be carried on; (iv) the number of persons who may take part in it; (v) the number and size of banners or placards used; (vi) maximum permissible noise levels: s 134(1), (4). The authorisation must specify the particulars of the demonstration given in the notice under s 133 pursuant to s 133(4), with any modifications made necessary by any condition imposed under s 134(3): s 134(1), (5). The Commissioner must give notice in writing of: (A) the authorisation; (B) any conditions imposed under s 134(3); and (C) the particulars mentioned in s 134(5), to the person who gave the notice under s 133: s 134(1), (6). Such notice may be sent by post to the person who gave the notice under s 133 at the address stated in that notice: s 134(9). If the person to whom the notice required by s 134(6) is to be given has agreed, it may be sent to him by email or by facsimile transmission at the address or number notified by him for the purpose to the Commissioner (and a notice so sent is 'in writing' for the purposes of s 134(6)): s 134(10).

9 Ibid s 132(1). Section 132(1) does not apply if the demonstration is a public procession of which notice is required to be given under the Public Order Act 1986 s 11(1) (see PARA 578 ante), or of which (by virtue of s 11(2)) notice is not required to be given, or it is a public procession for the purposes of s 12 or s 13 (see PARAS 579-580 ante): Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 132(3). Section 132(1) also does not apply in relation to any conduct which is lawful under the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 220 (right peacefully to picket a work place: see EMPLOYMENT vol 41 (2009) PARA 1349): Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 132(4). If s 132(1) does not apply by virtue of s 132(3) or (4), nothing in ss 133-136 applies either: s 132(5).

10 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950, TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. 34 Ibid s 137(1) (see the text and notes 35-37 infra) does not apply to the operation of a loudspeaker: (1) in case of emergency; (2) for police, fire and rescue authority or ambulance purposes; (3) by the Environment Agency, a water undertaker or a sewerage undertaker in the exercise of any of its functions; (4) by a local authority within its area; (5) for communicating with persons on a vessel for the purpose of directing the movement of that or any other vessel; (6) if the loudspeaker forms part of a public telephone system; (7) if the loudspeaker is in or fixed to a vehicle and s 137(3) applies; (8) otherwise than on a highway, by persons employed in connection with a transport undertaking used by the public, but only if the loudspeaker is operated solely for making announcements to passengers or prospective passengers or to other persons so employed; (9) in accordance with a consent granted by a local authority under the Noise and Statutory Nuisance Act 1993 Sch 2 (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 842): Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 137(2). The exception in head (7) supra applies if the loudspeaker is operated solely for the entertainment of or for communicating with the driver or a passenger of the vehicle (or, if the loudspeaker is or forms part of the horn or similar warning instrument of the vehicle, solely for giving warning to other traffic), and is so operated as not to give reasonable cause for annoyance to persons in the vicinity: s 137(3). For these purposes, 'local authority' means a London borough council (and, in head (4) supra, the Greater London Authority); and 'vessel' includes a hovercraft within the meaning of the Hovercraft Act 1968 (see SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW vol 93 (2008) PARA 381): Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 137(5).

35 le a street within the meaning of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 48(1) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 9) which is for the time being open to the public: Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 137(5).

(6) PUBLIC MEETINGS

584. Disturbances at public meetings.

Any person who at a lawful public meeting<sup>1</sup> acts in a disorderly manner for the purpose of preventing the transaction of the business for which the meeting was called together is guilty of an offence<sup>2</sup>. A person who incites others to commit such an offence is guilty of a like offence<sup>3</sup>. A person convicted of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>4</sup>.

If any constable reasonably suspects any person of committing such an offence, he may, if requested to do so by the chairman of the meeting, require that person to declare to him immediately his name and address and, if that person refuses or fails so to declare his name and address or gives a false name and address, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale<sup>5</sup>.

1 The fact that a meeting is held on a highway is not in itself sufficient to make the meeting unlawful (Burden v Rigler [1911] 1 KB 337, DC) nor is the fact that disorderly opposition from other persons occurs (Beatty v Gillbanks (1882) 9 QBD 308, DC). The Public Meeting Act 1908 s 1 (as amended) does not, however, apply as respects meetings to which the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 97 (as amended) (see PARA 585 post) applies: Public Meeting Act 1908 s 1(4) (added by the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 206, Sch 8 para 1).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(6) PUBLIC MEETINGS/585. Disturbances at election meetings.

585. Disturbances at election meetings.

Special provision is made in relation to election meetings. A person who at a lawful public meeting<sup>1</sup> acts, or incites others to act, in a disorderly manner for the purpose of preventing the transaction of the business for which the meeting was called together is guilty of an illegal practice<sup>2</sup>. A person guilty of an illegal practice is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>3</sup>.

If a constable reasonably suspects any person of committing such an offence, he may, if requested to do so by the chairman of the meeting, require that person to declare to him immediately his name and address; and, if that person refuses or fails so to declare his name and address or gives a false name and address, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale<sup>4</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'lawful public meeting' means: (1) a political meeting held in any constituency between the date of the issue of a writ for the return of a member of Parliament for the constituency and the date at which a return to the writ is made (Representation of the People Act 1983 s 97(2)(a)); (2) a meeting held with reference to a local government election in the electoral areas for that election in the period beginning with the last date on which notice of the election may be published in accordance with the rules made under the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 36 (as amended) or regulations made under the Local Government Act 2000 s 44 (as amended) (see ELECTIONS AND REFERENDUMS vol 15(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 26; LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 320) and ending with the day of the election (see the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 97(2)(b) (amended by the Representation of the People Act 1985 s 24, Sch 4 para 39; and the Local Authorities (Mayoral Elections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2002, SI 2002/185, Sch 2)); (3) a meeting held in connection with a local authority referendum during the 'campaign period', which is a period of 25 days ending with the day before the date of the referendum (see the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 97(2), (2A) (s 97(2) substituted, and s 97(2A) added, by the Local Authorities (Conduct of Referendums) (England) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1298, reg 8, Sch 3 Table 2; and by the Local Authorities (Conduct of Referendums) (Wales) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/870, reg 8, Sch 3 Table 2)); (4) a political meeting held in any European parliamentary constituency in connection with an election to the European Parliament between the last date on which notice of election may be published in accordance with the election rules and the date of the poll (European Parliamentary Elections Regulations 2004, SI 2004/293, reg 68(2)); (5) a meeting in connection with a referendum under the Regional Assemblies (Preparations) Act 2003 held by a permitted participant during the referendum period (see the Representation of the People Act 1983 s 97(2) (substituted by the Regional and Local Government Referendums Order 2004, SI 2004/1962, art 6, Sch 2 Pt 2)).

3 Representation of the People Act 1983 s 169 (amended by the Representation of the People Act 1985 ss 23, 28(1), Sch 3 para 9, Sch 5). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) ON THE SPOT PENALTIES FOR DISORDERLY BEHAVIOUR/587. Penalty notices and penalties.

587. Penalty notices and penalties.

A constable who has reason to believe that a person aged 10 or over<sup>1</sup> has committed a penalty offence<sup>2</sup> may give him a penalty notice in respect of the offence<sup>3</sup>. 'Penalty notice' means a notice offering the opportunity<sup>4</sup> to discharge any liability to be convicted of the offence to which the notice relates<sup>5</sup>. Unless the notice is given in a police station, the constable giving it must be in uniform<sup>6</sup>. At a police station, a penalty notice may be given only by an authorised constable<sup>7</sup>.

The penalty payable in respect of a penalty offence is such amount as the Secretary of State may specify by order<sup>8</sup> but he may not specify an amount which is more than a quarter of the amount of the maximum fine for which a person is liable on conviction of the offence<sup>9</sup>. The specified fixed penalty for fixed penalty offences<sup>10</sup> is £80, or £40 in the case of a person under 16 at the time when he committed the offence, except in the case of the following offences:

- 702 (1) being drunk in a highway, other public place or licensed premises<sup>11</sup>;
- 703 (2) trespassing on a railway<sup>12</sup>;
- 704 (3) throwing stones etc at trains or other things on railways<sup>13</sup>;
- 705 (4) depositing and leaving litter<sup>14</sup>;
- 706 (5) consumption of alcohol in a designated public place<sup>15</sup>;
- 707 (6) purchase of alcohol by children<sup>16</sup>;
- 708 (7) consumption of alcohol by children or allowing such consumption<sup>17</sup>, where the fixed penalty is £50, or £30 in the case of a person under 16 at the time that he committed the offence<sup>18</sup>. A penalty notice must be in the prescribed form<sup>19</sup>; state the alleged offence; give such particulars of the circumstances alleged to constitute the offence as are necessary to provide reasonable information about it; specify the suspended enforcement period<sup>20</sup> and explain its effect; state the amount of the penalty; state the designated officer for a local justice area to whom, and the address at which, the penalty may be paid; and inform the person to whom it is given of his right to ask to be tried for the alleged offence and explain how that right may be exercised<sup>21</sup>.

If a penalty notice is given to a person ('A')<sup>22</sup>, and A asks to be tried for the alleged offence, proceedings may be brought against him<sup>23</sup>. Such a request must be made, by a notice given by A in the manner specified in the penalty notice, before the end of the period of suspended enforcement<sup>24</sup>. A request so made is referred to as a 'request to be tried'<sup>25</sup>. If, by the end of the suspended enforcement period, the penalty has not been paid<sup>26</sup>, and A has not made a request to be tried, a sum equal to one and a half times the amount of the penalty may be registered<sup>27</sup> for enforcement against A as a fine<sup>28</sup>.

Proceedings for the offence to which a penalty notice relates may not be brought until the end of the period of 21 days beginning with the date on which the notice was given ('the suspended enforcement period')<sup>29</sup>. If the penalty is paid before the end of that period, no proceedings may be brought for the offence<sup>30</sup>.

The Secretary of State may issue guidance about the exercise of the discretion given<sup>31</sup> to constables, about the issuing of penalty notices, and with a view to encouraging good practice in connection with the operation of provisions relating to the operation of the provisions<sup>32</sup> for on the spot penalties for disorderly behaviour<sup>33</sup>.

1 Under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 2(1) (as originally enacted) a penalty notice could only be given to a person aged 18 or over. Section 2(1) was amended by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 87(1), (2) so as to substitute the age of 16 for 18. However, the Secretary of State may by order:

96 (1) amend the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 2(1) by substituting for the age for the time being specified a different age which is not lower than 10 (s 2(6)(a) (s 2(6)-(9) added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 87)); and

97 (2) if that different age is lower than 16, make provision as follows:

6. (a) where a person whose age is lower than 16 is given a penalty notice, for a parent or guardian of that person to be notified of the giving of the notice (Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 2(6)(b)(i) (as so added)); and

7. (b) for that parent or guardian to be liable to pay the penalty under the notice (s 2(6)(b)(ii) (as so added)).

The provision which may be made by virtue of head (2) supra includes provision amending, or applying (with or without modifications), Pt 1 Ch 1 (ss 1-11) (as amended) or any other enactment (whenever passed or made): s 2(7) (as so added).

The power conferred by s 2(6) (as added) is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 2(8) (as so added). No order may be made under s 2(6) (as added) unless a draft of the order has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 2(9) (as so added).

Pursuant to s 2(6) (as added), the Secretary of State has made the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, under which the minimum age at which a person can be given a penalty notice under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 2(1) is 10 (see the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 2; and PARA 589 post).

3 See the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 2(1) (amended by the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 2). Within the terms of the Police Reform Act 2002 s 38, Sch 4 (see PARA 408 ante; and POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 529), a community support officer designated for the purpose may issue a fixed penalty notice except in relation to theft or to depositing and leaving litter contrary to the Environmental Protection Act 1990 s 87 (as amended) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 721): Police Reform Act 2002 Sch 4 para 1(2)(a), (2A) (s 1(2A) added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 122(1), (3)(a)). Within the terms of the Police Reform Act 2002 s 41, Sch 5 (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 533), an accredited person under a community safety accreditation scheme may issue a penalty notice except in respect of theft, depositing and leaving litter contrary to the Environmental Protection Act 1990 s 87 (as amended), being drunk in a highway etc, being drunk and disorderly in a public place or criminal damage: see the Police Reform Act 2002 Sch 5 para 1(2)(aa) (added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2001 s 89(1), (5); and amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 122(1), (4), (5)(a)); the Police Reform Act 2002 Sch 5 para 1(2A) (added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 122(1), (4), (5)(b), 174(2), Sch 17 Pt 2); and the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 (Amendment) and Police Reform Act 2002 (Modification) Order 2004, SI 2004/2540, arts 4, 5. ## UPDATE

587 Penalty notices and penalties

NOTE 1--There is nothing in the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 which suggests that issue of a penalty notice asserting one offence, and the payment of the penalty, relieves the recipient of any possible further proceedings if and when it becomes apparent that a more serious, and in particular a non-penalty, offence has in fact been committed: see R v Gore; R v Maher [2009] EWCA Crim 1424, [2009] 1 WLR 2454, (2009) 173 JP 505 (all facts not known when penalty notice issued); and PARA 1225 NOTE 5.

NOTES 8, 18--SI 2002/1837 further amended: SI 2009/83.

TEXT AND NOTES 19, 21--The requirement for penalty notices to be in the prescribed form is repealed: Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 3(3)-(5) (amended by SI 2010/64). SI 2002/1838 revoked: SI 2010/64.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) ON THE SPOT PENALTIES FOR DISORDERLY BEHAVIOUR/588. Procedure.

588. Procedure.

If a person to whom a penalty notice<sup>1</sup> is given decides to pay the penalty, he must pay it to the designated officer specified in the notice<sup>2</sup>. Payment of the penalty may be made by properly addressing, pre-paying and posting a letter containing the amount of the penalty (in cash or otherwise)<sup>3</sup>. Unless the contrary is proved, payment is to be regarded as made at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post<sup>4</sup>.

The chief officer of police<sup>5</sup> may, in respect of any registrable sum<sup>6</sup>, issue a certificate (a 'registration certificate')<sup>7</sup> stating that the sum is registrable for enforcement against the defaulter<sup>8</sup> as a fine<sup>9</sup>. If that officer issues a registration certificate, he must cause it to be sent to the designated officer for the local justice area in which the defaulter appears to him to reside<sup>10</sup>.

If the designated officer for a local justice area receives a registration certificate, he must register<sup>11</sup> the registrable sum for enforcement as a fine in that area by entering it in the register of a magistrates' court acting for that area<sup>12</sup>.

If, in any proceedings for enforcing a fine<sup>13</sup>, the defaulter claims that he was not the person to whom the penalty notice concerned was issued<sup>14</sup>, the court may adjourn the proceedings for a period of not more than 28 days for the purpose of allowing that claim to be investigated<sup>15</sup>. On the resumption of proceedings that have been so adjourned, the court must accept the defaulter's claim unless it is shown, on a balance of probabilities, that he was the recipient of the penalty notice<sup>16</sup>. The court may set aside a fine in the interests of justice<sup>17</sup>. If it does so, it must give such directions for further consideration of the case as it considers appropriate or direct that no further action is to be taken in respect of the allegation that gave rise to the penalty notice concerned<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to penalty notices see PARA 587 ante.

2 Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 7(1) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 398). In its application to a young penalty recipient (see PARA 589 post), the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 7(1) (as amended) has effect as if, instead of referring to a person to whom a penalty notice is given, it referred a parent or guardian who has been notified of the giving of a penalty notice under the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 3(1) or art 4(3): art 6(1), (4).

3 Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 7(2). This is not to be read as preventing the payment of a penalty by other means: s 7(5). A letter is properly addressed for the purposes of s 7(2) if it is addressed in accordance with the requirements specified in the penalty notice (see s 3(3) (as amended); and PARA 587 ante): s 7(6).

4 Ibid s 7(4). This applies if a person claims to have made payment by that method, and shows that his letter was posted: s 7(3).

5 For the meaning of 'chief officer of police' see PARA 380 note 1 ante. For these purposes, 'chief officer of police' includes the chief constable of the British Transport Police: see ibid s 11.

6 I.e a sum that may be registered under ibid s 8 (as amended) (see the text and notes 7-10 infra) as a result of s 4(5) (see PARA 587 ante): s 8(4).

7 A registration certificate must give particulars of the offence to which the penalty notice relates, and state the name and last known address of the defaulter and the amount of the registrable sum: ibid s 8(3).

8     le the person against whom the registrable sum may be registered: ibid s 8(5).

9     Ibid s 8(1).

10    Ibid s 8(2) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 399).

11    A designated officer registering a sum under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 9 (as amended) (see the text and note 12 infra) for enforcement as a fine must give the defaulter notice of the registration: s 9(3) (s 9(1)-(3) amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 400). The notice must specify the amount of the sum registered, and give the information with respect to the offence, and the authority for registration, which was included in the registration certificate under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 8 (as amended) (see the text and notes 7-10 supra): s 9(4).

12    Ibid s 9(1) (as amended: see note 11 supra). If it appears to that officer that the defaulter does not reside in that area, s 9(1) (as amended) does not apply to him but the officer must cause the certificate to be sent to the person appearing to him to be the designated officer for the local justice area in which the defendant resides: s 9(2) (as so amended).

If a sum is registered in a magistrates' court as a result of s 9 (as amended), any enactment referring (in whatever terms) to a fine imposed, or other sum adjudged to be paid, on conviction by such a court applies as if the registered sum were a fine imposed by that court on the conviction of the defaulter on the date on which the sum was registered: s 9(5).

13    'Fine' means a sum enforceable as a fine as a result of ibid s 9 (as amended) (see the text and notes 11-12 supra): s 10(1).

14    In its application to a young penalty recipient (see PARA 589 post), this provision has effect so that the court may adjourn proceedings for a claim to be investigated where in any proceedings the defaulter claims that: (1) he is not a parent or guardian of the person to whom the penalty notice concerned was issued; (2) he was not properly notified of the giving of the penalty notice concerned under the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 3(1) or art 4(3)(b) (see PARA 589 post): see art 6(1), (5).

15    Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 10(2), (3).

16    Ibid s 10(4). In its application to a young penalty recipient (see PARA 589 post), s 10(4) is to have effect as if for 'that he was the recipient of the penalty notice' there were substituted 'to be incorrect': Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 6(1), (6).

17    Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 10(5).

18    Ibid s 10(6).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(7) ON THE SPOT PENALTIES FOR DISORDERLY BEHAVIOUR/589. Special provisions relating to persons under 16.

589. Special provisions relating to persons under 16.

Where a penalty notice<sup>1</sup> has been given, the chief officer of police<sup>2</sup> must notify such parent or guardian<sup>3</sup> of a person under 16 who is given a penalty notice<sup>4</sup> (a 'young penalty recipient'<sup>5</sup>) as he thinks fit of the giving of the penalty notice concerned<sup>6</sup>. Such a notification may be served by giving it to the parent or guardian personally, or by sending it to the parent or guardian at his usual or last-known address by first-class post<sup>7</sup>. Such a notification must be served before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the date on which the penalty notice was given<sup>8</sup>.

If a notification is served<sup>9</sup> and: (1) the chief officer of police decides that the notification should have been served on some other parent or guardian of the young penalty recipient; or (2) the chief officer of police discovers that the person on whom the notification was served is not a parent or guardian of the young penalty recipient, the chief officer of police may cancel the original notification at any time before the end of the period of 21 days beginning with the date on which it is served<sup>10</sup>. If the chief officer of police cancels the original notification he must: (a) as soon as reasonably practicable inform the recipient of the original notification in writing that the original notification has been cancelled; and (b) notify such other person who is a parent or guardian of the young penalty recipient as he thinks fit of the giving of the penalty notice<sup>11</sup>. A notification under head (b) above must be served before the end of the period of 14 days beginning with the date on which the original notification was cancelled<sup>12</sup>.

Where a parent or guardian of a young penalty recipient is notified<sup>13</sup> of the giving of a penalty notice and the notification is not cancelled<sup>14</sup>, or is notified under head (b) above of the giving of a penalty notice, that parent or guardian is liable to pay the penalty under the notice<sup>15</sup>.

3 I.e. a person who has for the time being the care of a young penalty recipient, including a local authority which has parental responsibility for a young penalty recipient who is in its care or is provided with accommodation by it in the exercise of any social services functions: ibid art 1(2). 'Local authority' and 'parental responsibility' have the same meanings as in the Children Act 1989 (see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARAS 134, 248): see the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 1(2). 'Social services function', in relation to a local authority, has the meaning given by the Local Authority Social Services Act 1970 s 1A (as added) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 588): see the Penalties for Disorderly Behaviour (Amendment of Minimum Age) Order 2004, SI 2004/3166, art 1(2).

6 Ibid art 3(1). A notification under art 3(1) must be in writing and must include a copy of the penalty notice: art 3(2).

10 Ibid art 4(1), (2).

11 Ibid art 4(3). The provisions of art 3(2), (3), (5) (see the text and notes 6-8 supra) apply to a notification under head (b) in the text as they apply to a notification under art 3(1) (see the text and note 6 supra): art 4(5).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) COLLECTIVE TRESPASS OR NUISANCE ON LAND/590. Power to remove trespassers on land.

(8) COLLECTIVE TRESPASS OR NUISANCE ON LAND

590. Power to remove trespassers on land.

If the senior police officer present at the scene reasonably believes that two or more persons are trespassing<sup>1</sup> on land<sup>2</sup> and are present there with the common purpose of residing<sup>3</sup> there for any period, that reasonable steps have been taken by or on behalf of the occupier<sup>4</sup> to ask them to leave and: (1) that any of those persons has caused damage<sup>5</sup> to the land or to property<sup>6</sup> on the land or used threatening, abusive or insulting words or behaviour towards the occupier, a member of his family or an employee or agent of his; or (2) that those persons have between them six or more vehicles<sup>7</sup> on the land, he may direct those persons, or any of them, to leave the land and to remove any vehicles or other property they have with them on the land<sup>8</sup>. Where the persons in question are reasonably believed by the senior police officer to be persons who were not originally trespassers but have become trespassers on the land, the officer must reasonably believe that the other conditions specified above are satisfied after those persons became trespassers before he can exercise this power<sup>9</sup>.

If a person knowing that such a direction has been given which applies to him: (a) fails to leave the land as soon as reasonably practicable<sup>10</sup>; or (b) having left again enters the land as a trespasser within the period of three months beginning with the day on which the direction was given, he commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>11</sup>.

In proceedings for such an offence, it is a defence for the defendant to show<sup>12</sup> that he was not trespassing on the land, or that he had a reasonable excuse for failing to leave the land as soon as reasonably practicable or, as the case may be, for again entering the land as a trespasser<sup>13</sup>.

If a direction has been given under the above provisions and a constable reasonably suspects that any person to whom the direction applies has, without reasonable excuse: (i) failed to remove any vehicle on the land which appears to the constable to belong to him or to be in his possession or under his control; or (ii) entered the land as a trespasser with a vehicle within the period of three months beginning with the day on which the direction was given, the constable may seize and remove that vehicle<sup>14</sup>.

1 'Trespass' means trespass as against the occupier of the land; and 'trespassing' and 'trespasser' are to be construed accordingly: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9). In its application to common land, s 61 (as amended) (see the text and notes 2-13 infra) has effect as if in s 61(1)-(6) (as amended) (see the text and notes 8-13 infra): (1) references to trespassing or trespassers were references to acts and persons doing acts which constitute either a trespass as against the occupier or an infringement of the commoners' rights; and (2) references to 'the occupier' included the commoners or any of them or, in the case of common land to which the public has access, the local authority as well as any commoner: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(7). 'Common land' means common land as defined in the Commons Registration Act 1965 s 22 (see COMMONS vol 13 (2009) PARA 407); 'commoner' means a person with rights of common as defined in the Commons Registration Act 1965 s 22 (see COMMONS vol 13 (2009) PARA 406); and 'local authority' means any local authority which has powers in relation to the land under the Commons Registration Act 1965 s 9 (as amended) (see COMMONS vol 13 (2009) PARA 430); see the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9). As from a day to be appointed these definitions are amended so that 'common land' means land registered as common land in a register kept under the Commons Act 2006 Pt 1 (ss 1-25) and land to which Pt 1 does not apply and which is subject to rights of common as defined in s 61(1); 'commoner' means a person with rights of common as so defined; and 'local authority' means any local authority which has powers in relation to the land under the Commons Act 2006 s 45: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9) (prospectively amended by the Commons Act 2006 s 52, Sch 5 para 5). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

The Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(7) does not: (1) require action by more than one occupier; or (2) constitute persons trespassers as against any commoner or the local authority if they are permitted to be there by the other occupier: s 61(8).

2 'Land' does not include: (1) buildings other than: (a) agricultural buildings within the meaning of the Local Government Finance Act 1988 Sch 5 paras 3-8 (as amended) (see RATING AND COUNCIL TAX); or (b) scheduled monuments within the meaning of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act 1979 (see NATIONAL CULTURAL HERITAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 1010); (2) land forming part of a highway unless it falls within the classifications of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 s 54 (prospectively repealed) or is a cycle track under the Highways Act 1980 or the Cycle Tracks Act 1984 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARAS 64, 601): see the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9). As from a day to be appointed head (2) supra is amended so as to provide that 'land' in s 61 (as amended) does not include land forming part of a highway unless it is a footpath, bridleway or byway open to all traffic within the meaning of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981 Pt III (ss 53-66) (as amended) (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 591 et seq), is a restricted byway within the meaning of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 (see HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES vol 21 (2004 Reissue) PARA 603) or is cycle track under the Highways Act 1980 or the Cycle Tracks Act 1984: see the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9) (prospectively amended by the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 s 51, Sch 5 para 17). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3 A person may be regarded for the purposes of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61 (as amended) as having a purpose of residing in a place notwithstanding that he has a home elsewhere: see s 61(9).

4 le the person entitled to possession of the land by virtue of an estate or interest held by him: see ibid s 61(9).

5 'Damage' includes the deposit of any substance capable of polluting the land: see ibid s 61(9).

6 'Property', in relation to damage to property on land, means property within the meaning of the Criminal Damage Act 1971 s 10(1) (see PARA 339 ante): see the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9).

7 'Vehicle' includes: (1) any vehicle, whether or not it is in a fit state for use on roads, and includes any chassis or body, with or without wheels, appearing to have formed part of such a vehicle, and any load carried by, and anything attached to, such a vehicle; and (2) a caravan as defined in the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 s 29(1) (see PARA 610 note 1 post): see the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(9).

8 See ibid s 61(1). Such a direction, if not communicated to the persons in question by the police officer giving the direction, may be communicated to them by any constable at the scene: s 61(3). Such a direction can only be given after the trespassers have failed to comply with the occupier's request for them to leave: R (on the application of Fuller) v Chief Constable of Dorset Police [2001] EWHC (Admin) 1057, [2003] QB 480, [2002] 3 All ER 57.

9 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(2).

10 'Fail to leave' includes failure to remove a vehicle or other property which one has been directed to remove: Kruppa v DPP [1989] Crim LR 295, DC (which was concerned with the identical offence under the Public Order Act 1986 s 39 (repealed), which was replaced by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61). 'As soon as reasonably practicable' means that the trespassers must leave as soon as they objectively reasonably can, not when a reasonable police officer believes is practicable: Kruppa v DPP supra.

11 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(4). As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see s 61(4) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 45(1), (4)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

12 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

13 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 61(6).

14 Ibid s 62(1). Any vehicles which have been seized and removed by a constable under s 62(1) (see PARA 591 post) may be retained in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State under s 67(3): s 67(1). ### 590-592 Collective Trespass or Nuisance on Land

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) COLLECTIVE TRESPASS OR NUISANCE ON LAND/591. Power to remove trespassers: alternative site available.

591. Power to remove trespassers: alternative site available.

If the senior police officer present at a scene reasonably believes that the following conditions<sup>1</sup> are satisfied in relation to a person and land:

- 709 (1) that the person and one or more others ('the trespassers') are trespassing<sup>2</sup> on the land<sup>3</sup>;
- 710 (2) that the trespassers have between them at least one vehicle on the land<sup>4</sup>;
- 711 (3) that the trespassers are present on the land with the common purpose of residing there for any period<sup>5</sup>;
- 712 (4) if it appears to the officer that the person has one or more caravans<sup>6</sup> in his possession or under his control on the land, that there is a suitable pitch on a relevant caravan site for that caravan or each of those caravans<sup>7</sup>;
- 713 (5) that the occupier of the land or a person acting on his behalf has asked the police to remove the trespassers from the land<sup>8</sup>, he may direct the person: (a) to leave the land; (b) to remove any vehicle and other property he has with him on the land<sup>9</sup>.

If a police officer proposes to give such a direction<sup>10</sup> in relation to a person and land<sup>11</sup>, and it appears to him that the person has one or more caravans in his possession or under his control on the land<sup>12</sup>, the officer must consult every local authority<sup>13</sup> within whose area the land is situated as to whether there is a suitable pitch for the caravan or each of the caravans on a relevant caravan site which is situated in the local authority's area<sup>14</sup>.

A person commits an offence if he knows that such a direction has been given which applies to him and:

- 714 (i) he fails to leave the relevant land as soon as reasonably practicable<sup>15</sup>; or
- 715 (ii) he enters any land in the area of the relevant local authority<sup>16</sup> as a trespasser before the end of the relevant period<sup>17</sup> with the intention of residing there<sup>18</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>19</sup>.

In proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for the defendant to show<sup>20</sup>:

- 716 (A) that he was not trespassing on the land in respect of which he is alleged to have committed the offence<sup>21</sup>; or

- 717 (B) that he had a reasonable excuse:

- 14. (aa) for failing to leave the relevant land as soon as reasonably practicable<sup>22</sup>;
- or

- 15. (bb) for entering land in the area of the relevant local authority as a trespasser with the intention of residing there<sup>23</sup>; or

718 (c) that, at the time the direction was given, he was under the age of 18 years and was residing with his parent or guardian<sup>24</sup>.

If such a direction<sup>25</sup> has been given and a constable reasonably suspects that a person to whom the direction applies has, without reasonable excuse, failed to remove any vehicle on the relevant land which appears to the constable to belong to him or to be in his possession or under his control, or entered any land in the area of the relevant local authority as a trespasser with a vehicle before the end of the relevant period<sup>26</sup> with the intention of residing there, the constable may seize and remove the vehicle<sup>27</sup>.

1     Ile the conditions specified by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 62A(2) (as added): see heads (1)-(5) in the text.

2     For the meanings of 'trespassing', 'trespass' and 'trespasser' see PARA 590 note 1 ante.

In ibid ss 62A-62C (as added and amended), references to trespassing and trespassers have effect as if they were references to acts, and persons doing acts, which constitute a trespass as against the occupier, or an infringement of the commoners' rights: s 62D(1), (2) (s 62D added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 63). This does not require action by more than one occupier, or constitute persons trespassers as against any commoner or the local authority if they are permitted to be there by the other occupier: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 62D(1), (4) (as so added). References to the occupier, in the case of land to which the public has access, include the local authority and any commoner; and, in any other case, include the commoners or any of them: s 62D(1), (3) (as so added). For the meanings of 'common land', 'commoner' and 'local authority' see PARA 590 note 1 ante.

'Relevant site manager' means: (a) a local authority within whose area the land is situated; (b) a registered social landlord: see s 62A(6) (as so added). The Secretary of State may by order amend the definition of 'relevant site manager' in s 62A(6) (as added) by adding a person or description of person: s 62A(7) (as so added). Such an order must be made by statutory instrument and is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 62A(8) (as so added). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

8     Ibid s 62A(2)(e) (as added: see note 3 supra). For the meaning of 'occupier' see PARA 590 note 4 ante.

9     See ibid s 62A(1) (as added: see note 3 supra). Such a direction may be communicated to the person to whom it applies by any constable at the scene: s 62A(3) (as so added).

590-592 Collective Trespass or Nuisance on Land

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(8) COLLECTIVE TRESPASS OR NUISANCE ON LAND/592. Aggravated trespass.

592. Aggravated trespass.

A person commits the offence of aggravated trespass if he trespasses on land<sup>1</sup> and, in relation to any lawful activity<sup>2</sup> which persons are engaging in or are about to engage in on that or adjoining land, does there anything which is intended by him to have the effect: (1) of intimidating those persons or any of them so as to deter them or any of them from engaging in that activity; (2) of obstructing that activity; or (3) of disrupting that activity<sup>3</sup>. Activity on any occasion on the part of a person or persons on land is 'lawful' for these purposes if he or they may engage in the activity on the land on that occasion without committing an offence or trespassing on the land<sup>4</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>5</sup>.

If the senior police officer present at the scene reasonably believes: (a) that a person is committing, has committed or intends to commit the offence of aggravated trespass on land; or (b) that two or more persons are trespassing on land and are present there with the common purpose of intimidating persons so as to deter them from engaging in a lawful activity<sup>6</sup> or of obstructing or disrupting a lawful activity, he may direct that person or those persons (or any of them) to leave the land<sup>7</sup>. If a person knowing that such a direction has been given which applies to him fails to leave the land as soon as practicable, or having left again enters the land as a trespasser within the period of three months beginning with the day on which the direction was given, he commits an offence and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>8</sup>.

In proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for the defendant to show that he was not trespassing on the land, or that he had a reasonable excuse for failing to leave the land as soon as practicable or, as the case may be, for again entering the land as a trespasser<sup>9</sup>.

1 'Land' does not include the highways and roads excluded from the application of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 by head (2) of the definition of 'land' (see PARA 590 note 2 head (2) ante): s 68(5)(a).

2 Conduct which might amount under customary international law to crimes against peace or crimes of aggression is not unlawful activity for these purposes: R v Jones [2006] UKHL 16, [2006] All ER 741, [2006] 2 WLR 772.

3 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68(1) (amended by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 ss 59(1), (2), 92, Sch 3). For the purposes of the rule against duplicity (see PARA 1220 post), the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68(1) (as amended) creates one offence consisting of one piece of prohibited conduct with one or more of three intents: Nelder v DPP (1998) Times, 11 June, DC; Winder v DPP (1996) 160 JP 713, DC (defendant's conviction under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68(1) upheld where, with intent to disrupt a fox hunt, he had run towards the hunt in order to carry out that intention). A distinct and overt act which is intended to have the effect either of intimidating persons doing a lawful activity so as to deter them from engaging in it, or of disrupting or obstructing that activity, is required in addition to trespass on land to prove the offence of aggravated trespass: DPP v Barnard [2000] Crim LR 371, DC. The lawful activity must be carried out by persons present on the land at the time of the offence: DPP v Tilly, Tilly v DPP [2001] EWHC 821 (Admin), 166 JP 22. If a defendant raises an issue that his intention was to disrupt an unlawful activity, it will not assist the prosecution to limit the description in the charge to some lawful aspect of what was occurring on the land: Ayliffe v DPP, Swain v DPP, Percy v DPP [2005] EWHC 684 (Admin), [2006] QB 227, [2005] 3 All ER 330 (affd R v Jones [2006] UKHL 16, [2006] All ER 741, [2006] 2 WLR 772).

4 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68(2). The words 'he or they may engage in the activity on the land on that occasion without committing an offence or trespassing on the land' simply means that the activity is permitted, that is, that it is lawful when it is being carried out: Ayliffe v DPP, Swain v DPP, Percy v DPP [2005] EWHC 684 (Admin), [2006] QB 227, [2005] 3 All ER 330 (affd R v Jones [2006] UKHL 16, [2006] All ER 741, [2006] 2 WLR 772).

The mere fact that at some point during the defendant's prohibited conduct the activity of his opponents was incidentally unlawful does not prevent an offence being committed if that prohibited conduct with the prescribed intent occurred to an appreciable extent when that activity was lawful: Nelder v DPP supra (trespass by part of hunt at one stage during anti-hunt protest against a hunt which did not otherwise trespass did not prevent the hunt being a lawful activity, apart from the period of the trespass. As to hunting see now the Hunting Act 2004; and ANIMALS vol 2 (2008) PARA 1032 et seq. See also Hibberd v DPP [1997] CLY 1251, DC.

5 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68(3). As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see s 68(3) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 45(1), (7)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

6 'Lawful activity' has the same meaning as in the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68 (as amended; prospectively amended): s 69(6). See the text and note 4 supra.

7 Ibid s 69(1) (amended by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 ss 59(1), (3), 92, Sch 3). Such a direction, if not communicated to the persons in question by the police officer giving the direction, may be communicated to them by any constable at the scene: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 69(2). The actual commission of an offence of aggravated trespass is not a pre-condition for a direction under s 69 (as amended): Capon v DPP (1998) Independent, 23 March, DC. Whether a valid direction has been given under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 69 (as amended) depends on the substance of what is said, and not its form: see Capon v DPP supra. 'Land' has the same meaning as in the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 68 (as amended; prospectively amended) (see note 1 supra): s 69(6).

8 Ibid s 69(3). As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see s 69(3) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 45(1), (8)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

9 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 69(4). As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

As to the powers of the police in respect of 'raves' see the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 ss 63 (as amended); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARAS 297-298.

594. Offences of offering for sale etc profane material, use etc of profane language etc, in a public place etc.

Every person<sup>1</sup> is liable to a fine<sup>2</sup> who, in any thoroughfare or public place<sup>3</sup> in the metropolitan police district or the City of London<sup>4</sup> or in any street<sup>5</sup> elsewhere in England and Wales, offers<sup>6</sup> for sale or distribution, or exhibits to public view, any profane book, paper, print, drawing, painting or representation, or sings any profane<sup>7</sup> or obscene song or ballad, or uses any profane or obscene language to the annoyance of the inhabitants or passengers<sup>8</sup>.

1 'Person' includes a corporation, whether aggregate or sole: Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 3.

2 Under the Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54 (as amended) (see the text and notes 3-8 infra) or the City of London Police Act 1839 s 35, the fine is one not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale: Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54 (amended by the Statute Law Revision (No 2) Act 1888; the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 31, Sch 6; and the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 37, 46(1)); City of London Police Act 1839 s 35 (amended by the City of London (Various Powers) Act 1979 s 21). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. Under the Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 28 (as amended) the fine is one not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale; or alternatively the offender may be committed to prison for a period not exceeding 14 days: Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 28 (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 39(2), 46(1), (4), Sch 3). As from a day to be appointed an offence under these provisions is no longer punishable by imprisonment: see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(1), Sch 25 para 6 (not yet in force). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3 A place where members of the public go although they have no legal right, or where they are invited to go, is a public place: R v Wellard (1884) 14 QBD 63, CCR; R v Collinson (1931) 75 Sol Jo 491, CCA; Elkins v Cartledge [1947] 1 All ER 829, DC. Cf Brannan v Peek [1948] 1 KB 68, [1947] 2 All ER 572, DC. In the context of annoyance to passengers, 'public place' does not include a public house: Russon v Dutton (No 2) (1911) 75 JP 207, DC.

4 As to the metropolitan police district see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 137; and as to the City of London see LONDON GOVERNMENT vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 31.

5 'Street' includes any road, square, court, alley and thoroughfare, or public passage: Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 3. 'Street' includes the carriageway and footway at the sides. In addition, for the purposes of the present offence, any place of public resort or recreation ground belonging to or under the control of the local authority, and any unfenced ground adjoining or abutting upon any street, is deemed to be a 'street': see the Public Health Acts Amendment Act 1907 s 81; and the Local Government Act 1972 s 180, Sch 14 paras 23, 26.

6 Under the Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54(12) (as amended) or the City of London Police Act 1839 s 35(12) (as amended) (see the text to note 8 infra), sale or distribution is itself an offence, as well: see the Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54(12); and the City of London Police Act 1839 s 35(12). In the Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 28 (as amended) (see the text to note 8 infra), 'publicly' is added before 'offers': see s 28.

7 The word 'indecent' is added in the Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54(12) and in the City of London Police Act 1839 s 35(12). Indecent displays visible from a public place comprise an offence under the Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981 s 1 (as amended): see PARA 768 post.

8 Metropolitan Police Act 1839 s 54(12) (amended by the Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981 s 5(2), Schedule); City of London Police Act 1839 s 35(12) (amended by the City of London (Various Powers) Act 1979 s 21); Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 28 (amended by the Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981 s 5(2), Schedule). The requirement of annoyance etc to the residents or passengers qualifies the whole of the Town Police Clauses Act 1847 s 28 (as amended). 'Residents' refers to occupiers of residential premises on the street, and 'passengers' to passers-by: Woolley v Corbishley (1860) 24 JP 773, DC; Read v Perrett (1876) 1 Ex D 349, DC. It is open to a court to find that a police officer who was a passer-by was annoyed at being abused by obscene language: Hoogstraten v Goward [1967] Crim LR 590, DC. Evidence that two constables heard the indecent language is sufficient evidence of annoyance to passengers: Brabham v Wookey (1901) 18 TLR 99, DC. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(11) CRIMINAL ENTRY AND TRESPASS/602. Violence for securing entry.

(11) CRIMINAL ENTRY AND TRESPASS

602. Violence for securing entry.

Any person who, without lawful authority<sup>1</sup>, uses or threatens violence<sup>2</sup> for the purpose of securing entry<sup>3</sup> into any premises<sup>4</sup> for himself or for any other person is guilty of an offence, provided that: (1) there is someone present on those premises at the time who is opposed to the entry which the violence is intended to secure; and (2) the person using or threatening the violence knows that this is the case<sup>5</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>6</sup>.

The offence does not apply to a person who is a displaced residential occupier<sup>7</sup> or a protected intending occupier<sup>8</sup> of the premises in question or who is acting on behalf of such an occupier<sup>9</sup>. This exemption does not have to be proved by the defendant: if he adduces sufficient evidence that he was, or was acting on behalf of, such an occupier he is presumed to be, or to be acting on behalf of, such an occupier unless the contrary is proved by the prosecution<sup>10</sup>.

1 For these purposes, the fact that a person has any interest in or right to possession or occupation of any premises does not constitute lawful authority for the use or threat of violence by him or anyone else for the purpose of securing his entry into those premises: see the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 6(2) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 72(1), (3)).

2 For these purposes, it is immaterial whether the violence in question is directed against the person or against property: Criminal Law Act 1977 s 6(4)(a).

3 For these purposes, it is immaterial whether the entry which the violence is intended to secure is for the purpose of acquiring possession of the premises in question or for any other purpose: ibid s 6(4)(b).

4 For the purposes of ibid Pt II (ss 6-13) (as amended), 'premises' means any building, any part of a building under separate occupation, any land ancillary to a building, and the site comprising any building or buildings together with any land ancillary thereto: s 12(1)(a). References to a building apply also to any structure other than a movable one, and to any movable structure, vehicle or vessel designed or adapted for use for residential purposes: s 12(2). For these purposes: (1) part of a building is under separate occupation if anyone is in occupation or entitled to occupation of that part as distinct from the whole; and (2) land is ancillary to a building if it is adjacent to it and used, or intended for use, in connection with the occupation of that building or any part of it: s 12(2).

5 Ibid s 6(1). No rule of law ousting the jurisdiction of magistrates' courts to try offences where a dispute of title to property is involved precludes magistrates' courts from trying offences under s 6 (as amended): s 12(8).

6 Ibid s 6(5) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1982 ss 37, 38, 46). As from a day to be appointed the maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

A constable may enter and search any premises for the purpose of arresting a person for an offence under the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 6 (as amended), s 7 (as amended) (see PARA 603 post) or s 8 (as amended) (see PARA 604 post): see the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 17(1)(c)(ii); and PARA 884 post.

7 For these purposes, any person who was occupying any premises as a residence immediately before being excluded from occupation by anyone who entered those premises, or any access to those premises, as a trespasser is a displaced residential occupier of the premises so long as he continues to be excluded from occupation of the premises by the original trespasser or by any subsequent trespasser; and a person who is such a displaced residential occupier of any premises is to be regarded as a displaced residential occupier also of any access to those premises: see the Criminal Law Act 1977 ss 6(7), 12(3), (5). 'Access' means, in relation to any premises, any part of any site or building within which those premises are situated which constitutes an ordinary means of access to those premises, whether or not that is its sole or primary use: s 12(1)(b). However, a person who was himself occupying the premises in question as a trespasser immediately before being excluded from occupation is not a displaced residential occupier of the premises in question: see ss 6(7), 12(4). Section 12(6) provides that anyone who enters or is on or in occupation of any premises by virtue of any title derived from a trespasser, or any licence or consent given by a trespasser or by a person deriving title from a trespasser, is himself to be treated as a trespasser for the purposes of Pt II (as amended) (see PARAS 603-604 post); and phrases involving a reference to a trespasser are to be construed accordingly: see ss 6(7), 12(6). Anyone who is on any premises as a trespasser does not cease to be a trespasser by virtue of being allowed time to leave the premises, nor does anyone cease to be a displaced residential occupier of any premises by virtue of any such allowance of time to a trespasser: see ss 6(7), 12(7).

8 There are three types of 'protected intending occupier' ('PIO'). The first type is where, at the time of the request to leave:

- 106 (1) an individual has in the premises in question a freehold interest or leasehold interest with not less than two years still to run (ibid s 6(7) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 72(3), (5)); Criminal Law Act 1977 s 12A(2)(a) (s 12A added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 74));
- 107 (2) an individual requires the premises for his own occupation as a residence (Criminal Law Act 1977 s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(2)(b) (as so added));
- 108 (3) an individual is excluded from occupation of them by a person who entered them, or any access to them, as a trespasser (s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(2)(c) (as so added)); and
- 109 (4) an individual holds, or a person acting on his behalf holds, a written statement, signed by him and witnessed by a justice of the peace or commissioner for oaths, which specifies his interest in the premises and states that he requires the premises for occupation as a residence for himself (s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(2)(d), (3) (as so added)).

The second type of protected intending occupier is where, at the time of the request to leave:

- 110 (a) an individual has a tenancy of the premises (other than a tenancy falling within head (1) supra or head (i) infra) or a licence to occupy them granted by a person with a freehold interest or a leasehold interest with not less than two years still to run in the premises (s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(4)(a) (as so added));
- 111 (b) an individual requires the premises for his own occupation as a residence (s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(4)(b) (as so added));
- 112 (c) an individual is excluded from occupation of the premises by a person who entered them, or any access to them, as a trespasser (s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(4)(c) (as so added)); and
- 113 (d) an individual holds, or a person acting on his behalf holds, a written statement which states that he has been granted a tenancy of those premises or a licence to occupy them, specifies the interest in the premises of the person who granted that tenancy or licence to occupy ('the landlord'), states that he requires the premises for occupation as a residence for himself, and is signed by the landlord and by the tenant or licensee and witnessed by a magistrate or commissioner for oaths (s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(4)(d), (5) (as so added)).

The third type of protected intending occupier is where, at the time of the request to leave:

- 114 (i) an individual has a tenancy of the premises in question (other than a tenancy falling within head (1) supra or head (a) supra) or a licence to occupy them granted by one of the following authorities: (A) any body mentioned in the Rent Act 1977 s 14 (as amended) (see LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 884); (B) the Housing Corporation (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 18); (C) a registered social landlord within the meaning of the Housing Act 1985 (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 66 et seq); and (D) the Secretary of State, if the tenancy or licence is granted by him under the Housing Associations Act 1985 Pt III (ss 74-102) (as amended) (see HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 18 et seq) (Criminal Law Act 1977 s 12A(6)(a) (as so added); s 12A(7) (as so added; and amended by the Government of Wales Act 1998 ss 140, 152, Sch 16 para 3(2), Sch 18; and by the Housing Act 1996 (Consequential Provisions) Order 1996, SI 1996/2325, art 5(1), Sch 2 para 8); Criminal Law Act 1977 s 12A(7A) (s 12A as so added; and s 12A(7A) added by the Government of Wales Act 1998 Sch 16 para 3(1), (3)));

- 115 (ii) an individual requires the premises for his own occupation as a residence (Criminal Law Act 1977 s 12A(6)(b) (as so added));
- 116 (iii) an individual is excluded from occupation of them by a person who entered them, or any access to them, as a trespasser (s 12A(6)(c) (as so added)); and
- 117 (iv) an individual has been issued by or on behalf of the authority referred to in head (i) above with a certificate stating that the authority is one to which these provisions apply and that he has been granted a licence or tenancy by it to occupy the premises as a residence (s 12A(6)(d) (as so added)).

If a person makes a statement for the purposes of head (4) or head (d) supra that he knows to be false in a material particular, or if he recklessly makes such a statement that is false in a material particular, he commits an offence (s 12A(8) (as so added)) and is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both: s 12A(10) (as so added). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

A protected intending occupier of premises is also a protected intending occupier of any access to those premises: Criminal Law Act 1977 s 6(7) (as so amended); s 12A(11) (as so added).

9 See ibid s 6(1A) (added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 72(1), (2)).

10 See the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 6(1A) (as added: see note 9 supra).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(11) CRIMINAL ENTRY AND TRESPASS/603. Adverse occupation of residential premises.

603. Adverse occupation of residential premises.

Any person who is on any premises<sup>1</sup> as a trespasser<sup>2</sup> after having entered as such is guilty of an offence if he fails to leave those premises on being required to do so by or on behalf of: (1) a displaced residential occupier<sup>3</sup> of the premises; or (2) an individual who is a protected intending occupier<sup>4</sup> of the premises<sup>5</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>6</sup>.

In any proceedings for such an offence it is a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>7</sup>:

- 723 (a) that he believed that the person requiring him to leave the premises was not a displaced residential occupier or protected intending occupier of the premises or a person acting on behalf of such an occupier<sup>8</sup>; or
- 724 (b) that the premises in question are or form part of premises used mainly for non-residential purposes and that he was not on any part of the premises used wholly or mainly for residential purposes<sup>9</sup>.

In any such proceedings where the defendant was requested to leave the premises by a person claiming to be or to act on behalf of a protected intending occupier of the premises it is a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>10</sup> that, although asked to do so by the defendant at the time the defendant was requested to leave, that person failed at that time to produce to the defendant a written statement<sup>11</sup> or certificate<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'premises' see PARA 602 note 4 ante. Any reference in the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 7(1)-(3) (as substituted) (see the text and notes 5-9 infra) to any premises includes a reference to any access to them, whether or not any such access itself constitutes premises: s 7(4) (s 7 substituted by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 73). For the meaning of 'access' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

2 Anyone who enters or is on or in occupation of any premises by virtue of: (1) any title derived from a trespasser; or (2) any licence or consent given by a trespasser or by a person deriving title from a trespasser, is himself to be treated as a trespasser, without prejudice to whether or not he would be a trespasser apart from this provision; and references to a person's entering or being on or occupying any premises as a trespasser are to be construed accordingly: Criminal Law Act 1977 s 12(6).

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(11) CRIMINAL ENTRY AND TRESPASS/605. Trespassing on premises of foreign missions etc.

605. Trespassing on premises of foreign missions etc.

A person who enters or is on any specified premises<sup>1</sup> as a trespasser<sup>2</sup> is guilty of an offence<sup>3</sup>. It is, however, a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>4</sup> that he believed that the premises in question were not specified premises<sup>5</sup>. A person convicted of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>6</sup>.

1 The Criminal Law Act 1977 s 9 (as amended) applies to any premises which are or form part of: (1) the premises of a diplomatic mission within the meaning of the definition in the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations (Vienna, 18 April 1961; TS 19 (1965); Cmd 2565), art 1(i) as it has effect in the United Kingdom by virtue of the Diplomatic Privileges Act 1964 s 2, Sch 1 (see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 265 et seq); (2) the premises of a closed diplomatic mission within the meaning of the definition in the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations art 45 as it has effect in the United Kingdom by virtue of the Diplomatic Privileges Act 1964 s 2, Sch 1 (see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 265 et seq); (3) consular premises within the meaning of the definition in the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations (Vienna, 24 April 1963; TS 14 (1973); Cmd 5219), art 1(1)(j) as it has effect in the United Kingdom by virtue of the Consular Relations Act 1968 s 1, Sch 1 (see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 290 et seq); (4) the premises of a closed consular post within the meaning of the definition in the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations art 27 as it has effect in the United Kingdom by virtue of the Consular Relations Act 1968 s 1, Sch 1 (see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 290 et seq); (5) any other premises in respect of which any organisation or body is entitled to inviolability by or under any enactment; and (6) any premises which are the private residence of a diplomatic agent, within the meaning of the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations art 1(e), or of any other person who is entitled to inviolability of residence by or under any enactment: Criminal Law Act 1977 s 9(2), (2A) (s 9(2) amended, and s 9(2A) added, by the Diplomatic and Consular Premises Act 1987 s 7); and see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 270). 2 As to references to a trespasser see PARA 603 note 2 ante.

3 See the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 9(1). Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted against any person except by or with the consent of the Attorney General: s 9(6). ## (12) SQUATTERS: INTERIM POSSESSION ORDERS

606. Trespassing during currency of order.

Where a civil interim possession order has been made<sup>1</sup> in respect of any premises<sup>2</sup> and served in accordance with rules of court, a person who is present on the premises as a trespasser at any time during the currency of the order commits an offence<sup>3</sup>. No such offence is committed by a person if he leaves the premises within 24 hours of the time of service of the order and does not return; or a copy of the order was not fixed to the premises in accordance with rules of court<sup>4</sup>. A person who was in occupation of the premises at the time of service of the order but leaves them commits an offence if he re-enters the premises as a trespasser or attempts to do so after the expiry of the order but within the period of one year beginning with the day on which it was served<sup>5</sup>.

On summary conviction, a person is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>6</sup>.

1    Ie an interim possession order made under rules of court for the bringing of summary proceedings for possession of premises which are occupied by trespassers under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 75(4) (see PARA 607 post): s 76(8).

2    For the meaning of 'premises' see PARA 602 note 4 ante; definition applied by ibid s 76(8).

3    Ibid s 76(1), (2). A person who is in occupation of the premises at the time of service of the order is to be treated for the purposes of s 76 (as amended) as being present as a trespasser: s 76(6).

4    Ibid s 76(3).

5    Ibid s 76(4).

6    Ibid s 76(5). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

A constable may enter and search any premises for the purpose of arresting a person for an offence under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 76 (as amended): see the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 17(1)(c)(iv) (as added); and PARA 884 post.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(12) SQUATTERS: INTERIM POSSESSION ORDERS/607. False or misleading statements.

607. False or misleading statements.

A person commits an offence if, for the purpose of obtaining an interim possession order<sup>1</sup>, he makes a statement<sup>2</sup> which he knows to be false or misleading in a material particular or recklessly makes a statement which is false or misleading in a material particular<sup>3</sup>. A person also commits an offence if, for the purpose of resisting the making of an interim possession order, he makes a statement which he knows to be false or misleading in a material particular or recklessly makes a statement which is false or misleading in a material particular<sup>4</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

1 See PARA 606 note 1 ante.

2 I.e. any statement, in writing or oral and whether as to fact or belief, made in or for the purposes of the proceedings: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 75(4).

3 Ibid s 75(1). A statement is false or misleading in a material particular if it is likely to affect the recipient of the information in taking or refraining from taking a course of action: R v Mallett [1978] 3 All ER 10, 67 Cr App Rep 239, CA (a case concerned with 'material particular' in the context of the Theft Act 1968 s 17).

4 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 75(2).

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(13) UNLAWFUL EVICTION AND HARASSMENT/608. Unlawful eviction of occupier.

(13) UNLAWFUL EVICTION AND HARASSMENT

608. Unlawful eviction of occupier.

If any person unlawfully deprives<sup>1</sup> the residential occupier<sup>2</sup> of any premises<sup>3</sup> of his occupation of the premises or any part of them, or attempts to do so, he is guilty of an offence, unless he proves<sup>4</sup> that he believed<sup>5</sup>, and had reasonable cause to believe, that the residential occupier had ceased to reside in the premises<sup>6</sup>; and he is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

1 Cases properly described as 'locking out' or not admitting the occupier on one or even more isolated occasions, so that in effect he continues to occupy the premises but is then unable to enter, do not fall within the offence under the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(2) (see the text to note 6 infra), but more appropriately within the offence under s 1(3) (as amended) (see PARA 609 post): R v Yuthiwattana (1984) 80 Cr App Rep 55, CA. See also Costelloe v Camden London Borough Council [1986] Crim LR 249, DC.

2 For these purposes, 'residential occupier', in relation to any premises, means a person occupying the premises as a residence, whether under a contract or by virtue of any enactment or rule of law giving him the right to remain in occupation or restricting the right of any other person to recover possession of the premises: Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(1). 'Residential occupier' does not, however, include a contractual licensee whose licence has expired: R v Blankley [1979] Crim LR 166 (decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)). 'Occupying the premises as a residence' has the same meaning as in the Rent Act 1977 (see LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 831): Schon v Camden London Borough Council (1986) 53 P & CR 361, DC.

3 'Premises' is to be given its normal wide meaning: Thurrock UDC v Shina (1972) 23 P & CR 205, DC (decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)); single room may constitute 'premises').

4 This imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden on the defendant and is compatible with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence): see A-G's Reference (No 1 of 2004), R v Edwards, R v Denton, R v Hendley, R v Crowley [2004] EWCA Crim 1025, [2004] 1 WLR 2111, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep 424; and PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

5 The defendant's belief that a couple had ceased to reside in the house is a question for the jury to decide; and the trial judge errs if he takes away from the jury, and himself decides, the questions as to the time and existence of the defendant's belief: R v Davidson-Acres [1980] Crim LR 50, CA.

6 Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(2). Proceedings under the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 may be instituted by councils of districts, London borough councils, councils of Welsh counties and county boroughs, the Common Council of the City of London, and the Council of the Isles of Scilly: s 6 (amended by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 s 22(2), Sch 8 para 4). Nothing in the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1 (as amended) is to be taken to prejudice any liability or remedy to which a person guilty of such an offence may be subject in civil proceedings: s 1(5). As to the possibility of a civil action arising from a criminal offence under s 1(2) see Ashgar v Ahmed (1984) 17 HLR 25, CA; and LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 831. As to the payment of damages by a landlord for unlawfully depriving a residential occupier of any premises of his occupation of the whole or part of the premises see the Housing Act 1988 ss 27, 28 (as amended); and LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 654-655.

8 Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(4) (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2)). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

Where an offence under the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1 (as amended) committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager or secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 1(6). See PARA 38 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(13) UNLAWFUL EVICTION AND HARASSMENT/609. Unlawful harassment of occupier.

609. Unlawful harassment of occupier.

If any person with intent<sup>1</sup> to cause the residential occupier<sup>2</sup> of any premises: (1) to give up the occupation of the premises or any part of them<sup>3</sup>; or (2) to refrain from exercising any right or pursuing any remedy in respect of the premises or any part of them, does acts<sup>4</sup> likely to interfere with the peace or comfort of the residential occupier or members of his household, or persistently<sup>5</sup> withdraws or withholds services reasonably required for the occupation of the premises as a residence, he is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

If the landlord<sup>9</sup> of a residential occupier or an agent of the landlord: (a) does acts likely to interfere with the peace or comfort of the residential occupier or members of his household; or (b) persistently withdraws or withholds services reasonably required for the occupation of the premises in question as a residence, and, in either case he knows, or has reasonable cause to believe, that that conduct is likely to cause the residential occupier to give up the occupation of the whole or part of the premises or to refrain from exercising any right or pursuing any remedy in respect of the whole or part of the premises, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>10</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>11</sup>. A person is not guilty of such an offence, however, if he proves that he had reasonable grounds for doing the acts or withdrawing or withholding the services in question<sup>12</sup>.

1 A specific intent to cause the residential occupier either to give up the premises or to refrain from exercising some right in respect of the premises must be proved before the offence is complete; it is not sufficient to establish indifference to, and unconcern for, the tenant nor is it sufficient to establish a hopeful inactivity over services on the part of the landlord: McCall v Abelesz [1976] QB 585, [1976] 1 All ER 727, CA (decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)). The facts of an earlier incident of harassment may be admissible eg to show animosity by the landlord to the tenant: R v Shepherd (1980) 124 Sol Jo 290, CA.

2 For the meaning of 'residential occupier' see PARA 608 note 2 ante. It must be proved that the defendant knew or believed that the person in question was a residential occupier: R v Pheko [1981] 3 All ER 84, 73 Cr App rep 107, CA.

3 The consequence of doing building work thus affecting the peace or comfort of the occupier is not to be equated with the intent to evict, which must be established: R v AMK (Property Management) Ltd [1985] Crim LR 600, CA. The effect upon the occupier (the actus reus) and the intention (the mens rea) must coincide in point of time: R v AMK (Property Management) Ltd supra. An intention to persuade the occupier to leave for a limited period of time in order to enable work to be done, and thereafter to allow her to return, is not an intent to cause her to give up the occupation of the premises; but it would be an intent falling within head (2) in the text: see Schon v Camden London Borough Council (1986) 53 P & CR 361, DC.

4 Although the plural is used, a single act suffices: R v Evangelos Polycarpou (1978) 9 HLR 129, CA (decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)). It is not necessary that the acts in question should constitute a breach of contract or a tort: R v Yuthiwattana (1984) 80 Cr App Rep 55, CA (where it was sufficient that the defendant's act, a refusal to replace a missing door key for the occupier of a bed-sitting room in her house, was an act calculated to interfere with the occupier's peace and comfort and was an act intended to cause him to give up his occupation of the premises). The words 'does acts' refer to physical acts done: R v AMK (Property Management) Ltd [1985] Crim LR 600, CA. They do not impose a responsibility to rectify damage already caused by an act done innocently without either of the necessary intentions in the offence: R v Ahmad (1986) 84 Cr App Rep 64, CA. As to acts of omission generally see PARA 6 ante. There was conduct in R v Yuthiwattana supra in addition to the refusal to provide a front door key and it seems not to have been argued that the failure to provide a key was a mere omission: R v Ahmad supra. Where a number of different acts are alleged in a single count in an indictment, each of which is sufficient to found a conviction, the jury must be unanimous as to at least one of them: R v Mitchell [1994] Crim LR 66, CA.

5 'Persistently' refers to the offence of withholding as well as to that of withdrawing services: Westminster City Council v Peart (1968) 19 P & CR 736, DC (decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)). The prosecution must prove that there is an element of deliberate continuity in withholding the services, coupled with the necessary intent: R v Abrol [1972] Crim LR 318, CA (decided under the Rent Act 1965 s 30 (repealed)).

6 Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(3) (amended by the Housing Act 1988 s 29(1)). As to offences committed by bodies corporate see PARA 608 note 7 ante. The Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(3) (as amended) creates only one offence: Schon v Camden London Borough Council (1986) 53 P & CR 361, DC. If an act falls within the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(3) (as amended) it is irrelevant that it does not constitute an actionable civil wrong: R v Burke [1991] 1 AC 135, [1990] 2 All ER 385, HL (landlord who prevented a person from using a lavatory adjacent to his room guilty of harassment). As to the institution of proceedings see the Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 6 (as amended); and PARA 608 note 6 ante.

Nothing in s 1 is to be taken to prejudice any liability or remedy to which a person guilty of such an offence may be subject in civil proceedings: s 1(5). As to the possibility of a civil action arising from a criminal offence under s 1(3) (as amended) see Ashgar v Ahmed (1984) 17 HLR 25, CA; and LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 831.

8 Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(6) (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2); and the Housing Act 1988 s 29(1)). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

9 For these purposes, 'landlord', in relation to a residential occupier of any premises, means the person who, but for: (1) the residential occupier's right to remain in occupation of the premises; or (2) a restriction on the person's right to recover possession of the premises, would be entitled to occupation of the premises and any superior landlord under whom that person derives title: Protection from Eviction Act 1977 s 1(3C) (added by the Housing Act 1988 s 29(2)).

Statutory provision is made for the protection of residential occupiers of certain caravan sites against eviction and harassment<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> See the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 3 (as amended); and LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1283. 'Caravan' means any structure designed or adapted for human habitation which is capable of being moved from one place to another (whether by being towed, or by being transported on a motor vehicle or trailer) and any motor vehicle so designed or adapted, but does not include: (1) any railway rolling stock which is for the time being on rails forming part of a railway system; or (2) any tent: Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960 s 29(1); definition applied by the Caravan Sites Act 1968 s 16.

611. Offence of harassment etc of a person in his home.

A person commits an offence if:

- 725 (1) that person is present outside or in the vicinity of any premises that are used by any individual ('the resident') as his dwelling<sup>1</sup>;
- 726 (2) that person is present there for the purpose (by his presence or otherwise) of representing to the resident or another individual (whether or not one who uses the premises as his dwelling), or of persuading the resident or such another individual:
  - 11 16. (a) that he should not do something that he is entitled or required to do<sup>2</sup>; or
  - 17. (b) that he should do something that he is not under any obligation to do<sup>3</sup>;
- 12 727 (3) that person:
  - 13 18. (a) intends his presence<sup>4</sup> to amount to the harassment of, or to cause alarm or distress to, the resident<sup>5</sup>; or
  - 19. (b) knows or ought to know<sup>6</sup> that his presence is likely to result in the harassment of, or to cause alarm or distress to, the resident<sup>7</sup>; and
- 14 728 (4) the presence of that person:
  - 15 20. (a) amounts to the harassment of, or causes alarm or distress to, any of the following persons<sup>8</sup>: the resident, a person in the resident's dwelling, or a person in another dwelling in the vicinity of the resident's dwelling<sup>9</sup>; or
  - 21. (b) is likely to result in the harassment of, or to cause alarm or distress to, any such person<sup>10</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>11</sup>.

1 See the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 42A(1)(a) (s 42A added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 126(1)). For these purposes, 'dwelling' has the same meaning as in the Public Order Act 1986 Pt 1 (ss 1-10) (as amended) (see PARA 558 note 9 ante): Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 42A(7) (as so added).

2 Ibid s 42A(1)(b)(i) (as added: see note 1 supra).

3 Ibid s 42A(1)(b)(ii) (as added: see note 1 supra).

4 The references in heads (3), (4) in the text to a person's presence are references to his presence either alone or together with that of any other persons who are also present: ibid s 42A(3) (as added: see note 1 supra).

5 Ibid s 42A(1)(c)(i) (as added: see note 1 supra). See note 4 supra.

6 For these purposes, a person ('A') ought to know that his presence is likely to result in the harassment of, or to cause alarm or distress to, a resident if a reasonable person in possession of the same information would think that A's presence was likely to have that effect: ibid s 42A(4) (as added: see note 1 supra).

7 Ibid s 42A(1)(c)(ii) (as added: see note 1 supra). See note 4 supra.

8 Ie persons falling within ibid s 42A(2) (as added): see the text to note 9 infra.

9 Ibid s 42A(1)(d)(i), (2) (as added: see note 1 supra). See note 4 supra.

10 Ibid s 42A(1)(d)(ii) (as added: see note 1 supra). See note 4 supra.

11 Ibid s 42A(5), (6) (as added: see note 1 supra). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. In relation to an offence committed after the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(5) (not yet in force) (alteration of penalties for summary offences), the reference to six months is to be read as a reference to 51 weeks: see the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 42A(5), (6) (as so added).

For other offences relating to harassment see PARA 152 et seq ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/5. OFFENCES AGAINST THE STATE OR SECURITY/(13) UNLAWFUL EVICTION AND HARASSMENT/612. Police directions stopping harassment etc of a person in his home.

612. Police directions stopping harassment etc of a person in his home.

A constable who is at the scene may give a direction<sup>1</sup> to any person if:

- 729 (1) that person is present outside or in the vicinity of any premises that are used by any individual ('the resident') as his dwelling<sup>2</sup>;
- 730 (2) that constable believes, on reasonable grounds, that that person is present there for the purpose (by his presence or otherwise) of representing to the resident or another individual (whether or not one who uses the premises as his dwelling), or of persuading the resident or such another individual: (a) that he should not do something that he is entitled or required to do; or (b) that he should do something that he is not under any obligation to do<sup>3</sup>; and
- 731 (3) that constable also believes, on reasonable grounds, that the presence of that person (either alone or together with that of any other persons who are also present) amounts to, or is likely to result in, the harassment of the resident, or is likely to cause alarm or distress to the resident<sup>4</sup>.

Such a direction is a direction requiring the person to whom it is given to do all such things as the constable giving it may specify as the things he considers necessary to prevent one or both of: (i) the harassment of the resident; or (ii) the causing of any alarm or distress to the resident<sup>5</sup>. Such a direction may be given orally; and where a constable is entitled to give such a direction to each of several persons outside, or in the vicinity of, any premises, he may give that direction to those persons by notifying them of his requirements either individually or all together<sup>6</sup>.

The requirements that may be imposed by such a direction include:

- 732 (A) a requirement to leave the vicinity of the premises in question<sup>7</sup>; and
- 733 (B) a requirement to leave that vicinity and not to return to it within such period as the constable may specify, not being longer than three months<sup>8</sup>, and (in either case) the requirement to leave the vicinity may be to do so immediately or after a specified period of time<sup>9</sup>. A direction may make exceptions to any requirement imposed by the direction, and may make any such exception subject to such conditions as the constable giving the direction thinks fit; and those conditions may include conditions as to the distance from the premises in question at which, or otherwise as to the location where, persons who do not leave their vicinity must remain; and conditions as to the number or identity of the persons who are authorised by the exception to remain in the vicinity of those premises<sup>10</sup>.

Any person who knowingly fails to comply with a requirement in such a direction (other than a requirement under head (B) above) is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>11</sup>.

Any person to whom a constable has given such a direction including a requirement under head (B) above commits an offence if he returns to the vicinity of the premises in question within the period specified in the direction beginning with the date on which the direction is given, and does so for the purpose described in head (2) above<sup>12</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or to both<sup>13</sup>.

1 Ibid under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 42 (as amended): see the text and notes 2-13 infra. The power of a constable to give a direction under s 42 (as amended) does not include any power to give a direction at any time when there is a more senior-ranking police officer at the scene, or any power to direct a person to refrain from conduct that is lawful under the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 s 220 (right peacefully to picket a work place: see EMPLOYMENT vol 41 (2009) PARA 1349); but it does include power to vary or withdraw a direction previously given under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 42 (as amended): s 42(6).

2 Ibid s 42(1)(a). 'Dwelling' has the same meaning as in the Public Order Act 1986 Pt I (ss 1-10) (as amended) (see PARA 558 note 9 ante): Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 42(9).

Part 1 (ss 1-27) Alcohol-related violence and disorder

Chapter 1 (ss 1-14) Drinking banning orders

Section 1 provides that a drinking banning order may impose prohibitions on an individual that are necessary for the purpose of protecting other persons from criminal or disorderly conduct by that individual while he is under the influence of alcohol. The period for which such an order may be in force must be not less than two months and not more than two years: s 2. The conditions for applying to a magistrates' court for an order are specified in s 3, and the right to apply for an order in county court proceedings is provided by s 4. Section 5 makes provision for the variation or discharge of orders under s 3 or 4. Under s 6, a criminal court may make a drinking banning order in relation to an individual where appropriate. Supplementary provision with regard to orders under s 6 is made by s 7, and provision for the variation or discharge of orders under s 6 is made by s 8. The court may make an interim drinking banning order while it is considering pursuant to s 6 whether the conditions for making a drinking banning order are satisfied: s 9. Section 10 entitles a person to appeal against an order made under s 3 or 6. By virtue of s 11, it is an offence to do anything prohibited by a drinking banning order. Provision may only be made for an order to cease to have effect on the completion by the subject of an approved course where the Secretary of State has approved the course: s 12. Under s 13, such a course is only to be regarded as completed if an appropriate certificate has been issued. Section 14 deals with interpretation.

Chapter 2 (ss 15-20) Alcohol disorder zones

Section 15 empowers local authorities to impose charges on holders of premises licences allowing the sale by retail of alcohol. Local authorities are also entitled to designate, with the consent of the police, a locality as an alcohol disorder zone where there is a problem with alcohol-related nuisance and disorder in that area: s 16. The procedure for the designation of such a zone is prescribed by s 17. Section 18 specifies the functions of the local chief officer of police in relation to the designation of zones. Under s 19, the Secretary of State is required to issue guidance about the manner in which local authorities, police authorities and chief officers of police are to exercise and perform their powers and duties in relation to alcohol disorder zones. Section 20 deals with interpretation.

Chapter 3 (ss 21-27) Other provisions

Under ss 21 and 22, provision is made for an accelerated review of licensed premises by a licensing authority, and for the attaching of temporary conditions to a premises licence pending the full review of the licence. Section 23 creates a new offence of unlawfully selling alcohol to a person aged under 18 on three or more different occasions in a period of three consecutive months. A senior police officer or an inspector of weights and measures may make a closure notice where there is evidence that a person has committed such an offence: s 24. Where a premises licence requires persons to be present to undertake manned guarding activities, by virtue of s 25 the licence must only contain a mandatory condition that they be licensed by the Security Industry Authority if they are required to be licensed under the Private Security Industry Act 2001. The 2006 Act s 26 limits the circumstances in which premises licensed by local authorities cannot be designated public places where restrictions on public drinking apply. Under s 27, a police constable may issue an individual with a direction to leave a locality for up to 48 hours if the individual is likely to cause or contribute to the occurrence, repetition or continuance of alcohol-related crime or disorder in that locality and the direction is necessary to remove or reduce that likelihood.

Part 2 (ss 28-51) Weapons

Section 28 creates a new offence of using another person to look after, hide or transport a dangerous weapon, and s 29 prescribes the penalties for committing such an offence. By virtue of s 30, the minimum sentences for unlawful possession of certain prohibited weapons also apply to other serious offences involving the possession and criminal use of such weapons. Anyone who wishes to sell air weapons by way of trade or business is required to register with the police as a firearms dealer (s 31); such sales must be made face to face (s 32). The minimum age for acquiring or possessing an air weapon is increased by s 33 from 17 to 18 years. By virtue of s 34, it is an offence to fire an air weapon beyond the boundary of any premise. It is also an offence to purchase or sell primers for ammunition unless the purchaser has a valid firearm certificate or otherwise has lawful authority (s 35), and to manufacture, import or sell realistic imitation firearms (s 36). Defences to a charge of an offence under s 36 are prescribed by s 37, and s 38 defines 'realistic imitation firearm' for the purposes of ss 36 and 37. Under s 39, it is an offence to manufacture, modify or import an imitation firearm which does not conform to specifications set out in regulations made by the Secretary of State. Section 40 makes it an offence to sell an imitation firearm to a person aged under 18, and for a person aged under 18 to purchase an imitation firearm. The maximum custodial sentence for carrying an imitation firearm in a public place without lawful authority or reasonable excuse is increased by s 41 from six months to twelve months. The maximum term of imprisonment for the offences of having an article with a blade or point in a public place, or of having such an article or another offensive weapon on school premises is increased by s 42 from two to four years. The offence of selling a knife or an article with a blade or point to a person aged under 16 is extended by s 43 to persons aged under 18. By virtue of s 44, the age at which a person may be sold or hired a crossbow, and at which a person may buy, hire or possess a crossbow, is increased from 17 to 18 years. A head teacher is enabled by s 45 to search or authorise the search of a pupil and his possessions where there is reason to suspect that he is carrying a knife or other offensive weapon. Equivalent provision is made by s 46 in relation to students of institutions in the further education sector, and by s 47 in relation to persons in attendance centres. Section 48 enables a constable to exercise his powers of entry and search of a school and persons on school premises for weapons where he has reasonable grounds for suspecting a relevant offence has been or is being committed. Section 49, Sch 1 make consequential amendments relating to minimum sentences. Supplementary provision in connection with Pt 2 is made by s 50, and s 51, Sch 2 deal with Northern Ireland.

Part 3 (ss 52-63) Miscellaneous

Section 52, Sch 3 make various amendments to the Football (Disorder) Act 2000 and the Football Spectators Act 1989. The 2006 Act s 53 extends provisions on the sale and disposal of football match tickets by unauthorised persons to cover ticket touting on the internet and other practices associated with the unauthorised sale and distribution of tickets. Section 54, Sch 4 enable the court, when a person is convicted on indictment of trafficking a person for sexual exploitation, to order the forfeiture of a vehicle, ship or aircraft used or intended to be used in connection with the offence. Provision is made by s 55 to ensure the continuity of sexual offences law. Persons who have been or become subject to notification requirements in Scotland as a result of being convicted of a particular sexual offence involving a child are also to be subject to the notification requirements in England and Wales: s 56. By virtue of s 57, persons aged 18 or over who receive a sentence of imprisonment for public protection are required to notify the police of certain personal details for an indefinite period. Section 58 enables a magistrate to authorise the entry and search of the home of a person subject to notification requirements for the purposes of assessing the risks that he may pose to the community. The limitation period for anti-social behaviour orders is amended (s 59) and the power of the court to make a parenting order and a sexual offences prevention order in the same proceedings is also amended (s 60). Section 61 expands certain references to committing for trial to include sending for trial. By virtue of s 62, the offence of changing the unique International Mobile Equipment Identity number on a mobile telephone handset may be committed by offering or agreeing to change or interfere with the number or other unique device identifier. Section 63 exempts certain persons from the licensing requirement in the Private Security Industry Act 2001. The 2006 Act s 64 deals with expenses, s 65, Sch 5 make various repeals, and s 66 deals with the short title, commencement and extent.

622. Security of pathogens and toxins.

The occupier of any premises has a duty to give notice to the Secretary of State before keeping or using any dangerous substance<sup>1</sup>; and the occupier, where so required by notice, must provide the chief officer of police with information about the security of any dangerous substances kept or used in the premises<sup>2</sup>. Information about persons with access to dangerous substances may also be required to be given to the chief officer of police<sup>3</sup>; and the occupier has a duty to comply with any directions given by a constable for the security of any dangerous substance kept or used there<sup>4</sup> and with directions given by the Secretary of State for the disposal of any such substance where security arrangements are inadequate<sup>5</sup>. The police have power to enter premises in order to assess security measures in respect of any dangerous substances kept or used there<sup>7</sup>. A search warrant may be issued if there are reasonable grounds for believing that a dangerous substance is being kept or used in any premises where no notice is in force<sup>8</sup>, or that the occupier is failing to comply with any direction given to him<sup>9</sup>.

Failure without reasonable excuse by an occupier of premises to comply with any duty or direction imposed under these provisions is an offence<sup>10</sup> and a person providing information under these provisions who knowingly or recklessly makes a statement which is false or misleading in a material particular also commits an offence<sup>11</sup>. A person convicted of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>12</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>13</sup> or to both<sup>14</sup>.

2    'Nuclear weapon' includes a nuclear explosive device that is not intended for use as a weapon: ibid s 47(6).

3    Ibid s 47(1)(a). As from a day to be appointed s 47(1)(a) ceases to have effect and provision in connection with offences for causing nuclear explosions is made by the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 (see PARA 625 post): Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 47(9). The Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 is to come into force on such day as the Secretary of State may appoint by order made by statutory instrument: s 15(1). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. Her Majesty may by Order in Council make provision for extending any of the provisions of the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998, with such exceptions, adaptations or modifications as may be specified in the order, to any of the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man or any colony: s 15(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

4    For these purposes, a person participates in the development or production of a nuclear weapon if he does any act which facilitates the development by another of the capability to produce or use a nuclear weapon, or facilitates the making by another of a nuclear weapon, knowing or having reason to believe that his act has, or will have, that effect: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 47(3). See also FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1387.

6    Ibid s 47(1)(c).

7    Ibid s 47(1)(d). For these purposes, a person participates in the transfer of a nuclear weapon if he buys or otherwise acquires it or agrees with another to do so; he sells or otherwise disposes of it or agrees with another to do so; or he makes arrangements under which another person either acquires or disposes of it or agrees with a third person so to do: s 47(4).

8 Ibid s 47(1)(e). Where an offence under s 47, s 50 (see PARA 629 post) or s 54(1) (see note 9 infra) committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 54(3). For these purposes, 'director', in relation to a body corporate whose affairs are managed by its members, means a member of the body corporate: s 54(4). See PARA 38 ante.

It is an offence to assist or induce overseas an offence under s 47: see s 50(2)(c); and PARA 629 note 2 head (3) post.

9 Ibid s 47(7). See also s 51. Section 47(7) does not affect any criminal liability arising otherwise than under it: s 47(8). A justice of the peace may issue a warrant authorising an officer authorised by the Secretary of State to enter and search for evidence of the commission of an offence under s 47 or s 50 (see PARA 629 post) and obstructing an officer exercising this power, or failing to comply with a reasonable request by an officer exercising this power, is an offence: see s 52. It is an offence knowingly or recklessly to make a false or misleading statement for the purpose of obtaining, or opposing the variation or withdrawal of, authorisation for the purposes of s 47 or s 50 (see PARA 629 post): s 54(1). The penalty for this offence on conviction on indictment is imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction is a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum: s 54(2). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. 'United Kingdom person' means a United Kingdom national, a Scottish partnership or a body incorporated under the law of a part of the United Kingdom: s 56(1). For this purpose, a United Kingdom national is an individual who is: (1) a British citizen, a British overseas territories citizen, a British National (Overseas) or a British overseas citizen; (2) a person who under the British Nationality Act 1981 is a British subject; or (3) a British protected person within the meaning of that Act: Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 56(2) (amended by the British Overseas Territories Act 2002 s 2(3)). As to British citizenship, British overseas territories citizenship, British National (Overseas) status, British overseas citizenship, British subject status and British protected person status see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 23 et seq. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

Acts authorised by the Secretary of State or done in the course of an armed conflict are excepted from Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 47: see s 48.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that any of the provisions of Pt 6 (ss 43-57) (as amended) are to extend, with such exceptions and modifications as appear to be appropriate, to any of the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man or any British overseas territory: s 57. See the Chemical Weapons (Overseas Territories) Order 2005, SI 2005/854.

10 Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 49(1). The defendant will be taken to have shown that fact if sufficient evidence is adduced to raise an issue with respect to it and the contrary is not proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt: s 49(2).

11 See ibid s 49(3). As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

12 Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 47(5).

13 Ibid s 55(a). As to the effect of these limitations see PARA 1071 post. Subject to s 55(a), proceedings for a nuclear weapons offence (ie an offence under s 47 or s 50 (see PARA 629 post), including aiding, abetting, counselling, procuring or inciting the commission of, or attempting or conspiring to commit, such an offence) may be instituted by the Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions or by order of the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs if the offence has involved the development or production outside the United Kingdom of a nuclear weapon or the movement of a nuclear weapon into or out of any country or territory or any proposal or attempt to do one of those things: s 53(1), (2) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(6), Sch 4 para 87(a)). Any proceedings for an offence which are instituted by order of the Commissioners under the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 53(1) must be commenced in the name of an officer of Revenue and Customs, but may be continued by another officer: s 53(3) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(6), Sch 4 para 87(b)(i)). Where the Commissioners investigate, or propose to investigate, any matter with a view to determining whether there are grounds for believing that a nuclear weapons offence has been committed; or whether a person should be prosecuted for such an offence, that matter is treated as an assigned matter: s 53(4) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(6), Sch 4 para 87(c)). 'Assigned matter' means any matter in relation to which the Commissioners, or officers of Revenue and Customs, have a power or duty: Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 53(4); Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 1(1) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 50(6), Sch 4 paras 20, 22(a)). Nothing in the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 53 (as amended) affects any other powers of any person, including any officer: s 53(5). The Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions is appointed under the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 34: see PARA 1068 post. As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs and their officers see PARA 354 note 2 ante.

B. NUCLEAR EXPLOSIONS (PROHIBITION AND INSPECTIONS) ACT 1998

625. Nuclear weapon explosions.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, any person who knowingly causes a nuclear weapon test explosion or any other nuclear explosion is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life<sup>2</sup>. This applies to acts done in the United Kingdom or elsewhere<sup>3</sup>; and proceedings for an offence committed outside the United Kingdom may be taken, and the offence may for incidental purposes be treated as having been committed, in any place in the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>. The offence does not apply to a nuclear weapon explosion carried out in the course of an armed conflict<sup>5</sup>.

Proceedings may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>6</sup>.

The court by or before which a person is convicted may order that anything shown to the court's satisfaction to relate to the offence is forfeited, and either destroyed or otherwise dealt with in such manner as the court may order; and, in particular, the court may order the thing to be dealt with as the Secretary of State may see fit and in such a case the Secretary of State may direct that it be destroyed or otherwise dealt with<sup>7</sup>.

The Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 gives effect to certain provisions of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty (New York, 10 September 1996; Cm 3665): Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 preamble, s 4. The Secretary of State may by order make such additions to, omissions from or other modifications to the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 as he considers necessary or desirable to give effect to any amendment of the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty made in pursuance of its provisions: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 13(1), (5). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 13(2). Where such an order modifies the Act solely to give effect to an amendment or amendments made in accordance with the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty art VII(8), the instrument containing the order is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament and, in any other case, the order must not be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by resolution of each House of Parliament: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspection) Act 1998 s 13(3), (4). The Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 binds the Crown and no contravention by the Crown of a provision made by or under that Act may make the Crown criminally liable; but the High Court may, on the application of a person appearing to the court to have an interest, declare unlawful any act or omission of the Crown which constitutes such a contravention: s 14(1), (2). Notwithstanding this provision, the provisions made by or under the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 apply to persons in the public service of the Crown as they apply to other persons: s 14(3). Nothing in s 14 affects Her Majesty in her private capacity and this provision is to be construed as if the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 s 38(3) (meaning of 'Her Majesty in her private capacity': see CROWN AND ROYAL FAMILY vol 12(1) (Reissue) PARA 56) were contained in the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998: s 14(4).

3 Ibid s 2(1). So far as it applies to acts done outside the United Kingdom, s 1 applies to United Kingdom nationals, Scottish partnerships, and bodies incorporated under the law of any part of the United Kingdom: s 2(2). For these purposes, a United Kingdom national is an individual who is: (1) a British citizen, a British overseas territories citizen, a British National (Overseas) or a British overseas citizen; (2) a person who under the British Nationality Act 1981 is a British subject; or (3) a British protected person within the meaning of that Act: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 2(3) (amended by the British Overseas Territories Act 2002 s 2(3)). As to British citizenship, British overseas territories citizenship, British national (overseas) status, British overseas citizenship, British subject status and British protected person status see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 23 et seq. Her Majesty may by Order in Council extend the application of the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 1, so far as it applies to acts done outside the United Kingdom, to bodies incorporated under the law of any of the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man or any colony: s 2(4). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

4 Ibid s 2(5).

5 Ibid s 1(2). If in proceedings for an offence under s 1 any question arises as to whether a nuclear weapon explosion was or was not carried out in the course of an armed conflict, that question is to be determined by the Secretary of State and a certificate purporting to set out any such determination and to be signed by the Secretary of State will be received in evidence and be deemed to be so signed without further proof, unless the contrary is shown: s 1(3). See also ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 422; WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 496.

6 Ibid s 3(1)(a).

7 Ibid s 3(2), (3). Where the court proposes to order anything to be forfeited under s 3, and a person claiming to have an interest in it applies to be heard by the court, the court must not order it to be forfeited unless he has been given an opportunity to show cause why the order should not be made: s 3(4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(1) BIOLOGICAL, CHEMICAL AND NUCLEAR WEAPONS/(ii) Nuclear Weapons/B. NUCLEAR EXPLOSIONS (PROHIBITION AND INSPECTIONS) ACT 1998/626. On-site inspections.

626. On-site inspections.

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, the Secretary of State may issue an authorisation in respect of an on-site inspection<sup>2</sup> in the United Kingdom<sup>3</sup>. The authorisation must contain a description of the area ('the specified area')<sup>4</sup> in which the inspection is to be conducted<sup>5</sup> and state the names of the members of the inspection team<sup>6</sup>, the name of any observer<sup>7</sup> and the name of the UK representative or representatives<sup>8</sup>.

The authorisation has the effect of:

- 736 (1) authorising the inspection team to exercise within the specified area such rights of access, entry and unobstructed inspection as are conferred on it by the Treaty's inspection provisions<sup>9</sup>;
- 737 (2) authorising the inspection team to do such other things within that area in connection with the inspection as it is entitled to do by virtue of those provisions<sup>10</sup>;
- 738 (3) authorising the UK representative or representatives to accompany the inspection team in accordance with those provisions<sup>11</sup>;
- 739 (4) authorising any constable to give such assistance as a UK representative requests for the purpose of facilitating the conduct of the inspection in accordance with those provisions<sup>12</sup>; and
- 740 (5) authorising any observer to exercise within the specified area such rights of access and entry as are conferred on him by those provisions<sup>13</sup>.

The Secretary of State may reimburse any person in respect of expenditure incurred in connection with an on-site inspection<sup>14</sup>.

1 See PARA 623 note 3 ante.

2 'On-site inspection' means an on-site inspection carried out in accordance with the Treaty's inspection provisions: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 4. 'The Treaty's inspection provisions' means the provisions of art IV of, and Pt II of the Protocol to, the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty (New York, 10 September 1996; Cm 3665): Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 4.

3 Ibid s 5(1). The validity of any authorisation purporting to be issued under s 5 in respect of an on-site inspection will not be called in question in any court of law at any time before the conclusion of that inspection: s 6(2). Accordingly, where an authorisation purports to be issued under s 6 in respect of an on-site inspection, no proceedings, of whatever nature, are to be brought at any time before the conclusion of the inspection if they would, if successful, have the effect of preventing, delaying or otherwise affecting the carrying out of the inspection: s 6(3). As to offences committed in respect of on-site inspections see PARA 627 post. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

4 The Secretary of State may issue an amendment varying the specified area and:

- 118 (1) from the time when an amendment is expressed to take effect, ibid s 5 applies as if the specified area were the area as varied (s 6(5)(a));
- 119 (2) the provisions of s 5(2) (notes 5-8 infra) apply to the amendment as they apply to the authorisation (s 6(5)(b)); and

- 120 (3) the Secretary of State may issue further amendments varying the specified area and in such a case heads (1) and (2) supra apply (s 6(5)(c)).

5 Ibid s 5(2)(a). The occupier of any premises (or a person acting on behalf of the occupier of any such premises):

- 121 (1) in relation to which it is proposed to exercise a right of entry in reliance on an authorisation under s 5; or 122 (2) on which an on-site inspection is being carried out in reliance on such an authorisation, is entitled to require a copy of the authorisation to be shown to him by any UK representative: s 6(1).

'UK representative', in relation to an on-site inspection, means a representative of the United Kingdom who, in accordance with the Treaty's inspection provisions, liaises with and accompanies the inspection team during the performance of its duties: s 4. 'Inspection team', in relation to an on-site inspection, means the team of inspectors and inspection assistants selected, in accordance with the Treaty's provisions, for the purposes of the inspection: s 4. If in any proceedings any question arises whether a person at any time was or was not a member of the inspection team, an observer or a UK representative, a certificate signed by or on behalf of the Secretary of State stating any fact relating to that question is conclusive evidence of that fact; and a certificate purporting to be so signed is deemed to be so signed without further proof unless the contrary is shown: s 6(4). 'Observer', in relation to an on-site inspection, means a representative of a party to the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty, who in accordance with the Treaty's inspection provisions, is sent by that party to observe the conduct of the inspection: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 4.

Members of inspection teams and observers enjoy the same privileges and immunities as are enjoyed by diplomatic agents in accordance with the Diplomatic Privileges Act 1964 s 2(1), Sch 1 art 29, art 30 paras 1, 2, art 31 paras 1-3, art 34: see the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 8(1), (7). The Diplomatic Privileges Act 1964 sets out articles of the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations (Vienna, 2 March to 14 April 1961; Misc 6 (1961); Cmnd 1368) having force of law in the United Kingdom. See the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 8(7). See further INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARA 265 et seq. Such persons, in addition, enjoy the same privileges as are enjoyed by diplomatic agents in accordance with the Diplomatic Privileges Act 1964 Sch 1 art 36 para 1(b), except in relation to articles the importing or exporting of which is prohibited by law or controlled by the enactments relating to quarantine: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 8(2). 'Enactment' includes an enactment comprised in subordinate legislation (ie within the meaning of the Interpretation Act 1978: see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1232): Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 8(7). The privileges and immunities accorded to members of inspection teams and observers by virtue of s 8 are enjoyed by them at any time when they are in the United Kingdom in connection with the carrying out there of an on-site inspection, or while in transit to or from the territory of another party to the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty in connection with the carrying out of such an inspection there: Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 8(4). Samples and approved equipment carried by members of an inspection team are inviolable and exempt from customs duties: s 8(3). 'Approved equipment' and 'samples' are to be construed in accordance with the Treaty's inspection provisions: s 8(7). If in any proceedings any question arises whether a person is or is not entitled to any privilege or immunity by virtue of s 8, a certificate signed by or on behalf of the Secretary of State stating any fact relating to that question is conclusive evidence of that fact; and a certificate purporting to be so signed is deemed to be so signed without further proof, unless the contrary is shown: s 8(6). If immunity from jurisdiction of a member of an inspection team is waived in accordance with Pt II para 30 of the Protocol to the Comprehensive Nuclear-Test Ban Treaty, and a notice made by the Secretary of State and informing the member of the waiver is delivered to him in person, then, from the time the notice is so delivered, the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 s 8 does not have effect to confer that immunity on the member: s 8(5). The Secretary of State may, by order, apply s 8 with such modifications as he considers appropriate to the Director General and members of the staff of the Technical Secretariat established in accordance with the Treaty: s 8(8). Such an order must be made by statutory instrument and no such order may be made unless a draft has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament: s 8(9).

As from a day to be appointed<sup>1</sup>, if a justice of the peace is satisfied on information on oath that there is reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence under the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998 is being, has been or is about to be committed on any premises or that evidence of the commission of such an offence is to be found there, he may issue a warrant in writing authorising a person acting under the authority of the Secretary of State to enter the premises, if necessary by force, at any time within one month from the time of the issue of the warrant, and to search them<sup>2</sup>.

A person who enters the premises under the authority of the warrant may:

- 741 (1) take with him such other persons and such equipment as appear to him to be necessary<sup>3</sup>;
- 742 (2) inspect any document found on the premises which he has reasonable cause to believe may be required as evidence for the purposes of proceedings in respect of an offence under the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspections) Act 1998<sup>4</sup>;
- 743 (3) take copies of or seize and remove, any such document<sup>5</sup>;
- 744 (4) inspect, seize and remove any device or equipment found on the premises which he has reasonable cause to believe may be required as such evidence<sup>6</sup>;
- 745 (5) inspect, sample, seize and remove any substance found on the premises which he has reasonable cause to believe may be required as such evidence<sup>7</sup>.

A constable who enters the premises under the authority of the warrant or by virtue of head (1) above, may search any person found on the premises whom he has reasonable cause to believe to be in possession of any document, device or substance which may be required as evidence for the purposes of proceedings in respect of an offence under the Nuclear Explosions (Prohibition and Inspection) Act 1998<sup>8</sup>.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(1) BIOLOGICAL, CHEMICAL AND NUCLEAR WEAPONS/(iii) Overseas Offences/629. Assisting or inducing certain weapons-related acts overseas.

(iii) Overseas Offences

629. Assisting or inducing certain weapons-related acts overseas.

It is an offence for a United Kingdom person<sup>1</sup> to aid, abet, counsel or procure, or incite, a person who is not a United Kingdom person to do certain weapons-related acts overseas<sup>2</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life<sup>3</sup>. The offence applies to acts done outside the United Kingdom, but only if they are done by a United Kingdom person<sup>4</sup>. Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom person' see PARA 623 note 9 ante. As to the commission of this offence by a body corporate see the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 54(3); and PARA 623 note 8 ante.

2 Ibid s 50(1). For these purposes, a relevant act is an act that, if done by a United Kingdom person, would contravene any of the following provisions:

123 (1) the Biological Weapons Act 1974 s 1 (offences relating to biological agents and toxins: see WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 469) (Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 50(2)(a));

124 (2) the Chemical Weapons Act 1996 s 2 (offences relating to chemical weapons: see WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 474) (Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 50(2)(b)); or 125 (3) the Anti-terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 s 47 (offences relating to nuclear weapons: see PARA 623 ante) (s 50(2)(c)).

Nothing in s 50 applies to an act which relates to a relevant act which would contravene s 47 (see PARA 623 ante) and is authorised by the Secretary of State: s 50(3).

A justice of the peace may issue a warrant authorising an officer authorised by the Secretary of State to enter and search for evidence of the commission of an offence under s 50: see s 52; and PARA 623 ante.

A person accused of an offence under s 50 in relation to a relevant act which would contravene a provision mentioned in s 50(2) may raise any defence which would be open to a person accused of the corresponding offence ancillary to an offence under that provision: s 50(4).

Nothing in s 50 prejudices any criminal liability existing apart from s 50: s 50(7).

Her Majesty may by Order in Council direct that any of the provisions of Pt 6 (ss 43-57) (as amended) are to extend, with such exceptions and modifications as appear to be appropriate, to any of the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man or any British overseas territory: s 57. ### (i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession

A. RESTRICTIONS ON ACQUISITION, PURCHASE AND POSSESSION

630. Meaning of 'firearm'.

'Firearm' means a lethal<sup>1</sup> barrelled weapon of any description from which any shot, bullet or other missile can be discharged<sup>2</sup>, and includes: (1) any prohibited weapon<sup>3</sup>, whether it is such a lethal weapon or not<sup>4</sup>; and (2) any component part<sup>5</sup> of such a lethal or prohibited weapon<sup>6</sup>; and (3) any accessory to any such weapon designed or adapted to diminish the noise or flash caused by firing the weapon<sup>7</sup>.

1 'Lethal weapon' includes a weapon not designed to kill or inflict injury but capable of causing injury from which death might result: Read v Donovan [1947] KB 326, [1947] 1 All ER 37, DC (signal pistol, capable of killing at short range); Muir v Cassidy 1953 SLT 4, Ct of Sess (double-barrelled pistol with holes bored in the sides of the barrels; holes might be filled up so as to make it effective with live ammunition); Moore v Gooderham [1960] 3 All ER 575, [1960] 1 WLR 1308, DC (air gun capable, if misused, of causing injury from which death might result); Herron v Flockhart 1969 SLT (Sh Ct) 37 (air gun); R v Thorpe [1987] 2 All ER 108, 85 Cr App Rep 107, CA (six-chamber revolver, loaded with .177 air pellets, propelled by release of compressed carbon dioxide; when misused capable of causing injury from which death might result). In determining whether a particular weapon is a 'firearm' there are two issues: (1) whether it is a weapon from which any shot etc can be discharged or whether it can be adapted so as to discharge any such missile; (2) if so, whether it is a lethal barrelled weapon: Grace v DPP (1988) 153 JP 491, [1989] Crim LR 365, DC. The reported cases do not establish that a particular weapon is, as a matter of law, a lethal weapon: Grace v DPP supra. There must be evidence that the weapon is one from which any missile could be discharged or which could be adapted so as to be capable of discharging a missile: Grace v DPP supra. Expert evidence is not necessary; it can come from a person who has seen the weapon fired or from someone familiar with such a weapon who could indicate to the court not only that it did work but also what its observed effect was when it was fired: Grace v DPP supra. However, evidence of the observed effect of the firing of a weapon is not essential; a court need not and should not shut its eyes as to the knowledge and characteristics of the weapon in respect of which there was evidence that it was working properly: Castle v DPP (1998) Times, 3 April, DC (evidence from salesman that weapons were in normal working order, were capable of killing small vermin and of being used in target practice, but no evidence of observed effects of firing; justices entitled to find that they were 'lethal barrelled weapons').

2 It is presumed, unless the contrary is shown, that a firearm has been rendered incapable of discharging any shot, bullet or other missile, and has consequently ceased to be a firearm within the meaning of the Firearms Act 1968 and the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988, if: (1) it bears a mark which has been approved by the Secretary of State for denoting that fact and which has been made either by one of the two companies mentioned in the Firearms Act 1968 s 58(1) (see PARA 634 note 1 post) or by such other person as may be approved by the Secretary of State for these purposes; and (2) that company or person has certified in writing that work has been carried out on the firearm in a manner approved by the Secretary of State for rendering it incapable of discharging any shot, bullet or other missile: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 8.

3 See PARA 661 post.

4 Firearms Act 1968 s 57(1)(a).

5 A weapon which, although incapable of discharging a missile, can be adapted or altered to do so is a component part: R v Freeman [1970] 2 All ER 413, [1970] 1 WLR 788, CA (starting pistol capable of discharging bullets if barrel was drilled; barrel partially drilled; held to be a firearm); applying Cafferata v Wilson [1936] 3 All ER 149, DC (dummy revolver capable of conversion by drilling into weapon capable of killing man at a range of 5 ft; held to be a firearm).

6 Firearms Act 1968 s 57(1)(b).

7 Ibid s 57(1)(c). Where a judge determines that a weapon is capable of amounting to a firearm, he should leave to the jury the question whether it does so amount, since the matter is a question of mixed fact and law: R v Singh [1989] Crim LR 724, (1989) Times, 29 May, CA. Something which is an integral part of a weapon is not an accessory, albeit that it may increase the lethal qualities of the weapon: Broome v Walter [1989] Crim LR 725, DC (justices entitled to conclude that a detachable muzzle which acted as a silencer was not an accessory). Contrast R v Buckfield [1998] Crim LR 673, CA (whether silencer which is not an integral part of the weapon is an accessory as a question of fact; it is if it can be used with the weapon and the defendant had it for that purpose, even if it was manufactured for a different weapon).

630-698 Firearms, Ammunition and Air Weapons

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

630 Meaning of 'firearm'

NOTE 1--An electric stun gun is a firearm within the meaning of the 1968 Act s 57(1): R v Weaver (appeal under s 58 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003) [2007] All ER (D) 134 (Oct), CA.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/A. RESTRICTIONS ON ACQUISITION, PURCHASE AND POSSESSION/631. Imitation firearms.

631. Imitation firearms.

Certain offences under the Firearms Act 1968 are expressly committed in respect of an imitation firearm<sup>1</sup>. An imitation firearm is any thing which has the appearance of being a firearm, other than a specified prohibited weapon<sup>2</sup>, whether or not it is capable of discharging any shot, bullet or other missile<sup>3</sup>. In respect of most other offences under the Firearms Act 1968<sup>4</sup>, the Act applies to an imitation firearm, but only if it has the appearance of being a firearm requiring a firearm certificate<sup>5</sup>, and it is so constructed or adapted as to be readily convertible<sup>6</sup> into a firearm<sup>7</sup>. This definition does not apply to component parts or accessories<sup>8</sup>.

1 Ie the Firearms Act 1968 s 16A (as added): see PARA 675 post.

2 Ie other than any weapon of whatever description designed or adapted for the discharge of any noxious liquid, gas or other thing: see ibid s 5(1)(b); and PARA 661 head (8) post.

3 Ibid s 57(4).

4 For exceptions see note 7 infra.

5 Ie under the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended): see PARA 634 post.

6 For these purposes, an imitation firearm is to be regarded as readily convertible into a firearm if: (1) it can be so converted without any special skill on the part of the person converting it in the construction or adaptation of firearms of any description; and (2) the work involved in converting it does not require equipment or tools other than such as are in common use by persons carrying out works of construction and maintenance in their own homes: Firearms Act 1982 s 1(6).

7 Ibid s 1(1), (2). Subject to ss 1(3)-(6), 2(2), the Firearms Act 1968 applies in relation to an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1982 applies as it applies in relation to a firearm to which the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 634 post) applies: Firearms Act 1982 s 1(2), (3). References in the Firearms Act 1968, and in any order made under s 6 (see PARA 667 post) to firearms (without qualification) or to firearms to which s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 634 post) applies are to be read as including imitation firearms to which the Firearms Act 1982 applies: s 2(1). However, the following provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 do not apply by virtue of the Firearms Act 1982 to an imitation firearm to which that Act applies:

126 (1) the Firearms Act 1968 s 4(3), (4) (offence to convert anything having appearance of firearm into a firearm and aggravated offence under s 1 (as amended) involving a converted firearm: see PARA 678 post); and

127 (2) the provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 which relate to, or to the enforcement of control over, the manner in which a firearm is used or the circumstances in which it is carried (ie s 16 (as amended) (see PARA 674 post), s 16A (as added) (see PARA 675 post), s 17 (as amended) (see PARAS 676-677 post), s 18 (see PARA 679 post), s 19 (see PARA 680 post), s 20 (see PARA 681 post), s 47 (see PARA 694 post)), but without prejudice, in the case of the provisions mentioned in head (2) supra, to the application to such an imitation firearm of such of those provisions as apply to imitation firearms apart from the Firearms Act 1982: s 2(2), (3). However, for the purposes of s 1 and the Firearms Act 1968 as it applies by virtue of the Firearms Act 1982 s 1, the definition of air weapon in the Firearms Act 1968 s 1(3)(b) (see PARA 633 post) has effect without the exclusion of any type declared by the Secretary of State to be specially dangerous (see PARA 633 note 3 post); and (b) the definition of firearm in s 57(1) (see PARA 630 ante) has effect without s 57(1)(b), (c) (component parts and accessories: see PARA 630 heads (2), (3) ante): Firearms Act 1982 s 1(4).

In any proceedings brought by virtue of the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 for an offence under that Act involving an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1982 applies, it is a defence for the defendant to show that he did not know and had no reason to suspect that the imitation firearm was so constructed or adapted as to be readily convertible into a firearm to which the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended) applies: Firearms Act 1982 s 1(5).

The provisions of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988, other than s 15 (see PARA 651 post) and s 17 (see PARA 655 post), are to be treated as contained in the Firearms Act 1968 for the purposes of the Firearms Act 1982 (imitation firearms readily convertible into firearms to which the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended) applies): Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(7). The provisions of the Firearm (Amendment) Act 1997 are also to be treated as contained in the Firearms Act 1968 for the purposes of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1982: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 50(6).

TEXT AND NOTES--The following provisions come into force on 1 October 2007: SI 2007/2180. It is an offence for a person under the age of 18 to purchase an imitation firearm: Firearms Act 1968 s 24A(1) (s 24A added by the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 s 40(1)). It is an offence to sell an imitation firearm to a person under the age of 18: 1968 Act s 24A(2) (s 24A as so added). In proceedings for an offence under s 24A(2) it is a defence to show that the person charged with the offence (1) believed the other person to be aged 18 or over; and (2) had reasonable ground for that belief: s 24A(3) (s 24A as so added). For the purposes of s 24A a person is taken to have shown the matters specified in s 24A(3) if (a) sufficient evidence of those matters is adduced to raise an issue with respect to them; and (b) the contrary is not proved beyond a reasonable doubt: s 24A(4) (s 24A as so added). See further 1968 Act Sch 6 Pt 1; and PARA 634.

631A. Manufacture, import and sale of realistic imitation firearms.

The following provisions come into force on 1 October 2007: SI 2007/2180.

1. Manufacture, import and sale of realistic imitation firearms

A person is guilty of an offence if (1) he manufactures a realistic imitation firearm<sup>1</sup>; (2) he modifies an imitation firearm so that it becomes a realistic imitation firearm; (3) he sells a realistic imitation firearm; or (4) he brings a realistic imitation firearm into Great Britain or causes one to be brought into Great Britain<sup>2</sup>. The Secretary of State may by regulations (a) provide for exceptions and exemptions from the above offence<sup>3</sup>; and (b) provide for it to be a defence in proceedings for such an offence to show the matters specified or described in the regulations<sup>4</sup>. Such regulations may (i) frame any exception, exemption or defence by reference to an approval or consent given in accordance with the regulations; (ii) provide for approvals and consents to be given in relation to particular cases or in relation to such descriptions of case as may be specified or described in the regulations; and (iii) confer the function of giving approvals or consents on such persons specified or described in the regulations as the Secretary of State thinks fit<sup>5</sup>. The power of the Secretary of State to make regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>6</sup>. A realistic imitation firearm brought into Great Britain is liable to forfeiture under the customs and excise Acts<sup>7</sup>.

An offence under the above provisions is punishable, on summary conviction in England and Wales, with imprisonment for a term not exceeding 51 weeks or with a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>8</sup>, or with both<sup>9</sup>.

1 In the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 s 36 'realistic imitation firearm' has the meaning given by s 38: s 36(11).

In ss 36 and 37 'realistic imitation firearm' means an imitation firearm which (1) has an appearance that is so realistic as to make it indistinguishable, for all practical purposes, from a real firearm; and (2) is neither a de-activated firearm nor itself an antique: s 38(1). 'Real firearm' means (a) a firearm of an actual make or model of modern firearm (whether existing or discontinued); or (b) something falling within a description which could be used for identifying, by reference to their appearance, the firearms falling within a category of actual modern firearms which, even though they include firearms of different makes or models (whether existing or discontinued) or both, all have the same or a similar appearance: s 38(7). In s 38(7) 'modern firearm' means any firearm other than one the appearance of which would tend to identify it as having a design and mechanism of a sort first dating from before the year 1870: s 38(8). 'De-activated firearm' means an imitation firearm that consists in something which (i) was a firearm; but (ii) has been so rendered incapable of discharging a shot, bullet or other missile as no longer to be a firearm: s 38(7). For the purposes of s 38, an imitation firearm is not (except by virtue of head (bb)) to be regarded as distinguishable from a real firearm for any practical purpose if it could be so distinguished only (A) by an expert; (B) on a close examination; or (C) as a result of an attempt to load or to fire it: s 38(2). In determining for the purposes of s 38 whether an imitation firearm is distinguishable from a real firearm (aa) the matters that must be taken into account include any differences between the size, shape and principal colour of the imitation firearm and the size, shape and colour in which the real firearm is manufactured; and (bb) the imitation is to be regarded as distinguishable if its size, shape or principal colour is unrealistic for a real firearm: s 38(3). 'Colour' is to be construed in accordance with s 38(9): s 38(7). References in s 38, in relation to an imitation firearm or a real firearm, to its colour include references to its being made of transparent material: s 38(9). The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that, for the purposes of head (bb) the size of an imitation firearm is to be regarded as unrealistic for a real firearm only if the imitation firearm has dimensions that are less than the dimensions specified in the regulations; and a colour is to be regarded as unrealistic for a real firearm only if it is a colour specified in the regulations: s 38(4). The power of the Secretary of State to make regulations under s 38 is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 38(5). That power includes power to make different provision for different cases; to make provision subject to such exemptions and exceptions as the Secretary of State thinks fit; and to make such incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision as he thinks fit: s 38(6). See Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 (Realistic Imitation Firearms) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2606.

The Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 8 (under which firearms are deemed to be deactivated if they are appropriately marked) applies for the purposes of the 2006 Act s 38 as it applies for the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968: 2006 Act s 38(10).

2 Ibid s 36(1). Section 36(1) has effect subject to the defences in s 37 (see PARA 631A.2): s 36(2).

3 I.e. the offence under ibid s 36(1).

4 Ibid s 36(3). See SI 2007/2606.

5 2006 Act s 36(4).

6 Ibid s 36(5). That power includes power (1) to make different provision for different cases; (2) to make provision subject to such exemptions and exceptions as the Secretary of State thinks fit; and (3) to make such incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision as he thinks fit: s 36(6).

7 Ibid s 36(7). In s 36(7) 'the customs and excise Acts' has the meaning given by the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 1: 2006 Act s 36(8).

8 As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

9 2006 Act s 36(9).

In relation to an offence committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(5), the reference in the 2006 Act s 36(9) to 51 weeks is to be read as a reference to six months: s 36(10).

2. Specific defences

It is a defence for a person charged with an offence<sup>1</sup> in respect of any conduct to show that the conduct was for the purpose only of making the imitation firearm in question available for one or more of the purposes specified below<sup>2</sup>. Those purposes are (1) the purposes of a museum or gallery<sup>3</sup>; (2) the purposes of theatrical performances and of rehearsals for such performances; (3) the production of films<sup>4</sup>; (4) the production of television programmes<sup>5</sup>; (5) the organisation and holding of historical re-enactments<sup>6</sup> organised and held by persons specified or described for the purposes of these provisions by regulations made by the Secretary of State; (6) the purposes of functions that a person has in his capacity as a person in the service of Her Majesty<sup>7</sup>.

It is also a defence for a person charged with an offence<sup>8</sup> in respect of conduct relating to the bringing of a realistic imitation firearm<sup>9</sup> into Great Britain or causing one to be brought into Great Britain<sup>10</sup> to show that the conduct (a) was in the course of carrying on any trade or business; and (b) was for the purpose of making the imitation firearm in question available to be modified in a way which would result in its ceasing to be a realistic imitation firearm<sup>11</sup>.

The power of the Secretary of State to make regulations under the above provisions is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>12</sup>.

1 I.e. an offence under the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 s 36: see PARA 631A.1.

2 I.e. specified in ibid s 37(2): s 37(1). See further NOTE 10.

3 In ibid s 37 'museum or gallery' includes any institution which (1) has as its purpose, or one of its purposes, the preservation, display and interpretation of material of historical, artistic or scientific interest; and (2) gives the public access to it: s 37(7).

4 Within the meaning of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 Pt 1; see s 5B.

5 Within the meaning of the Communications Act 2003; see s 405(1).

6 In the 2006 Act s 37 'historical re-enactment' means any presentation or other event held for the purpose of re-enacting an event from the past or of illustrating conduct from a particular time or period in the past: s 37(7).

7 Ibid s 37(2). See Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 (Realistic Imitation Firearms) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2606.

631B. Specification for imitation firearms.

The following provisions come into force on 1 October 2007: SI 2007/2180.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision requiring imitation firearms to conform to specifications which are (1) set out in the regulations; or (2) approved by such persons and in such manner as may be so set out<sup>1</sup>. A person is guilty of an offence if (a) he manufactures an imitation firearm which does not conform to the specifications required of it by regulations under these provisions; (b) he modifies an imitation firearm so that it ceases to conform to the specifications so required of it; (c) he modifies a firearm to create an imitation firearm that does not conform to the specifications so required of it; or (d) he brings an imitation firearm which does not conform to the specifications so required of it into Great Britain or causes such an imitation firearm to be brought into Great Britain<sup>2</sup>. An offence under these provisions is punishable, on summary conviction in England and Wales, with imprisonment for a term not exceeding 51 weeks or with a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>3</sup>, or with both<sup>4</sup>. Regulations under these provisions may provide that, in proceedings for an offence under these provisions, it is to be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that an imitation firearm conforms to the required specification if it, or the description of imitation firearms to which it belongs, has been certified as so conforming by a person who is (i) specified in the regulations; or (ii) determined for the purpose in accordance with provisions contained in the regulations<sup>5</sup>. An imitation firearm brought into Great Britain which does not conform to the specifications required of it by regulations under these provisions is liable to forfeiture under the customs and excise Acts<sup>6</sup>. The power of the Secretary of State to make regulations under these provisions is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>7</sup>.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/A. RESTRICTIONS ON ACQUISITION, PURCHASE AND POSSESSION/632. Meaning of 'shot gun'.

632. Meaning of 'shot gun'.

'Shot gun' means a smooth-bore gun, not being an air gun, which: (1) has a barrel not less than 24 inches in length<sup>1</sup> and does not have any barrel with a bore exceeding two inches in diameter; (2) either has no magazine or has a non-detachable magazine incapable of holding more than two cartridges; and (3) is not a revolver<sup>2</sup> gun<sup>3</sup>. A gun which has been adapted to have such a magazine as is mentioned in head (2) above is not to be regarded as falling within that head unless the magazine bears a mark approved by the Secretary of State for denoting that fact and that mark has been made, and the adaptation has been certified in writing as having been carried out in a manner<sup>4</sup> approved by him<sup>5</sup>.

1 The length of the barrel of a firearm must be measured from the muzzle to the point at which the charge is exploded on firing: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(6)(a).

2 For these purposes, 'revolver', in relation to a smooth-bore gun, means a gun containing a series of chambers which revolve when the gun is fired: ibid s 57(2B) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(2)).

3 Firearms Act 1968 ss 1(3)(a), 57(4) (s 1(3)(a) substituted by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 2(1), (2)). As to shot guns whose barrels have been shortened see PARA 678 post.

Any weapon which: (1) has at any time since 1 July 1989 been a weapon to which the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 634 post) applies; or (2) would at any previous time have been such a weapon if those provisions had then been in force, and which has or at any time has had, a rifle barrel less than 24 inches in length, is to be treated as a weapon to which s 1 (as amended) applies notwithstanding anything done for the purpose of converting it into a shot gun or an air weapon: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 7(2). For these purposes, there is to be disregarded the shortening of a barrel by a registered firearms dealer for the sole purpose of replacing part of it so as to produce a barrel not less than 24 inches in length: s 7(3).

4 I.e. either by one of the two companies mentioned in the Firearms Act 1968 s 58(1) (see PARA 634 note 1 post) or by such other person as may be approved by the Secretary of State for that purpose.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/A. RESTRICTIONS ON ACQUISITION, PURCHASE AND POSSESSION/633. Meaning of 'air weapon'.

633. Meaning of 'air weapon'.

'Air weapon' means an air rifle, air gun or air pistol which is not a prohibited weapon<sup>1</sup> and which is not of a type declared by rules made by the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> to be specially dangerous<sup>3</sup>.

1    le an air pistol which does not fall within the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1) (see PARA 661 post).

2    le under ibid s 53. The Secretary of State may by statutory instrument make rules:

128   (1)   prescribing the form of certificates under the Firearms Acts 1968-1988, the register required under the Firearms Act 1968 s 40 (register of transactions: see PARA 692 post) and other documents;

129   (2)   prescribing any other thing which is to be prescribed; and

130   (3)   generally carrying the Firearms Acts 1968-1988 into effect, and rules so made may make different provision for different cases: Firearms Act 1968 s 53; Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(6). Rules so made may: (a) regulate the manner in which chief officers of police are to carry out their duties under the Firearms Act 1968 and the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988; (b) enable all or any of the functions of a chief officer of police to be discharged by a deputy in the event of his illness or of a vacancy in the office of chief officer of police: Firearms Act 1968 s 55(1); Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(6). Without prejudice to head (b) supra, the functions of a chief officer of police are so exercisable on any occasion by a person, or a person of a particular class, authorised by the chief officer of police to exercise that function on that occasion, or on occasions of that class or on all occasions: Firearms Act 1968 s 55(2); Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(6). In exercise of the power to make rules, the Secretary of State has made the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, which came into force on 1 September 1998 (see r 1).

As to the Firearms Act 1968 ss 53, 55 see also PARA 634 note 1 post.

3    Ibid ss 1(3)(b), 57(4) (s 1(3)(b) amended by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(1), (2)). This definition means that an 'air weapon' is not limited to an air weapon which is also a firearm (ie is not limited to a lethal barrelled air weapon): DPP v Street [2004] TLR 50, DC. An air weapon, that is to say an air rifle, air gun or air pistol: (1) capable of discharging a missile so that the missile has, on being discharged from the muzzle of the weapon, kinetic energy in excess, in the case of an air pistol, of 6 ft lb or, in the case of an air weapon other than an air pistol, of 12 ft lb; or (2) designed as another object, is declared to be specially dangerous, except where the weapon only falls within head (1) supra and is designed for use only when submerged in water: Firearms (Dangerous Air Weapons) Rules 1969, SI 1969/47, rr 2, 3 (r 2 substituted by SI 1993/1490). Any reference to an air rifle, air pistol or air gun in the Firearms Acts 1968-97, or in the Firearms (Dangerous Air Weapons) Rules 1969, SI 1969/47 (as amended), includes a reference to a rifle, pistol or gun powered by compressed carbon dioxide: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 48.

Requirement of firearm certificate for possession, purchase or acquisition of firearms and ammunition for firearms.

- 746 (1) any firearm<sup>4</sup>, except<sup>5</sup> a shot gun<sup>6</sup> or an air weapon<sup>7</sup>, without holding a firearm certificate<sup>8</sup> in force at the time, or otherwise than as authorised by such a certificate<sup>9</sup>;
- 747 (2) any ammunition<sup>10</sup> for a firearm, except:
  - 17
  - 22. (a) cartridges containing five or more shot, none of which exceeds .36 inch in diameter;
  - 23. (b) ammunition for an air gun, air rifle or air pistol; and
  - 24. (c) blank cartridges not more than one inch in diameter<sup>11</sup>,
  - 18
- 748 without holding a firearm certificate in force at the time, or otherwise than as authorised by such a certificate, or in quantities in excess of those so authorised<sup>12</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>13</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>14</sup> or to both<sup>15</sup>. However, on conviction on indictment a person guilty of such an offence in an aggravated form by having in his possession or purchasing or acquiring a shortened shot gun<sup>16</sup> or a converted firearm<sup>17</sup> without holding a firearm certificate authorising him to do so is liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both<sup>18</sup>.

It is an offence for a person to fail to comply with a condition subject to which a firearm certificate is held by him; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>19</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>20</sup> or to both<sup>21</sup>.

1. See under the Firearms Act 1968 s 7 (see PARA 646 post), s 8(1) (see PARA 647 post), s 9 (see PARA 648 post), s 10 (see PARA 649 post), s 11 (see PARA 650 post), s 12(1) (see PARA 656 post), s 13 (see PARA 657 post); and, by virtue of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(4), under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15 (see PARA 651 post), s 16 (see PARA 652 post), s 16A (as added) (see PARA 653 post), s 16B (as added) (see PARA 654 post), s 17 (see PARA 655 post), s 18 (see PARA 658 post), s 19 (see PARA 660 post).

In so far as they relate to the purchase and acquisition of firearms, but not so far as they relate to possession of firearms, the Firearms Act 1968 ss 1, 2 (see PARA 635 post), ss 7-13 (as amended) (see PARAS 646-657 post), ss 26A-32 (as amended) (see PARA 682 et seq post) apply to persons in the service of Her Majesty in their capacity as such, except that such a person, if duly authorised in writing in that behalf, may purchase or acquire firearms and ammunition for the public service without holding a certificate under the Act: s 54(1), (2)(a) (amended by the Firearms Act 1997 s 52(1), Sch 2 paras 1, 10). For the purpose of the Firearms Act 1968 s 54, a member of a police force, an employee of a police authority under the direction and control of a chief officer of police, or a member of the staff of the Serious Organised Crime Agency is deemed to be a person in the service of Her Majesty: s 54(3) (substituted by the Police and Magistrates' Courts Act 1994 s 42; and amended by the Police Act 1997 s 134(1), Sch 9 para 18; and the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 59, Sch 4 para 18). As to the Serious Organised Crime Agency see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 430 et seq. The Firearms Act 1968 s 54(3) has effect in relation to an officer belonging to the French Republic exercising his functions within a control zone in the United Kingdom as if the reference to a member of a police force included a reference to a member of a police force included a reference to such an officer: Nationality, Immigration and Asylum Act 2002 (Juxtaposed Controls) Order 2003, SI 2003/2818, art 9. For the meaning of 'control zone' see art 2, Sch 1. A person in the naval, military or air service of Her Majesty is entitled, if he satisfies the chief officer of police on an application under the Firearms Act 1968 s 26A (as added) (see PARA 682 post) that he is required to purchase a firearm or ammunition for his own use in his capacity as such, without payment of any fee, to the grant of a firearm certificate authorising the purchase or acquisition or, as the case may be, to the grant of a shot gun certificate: s 54(2)(b) (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52, Sch 2 paras 1, 11). If a person possesses a firearm otherwise than in his capacity as a servant of Her Majesty or a police officer, a firearm certificate is necessary: Heritage v Claxon (1941) 85 Sol Jo 323, DC; Tarttelin v Bowen [1947] 2 All ER 837, DC. As to the application of the Firearms Act 1968 s 54(1), (2)(a) to members of a visiting force and headquarters see the Visiting Forces and International Headquarters (Application of Law) Order 1999, SI 1999/1736, arts 3, 12, Schs 5, 6 (amended by SI 2005/3048).

For the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 s 54 (as amended) and of any rule of law whereby any provision of that Act does not bind the Crown: (1) a member of the Civil Nuclear Constabulary is deemed to be a person in the service of Her Majesty; and (2) references to the public service are deemed to include references to use by a person in the exercise and performance of his powers and duties as a member of the Civil Nuclear Constabulary: s 54(3AA) (added by the Energy Act 2004 s 69, Sch 14 para 3). As to the establishment of the Civil Nuclear Constabulary see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 128.

For the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 s 54 (as amended) and any rule of law whereby any provision of the Act does not bind the Crown, the following persons are deemed to be in the naval, military or air service of Her Majesty, in so far as they are not otherwise in, or treated as being in, any such service: (a) members of any foreign force when they are serving with any of the naval, military or air forces of Her Majesty; (b) members of any cadet corps approved by the Secretary of State when: (i) they are engaged as members of the corps in, or in connection with, drill or target shooting; and (ii) in the case of possession of prohibited weapons or prohibited ammunition when engaged in target shooting, they are on service premises; and (c) persons providing instruction to any members of a cadet corps who fall within head (b) supra: s 54(4), (5) (s 54(4)-(6) added by the Armed Forces Act 1996 s 28(1); and the Firearms Act 1968 s 54(5) amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52, Sch 2 para 3, Sch 3). 'Foreign force' means any of the naval, military or air forces of a country other than the United Kingdom; and 'service premises' means premises, including any ship or aircraft, used for any purpose of any of the naval, military or air forces of Her Majesty: Firearms Act 1968 s 54(6) (as so added).

An appropriately authorised person who is either a member of the British Transport Police Force or an associated civilian employee does not commit any offence under the Firearms Act 1968 by reason of having in his possession, or purchasing or acquiring, for use by that force anything which is a prohibited weapon by virtue of s 5(1)(b) (see PARA 661 post), or ammunition containing or designed or adapted to contain any such noxious thing as is mentioned in s 5(1)(b): s 54(3A) (s 54(3A), (3B) added by the Anti-terrorism Crime and Security Act 2001 Sch 7 paras 8, 9). 'Appropriately authorised' means authorised in writing by the Chief Constable of the British Transport Police Force or, if he is not available, by a member of that force who is of at least the rank of assistant chief constable; and 'associated civilian employee' means a person employed by the British Transport Police Authority who is under the direction and control of the chief constable of the British Transport Police Force: Firearms Act 1968 s 54(3B) (s 54(3B) as so added; and amended by the British Transport Police (Transitional and Consequential Provisions) Order 2004, SI 2004/1573, art 12(1)(b)). 'British Transport Police Force' means the British Transport Police force established by the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 Pt 3 (ss 18-77) (as amended): Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4) (amended by virtue of the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 s 73(1), Sch 5 para 4(1)). As to the British Transport Police see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 281 et seq.

Nothing in the Firearms Act 1968 applies to the proof houses of the Master, Wardens and Society of the Mystery of Gunmakers of the City of London and the Guardians of the Birmingham Proof House or the rifle range at Small Heath in Birmingham where firearms are sighted and tested, so as to interfere in any way with the operations of those two companies in proving firearms under the provisions of the Gun Barrel Proof Act 1868 (see PARA 355 post) or any other Acts for the time being in force, or to any person carrying firearms to or from any such proof house when being taken to such proof house for the purposes of proof or being removed from there after proof: Firearms Act 1968 s 58(1).

Nothing in the Firearms Act 1968 relating to firearms applies to an antique firearm which is sold, transferred, purchased, acquired or possessed as a curiosity or ornament: s 58(2). What is an antique firearm is a question of fact and degree depending upon the article in question: Richards v Curwen [1977] 3 All ER 426, 65 Cr App Rep 95, DC; Bennett v Brown (1980) 71 Cr App Rep 109, DC. This question is for the jury to decide: R v Burke (1978) 67 Cr App Rep 220, CA. The article must in fact be an antique weapon; it is not sufficient for the defendant to have an honest and reasonable belief that it is such: R v Howells [1977] QB 614, 65 Cr App Rep 86, CA.

The Firearms Act 1968 ss 53-55 (see PARA 633 note 2 ante), s 56 (see PARA 665 post), s 58 have effect as if the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 were contained in the Firearms Act 1968: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 50(5).

2 For the meaning of 'possession' see Woodage v Moss [1974] 1 All ER 584, [1974] 1 WLR 411, DC (firearm handed to defendant by unknown man to deliver to dealer as surrendered weapon; defendant in possession of the firearm); Sullivan v Earl of Caithness [1976] QB 966, 62 Cr App Rep 105, DC (owner in possession of firearms kept in another's custody; physical possession not necessary); Hall v Cotton [1987] QB 504, [1986] 3 All ER 332, DC (defendant does not have to have physical control or be physically present where firearms are in order to be in possession; cases depend upon their own facts; there can be custodial possession and physical possession residing in different persons); R v Hussain [1981] 2 All ER 287, 72 Cr App Rep 143, CA (defendant has firearm in possession if he knows that he has an article with him which in fact is a firearm) (applying Warner v Metropolitan Police Comr [1969] 2 AC 256, 52 Cr App Rep 373, HL (see PARA 338 ante)). A person in possession of a container in which there is a firearm or ammunition is also in possession of the firearm or ammunition, provided that he knows that there is something in the container: R v Waller [1991] Crim LR 381, CA.

3 For these purposes, 'acquire' means hire, accept as a gift or borrow; and 'acquisition' is to be construed accordingly: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4). As to the restrictions on the manufacture of, and dealing in, firearms see s 3; and PARA 636 et seq post. See also PARA 631 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante.

5 So much of the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 as excludes any description of firearm from the category of firearms to which s 1 applies is to be construed as excluding component parts of, and accessories to, firearms of that description: s 57(1).

6 For the meaning of 'shot gun' see PARA 632 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'air weapon' see PARA 633 ante.

8 'Firearm certificate' means a certificate granted by a chief officer of police under the Firearms Act 1968 in respect of any firearm or ammunition to which s 1 applies and includes a certificate granted in Northern Ireland under the Firearms (Northern Ireland) Order 2004, SI 2004/702 (NI 3): Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2). A certificate for a firearm covers its component parts (eg a telescopic sight); the only accessory which must be separately mentioned is one designed or adapted to diminish the noise or flash caused by firing the weapon: Watson v Herman [1952] 2 All ER 70, DC. Component parts not made up so as to be part of a firearm may, it seems, be required to be covered by a certificate: Watson v Herman supra. See also Broome v Walter [1989] Crim LR 725, DC.

A firearm certificate is a specific, and not a general, certificate: see Wilson v Coombe [1989] 1 WLR 78, 88 Cr App Rep 322, DC. For the prescribed form of certificate see the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, r 3(6), Sch 1 Pt II.

As to a constable's power to require production of a certificate see PARA 695 post.

9 Firearms Act 1968 s 1(1)(a), (3). The interpretation of what is authorised by a particular certificate is a matter of law: R v Paul [1999] Crim LR 79, CA.

10 'Ammunition' means ammunition for any firearm and includes grenades, bombs and other like missiles, whether capable of use with a firearm or not, and also includes prohibited ammunition (see PARA 661 post): Firearms Act 1968 s 57(2). In deciding whether something is 'ammunition', the test appears to be whether it is capable of producing an explosive effect when the firearm is operated: R v Stubbings [1990] Crim LR 811, CA. Blank cartridges are within the definition of ammunition (Burfitt v Kille [1939] 2 KB 743, [1939] 2 All ER 372, DC), and so are primed cartridges (R v Stubbings supra) and flares (R v Singh [1989] Crim LR 724, CA).

The provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 relating to ammunition are in addition to, and not in derogation of, any concurrent enactment relating to the keeping or sale of explosives: s 58(3). The sale of certain ammunition to which s 1 does not apply is restricted: see PARA 645 post.

11 It is measured immediately in front of the rim or cannellure of the base of the cartridge.

12 Firearms Act 1968 s 1(1)(b), (4). The offence is one of strict liability and thus proof of mens rea as to the nature of the thing is unnecessary: R v Howells [1977] QB 614, 65 Cr App Rep 86, CA; R v Hussain [1981] 2 All ER 287, 72 Cr App Rep 143, CA; R v Waller [1991] Crim LR 381, CA; R v Steele [1993] Crim LR 298, CA. In R v Vann, R v Davis [1996] Crim LR 52, CA, it was held that the cases should not be re-considered. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/A. RESTRICTIONS ON ACQUISITION, PURCHASE AND POSSESSION/637. Selling firearms to person without a certificate.

637. Selling firearms to person without a certificate.

It is an offence for a person to sell or transfer<sup>1</sup> to any other person in the United Kingdom, other than a registered firearms dealer<sup>2</sup>, any specified firearm or ammunition<sup>3</sup>, or a shot gun<sup>4</sup>, unless that other produces a firearm certificate<sup>5</sup> authorising him to purchase or acquire<sup>6</sup> it or, as the case may be, his shot gun certificate<sup>7</sup>, or shows that he is entitled<sup>8</sup> to purchase or acquire it without holding a certificate<sup>9</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>10</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>11</sup> or to both<sup>12</sup>.

1 It is not an essential element of a sale that an immediate right to possession should pass by the transaction but there must be a contract whose effect is to transfer the ownership of the item to another: Watts v Seymour [1967] 2 QB 647, [1967] 1 All ER 1044, DC (contract of sale (ie ownership of firearm passes to buyer), subject to a restriction on buyer's possession; seller to keep firearm which would only be made available to buyer when at rifle club). As to the meaning of 'transfer' see PARA 636 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'registered' see PARA 636 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'firearms dealer' see PARA 636 note 5 ante.

3 Ie any firearm or ammunition specified in the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended): see PARA 634 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'shot gun' see PARA 632 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'firearm certificate' see PARA 634 note 8 ante. Whether a firearm certificate authorises the acquisition of a particular firearm depends not on the transferee's intended use of that firearm (and still less on the transferor's understanding of the transferee's intent as to use), but on whether that firearm comes within the description in the certificate, the construction of which is a matter of law: R v Paul [1999] Crim LR 79, CA.

6 For the meaning of 'acquire' see PARA 634 note 3 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'shot gun certificate' see PARA 635 note 5 ante.

8 Any reference in the Firearms Act 1968 to a person who is by virtue of that Act entitled to possess, purchase or acquire any weapon or ammunition without holding a certificate includes a reference to a person who is so entitled by virtue of any provision of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988: s 25(4). Any reference in the Firearms Act 1968 to a person who is by virtue of that Act entitled to possess, purchase or acquire any weapon or ammunition without holding a certificate includes a reference to a person who is so entitled by virtue of any provision of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997: s 50(3).

9 Firearms Act 1968 s 3(2). As to the amendments proposed by the Violent Crime Reduction Bill see PARA 707 post. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante. 'Certificate', except in a context relating to the registration of firearms dealers, means a firearm certificate or a shot gun certificate: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4). A firearm certificate gives authority for a specific firearm by reference to name, type calibre and serial number; it does not, unless a variation order has been made, authorise the holder to acquire another firearm, even though it is a replacement; and a dealer exchanging a certificate holder's firearms for firearms of the same type and calibre commits an offence: Wilson v Coombe [1989] 1 WLR 78, 88 Cr App Rep 322, DC. The Firearms Act 1968 s 3(2) has effect subject to any exemption under subsequent provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 Pt 1 (ss 1-25) (as amended): s 3(4). As to exemptions see PARA 646 et seq post.

10 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

11 As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

Restriction on sale of ammunition for shot guns or smooth-bore guns.

645. Restriction on sale of ammunition for shot guns or smooth-bore guns.

It is an offence for a person to sell specified ammunition<sup>1</sup> to another person in the United Kingdom who is neither a registered firearms dealer<sup>2</sup> nor a person who sells such ammunition by way of trade or business unless that other person: (1) produces a certificate authorising him to possess a shot gun or a smooth-bore gun<sup>3</sup>; or (2) shows that he is entitled<sup>4</sup> to have possession of such a gun without holding a certificate<sup>5</sup>; or (3) produces a certificate authorising another person to possess such a gun, together with that person's written authority to purchase the ammunition on his behalf<sup>6</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>8</sup> or to both<sup>9</sup>.

1 The ammunition to which the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 634 note 10 ante) does not apply and which is capable of being used in a shot gun (see PARA 632 ante) or in a smooth-bore gun to which s 1 (as amended) applies.

2 For the meaning of 'registered firearms dealer' see PARA 636 notes 4, 5 ante.

3 The smooth-bore gun to which the Firearms Act 1968 (as amended) applies.

4 The under either the Firearms Act 1968 or the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988.

5 As to exemptions see PARA 646 et seq post; and as to references to persons entitled to possess, purchase or acquire any weapon or ammunition without holding a certificate see PARA 637 note 8 ante.

6 Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 5(1), (2).

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

646. Holders of police permits.

A person who has obtained from the chief officer of police for the area<sup>1</sup> in which he resides<sup>2</sup> a permit<sup>3</sup> may have in his possession, without holding a certificate<sup>4</sup>, a firearm<sup>5</sup> or ammunition<sup>6</sup> in accordance with the terms of the permit<sup>7</sup>.

It is an offence for a person knowingly or recklessly to make any statement false in a material particular for the purpose of procuring, whether for himself or for another person, the grant of such a permit<sup>8</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>9</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>10</sup> or to both<sup>11</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'area' means police area: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4). For the meaning of 'police area' see PARA 578 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'reside' see Burditt v Joslin [1981] 3 All ER 203, DC (decided under the Firearms Act 1968 s 26(1); it was held that a person does not reside at an address at a time when that address is let to others and therefore he does not have a right to occupy it).

3 The permit must be in the prescribed form: Firearms Act 1968 s 7(1). For the prescribed form of permit to possess a firearm and/or ammunition see the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, r 9(1)(a), Sch 4 Pt I; and for the prescribed form of permit to possess shot guns see r 9(1)(b), Sch 4 Pt II. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/B. EXEMPTIONS/647. Authorised dealing with firearms.

647. Authorised dealing with firearms.

A person carrying on the business of a firearms dealer<sup>1</sup> and registered<sup>2</sup> as such, or a servant<sup>3</sup> of such a person may, without holding a certificate<sup>4</sup>, have in his possession, or purchase or acquire, a firearm<sup>5</sup> or ammunition<sup>6</sup> in the ordinary course of that business<sup>7</sup>. This provision applies to the possession, purchase or acquisition of a firearm or ammunition in the ordinary course of the business of a firearms dealer notwithstanding that the firearm or ammunition is in the possession of, or purchased or acquired by, the dealer or his servant at a place which is not a place of business of the dealer or which he has not registered as a place of business<sup>8</sup>.

It is not an offence<sup>9</sup> for a person:

753 (1) to part with the possession of any firearm or ammunition, otherwise than in pursuance of a contract of sale or hire or by way of gift or loan, to a person who shows he is entitled<sup>10</sup> to have possession of the firearm or ammunition without holding a certificate; or 754 (2) to return to another person a shot gun which he has lawfully undertaken to repair, test or prove for the other<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'firearms dealer' see PARA 636 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'registered' see PARA 636 note 4 ante.

3 In Woodage v Moss [1974] 1 All ER 584, [1974] 1 WLR 411, DC, it was held that a person who was under no obligation to carry out the request of a registered firearms dealer to accept a firearm, and received no remuneration for doing so, could not be described as the dealer's 'servant' for the purpose of the present provision.

4 For the meaning of 'certificate' see PARA 637 note 9 ante. As to references to persons entitled to possess, purchase or acquire any weapon or ammunition without holding a certificate see PARA 637 note 8 ante.

7 Firearms Act 1968 s 8(1). In R v Bull (1993) 99 Cr App Rep 193 at 202, CA, per Cresswell J, it was held that the exemption in Firearms Act 1968 s 8 applies to a person:

131 (1) carrying on the business of a firearms dealer;

132 (2) who is registered as such under s 33;

133 (3) who in order to be registered under s 33 has furnished the chief officer of police with the prescribed particulars (including particulars of every place of business at which he proposes to carry on business in the area as a firearms dealer);

134 (4) who has in his possession or purchases or acquires a firearm or ammunition in the ordinary course of that business.

It followed, the court held, that the exemption does not apply to the possession of a firearm or ammunition at a place of business whose address has not been furnished in accordance with head (3) supra. The possession is not in the ordinary course of the business registered as such under the Firearms Act 1968.

8 Ibid s 8(1A) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 42(1)). 'Not registered as a place of business' refers to not being so registered under the Firearms Act 1968 s 33 or 37 (see PARA 688 post).

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/B. EXEMPTIONS/651. Approved rifle and muzzle-loading pistol clubs.

651. Approved rifle and muzzle-loading pistol clubs.

A member of a rifle club<sup>1</sup> approved by the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may, without holding a firearm certificate<sup>3</sup>, have in his possession a rifle<sup>4</sup> and ammunition<sup>5</sup> when engaged as a member of the club in connection with target shooting<sup>6</sup>. A constable or civilian officer<sup>7</sup> authorised in writing in that behalf by a chief officer of police may, on producing if required his authority, enter any premises<sup>8</sup> occupied or used by an approved rifle club<sup>9</sup> and inspect those premises, and anything on them, for the purpose of ascertaining whether this provision, and any limitations or conditions in the approval, are being complied with<sup>10</sup>. It is an offence for a person intentionally to obstruct a constable or civilian officer in the exercise of such powers; and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>11</sup>.

The above provisions apply in relation to a muzzle-loading pistol club and its members as they apply to a rifle club and its members with the substitution for any reference to a rifle of a reference to a muzzle-loading pistol<sup>12</sup>.

1 'Rifle club' includes a miniature rifle club: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(10) (s 15 substituted by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 45(1)).

2 Any such approval may be granted subject to such conditions as the Secretary of State may think fit, and may at any time be varied or withdrawn by the Secretary of State: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(5)(a), (b) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). An approval, unless withdrawn, continues in force for six years from the date on which it is granted but may be renewed for further periods of six years at a time: s 15(5)(c) (as so substituted). On the grant or renewal of an approval a fee of £84 is payable; but this sum may be amended by order under the Firearms Act 1968 s 43 (see PARA 683 post): Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(6) (as so substituted). Any approval of a rifle or miniature rifle club or muzzle-loading pistol club under s 15 (as substituted) which was in force immediately before the commencement of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 45 (ie 1 October 1997: see the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 (Commencement) (No 2) Order 1997, SI 1997/1535, art 3(c), Schedule Pt II) took effect as if it were an approval under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15 (as substituted): Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 45(3). 'Muzzle-loading pistol club' means a club where muzzle-loading pistols are used for target shooting and a 'muzzle-loading pistol' means a pistol designed to be loaded at the muzzle end of the barrel or chamber with a loose charge and a separate ball (or other missile): Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(12) (as so substituted).

3 For the meaning of 'firearm certificate' see PARA 634 note 8 ante; definition applied by virtue of ibid s 25(1). As to references to persons entitled to possess, purchase or acquire any weapon or ammunition without holding a certificate see PARA 637 note 8 ante.

4 As to the meaning of 'rifle' see PARA 650 note 2 ante; definition applied by virtue of ibid s 25(1).

5 For the meaning of 'ammunition' see PARA 634 note 10 ante; definition applied by virtue of ibid s 25(1).

6 Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). Whatever might be the situation with regard to shorter lengths of time, it could not on any view possibly be said that the appellant was 'engaged' as a member of a club in or in connection with target practice one month after an intended day's shooting at Bisley: R v Wilson [1989] Crim LR 907, CA (decided under the Firearms Act 1968 s 11(3) (as originally enacted)). The application of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(1) (as substituted) to members of an approved rifle club may: (1) be excluded in relation to the club; or (2) be restricted to target shooting with specified types of rifle, by limitations contained in the approval under s 15(1) (as substituted): s 15(4), (10) (as so substituted). Head (1) supra means that a club may be 'an approved rifle club', but its members may not be permitted by a limitation in the approval to have in their possession a rifle or ammunition. A rifle club may apply for approval, whether or not it is intended that any club members will, by virtue of s 15(1) (as substituted), have rifles or ammunition in their possession without holding firearm certificates: s 15(2) (as so substituted). The Secretary of State may publish guidance to inform those seeking approval for a club of criteria that must be met before any application for approval will be considered: s 15(3) (as so substituted).

7 'Civilian officer' means a person employed by a police authority or the Corporation of the City of London who is under the direction and control of a chief officer of police: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4) (definition added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 43(2); and amended by the Greater London Authority Act 1999 ss 325, 423, Sch 17 para 22, Sch 34 Pt VII); applied by virtue of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(10) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

8 For these purposes, 'premises' includes any land: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4); definition applied by virtue of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(1).

9 le approved under ibid s 15(1) (as substituted): s 15(10) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(i) Acquisition, Purchase and Possession/B. EXEMPTIONS/655. Visitors' permits.

655. Visitors' permits.

The holder of a visitor's firearm permit<sup>1</sup> may, without holding a firearm certificate<sup>2</sup>, have in his possession a firearm<sup>3</sup>, and have in his possession, purchase or acquire<sup>4</sup> ammunition<sup>5</sup>.

The holder of a visitor's shot gun permit<sup>6</sup> may, without holding a shot gun certificate<sup>7</sup>, have shot guns<sup>8</sup> in his possession and purchase or acquire shot guns<sup>9</sup>. However, a visitor's shot gun permit does not authorise the purchase or acquisition by any person of a shot gun with a magazine except where:

- 760 (1) that person is for the time being the holder of a specified export licence, in respect of the exportation of that shot gun<sup>10</sup>;
- 761 (2) the shot gun is to be exported from Great Britain<sup>11</sup> to a place outside the member states<sup>12</sup> without first being taken to another member state<sup>13</sup>;
- 762 (3) the shot gun is acquired on terms which restrict that person's possession of the gun to the whole or a part of the period of his visit to Great Britain and preclude the removal of the gun from Great Britain<sup>14</sup>; or
- 763 (4) the shot gun is purchased or acquired by that person exclusively in connection with the carrying on of activities in respect of which that person, or the person on whose behalf he makes the purchase or acquisition, is recognised, for the purposes of the law of another member state relating to firearms, as a collector of firearms or a body concerned in the cultural or historical aspects of weapons<sup>15</sup>.

A person who sells, lets on hire, gives or lends a shot gun with a magazine to another person who: (a) shows that he is entitled to purchase or acquire the weapon as the holder of a visitor's shot gun permit<sup>16</sup>; but (b) fails to show that the purchase or acquisition falls within head (3) or head (4) above or that he resides outside the member states, must, within 48 hours of the transaction, send by registered post or the recorded delivery service notice of the transaction to the chief officer of police who granted that permit<sup>17</sup>.

It is an offence for a person:

- 764 (i) knowingly or recklessly to make a statement false in any material particular for the purpose of procuring the grant of a visitor's firearm or shot gun permit; or
- 765 (ii) to fail to comply with a condition subject to which such a permit is held by him, and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>18</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>19</sup>.

1 The chief officer of police for an area may, on an application in the prescribed form made by a person resident in that area on behalf of a person specified in the application, grant a permit under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 17 (as amended) to the specified person if satisfied that he is visiting or intending to visit Great Britain and: (1) in the case of a visitor's firearm permit, that he has a good reason for having each firearm and the ammunition to which the permit relates in his possession, or, as respects ammunition, for purchasing or acquiring it, while he is a visitor in Great Britain; (2) in the case of a visitor's shot gun permit, that he has a good reason for having each shot gun to which the permit relates in his possession, or for purchasing or acquiring it, while he is such a visitor: s 17(2). For the meaning of 'area' see PARA 646 note 1 ante; definition applied by virtue of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(1). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

No permit may be so granted if the chief officer of police has reason to believe that the visitor's possession of the weapons or ammunition in question would represent a danger to the public safety or to the peace, or that the visitor is prohibited by the Firearms Act 1968 from possessing them: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 17(3).

No permit may be so granted as respects any firearm unless:

- 135 (a) there is produced to the chief officer of police a document which has been issued in another member state under provisions corresponding to the provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 for the issue of European firearms passes, identifies that firearm as a firearm to which it relates, and is for the time being valid (Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 17(3A)(a) (s 17(3A) added by the Firearms Acts (Amendment) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2823, reg 7));
- 136 (b) the applicant shows that the person specified in the application is a person who, by reason of his place of residence or any other circumstances, is not entitled to be issued with such a document in any of the other member states (Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 17(3A)(b) (as so added)); or
- 137 (c) the applicant shows that the person specified in the application requires the permit exclusively in connection with the carrying on of activities in respect of which that person or the person on whose behalf he is proposing to make use of the authorisation conferred by the permit, is recognised, for the purposes of the law of another member state relating to firearms, as a collector of firearms or a body concerned in the cultural or historical aspects of weapons (s 17(3A)(c) (as so added)), and a chief officer of police who grants a permit under s 17 (as amended) in a case where a document has been produced to him in pursuance of head (a) supra must indorse on the document a statement which identifies the permit and the firearm to which it relates and briefly describes the effect of the permit: s 17(3A) (as so added). For the meaning of 'member state' see the European Communities Act 1972 s 1(2), Sch 1 Pt II; and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1; and see also note 12 infra.

A permit so granted must be in the prescribed form, must specify the conditions subject to which it is held and: (i) in the case of a visitor's firearm permit, must specify the number and description of the firearms to which it relates, including their identification numbers, and, as respects ammunition, the quantities authorised to be purchased or acquired and to be held at any one time; (ii) in the case of a visitor's shot gun permit, must specify the number and description of the shot guns to which it relates, including, if known, their identification numbers: s 17(4). The chief officer of police by whom a permit is so granted may by notice in writing to the holder vary the conditions subject to which the permit is held, but, in the case of a visitor's shot gun permit, no condition may be imposed or varied so as to restrict the premises where the shot gun or guns to which the permit relates may be used: s 17(5).

Such a permit comes into force on such date as is specified in it and continues in force for such period, not exceeding 12 months, as is so specified: s 17(6).

A single application (a 'group application') may be made under these provisions for the grant of not more than 20 permits to persons specified in the application if it is shown to the satisfaction of the chief officer of police that their purpose in having the weapons in question in their possession while visiting Great Britain is using them for sporting purposes on the same private premises during the same period, or participating in the same competition or other event or the same series of competitions or other events: s 17(7).

On the grant of such a permit a fee of £12 is payable except that, where six or more permits are granted on a group application, the fee is £60 in respect of those permits taken together: s 17(8). Such fee may be amended by an order under the Firearms Act 1968 s 43 (see PARA 683 post): Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 17(9).

The notice must: (1) contain a description of the shot gun (giving the identification number if any); (2) state the nature of the transaction (giving the name of the person to whom the gun has been sold, let on hire, given or lent, his address in the member state where he resides and the number and place of issue of his passport, if any; and (3) set out the particulars of any licence granted for the purposes of an order made under the Import, Export and Customs Powers (Defence) Act 1939 s 1 (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 996) by virtue of which the transaction is authorised under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 17 (as amended): Firearms Act 1968 s 42A(2) (as so added). Failure to comply with s 42A (as added) is an offence: s 42A(3). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine of level 5 on the standard scale or to both: s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see Sch 6 Pt I (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 20(1), (8)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

18 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). ### 658. Firearms acquired for export.

A person may, without holding a firearm<sup>1</sup> or shot gun certificate<sup>2</sup>, purchase a firearm<sup>3</sup> from a registered firearms dealer<sup>4</sup> if: (1) that person has not been in Great Britain for more than 30 days in the preceding 12 months; and (2) the firearm is purchased for the purpose only of being exported from Great Britain<sup>5</sup> without first coming into that person's possession<sup>6</sup>.

A person is not entitled under the above provision to purchase any firearm of a specified type<sup>7</sup> unless he:

- 769 (a) produces to the dealer from whom he purchases it a document which:
19
  - 25. (i) has been issued under provisions which, in the member state<sup>8</sup> where he resides, correspond to specified provisions<sup>9</sup>; and
  - 26. (ii) contains the prior agreement to the purchase of that firearm which is required<sup>10</sup>;
- 20
  - 770 (b) shows that he is purchasing the firearm exclusively in connection with the carrying on of activities in respect of which he, or the person on whose behalf he is purchasing the firearm, is recognised, for the purposes of the law of another member state<sup>11</sup> relating to firearms, as a collector of firearms or a body concerned in the cultural or historical aspects of weapons<sup>12</sup>; or
  - 771 (c) shows that he resides in the United Kingdom<sup>13</sup> or outside the member states<sup>14</sup>.

A registered firearms dealer who sells a firearm to a person who shows that he is so entitled<sup>15</sup> to purchase it without holding a certificate must within 48 hours from the transaction send a notice<sup>16</sup> of the transaction to the chief officer of police in whose register the premises<sup>17</sup> where the transaction took place are entered<sup>18</sup>. It is an offence for a registered firearms dealer to fail to comply with such requirement<sup>19</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>20</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>21</sup> or to both<sup>22</sup>. However, where the failure to comply is confined to the omission from the notice of the particulars of an agreement contained in a document mentioned in head (a) above, the offence is punishable on summary conviction with imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>23</sup> or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or both<sup>24</sup>.

660. Firearms and ammunition in museums.

On an application in writing made on behalf of a museum<sup>1</sup>, the Secretary of State may grant a museum firearms licence<sup>2</sup> in respect of that museum<sup>3</sup>. While such a licence is in force, the persons responsible for the management of the museum<sup>4</sup> and their servants:

- 772 (1) may, without holding a firearm<sup>5</sup> or shot gun certificate<sup>6</sup>, have in their possession, and purchase or acquire<sup>7</sup>, for the purposes of the museum firearms<sup>8</sup> and ammunition<sup>9</sup> which are or are to be normally exhibited or kept on its premises or on such of them as are specified in the licence<sup>10</sup>; and
- 773 (2) if the licence so provides, may, without the authority of the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup>, have in their possession, purchase or acquire for those purposes any prohibited weapons<sup>12</sup> and ammunition<sup>13</sup> which are or are to be normally so exhibited or kept<sup>14</sup>.

It is an offence: (a) for a person knowingly or recklessly to make a statement false in a material particular for the purpose of procuring the grant, renewal<sup>15</sup> or variation<sup>16</sup> of such a licence<sup>17</sup>; (b) for the persons or any of the persons responsible for the management of a museum to fail to comply or to cause or permit another person to fail to comply with any condition specified in the licence held in respect of that museum<sup>18</sup>. A person guilty of either such offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>19</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>20</sup> or to both<sup>21</sup>. In proceedings against any person for an offence under head (b) above, it is a defence, however, for him to prove that he took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence<sup>22</sup>.

1    le a museum to which the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 19, Schedule applies, that is:

- 138 (1) the Armouries, HM Tower of London; the National Army Museum; the National Museum of Wales; the Royal Air Force Museum; the Science Museum; the Victoria and Albert Museum; the Royal Marines Museum; the Fleet Air Arm Museum; the Royal Navy Museum; the Royal Navy Submarine Museum; the British Museum; the Imperial War Museum; the National Maritime Museum; the National Museums of Scotland; the National Museums and Galleries on Merseyside; the Wallace Collection; and any other museum or similar institution in Great Britain which has as its purpose, or one of its purposes, the preservation for the public benefit of a collection of historical, artistic or scientific interest which includes or is to include firearms and which is maintained wholly or mainly out of money provided by Parliament or by a local authority (Schedule para 5(1) (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 47));
- 139 (2) any museum or similar institution in Great Britain which is of a description specified in an order made by the Secretary of State by statutory instrument and whose collection includes or is to include firearms (Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 5(2), (4) (Schedule para 5(2)-(4) added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 47)).

An order under head (2) supra may specify any description of museum or similar institution which appears to the Secretary of State to have as its purpose, or one of its purposes, the preservation for the public benefit of a collection of historical, artistic or scientific interest: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 5(3) (as so added). As to orders made under Schedule para 5(2) (as added) see the Firearms (Museums) Order 1997, SI 1997/1692.

2 The Secretary of State (or the Scottish Ministers by virtue of provision made under the Scotland Act 1998 s 63) may not grant a licence in respect of a museum unless, after consulting the chief officer of police for the area in which the premises to which the licence is to apply are situated, he is (or they are) satisfied that the arrangements for exhibiting and keeping the firearms and ammunition in question are or will be such as not to endanger the public safety or the peace: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 1(3) (amended by the Scotland Act 1998 (Transfer of Functions to the Scottish Ministers etc) Order 1999, SI 1999/1750, art 1). Such a licence must be in writing and is subject to such conditions specified in it as the Secretary of State thinks (or the Scottish Ministers think) necessary for securing the safe custody of the firearms and ammunition in question: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 1(4) (amended by the Scotland Act 1998 (Transfer of Functions to the Scottish Ministers etc) Order 1999, SI 1999/1750, art 1).

The Secretary of State may by notice in writing to the persons responsible for the management of a museum revoke a licence held in respect of the museum if: (1) at any time, after consulting the chief officer of police for the area in which the premises to which it applies are situated, he is satisfied that the continuation of the exemption conferred by the licence would result in danger to the public safety or to the peace; or (2) those persons or any of them or any servant of theirs has been convicted of an offence under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 4; or (3) those persons have failed to comply with a notice requiring them to deliver up the licence: Schedule para 2(3). Where a licence is so revoked, the Secretary of State must by notice in writing require the persons responsible for the management of the museum in question to surrender the licence to him: Schedule para 2(4). It is an offence for a person to fail to comply with a notice under Schedule para 2(4); and a person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: Schedule para 4(3). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

3 Ibid Schedule para 1(1). Schedule para 3 is included in the provisions that may be amended by an order under the Firearms Act 1968 s 43 (see PARA 683 post): Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 3(2).

4 For these purposes, references to the persons responsible for the management of a museum are references to the board of trustees, governing body or other person or persons (whether or not incorporated) exercising corresponding functions: ibid Schedule para 6.

14 Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 Schedule para 1(2)(b).

15 Unless previously revoked or cancelled, a licence continues in force for five years from the date on which it is granted but is renewable for further periods of five years at a time and the provisions of ibid Schedule para 1(3) (see note 2 supra) apply to the renewal of a licence as they apply to a grant: Schedule para 1(5). The Secretary of State may by order substitute for the periods so mentioned such longer or shorter periods as are specified in the order; and the power so to make an order is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Schedule para 1(6), (7).

16 The Secretary of State may by notice in writing to the persons responsible for the management of a museum vary the conditions specified in a licence held in respect of the museum, or vary the licence so as to extend or restrict the premises to which it applies: ibid Schedule para 2(1). A notice so given may require the persons in question to deliver up the licence to the Secretary of State (or the Scottish Ministers) within 21 days of the date of the notice for the purpose of having it amended in accordance with the variation: Schedule para 2(2) (amended by the Scotland Act 1998 (Transfer of Functions to the Scottish Ministers etc) Order 1999, SI 1999/1750, art 1).

Where an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly; and, where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, that provision applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as if he were a director of the body corporate: Schedule para 4(5), (6). 2 As to the issue of such authorities see PARA 665 post. As to the exemptions from the requirement of an authority see PARA 666 post. The functions under the Firearms Act 1968 ss 5, 12(2) have been transferred to the Secretary of State and to the Scottish Ministers from the Defence Council: see the Transfer of Functions (Prohibited Weapons) Order 1968, SI 1968/1200; and the Scotland Act 1998 (Transfer of Functions to the Scottish Ministers etc) Order 1999, SI 1999/1750, art 6(1), Sch 5 para 3(1), (2)(c), (d).

3 Where a person is knowingly in possession of a prohibited weapon, it is no defence for him to show, even in a 'container' case where the item is concealed by the container, that he neither knew nor could have reasonably suspected that it was such a prohibited weapon: R v Bradish [1990] 1 QB 981, [1990] 1 All ER 460, CA.

4 For the meaning of 'acquire' see PARA 634 note 3 ante.

5 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1) (amended by the Transfer of Functions (Prohibited Weapons) Order 1968, SI 1968/1200, arts 2, 3; and the Scotland Act 1998 (Transfer of Functions to the Scottish Ministers etc) Order 1999, SI 1999/1750, art 6(1), Sch 5 para 3(1), (2)(a)). As to the meaning of 'transfer' see PARA 636 note 1 ante. As to powers of search see PARA 693 post; as to the limitation period for summary proceedings see PARA 696 post; and as to the court's power to cancel firearm and shot gun certificates and to order forfeiture or disposal of firearms and ammunition see PARA 697 post. The Firearms Act 1968 s 5 (as amended) creates an offence of strict liability: R v Bradish [1990] 1 QB 981, [1990] 1 All ER 460, CA. As to strict liability see PARA 15 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante. See also PARA 631 ante.

7 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(a) (substituted by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 1(2)).

If it appears to the Secretary of State that the provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 relating to prohibited weapons or ammunition should apply to: (1) any firearm (not being an air weapon) which is not for the time being specified in s 5(1) (as amended), was not lawfully on sale in Great Britain in substantial numbers at any time before 1988 and appears to him to be specially dangerous or wholly or partly composed of material making it not readily detectable by apparatus used for detecting metal objects; or (2) any air rifle, air gun or air pistol which is not for the time being specified in s 5(1) (as amended) but appears to him to be specially dangerous, he may by order add it to the weapons or ammunition specified in s 5(1) (as amended) whether by altering the description of any weapon or ammunition for the time being there specified or otherwise: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 1(4)(a), (c) (amended by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 ss 39(1), (6)(a), 92, Sch 3). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument; and no such order may be made unless a draft of it has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 1(5).

The following cases decided under the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(a) (as originally enacted) may still have some relevance to the new provisions: R v Pannell (1982) 76 Cr App Rep 53, CA (although the three weapons were in parts, the defendant was in possession of all the parts of each of three weapons and was therefore in possession of the weapons which were still prohibited weapons since nothing had been done to convert them into weapons of a different kind); R v Clarke [1986] 1 All ER 846, 82 Cr App Rep 308, CA (a firearm which is designed so as to be capable of continuous fire is a prohibited weapon even though an essential component, such as the trigger, is missing; but note that it is no longer necessary for fire to be continuous (see the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(a) (as substituted))).

In so far as these cases are concerned with conversion see now the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 7(1) (as amended), which provides that any weapon which: (a) has at any time, whether before or after 27 February 1997 (ie the date on which the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 received Royal Assent), been a prohibited weapon within the meaning of the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1), (1A) (as added); and (b) is not a self-loading or pump-action smooth-bore gun which has at any such time been such a weapon by reason only of having had a barrel of less than 24 inches in length, is to be treated as a prohibited weapon notwithstanding anything done for the purposes of converting it into a weapon of a different kind: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 7(1) (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52(1), Sch 2 para 16).

The test in head (1) in the text is an objective one; the intention of the designer or adaptor is irrelevant; a weapon that is capable of burst-fire, albeit only in expert hands, falls within head (1) in the text, notwithstanding that the designer had not intended it to be used in such a manner: R v Law [1999] Crim LR 837, CA.

'Prohibited weapons' and 'prohibited ammunition' are weapons and ammunition specified in the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1), (1A) (as added) (including, in the case of ammunition, any missiles falling within s 5(1A)(g) (as added) (see PARA 663 post)): see Firearms Act 1968 s 5(2) (definitions applied by virtue of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(1)). Any component part of a prohibited weapon is a prohibited weapon: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(1)(b); R v Clarke [1986] 1 All ER 846, 82 Cr App Rep 308, CA.

For the scheme to compensate those who surrendered weapons which became prohibited weapons by the amendments made by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 and Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 and of which they had been lawfully entitled to (and had been) in possession at a specified time before the amendment see the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 21; and the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 ss 15-18.

8 'Self-loading' and 'pump-action', in relation to any weapon, mean respectively that it is designed or adapted (otherwise than as mentioned in the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(a) (as substituted) (see note 7 supra)) so that it is automatically reloaded or that it is so designed or adapted that it is reloaded by the manual operation of the fore-end or forestock of the weapon: s 57(2A) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 25(2)).

10 For the meaning of 'air weapon' see PARA 633 ante.

11 For the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(aba), (ac) (as added), 'muzzle-loading gun' means a gun which is designed to be loaded at the muzzle end of the barrel or chamber with a loose charge and separate ball (or other missile): s 5(9) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 1(6)).

12 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(aba) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 1(2); and amended by the Firearms (Amendment) (No 2) Act 1997 ss 1, 2(7), Schedule). For these purposes, any detachable, folding, retractable or other movable butt-stock must be disregarded in measuring the length of any firearm: Firearms Act 1968 s 5(8) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 1(1), (6)). As to the measurement of the length of the barrel of a firearm for the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 generally see PARA 632 note 1 ante.

13 Ibid s 5(1)(ac) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 1(2); and amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 ss 1(4), 52, Sch 3). For these purposes, any detachable, folding, retractable or other movable butt-stock must be disregarded in measuring the length of any firearm: Firearms Act 1968 s 5(8) (as added: see note 12 supra).

14 For the meaning of 'revolver' see PARA 632 note 2 ante.

15 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(ad) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 1(1), (2); and amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 1(5)).

16 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(ae) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 1(1), (2)).

17 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(af) (added by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(1), (3)). As from 20 January 2004 (ie the date on which the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(3) came into force: see the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 (Commencement No 1 and Transitional Provisions) Order 2003, SI 2003/3300), if a person has in his possession an air rifle, air gun or air pistol of the kind described in the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(af) (as added):

- 140 (1) the provisions of s 5(1) do not prevent the person's continued possession of the air rifle, air gun or air pistol (Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(4)(a));
- 141 (2) the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (see PARA 634 ante) applies (Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(4)(b)); and
- 142 (3) a chief officer of police may not refuse to grant or renew, and may not revoke or partially revoke, a firearm certificate under the Firearms Act 1968 Pt II (ss 26A-45) (as amended) on the ground that the person does not have a good reason for having the air rifle, air gun or air pistol in his possession (Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(4)(c)).

This does not, however, apply to possession in the circumstances described in the Firearms Act 1968 s 8 (authorised dealing: see PARA 647 ante): Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 39(5). As to the requirement for a firearm certificate see PARA 634 ante.

18 Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(b). The emission of electricity from a hand-held device, known as a 'lightning strike', is the discharge of something from it and therefore the device is capable of being a weapon designed to discharge a noxious thing, electricity being accepted before the courts as properly described, having regard to its effect on the victim, as a noxious thing, contrary to s 5(1)(b) (Flack v Baldry [1988] 1 All ER 673, [1988] 1 WLR 393, HL), even if it does not work properly because of an unknown fault (Brown v DPP (1992) Times, 27 March, DC). Water pistols are not weapons designed or adapted for the discharge of a noxious liquid (R v Titus [1971] Crim LR 279), nor is a detergent bottle containing acid (R v Formosa, R v Upton [1991] 2 QB 1, [1991] 1 All ER 131, CA). An offence is not committed by virtue of the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(b) in respect of an appropriately authorised person: see s 54(3A), (3B) (as added); and PARA 634 ante. See also PARA 634 note 1 ante.

21 Ie not falling within ibid s 5(1)(c) (as substituted): see PARA 663 post.

22 Ibid 1968 s 5(1A)(c) (as added: see note 19 supra). The text refers to any launcher or other projecting apparatus which is designed to be used with any rocket or ammunition falling under s 5(1A)(b) (as added) (see PARA 663 post) or with ammunition which would fall within s 5(1A)(b) (as added) but for its being ammunition falling within s 5(1)(c) (as substituted) (see PARA 663 post).

662. Penalties in relation to prohibited weapons.

For most offences<sup>1</sup> committed in relation to prohibited weapons<sup>2</sup> a person found guilty is liable on conviction on indictment to a term not exceeding ten years or to a fine or to both<sup>3</sup>. However, if the offence was committed on or after 22 January 2004<sup>4</sup> by an offender aged 16 or over<sup>5</sup> the court must impose an appropriate custodial sentence<sup>6</sup>, or order for detention, for a term of at least the required minimum term, with or without a fine, unless the court is of the opinion that there are exceptional circumstances relating to the offence or to the offender which justify its not doing so<sup>7</sup>. The 'required minimum term' is five years if the offender was aged 18 or over when he committed the offence, and three years if he was under 18 at that time<sup>8</sup>.

For other offences committed in relation to prohibited weapons<sup>9</sup>, a person found guilty is liable on conviction on indictment to a term not exceeding ten years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to a term not exceeding six months<sup>10</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>11</sup> or to both<sup>12</sup>.

1    le an offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(a) (as substituted), s 5(1)(ab), (aba), (ac)-(af) (as added) or s 5(1A)(a) (as added) (see PARA 661 ante).

2    For the meaning of 'prohibited weapons' see PARA 661 note 7 ante.

3    Firearms Act 1968 s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). For sentencing guidelines see R v Avis, R v Barton, R v Thomas, R v Torrington, R v Marquez, R v Goldsmith [1998] 1 Cr App Rep 420, CA.

4    le the date on which the Firearms Act 1968 s 51A (as added) came into force (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 (Commencement No 2 and Saving Provisions) Order 2004, SI 2004/81, art 3(1), (2)(b)): Firearms Act 1968 s 51A(1)(b) (s 51A added by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 287). Where an offence is found to have been committed over a period of two or more days, or at some time during a period of two or more days, it is taken for the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 s 51A (as added) to have been committed on the last of those days: s 51A(3) (as so added).

5    The Secretary of State may by order substitute the age of 18 for that of 16: Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 291(1)(a).

6    'Appropriate custodial sentence' means, in the case of an offender who is aged 18 or over when convicted, a sentence of imprisonment, and in the case of an offender who is aged under 18 at that time, a sentence of detention under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 91 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 78): Firearms Act 1968 s 51A(4) (as added: see note 4 supra). Pending the implementation of the reduction of the minimum age for the imposition of imprisonment from 21 to 18 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 11) the imposition of a sentence of imprisonment on an offender aged 18 or over but under 21 when convicted is prohibited. A judge is not required by s 51A (as added) to impose a sentence of detention in a young offender institution of the required minimum term on such an offender; the words 'or detention in a young offender institution' cannot be read into s 51A(4) (as added) as an alternative to imprisonment: R v Campbell [2006] EWCA Crim 726, [2006] All ER (D) 137 (Mar).

7    Firearms Act 1968 s 51A(1)(a), (2) (as added: see note 4 supra). Section 51A (as added) only applies if the indictment has a specific count alleging an offence under s 5 (as amended): A-G's Reference (No 114 of 2004), R v McDowell [2004] EWCA Crim 2954, [2005] Crim LR 142. As for 'exceptional circumstances' see R v Jordan, R v Alleyne, R v Redfern [2004] EWCA Crim 3291, [2005] Crim LR 312 (cases where 'exceptional circumstances' arose would be rare; defendant thought that the firearm was a replica; Court of Appeal very doubtful that this could be an exceptional circumstance for the purpose of the Firearms Act 1968 s 51A (as added)). If the imposition of the mandatory minimum sentence would result in an arbitrary and disproportionate sentence this amounts to 'exceptional circumstances': R v Rehman, R v Wood [2005] EWCA Crim 2056, (2005) Times, 27 September. Circumstances in combination may amount to 'exceptional circumstances': see R v Rehman, R v Wood supra. The fact that an offender was unfit to serve a five-year sentence or was of very advanced years may be relevant to the issue of 'exceptional circumstances': R v Rehman, R v Wood supra. See also R v McEaney [2005] EWCA Crim 431, [2005] Crim LR 579; R v Blackall [2005] EWCA Crim 1128, [2005] Crim LR 875; R v Evans [2005] EWCA Crim 1811, [2005] Crim LR 876; R v Mehmet [2005] EWCA Crim 2074, [2005] Crim LR 877; R v Evans [2006] EWCA Crim 87, [2006] All ER (D) 387 (Mar). Nothing in the Firearms Act 1968 s 51A (as added) prevents a court from making a hospital order under the Mental Health Act 1983 s 37(1): see s 37(1A) (as added); and MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 491.

8 Firearms Act 1968 s 51A(5) (as added: see note 4 supra). Section 51A (as added) does not permit a discount for a plea of guilty: R v Jordan, R v Alleyne, R v Redfern [2004] EWCA Crim 3291, [2005] Crim LR 312, CA.

9 Is an offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(b) or s 5(1A)(c) (as added) (see PARA 661 ante).

10 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

11 As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

UPDATE

630-698 Firearms, Ammunition and Air Weapons

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

662 Penalties in relation to prohibited weapons

TEXT AND NOTES 4-8--1968 Act s 51A also applies where an individual is convicted of an offence under any of the provisions of the 1968 Act listed in s 51A(1A) in respect of a firearm or ammunition specified in s 5(1)(a), (ab), (aba), (ac), (ad), (ae), (af) or (c) or s 5(1A)(a): s 51A(a)(iii) (added by Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 s 30(2)). The provisions are (1) the 1968 Act 16 (possession of firearm with intent to injure); (2) s 16A (possession of firearm with intent to cause fear of violence); (3) s 17 (use of firearm to resist arrest); (4) s 18 (carrying firearm with criminal intent); (5) s 19 (carrying a firearm in a public place); (6) s 20(1) (trespassing in a building with firearm): s 51A(1A) (added by 2006 Act s 30(3)). The 2006 Act s 30 applies only to offences committed after the commencement of s 30 (ie 6 April 2007: see SI 2007/858): 2006 Act s 30(5).

NOTE 6--In relation to any time before the coming into force of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 61 'appropriate custodial sentence' means, in the case of an offender who is aged 21 or over when convicted, a sentence of imprisonment, in the case of an offender who is aged at least 18 but under 21 at that time, a sentence of detention under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 96 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 85), and in the case of an offender who is aged under 18 at that time, a sentence of detention under s 91 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 78): 1968 Act s 51A(4) (modified by the Firearms (Sentencing) (Transitory Provisions) Order 2007, SI 2007/1324).

NOTE 8--The court must ensure that, where a consecutive term of imprisonment is to be served for another offence and the total term is reduced according to the principle of totality, the overall sentence does not render nugatory the mandatory minimum sentence for the firearms offence: R v Raza [2009] EWCA Crim 1413, [2010] Cr App Rep (S) 354, [2009] All ER (D) 253 (Nov).

784 (1) he has in his possession, or purchases or acquires<sup>2</sup>, or manufactures, sells or transfers<sup>3</sup> any cartridge with a bullet designed to explode on or immediately before impact, any ammunition<sup>4</sup> containing or designed or adapted to contain any such noxious liquid, gas or other thing<sup>5</sup> and, if capable of being used with a firearm<sup>6</sup> of any description, any grenade, bomb (or other like missile), or rocket or shell designed to explode as aforesaid<sup>7</sup>;

785 (2) he has in his possession, or purchases or acquires or sells or transfers<sup>8</sup>:

31. (e) anything which is designed to be projected as a missile from any weapon and is designed to be, or has been, incorporated in any ammunition falling within any of heads (a) to (d) above or any ammunition which would fall within any of those heads but for its being specified in head (1) above<sup>14</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>6</sup> or to both<sup>7</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante. See also PARA 631 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'ammunition' see PARA 634 note 10 ante.

4 Firearms Act 1968 s 25.

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see ibid s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended (see PARA 634 note 15 ante); prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 20(1), (6)). WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(v) Prevention of Crime and Preservation of Public Safety/674. Possession of firearms with intent to endanger life.

674. Possession of firearms with intent to endanger life.

It is an offence for a person to have in his possession<sup>1</sup> any firearm<sup>2</sup> or ammunition<sup>3</sup> with intent<sup>4</sup> by means of it to endanger life or to enable another person by means of it to endanger life<sup>5</sup>, whether any injury to property has been caused or not<sup>6</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life or a shorter term or to a fine or to both<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'possession' in the context of the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (as amended) see PARA 634 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante. A firearm for these purposes does not include an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1982 applies: see s 2(2), (3); and PARA 631 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'ammunition' see PARA 634 note 10 ante.

4 The intent need not be immediate or unconditional, but the defendant must have possession of the firearm and ammunition with a view to using them if and when the occasion arises: R v Bentham [1973] QB 357, 56 Cr App Rep 618, CA. On a charge of possession of a firearm with intent to endanger life, it is a defence to show that the intent to endanger life had a lawful purpose, although cases where such a defence could be raised are rare: R v Georgiades [1989] 1 WLR 759, 89 Cr App Rep 206, CA (issue should have been left to the jury). The intent may be to endanger life outside the United Kingdom: R v El-Hakkaoui [1975] 2 All ER 146, [1975] 1 WLR 396, CA; and see note 6 infra.

As to whether a defendant can have the necessary intent and so be guilty of possession of a firearm under these provisions if he believes that the firearm he possesses is loaded with live ammunition where in fact it is not so loaded see R v Anderson [2006] EWCA Crim 738, [2006] All ER (D) 17 (Mar), CA.

5 The intention must be to endanger the life of another, not the defendant's own life: R v Norton [1977] Crim LR 478. It is not enough that the defendant intends to act in a way that will, objectively, endanger life; he must know that the way in which he intends to act will endanger life; but an intent to kill is not necessary: R v Brown, R v Ciarla [1995] Crim LR 328, CA. To establish that the defendant intended to enable another to endanger life by means of the firearm, it is not enough to prove that he intended that another person should be placed in possession of it in circumstances where the latter had the opportunity to endanger life; 'to enable another person' means more than to give him the opportunity; an intent that the firearm shall be used in a manner which endangers life as and when the occasion arises is needed: R v Ivor Jones [1997] QB 798, [1997] 2 WLR 792, CA.

6 Firearms Act 1968 s 16 (amended by the Criminal Damage Act 1971 s 11(8), Sch Pt I). See also R v El-Hakkaoui [1975] 2 All ER 146, [1975] 1 WLR 396, CA (the offence is established on proof that the defendant had a firearm in his possession in the United Kingdom and at the time of such possession intended by means of it to endanger life; where the intent would have been carried out is irrelevant); R v Goluchowski [2006] All ER (D) 56 (Jul) (the requisite intent need not be present immediately before the action in question takes place; the action becomes criminal from the moment the intention was formed to produce the apprehension which was flowing from the continuing act).

7 Firearms Act 1968 s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(v) Prevention of Crime and Preservation of Public Safety/676. Use of firearm or imitation firearm to resist arrest or detention.

676. Use of firearm or imitation firearm to resist arrest or detention.

It is an offence for a person to make or attempt to make any use whatsoever of a firearm<sup>1</sup> or imitation firearm<sup>2</sup> with intent to resist or prevent the lawful arrest or detention of himself or another person<sup>3</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life or to a fine or to both<sup>4</sup>.

Where a person commits such an offence in respect of his lawful arrest or detention for any offence committed by him, he is liable to the above penalty in addition to any penalty to which he may be sentenced for that other offence<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 s 17(1), (2), 'firearm' means a lethal barrelled weapon of any description from which any shot, bullet or other missile can be discharged, and includes any prohibited weapon (see PARA 661 ante) whether it is such a lethal weapon or not: ss 17(4), 57(1)(a). It does not include any component, or any accessory designed or adapted to diminish noise or flash. 'Firearm' does not include an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1982 (see PARA 631 ante) applies: see s 2(2), (3); and PARA 631 ante.

2 For the purposes of the Firearms Act 1968 s 17(1), (2), 'imitation firearm' means anything which has the appearance of being a firearm (other than such as is mentioned in s 5(1)(b) (see PARA 661 head (8) ante)), whether or not it is capable of discharging any shot, bullet or other missile: ss 17(4), 57(4). The crucial question is whether the thing looked like a firearm at the time of the offence: R v Morris, R v King (1984) 79 Cr App Rep 104, CA. In considering whether the thing looked like a firearm at the time in question, the jury is entitled to have regard to the evidence of witnesses who actually saw the thing at the time, together with their observation of the thing itself: R v Morris, R v King supra. In R v Bentham [2005] UKHL 18, [2005] 2 All ER 65, it was held that fingers inside a jacket, forcing the material out so as to create the impression of a gun, were not in law capable of being an imitation firearm within the above definition because what must be possessed is a 'thing' and one cannot possess something unsevered from oneself. The offence is one of strict liability as to the circumstance that the thing in question is a firearm or imitation firearm within the meaning of the Firearms Act 1968: R v Pierre [1963] Crim LR 513, CCA.

3 Firearms Act 1968 s 17(1). The crucial issue is the defendant's intent; it is irrelevant whether or not someone is trying to arrest him at the time: R v Mather [1998] Crim LR 821, CA. On the trial of a person for an offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 17(1), the jury, if it is not satisfied that he is guilty of that offence, but is satisfied that he is guilty of an offence under s 17(2) (see PARA 677 post), may find him guilty of the offence under s 17(2): Sch 6 Pt II para 5.

4 Ibid s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). For sentencing guidelines see R v Avis, R v Barton, R v Thomas, R v Torrington, R v Marquez, R v Goldsmith [1998] 1 Cr App Rep 420, CA. Where there is an issue as to whether the offence was committed with a firearm, it should be determined by the jury: R v Eubank [2001] EWCA Crim 891, [2002] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 11, CA; R v Murphy [2002] EWCA Crim 1624, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 181. As to the court's powers to cancel firearm or shot gun certificates and to order forfeiture or disposal of firearms and ammunition see PARA 697 post.

5 Firearms Act 1968 Sch 6 Pt II para 4.

Where a person who has attained the age of 17 years is charged before a magistrates' court with an offence listed in the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 17(1), Sch 1 (offences triable either way: see PARA 1103 post) ('the listed offence'), and is also charged before that court with an offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 17(1) or (2) (see PARA 677 post), the court must proceed as if the listed offence were triable only on indictment and the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss 18-23 (as amended) (procedure for determining mode of trial of offences triable either way: see PARAS 1109-1115 post) do not apply in relation to that offence: Firearms Act 1968 Sch 6 Pt II para 3(1), (2) (substituted by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 65(4), Sch 12; and amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 154, Sch 7 para 73). As from a day to be appointed these provisions are repealed by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 41, 332, Sch 3 Pt 2 para 45, Sch 37 Pt 4. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

If the court determines not to commit the defendant for trial in respect of the offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 17(1) or (2), or if proceedings before the court for that offence are otherwise discontinued, Sch 6 Pt II para 3(2) (as substituted and amended; prospectively repealed) ceases to apply as from the time when this occurred and: (1) if at that time the court has not yet begun to inquire into the listed offence as examining justices, the court must, in the case of the listed offence, proceed in the ordinary way in accordance with the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss 18-23 (as amended) (see PARA 1109 et seq post); but (2) if at that time the court has begun so to inquire into the listed offence, ss 18-23 (as amended) continue not to apply and the court must proceed with its inquiry into that offence as examining justices, but has power in accordance with s 25(3), (4) (as amended) (see PARA 1119 post) to change to summary trial with the defendant's consent: Firearms Act 1968 Sch 6 Pt II paras 3(1), (3) (substituted by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 65(4), Sch 12; and amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 154, Sch 7 para 73). As from a day to be appointed these provisions are prospectively repealed by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 41, 332, Sch 3 Pt 2 para 45, Sch 37 Pt 4. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(v) Prevention of Crime and Preservation of Public Safety/677. Possession of firearms while committing offences.

677. Possession of firearms while committing offences.

If a person, at the time of his committing or being arrested for a specified offence<sup>1</sup>, has in his possession<sup>2</sup> a firearm<sup>3</sup> or imitation firearm<sup>4</sup>, he is guilty of an offence unless he shows that he had it in his possession for a lawful object<sup>5</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life or for any shorter term or to a fine or to both<sup>6</sup>; and the punishment to which a person is so liable is in addition to any punishment to which he may be liable for the offence he was committing or for which he was being arrested<sup>7</sup>.

1 The specified offences are:

- 146 (1) offences under the Criminal Damage Act 1971 s 1 (destroying or damaging property: see PARA 334 ante) (Firearms Act 1968 s 17(2), Sch 1 para 1 (substituted by the Criminal Damage Act 1971 s 11(7)));
- 147 (2) offences under any of the Offences against the Person Act 1861 ss 20-22 (inflicting bodily injury; garrotting; criminal use of stupefying drugs: see PARAS 120-122 ante), s 30 (laying explosive to building etc: see PARA 130 ante), s 32 (endangering railway passengers by tampering with track: see PARA 132 ante), s 38 (assault with intent to resist arrest: see PARAS 150 ante, 737 post), s 47 (as amended) (assault occasioning actual bodily harm: see PARA 149 ante) (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 2 (amended by the Child Abduction Act 1984 s 11(5)(c)));
- 148 (3) offences under the Child Abduction Act 1984 Pt I (ss 1-5) (see PARAS 137-141 ante) (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 2A (added by the Child Abduction Act 1984 s 11(2)));
- 149 (4) theft (see PARA 282 et seq ante), robbery (see PARA 293 ante), burglary (see PARA 294 ante), blackmail (see PARA 308 ante) and any offence under the Theft Act 1968 s 12(1) (taking motor vehicle or other conveyance without owner's consent: see PARA 298 ante) (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 4 (substituted by the Theft Act 1968 s 33(2), Sch 2 Pt III; and amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(1), Sch 9 para 8(a)));
- 150 (5) offences under the Police Act 1996 s 89(1) (assaulting a constable in the execution of his duty: see PARA 735 ante) (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 5 (amended by the Police Act 1996 s 103, Sch 7 para 16));
- 151 (6) an offence under the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 90(1) (assaulting a prison custody officer: see PRISONS vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 528) (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 5A (Sch 1 paras 5A, 5B added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(1), Sch 9 para 8(b)));
- 152 (7) an offence under the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 13(1) (assaulting a secure training centre custody officer: see PRISONS vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 670) (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 5A (as so added));
- 153 (8) offences under any of the following provisions of the Sexual Offences Act 2003: s 1 (rape: see PARA 165 ante); s 2 (assault by penetration: see PARA 167 ante); s 4 (causing a person to engage in sexual activity without consent: see PARA 171 ante), where the activity caused involved penetration within s 4(4)(a)-(d); s 5 (rape of a child under 13: see PARA 166 ante); s 6 (assault of a child under 13 by penetration: see PARA 168 ante); s 8 (causing or inciting a child under 13 to engage in sexual activity: see PARA 172 ante), where an activity involving penetration within s 8(3)(a)-(d) was caused; s 30 (sexual activity with a person with a mental disorder impeding choice: see PARA 197 ante), where the touching involved penetration within s 30(3)(a)-(d); s 31 (causing or inciting a person with such a mental disorder to engage in sexual activity: see PARA 198 ante), where an activity involving penetration within s 31(3)(a)-(d) was caused

(Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 para 6 (substituted by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 139, Sch 6 para 16));

- 154 (9) aiding and abetting the commission of any of the offences in the Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 paras 1-6 (as amended) (see heads (1)-(8) supra) (Sch 1 para 8 (amended by the Theft Act 1968 s 33(2), Sch 2 Pt III));
- 155 (10) attempting to commit any of the offences in the Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1 paras 1-6 (as amended) (see heads (1)-(8) supra) (Sch 1 para 9 (amended by the Criminal Damages Act 1971 s 11(8), Schedule Pt I)).

As from a date to be appointed, an offence under the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 Sch 11 para 4 (assaulting a detainee custody officer: see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 158) is also included in the above list of specified offences (and heads (9) and (10) supra apply to any such offence): Firearms Act 1968 s 17(2), Sch 1 para 5C (prospectively added by the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 s 169(1), Sch 14 paras 34, 35). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 'Possession' does not require physical possession; it bears the same meaning as in the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (see PARA 634 note 2 ante): R v North [2001] EWCA Crim 544, [2001] Crim LR 746.

3 For the meaning of 'firearm' for these purposes see PARA 676 note 1 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'imitation firearm' for these purposes see PARA 676 note 2 ante. For these purposes it does not include an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1982 applies: see s 2(2), (3); and PARA 631 ante.

5 Firearms Act 1968 s 17(2). As to whether 'shows' imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq. On a charge of possessing a firearm or imitation firearm on arrest for an offence specified in the Firearms Act 1968 Sch 1, it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that the defendant actually committed the specified offence; it is only necessary to prove that the defendant was in possession of the firearm or imitation firearm when lawfully arrested for a specified offence: R v Jones (2000) 164 JP 293, CA; R v Nelson [2001] QB 55, [2001] 2 Cr App Rep 160, CA (not following R v Baker [1962] 2 QB 530, [1961] 3 All ER 703, CCA). If a defendant has not actually committed the specified offence for which he is lawfully arrested, he should find it correspondingly easier to show that he had the firearm in his possession for a lawful object (R v North [2001] EWCA Crim 544, [2001] Crim LR 746); if he cannot do so the sentencing process can take into account his innocence of the offence for which he was arrested, as well as any conclusion it reaches as to his object in possessing the firearm (R v North supra). As to the procedure where a person who has attained the age of 17 years is charged before a magistrates' court with an offence triable either way and is also charged before that court with an offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 17(2) see Sch 6 Pt II para 3 (as substituted and amended; prospectively repealed); and PARA 676 note 5 ante. A person is guilty of aggravated burglary if he commits any burglary and at the time has with him, inter alia, any firearm or imitation firearm: see PARA 295 ante.

6 Ibid s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). As to the court's power to cancel firearm and shot gun certificates and to order forfeiture or disposal of firearms and ammunition see PARA 697 post.

7 Ibid Sch 6 Pt II para 6. A consecutive sentence is the norm because the carrying of arms constitutes an aggravating feature in respect of which Parliament requires that a separate, additional (although not necessarily consecutive) sentence be imposed: R v McGrath [1987] Crim LR 143, CA. For sentencing guidelines see R v Avis, R v Barton, R v Thomas, R v Torrington, R v Marquez, R v Goldsmith [1998] 1 Cr App Rep 420, CA.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(v) Prevention of Crime and Preservation of Public Safety/678. Shortening or converting weapon.

678. Shortening or converting weapon.

It is an offence: (1) to shorten the barrel of a shot gun<sup>1</sup> to a length<sup>2</sup> less than 24 inches<sup>3</sup>; or (2) to shorten to a length less than 24 inches the barrel of any specified smooth-bore gun<sup>4</sup> other than one which has a barrel with a bore exceeding two inches in diameter<sup>5</sup>; or (3) for a person other than a registered firearms dealer<sup>6</sup> to convert into a firearm<sup>7</sup> anything which, though having the appearance of being a firearm, is so constructed as to be incapable of discharging any missile through its barrel<sup>8</sup>.

It is not, however, an offence under heads (1) and (2) above for a registered firearms dealer so to shorten the barrel of a shot gun or a gun for the sole purpose of replacing a defective part of the barrel so as to produce a barrel not less than 24 inches in length<sup>9</sup>.

A person guilty of an offence under head (1) or head (3) above is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>10</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>11</sup> or to both<sup>12</sup>; and a person guilty of an offence under head (2) above is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>13</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>14</sup> or to both<sup>15</sup>.

3 Firearms Act 1968 s 4(1). Such an offence exists because such a weapon has little or no functional use other than to aid serious crime. Mere possession constitutes such an offence without the necessity of an intention to commit serious crime. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(v) Prevention of Crime and Preservation of Public Safety/679. Carrying firearms or imitation firearms with criminal intent.

679. Carrying firearms or imitation firearms with criminal intent.

It is an offence for a person to have with him<sup>1</sup> a firearm<sup>2</sup> or imitation firearm<sup>3</sup> with intent to commit<sup>4</sup> an indictable offence<sup>5</sup>, or to resist arrest or prevent the arrest of another, while he has a firearm or imitation firearm with him<sup>6</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life or to a fine or to both<sup>7</sup>.

1 A person may have a firearm with him even though he is not carrying it, provided that in the circumstances it is near to him and readily accessible to him: R v Pawlicki [1992] 3 All ER 902, [1992] 1 WLR 827, CA.

2 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante. 'Firearm' does not include an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1968 applies: see s 2(2), (3); and PARA 631 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'imitation firearm' for these purposes see PARA 676 note 2 ante. The relevant question for a jury considering a charge of carrying an imitation firearm with intent to commit an indictable offence is whether it is are sure that the thing that had been carried by the defendant had had the appearance of a firearm at the relevant time and, in that regard, evidence of witnesses that they had believed that the item had been a firearm was not dispositive; it was a matter for the jury to consider on all the evidence: R v Williams [2006] All ER (D) 24 (Jun) (defendant robbed a supermarket with a bottle in a plastic bag telling the victim that he had a gun).

4 It is not essential for the intent to have been formed before the defendant pulled the imitation firearm out of the holster: R v Houghton [1982] Crim LR 112, CA.

5 For the meaning of 'indictable offence' see PARA 1102 note 1 post.

6 Firearms Act 1968 s 18(1). There are three elements to this offence:

156 (1) that the defendant had with him a firearm;

157 (2) that he intended to have it with him; and

158 (3) that at the same time he had the intention to commit an indictable offence or to resist or prevent arrest, and elements (2) and (3) are distinct rather than composite elements of the offence: R v Stoddart [1998] 2 Cr App Rep 25, CA. Thus the prosecution does not have to prove an intention to use or carry the firearm or imitation firearms in furtherance of the indictable offence. Proof that the defendant had a firearm or imitation firearm with him and intended to commit an offence, or to resist or prevent an arrest, is evidence that he intended to have it with him while doing so: Firearms Act 1968 s 18(2). As to a constable's powers to stop and search a person suspected of committing an offence under s 18(2) see PARA 694 post.

7 Ibid s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). For sentencing guidelines see R v Avis, R v Barton, R v Thomas, R v Torrington, R v Marquez, R v Goldsmith [1998] 1 Cr App Rep 420, CA. The sentence for the firearms offence should normally be consecutive to the sentence for the other offence, subject to the totality of the overall sentence: R v Faulkner (1972) 56 Cr App Rep 594, CA; R v French (1982) 75 Cr App Rep 1, 4 Cr App Rep (S) 57, CA. As to the court's power to cancel firearm and shot gun certificates and to order forfeiture or disposal of firearms and ammunition see PARA 697 post.

630-698 Firearms, Ammunition and Air Weapons

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(v) Prevention of Crime and Preservation of Public Safety/680. Carrying firearms in a public place.

680. Carrying firearms in a public place.

A person commits an offence if without lawful authority<sup>1</sup> or reasonable excuse<sup>2</sup>, the proof whereof lies on him<sup>3</sup>, he has with him<sup>4</sup> in a public place<sup>5</sup> a loaded shot gun<sup>6</sup>, an air weapon<sup>7</sup> (whether loaded or not), any other firearm<sup>8</sup> (whether loaded or not) together with ammunition suitable for use in that firearm<sup>9</sup>, or an imitation firearm<sup>10</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence involving an imitation firearm or an air weapon is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>11</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>12</sup> or to both<sup>13</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence (except in the case of an imitation firearm or an air weapon) is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>14</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>15</sup>, or on conviction on indictment to a term of imprisonment not exceeding seven years<sup>16</sup>.

1 It is not lawful authority for a person who has a firearm and ammunition, or a loaded shot gun, in a public place to be the holder of a valid firearm, or shot gun, certificate (see PARAS 634-635 ante) to which no conditions were attached prohibiting such a use: Ross v Collins [1982] Crim LR 368, DC. Consequently, a mistaken belief that an invalid certificate is valid and is lawful authority cannot constitute a reasonable excuse: R v Jones [1995] QB 235, [1995] 3 All ER 139, CA. Where there is a mistaken belief in facts which, if true, would have constituted lawful authority, it is capable of being a reasonable excuse, and the judge should so direct the jury, leaving the jury to determine whether the defendant has proved his belief in the requisite facts and whether in the circumstances that belief amounts to a reasonable excuse: R v Jones supra.

2 See Taylor v Mucklow (1973) 117 Sol Jo 792, DC (quarrel between house-owner and builder; builder thereupon demolishing part of new extension to house; house-owner attempting to stop builder's action by pointing loaded air gun at him from roadway; no reasonable excuse); Ross v Collins [1982] Crim LR 368, DC (belief that River Thames was not a public place was not a reasonable excuse because that reason could not amount to an excuse in law). See also R v Jones [1995] QB 235, [1995] 3 All ER 139, CA; and note 1 supra.

3 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

4 For the meaning of 'has with him' see PARA 679 note 1 ante.

5 'Public place' includes any highway and any other premises or place to which at the material time the public has or is permitted to have access, whether on payment or otherwise: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(4). Cf the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(4) (as amended) (see PARA 699 note 5 ante); the Public Order Act 1986 s 16 (see PARA 579 note 1 ante); the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(7) (see PARA 700 note 1 ante).

6 Firearms Act 1968 s 19(a) (s 19(a)-(d) substituted by the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 37(1)). For the meaning of 'shot gun' see PARA 632 ante. A shot gun is to be deemed to be loaded if there is ammunition in the chamber or barrel or in any magazine or other device which is in such a position that the ammunition can be fed into the chamber or barrel by the manual or automatic operation of some part of the gun or weapon: Firearms Act 1968 s 57(6)(b). See R v Harrison, R v Francis [1996] 1 Cr App Rep 138, CA; and note 10 infra.

7 Firearms Act 1968 s 19(b) (as substituted: see note 6 supra). For the meaning of 'air weapon' see PARA 633 ante. Since 'air weapon' for these purposes means any air weapon it therefore includes an air weapon which, being low powered, is not a lethal barrelled weapon and therefore is not a 'firearm' within the Firearms Act 1968 s 57(1) (see PARA 630 ante): DPP v Street [2004] EWHC 86 (Admin), (2004) Times, 23 January, DC.

8 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante. For these purposes, it does not include an imitation firearm to which the Firearms Act 1982 applies: see s 2(2), (3); and PARA 631 ante.

9 Firearms Act 1968 s 19(c) (as substituted: see note 6 supra).

10 Ibid s 19(d) (as substituted: see note 6 supra). For the meaning of 'imitation firearm' for these purposes see PARA 676 note 2 ante. As to the limitation period for summary proceedings see PARA 696 post. The offence is one of strict liability as to whether, in the case of shotgun, the shotgun is loaded or, indeed, a firearm at all: R v Harrison, R v Francis [1996] 1 Cr App Rep 138, CA. The position is similar in respect of the other types of offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 19 (as amended). An offence under s 19 (as amended) is one of strict liability as to whether what the defendant has with him is a firearm (or ammunition): R v Vann, R v Davis [1996] Crim LR 52, CA.

11 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

12 As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

13 Firearms Act 1968 s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). For sentencing guidelines see R v Avis, R v Barton, R v Thomas, R v Torrington, R v Marquez, R v Goldsmith [1998] 1 Cr App Rep 420, CA. As to the court's power to cancel firearm and shot gun certificates and to order forfeiture or disposal of firearms and ammunition see PARA 697 post.

14 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). ### 630-698 Firearms, Ammunition and Air Weapons

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/683. Grant and renewal of firearm or shot gun certificate.

683. Grant and renewal of firearm or shot gun certificate.

A firearm certificate<sup>1</sup> must be granted where the chief officer of police is satisfied: (1) that the applicant is fit to be entrusted with a firearm<sup>2</sup> and is not a person prohibited<sup>3</sup> from possessing<sup>4</sup> such a firearm; (2) that he has a good reason<sup>5</sup> for having in his possession, or for purchasing or acquiring<sup>6</sup>, the firearm or ammunition in respect of which the application is made; and (3) that in all the circumstances the applicant can be permitted to have the firearm or ammunition in his possession without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>7</sup>. A firearm certificate must be in the prescribed form and must specify the conditions, if any, subject to which it is held, the nature and number of the firearms to which it relates, including if known their identification numbers, and, as respects ammunition, the quantities authorised to be purchased or acquired and to be held at any one time<sup>8</sup>. These provisions also apply to the renewal of a firearm certificate<sup>9</sup>.

If a chief officer of police is satisfied, on an application for the grant or renewal of a firearm certificate in relation to any rifle<sup>10</sup> or muzzle-loading pistol<sup>11</sup> which is not a prohibited weapon<sup>12</sup>, that the applicant's only reason for having it in his possession is to use it for target shooting, any certificate which may be granted to the applicant or, as the case may be, renewed must be held subject to the following conditions, in addition to any other condition, namely that: (a) the rifle or pistol is only to be used for target shooting; and (b) the holder must be a member of an approved rifle club or, as the case may be, muzzle-loading pistol club<sup>13</sup> specified in the certificate<sup>14</sup>.

A shot gun certificate must be granted or, as the case may be, renewed by the chief officer of police if he is satisfied that the applicant can be permitted to possess a shot gun without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>15</sup>, but no such certificate may be granted or renewed if the chief officer of police: (i) has reason to believe that the applicant is prohibited<sup>16</sup> from possessing a shot gun; or (ii) is satisfied that the applicant does not have a good reason for possessing, purchasing or acquiring one<sup>17</sup>. A shot gun certificate must be in the prescribed form and must be granted or renewed subject to any prescribed conditions and no others, and must specify the conditions, if any, subject to which it is granted or renewed<sup>18</sup>. The certificate must specify the description of the shot guns to which it relates including, if known, the identification numbers of the guns<sup>19</sup>.

Unless previously revoked or cancelled, a certificate<sup>20</sup> continues in force for five years (or such other period as may be prescribed<sup>21</sup>) from the date when it was granted or last renewed, but is renewable for a further period of five years by the chief officer of police for the area<sup>22</sup> in which the holder resides<sup>23</sup>. A person aggrieved by the refusal of a chief officer of police to grant or to renew a certificate may appeal against the refusal<sup>24</sup>. It is an offence for a person knowingly or recklessly to make any statement which is false in any material particular for the purpose of procuring (whether for himself or another) the grant or renewal of a certificate<sup>25</sup>. The offence is punishable on summary conviction with six months<sup>26</sup> imprisonment or a fine of level 5 on the standard scale or both<sup>27</sup>.

Subject to certain exceptions, fees are payable on the grant or renewal of a certificate<sup>28</sup>.

If the holder wishes to exchange the firearm for another, however similar, he must apply for variation of the certificate<sup>29</sup>.

A central register is established of all persons who have applied for a firearm or shot gun certificate or to whom a firearm or shot gun certificate has been granted or whose certificate has been renewed<sup>30</sup>. The register must record a suitable identifying number for each person to whom a certificate is issued, and must be kept by means of a computer which provides access online to all police forces<sup>31</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante; and for the meaning of 'firearm certificate' see PARA 634 note 8 ante.

2 Is a firearm to which the Firearms Act 1968 s 1 (see PARA 634 ante) applies.

3 As to such persons see PARAS 668, 672 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'possession' see PARA 634 note 2 ante.

5 For these purposes, a person under the age of 18 is capable of having good reason for having a firearm or ammunition in his possession, or for purchasing or acquiring it, only if he has no intention of using the firearm or ammunition at any time before he attains that age for a purpose not authorised by EC Council Directive 91/477 (OJ L256, 13.09.91, p 51) on the control of the acquisition and possession of weapons ('the Weapons Directive'): Firearms Act 1968 s 27(1A) (s 27(1A) added by the Firearms Acts (Amendment) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2823, reg 4(2)). 6 For the meaning of 'acquire' see PARA 634 note 3 ante.

It has been stated that the chief officer of police must decide in each case whether the reason given for possession of a particular firearm is in itself a good one and not whether general objections can be taken to it: Anderson v Neilans 1940 SLT (Sh Ct) 13; Hughson v Lerwick Police 1956 SLT (Sh Ct) 18.

8 Firearms Act 1968 s 27(2) (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 23(5)). As to the prescribed form see the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, r 3(6), Sch 1 Pt II. A firearm certificate must be granted or renewed subject to the following conditions, whether or not in addition to any other conditions, namely that: (1) the holder must, on receipt of the certificate, sign it in ink with his usual signature; (2) the holder of the certificate must inform the chief officer of police by whom the certificate was granted within seven days of the theft, loss or destruction in Great Britain of the certificate; (3) the holder of the certificate must, without undue delay, inform the chief officer of police by whom the certificate was granted of any change in his permanent address; (4)(a) the firearms and ammunition to which the certificate relates must at all times, except in the circumstances set out in head (b) below, be stored securely so as to prevent, so far as is reasonably practicable, access to the firearms or ammunition by an unauthorised person; (b) where a firearm or ammunition to which the certificate relates is in use or the holder of the certificate has the firearm with him for the purpose of cleaning, repairing or testing it or for some other purpose connected with its use, transfer or sale, or the firearm or ammunition is in transit to or from a place in connection with its use or any such purpose, reasonable precautions must be taken for the safe custody of the firearm or the ammunition: r 3(4). 16 See PARAS 669, 672 ante.

17 Firearms Act 1968 s 28(1A) (added by Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 3(1)). For the purpose of head (ii) in the text, an applicant must, in particular, be regarded as having a good reason if the gun is intended to be used for sporting or competition purposes or for shooting vermin; and an application may not be refused by virtue of head (ii) in the text merely because the applicant intends neither to use the gun himself nor to lend it for anyone else to use: Firearms Act 1968 s 28(1B) (added by Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 3(1)). A person under the age of 18 is regarded as not having a good reason for possessing, purchasing or acquiring a shot gun if it is his intention to use the shot gun at any time before he attains that age for a purpose not authorised by the Weapons Directive: Firearms Act 1968 s 28(1C) (s 28(1C) added by the Firearms Acts (Amendment) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/2823, reg 4(3)).

18 Firearms Act 1968 s 28(2). As to the prescribed form see the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, Sch 2 Pt II (amended by SI 2005/3344). A shotgun certificate must be granted or renewed subject to the following conditions, and no others, namely that: (1) the holder must, on receipt of the certificate, sign it in ink with his usual signature; (2) the holder of the certificate must inform the chief officer of police by whom the certificate was granted within seven days of the theft, loss or destruction in Great Britain of the certificate; (3) the holder of the certificate must, without undue delay, inform the chief officer of police by whom the certificate was granted of any change in his permanent address; and (4)(a) the shotguns to which the certificate relates must at all times (except in the circumstances set out in head (b) infra) be stored securely so as to prevent, so far as is reasonably practicable, access to the guns by an unauthorised person; and (b) where a shotgun to which the certificate relates is in use or the holder of the certificate has the shotgun with him for the purpose of cleaning, repairing or testing it or for some other purpose connected with its use, transfer or sale, or the gun is in transit to or from a place in connection with its use or any such purpose, reasonable precautions must be taken for the safe custody of the gun: r 5(4). Where a shotgun which is disguised as another object, is possessed, purchased or acquired by the holder of the certificate for the purpose only of its being kept or exhibited as part of a collection, the certificate must be subject to an additional condition restricting the use of that shotgun to use for that purpose: r 5(5). See R v Chelmsford Crown Court, ex p Farrer [2000] 1 WLR 1468, CA; and note 8 supra.

19 Firearms Act 1968 s 28(2A) (added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 3(2)).

23 Firearms Act 1968 s 28A(1), (3)-(5) (s 28A added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52(1), Sch 2 para 4(1)). The provisions of the Firearms Act 1968 apply to the renewal of a certificate as they apply to a grant; but, subject to that, a certificate granted or last renewed in Northern Ireland may not continue in force for a period longer than that for which it was so granted or last renewed: s 28A(2) (as so added). The prescribed period may be adjusted so as to ensure that, where both firearm and shot gun certificates are held, they take effect and cease to be in force at the same time: see the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 11 (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 Sch 2 para 17; and the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 2000, SI 2000/3148, art 6).

24 Firearms Act 1968 s 28A(6) (as added: see note 23 supra). The appeal must be in accordance with s 44 (as amended) (see PARA 691 post): s 28A(6).

25 Ibid s 28A(7) (as added: see note 23 supra). As to limitation on time for summary proceedings see PARA 696 post.

26 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

27 Firearms Act 1968 s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante).

28 See ibid s 32(1) (substituted by the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 1994, SI 1994/2615, art 4, Sch 1 Pt I; and amended by the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 2000, SI 2000/3148, art 3). The Secretary of State may by order made by statutory instrument vary any sum specified under the Firearms Act 1968 s 32 (as amended) and s 35 (see PARA 689 post) or provide that any sum payable thereunder ceases to be so payable: see the Firearms Act 1968 s 43. No fee is payable on the grant to a responsible officer of a rifle club, miniature rifle club or muzzle-loading pistol club which is approved under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15 (see PARA 651 ante) of a firearm certificate in respect of rifles, miniature rifles or muzzle-loading pistols, or ammunition, to be used solely for target shooting by the members of the club, or on the variation or renewal of a certificate so granted: Firearms Act 1968 s 32(2) (substituted by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 Sch 2 para 5). However, this exemption does not apply if the operation of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(1) is excluded in relation to the club by a limitation in the approval: Firearms Act 1968 s 32(2A)(a) (s 32(2A) added by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 Sch 2 para 5). In addition, if the operation of the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 15(1) in relation to the club is limited by the approval to target shooting with specified types of rifles, miniature rifles or muzzle-loading pistols, the Firearms Act 1968 s 32(2) (as substituted) only applies to a certificate in respect of rifles, miniature rifles or pistols of those types: s 32(2A)(b) (as so added). No fee is payable on the grant or renewal of a firearm certificate relating solely to a firearm which is shown to the satisfaction of the chief officer of police to be kept by the applicant as a trophy of war, or on any variation of a certificate the sole effect of which is to add such a firearm as aforesaid to the firearms to which the certificate relates, if the certificate is granted, renewed or varied subject to the condition that the applicant must not use the firearm: s 32(4). No fee is payable on the grant, variation or renewal of a firearm certificate if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the certificate relates solely to and, in the case of a variation, will continue when varied to relate solely to: (1) a firearm or ammunition which the applicant requires as part of the equipment of a ship; or (2) a signalling apparatus, or ammunition for it, which the applicant requires as part of the equipment of an aircraft or aerodrome; or (c) a slaughtering instrument, or ammunition for it, which the applicant requires for the purpose of the slaughter of animals: s 32(3). No fee is payable on the grant, variation or renewal of a firearm certificate which relates solely to and, in the case of a variation, will continue when varied to relate solely to, a signalling device which, when assembled and ready to fire, is not more than eight inches long and which is designed to discharge a flare, or to ammunition for such a device: s 32(3A) (added by the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 1968, SI 1968/1753; substituted by the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 1980, SI 1980/574; and further substituted by virtue of the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 1994, SI 1994/2615, art 4, Sch 1 Pt II).

On the application of the holder of a firearm certificate, the chief officer of police of the area<sup>1</sup> in which the holder for the time being resides may vary the certificate<sup>2</sup>. Where the variation increases the number of firearms to which the certificate relates, a fee is normally payable<sup>3</sup>. It is an offence for a person knowingly or recklessly to make a statement false in any material particular for the purpose of procuring the variation of a firearm certificate for himself or another person<sup>4</sup>. The offence is punishable on summary conviction with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>6</sup> or both<sup>7</sup>.

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/685. Compulsory variation and revocation of certificate.

685. Compulsory variation and revocation of certificate.

The chief officer of police in whose area<sup>1</sup> the holder of a firearm certificate for the time being resides may at any time, by written notice, vary the conditions (other than the prescribed mandatory conditions) subject to which the certificate is held and require the delivery up of it within 21 days for the purpose of its amendment<sup>2</sup>.

A firearm certificate may be revoked by the chief officer of police for the area in which the holder resides on any of the following grounds<sup>3</sup>: (1) if the chief officer of police has reason to believe that the holder is of intemperate habits or unsound mind or is otherwise unfitted to be entrusted with a firearm, or that the holder can no longer be permitted to have the firearm or ammunition to which the certificate relates in his possession without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>4</sup>; (2) if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the holder is prohibited<sup>5</sup> from possessing a firearm to which the Firearms Act 1968<sup>6</sup> applies<sup>7</sup>; (3) if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the holder no longer has a good reason for having in his possession, or for purchasing or acquiring, the firearm or ammunition which he is authorised by virtue of the certificate to have in his possession or to purchase or acquire<sup>8</sup>; or (4) if the holder fails to comply with a notice<sup>9</sup> requiring him to deliver up the certificate<sup>10</sup>. A person aggrieved by the revocation of a certificate under head (1), (2) or (3) above may appeal against the revocation<sup>11</sup>.

The chief officer of police for the area in which the holder of a firearm certificate resides may partially revoke the certificate, that is to say, he may revoke the certificate in relation to any firearm or ammunition which the holder is authorised by virtue of the certificate to have in his possession or to purchase or acquire<sup>12</sup>. A firearm certificate may be partially revoked only if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the holder no longer has a good reason for having in his possession, or for purchasing or acquiring, the firearm or ammunition to which the partial revocation relates<sup>13</sup>. A person aggrieved by the partial revocation of a certificate may appeal against the partial revocation<sup>14</sup>.

A shot gun certificate may be revoked by the chief officer of police for the area in which the holder resides if he is satisfied that the holder is prohibited by the Firearms Act 1968 from possessing a shot gun<sup>15</sup> or cannot be permitted to possess a shot gun without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>16</sup>. A person aggrieved by the revocation of a shot gun certificate may appeal against the revocation<sup>17</sup>.

Where a firearm or shot gun certificate is revoked the chief officer of police must by notice in writing require the holder to surrender the certificate<sup>18</sup>. Where a firearm certificate is partially revoked the chief officer of police must by notice in writing require the holder to deliver up the certificate for the purpose of amending it<sup>19</sup>. It is an offence for the holder of a certificate to fail to comply with a notice requiring surrender or delivery within 21 days<sup>20</sup>. The offence is punishable with a maximum fine of level 3 on the standard scale<sup>21</sup>.

If an appeal is brought against a revocation or partial revocation these provisions do not apply to that revocation or partial revocation unless the appeal is abandoned or dismissed; and they then apply with the substitution, for the reference to the date of the notice, of a reference to the date on which the appeal was abandoned or dismissed<sup>22</sup>.

These provisions do not apply in relation to the revocation of a firearm certificate on any ground mentioned in head (1), (2) or (3) above, or to the revocation of a shot gun certificate, if the chief officer of police serves a notice on the holder<sup>23</sup> requiring him to surrender forthwith his certificate and any firearms and ammunition in his possession by virtue of the certificate<sup>24</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'area' see PARA 646 note 1 ante.

2 See the Firearms Act 1968 s 29(1). As to the prescribed conditions see PARA 683 ante. An appeal cannot be made to the Crown Court against the decision to vary the conditions subject to which a firearm certificate is held; a challenge to it must be by way of judicial review: R v Cambridge Crown Court, ex p Buckland [1998] 32 LS Gaz R 29, 142 Sol Jo LB 206.

16 Firearms Act 1968 s 30C(1) (as added: see note 3 supra). 'Danger to the peace' is not limited to danger of violence; all that is necessary is that there should be a danger that the gun might be used in such a way that good order is disturbed; carrying a gun for the purpose of poaching would constitute a disturbance of 'the peace' in the sense of disturbance of good order: Ackers v Taylor [1974] 1 All ER 771, [1974] 1 WLR 405, DC (revocation of shot gun certificate under identical wording of the Firearms Act 1968 s 30(1) (repealed)). The danger to the peace which must be considered is a danger involving the use of the gun, a matter to be decided with reference to facts occurring before the licence was first granted, as well as after it: Spencer-Stewart v Chief Constable of Kent (1988) 89 Cr App Rep 307, DC (revocation under the Firearms Act 1968 s 30(2) (repealed)). Where the husband of the holder of a shot gun certificate had convictions for drug offences, and he and the holder still associated with drug-users, it was held that there was some danger to the public and that the requirements for revocation of the certificate had been satisfied: Dabek v Chief Constable of Devon and Cornwall (1990) 155 JP 55, DC (revocation under the Firearms Act 1968 s 30(2) (repealed)). Likewise, it has been held that a chief constable is entitled in the exercise of his discretion to take account of irresponsible and uncontrolled conduct not involving a shotgun but analogous to it: Chief Constable of Essex v Germain (1991) 156 JP 109, DC (revocation under the Firearms Act 1968 s 30(2) (repealed)).

22 Ibid s 30D(4) (as added: see note 3 supra).

23     le a notice under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 12 (as amended). Where a certificate is revoked under the Firearms Act 1968 s 30A(2), (3) or (4) (as added) or s 30C (as added), the chief officer of police may, by written notice, require the holder to surrender forthwith the certificate and any firearms and ammunition which are in the holder's possession by virtue of that certificate: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 12(1) (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52(1), Sch 2 paras 15, 18). Failure to comply is an offence punishable on summary conviction by imprisonment not exceeding 3 months or a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale or both: Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 12(2). As from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may by order either provide that this offence is no longer punishable by imprisonment or extend the maximum term for this offence to a maximum term of 51 weeks: see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(1), (2), (7) (not yet in force). Any such order may make such supplementary, incidental, or consequential provision as the Secretary of State considers necessary or expedient, including provision amending any relevant enactment (s 281(3) (not yet in force)), but may not affect the penalty for any offence committed before the commencement of that order (s 281(6)(a) (not yet in force)). Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/687. European firearms documents.

687. European firearms documents.

Where a person is granted, or is the holder of, a certificate<sup>1</sup> under the Firearms Act 1968, he is entitled to be issued by the chief officer of police for the area<sup>2</sup> in which he resides with:

- 804 (1) a document ('a European firearms pass') containing the required particulars<sup>3</sup>; and
- 805 (2) a document stating that, for certain purposes<sup>4</sup>, the holder of the certificate has the agreement of the United Kingdom authorities, for so long as the certificate remains in force, to any purchase or acquisition by him in another member state<sup>5</sup> of any firearm or ammunition to which the certificate relates, and an application for the issue of a document falling within head (1) or head (2) above may be made at the same time as any application for a certificate the grant of which will entitle him to the issue of the document or subsequently while the certificate is in force<sup>6</sup>.

Where: (a) a person who resides in Great Britain<sup>7</sup> is proposing to purchase or acquire any firearm or ammunition in another member state<sup>8</sup>; (b) that person is not for the time being the holder of a certificate<sup>9</sup> relating to that firearm or ammunition<sup>10</sup>; (c) the firearm falls within a specified category<sup>11</sup> or the ammunition is capable of being used with such a firearm<sup>12</sup>; and (d) that person satisfies the chief officer of police for the area where he resides that he is not proposing to bring that firearm or ammunition into the United Kingdom<sup>13</sup>, the chief officer of police may, if he thinks fit, issue that person with a document stating that, for certain purposes<sup>14</sup>, that person has the agreement of the United Kingdom authorities to any purchase or acquisition by him in another member state of that firearm or ammunition<sup>15</sup>.

The period specified in a European firearms pass as the period for which it is to be valid is whichever is the shorter of: (i) the period until the earliest time when a certificate relating to a firearm identified in the pass expires; and (ii) the maximum period for the duration of that pass<sup>16</sup>.

On an application for the renewal by a chief officer of police of a certificate relating to a firearm identified in a European firearms pass, the holder of the certificate may apply to the chief officer of police for the renewal of the pass<sup>17</sup>. Where a certificate relating to a firearm identified in a European firearms pass is to expire without being renewed, but a certificate relating to another firearm identified in that pass will continue in force after the other certificate expires, the holder of the pass may apply to the chief officer of police for the area in which he resides for the renewal of the pass subject to the deletion of the reference to any firearm to which the expiring certificate relates<sup>18</sup>. Where a European firearms pass ceases to be valid without being renewed, the chief officer of police for the area in which the person to whom it was issued resides may, by notice in writing, require that person, within 21 days of the date of the notice, to surrender the pass to him<sup>19</sup>. It is an offence for a person to fail to comply with such a notice<sup>20</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>21</sup>.

Where: (A) a certificate relating to a firearm identified in a European firearms pass or a certificate in respect of which a specified authority<sup>22</sup> has been issued is varied<sup>23</sup>, revoked or cancelled<sup>24</sup>; (b) the Secretary of State gives notice that any European firearms pass needs to be modified by the addition or variation of a specified statement<sup>25</sup>; or (c) the holder of a European firearms pass applies to have particulars of another firearm added to the pass<sup>26</sup>, the chief officer of police for the area in which the holder of the pass or authority resides must make such variations of the pass or authority as are appropriate in consequence of the variation, revocation, cancellation, notice or application or, where appropriate, to cancel it<sup>27</sup>.

Where a person is for the time being the holder of an Article 7 authority<sup>28</sup> issued by the chief officer of police for any area, the chief officer of police for that area may, if he thinks fit, at any time revoke that authority, and by notice in writing require that person, within 21 days of the date of the notice, to surrender that authority to him<sup>29</sup>. Where a firearm identified in a European firearms pass which is for the time being valid is lost or stolen, the holder of the pass must immediately inform the chief officer of police for the area in which he resides about the loss or theft, and produce the pass to that chief officer for him to indorse particulars of that loss or theft on the pass<sup>30</sup>. It is an offence for a person to fail to comply with such an obligation<sup>31</sup>. The offence is punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>32</sup> or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or both<sup>33</sup>.

The particulars of the firearms to which a shot gun certificate relates which are to be contained in a European firearms pass are: (a) a description of the shot guns to which that certificate relates; and (b) any identification numbers specified in or entered on that certificate in pursuance of s 28(2A) (as added) (see PARA 683 ante) or in consequence of any person's compliance, in accordance with the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 32(2)(b) (requirements relating to transfers of firearms: see PARA 638 ante), with any instructions contained in the certificate, and, accordingly, references to a firearm identified in such a pass include references to any shot gun of a description specified in that pass: Firearms Act 1968 s 32A(4) (s 32A as so added; and s 32A(4) amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52, Sch 2 para 6).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/688. Registration of firearms dealers.

688. Registration of firearms dealers.

The chief officer of police for every area<sup>1</sup> is required to keep in a prescribed form a register of firearms dealers<sup>2</sup>. Except as provided to the contrary<sup>3</sup>, the chief officer must enter in the register the name of any person who, having or proposing to have a place of business in his area, applies for registration<sup>4</sup> and, if a person is registered as a firearms dealer, his place of business is to be entered on the register<sup>5</sup>. In order to be registered, an applicant must provide certain prescribed particulars<sup>6</sup>.

A firearms dealer must not be registered if registration is prohibited by order of a court in either Great Britain or Northern Ireland<sup>7</sup>. The chief officer of police may refuse to register an applicant unless he is satisfied that the applicant will engage in business as a firearms dealer to a substantial extent or as an essential part of another trade, business or profession<sup>8</sup>. Further, registration may be refused if the chief officer of police is satisfied that the applicant cannot be permitted to carry on business as a firearms dealer without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>9</sup>, but he may not refuse registration on these grounds in the case of an applicant authorised by the Secretary of State<sup>10</sup> to manufacture, sell or transfer prohibited weapons or ammunition<sup>11</sup>. The chief officer of police may in any case refuse registration on the ground that the place of business is such that the applicant cannot be permitted to carry on business there without danger to the public safety or the peace<sup>12</sup>.

Registration is subject to such conditions as the chief officer of police may at any time impose and, either of his own motion or on the application of the firearms dealer, he may at any time vary or revoke an existing condition<sup>13</sup>.

A person who is registered in any area as a firearms dealer who proposes to carry on business as such at a place of business in that area which is not entered in the register must notify the chief officer of police for the area and furnish him with the required particulars, whereupon the chief officer must enter that place in the register<sup>14</sup> unless he is satisfied that the place is such that the applicant cannot be permitted to carry on such business there without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>15</sup>.

As to the prescribed particulars see the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, r 10(2), Sch 5 Pt II. It is an offence knowingly or recklessly to make a statement false in a material particular to procure registration: see the Firearms Act 1968 s 39(1) (amended by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 52, Sch 2 para 2(3)). An offence under the Firearms Act 1968 s 39(1) (as amended) is punishable on summary conviction with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or both: s 51(1), (2), Sch 6 Pt 1 (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/689. Certificates of registration.

689. Certificates of registration.

A person entered on the register of firearms dealers must be granted a certificate of registration<sup>1</sup>, but he must surrender his certificate to the chief officer of police on or before the expiration of the period of three years from the grant of the certificate and apply in the prescribed form for a new certificate<sup>2</sup>. Provided that the requisite fee has been paid and that the dealer's name has not been removed from the register, such certificates are granted as of right<sup>3</sup>.

The certificate must specify the conditions for the time being affecting registration and, on any change being made in those conditions<sup>4</sup>, the holder must be given written notice of them<sup>5</sup> and required to deliver up his certificate within 21 days for the purpose of its amendment<sup>6</sup>.

A fee is normally payable<sup>7</sup> on the initial registration of a firearms dealer<sup>8</sup> and on the grant of a new certificate<sup>9</sup>.

A reduced fee, currently set at £12, is payable if the chief officer of police for the area in which the applicant has applied to be registered is satisfied that the only place of business in respect of which the application is made is at a game fair, trade fair or exhibition, agricultural show or an event of a similar character, and that the applicant's principal place of business is entered in the register for another area: see s 35(1A) (added by the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 1986, SI 1986/986, art 7; and amended by the Firearms (Variation of Fees) Order 1994, SI 1994/2615, art 7, Sch 2 Pt II).

690. Removal from the register by the chief officer of police.

If, after giving a person whose name is on the register reasonable notice, the chief officer of police is satisfied that the person concerned either no longer carries on business as a firearms dealer<sup>1</sup> or has ceased to have a place of business in the police area<sup>2</sup>, that person's name may be removed from the register<sup>3</sup>. It may also be removed if, after giving such notice, he is satisfied that the person cannot be permitted to carry on business as a firearms dealer without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>4</sup>, unless the person concerned is authorised<sup>5</sup> to manufacture, sell or transfer prohibited weapons or ammunition<sup>6</sup>.

A place of business may be removed from the register if the chief officer of police is satisfied that it is one at which the firearms dealer concerned cannot be permitted to carry on business as such without danger to the public safety or to the peace<sup>10</sup>.

A person's name or place of business may also be removed from the register if the chief officer of police is satisfied that a registered firearms dealer has failed to comply with the conditions of registration<sup>11</sup>.

Where a person's name is removed from the register, the chief officer of police must give him written notice requiring him to surrender his certificate of registration, and the register of transactions kept<sup>12</sup> by him or, if the register is kept by means of a computer, a copy of the information comprised in that register in a visible and legible form<sup>13</sup>. If that person fails to do so within 21 days from the date of the notice<sup>14</sup>, he commits an offence<sup>15</sup> and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale<sup>16</sup>.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/691. Appeals to the courts.

691. Appeals to the courts.

A person aggrieved by the decision of the chief officer of police has a right of appeal to the Crown Court<sup>1</sup> where: (1) the grant or renewal of a firearm or shot gun certificate is refused<sup>2</sup>; (2) an application for the variation of a firearm certificate is refused<sup>3</sup>; (3) a firearm certificate is revoked, or partially revoked, or a shot gun certificate is revoked<sup>4</sup>; (4) the registration of a firearms dealer is refused<sup>5</sup>; (5) a change in the conditions of registration of a firearms dealer is made or refused<sup>6</sup>; (6) entry in the register of firearms dealers of a new place of business is refused<sup>7</sup>; or (7) a person's name, or a particular place of business, is removed from that register<sup>8</sup>.

Notice of appeal<sup>9</sup> must be given to the appropriate officer of the Crown Court and to the chief officer of police<sup>10</sup> within 21 days after the appellant received notice of the decision of the chief officer<sup>11</sup>. The appeal must be determined on merits (and not by way of review)<sup>12</sup>. On the hearing of the appeal, on which the chief officer of police may appear and be heard<sup>13</sup>, the Crown Court may either dismiss the appeal or give the chief officer of police such directions as it thinks fit as respects the certificate or register which is the subject of the appeal<sup>14</sup>.

1 Firearms Act 1968 s 44(1) (s 44 substituted by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 41(1)). The court hearing such an appeal may consider any evidence or other matter, whether or not it was available when the decision of the chief officer was taken: Firearms Act 1968 s 44(3) (substituted by the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1997 s 41(1)). The Crown Court is not bound by the ordinary rules of evidence but is entitled to take into account all the matters, including hearsay evidence, which were before the chief officer of police: Kavanagh v Chief Constable of Devon and Cornwall [1974] QB 624, [1974] 2 All ER 697, CA. 9 The notice of appeal must be signed by the appellant or by his agent on his behalf and must state the general grounds of the appeal: ibid s 44(5), Sch 5 Pt II para 1 (s 44(5) as substituted: see note 1 supra).

The appellant may at any time, not less than two clear days before the date so fixed, abandon his appeal by giving written notice to the appropriate officer of the court and to the chief officer of police: Sch 5 Pt II para 4 (amended by the Crown Court Rules 1971, SI 1971/1292).

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(2) FIREARMS, AMMUNITION AND AIR WEAPONS/(vi) Regulation of Firearms and Ammunition/692. Register and notice of transactions in firearms.

692. Register and notice of transactions in firearms.

Every person who by way of trade or business manufactures, sells<sup>1</sup> or transfers<sup>2</sup> firearms<sup>3</sup> or ammunition<sup>4</sup> must provide and keep a register of transactions and must enter or cause to be entered in it prescribed particulars<sup>5</sup> within 24 hours after the transaction took place<sup>6</sup>. In the case of such a sale or transfer, every seller or transferor<sup>7</sup> must at the time of the transaction require any purchaser or transferee who is not known to him to furnish particulars of identification which must immediately be entered in the register<sup>8</sup>.

A person keeping such a register of transactions must on demand allow a constable or a civilian officer, duly authorised in writing in that behalf by the chief officer of police<sup>9</sup>, to enter and inspect all stock-in-hand and must on request by a constable or a civilian officer so authorised or an officer of Revenue and Customs produce the register, or if the register is kept by means of a computer, a copy of the information comprised in that register in a visible and legible form, for inspection<sup>10</sup>.

Every person keeping such a register of transactions must, unless required to surrender the register<sup>11</sup>, keep it for such a period that each entry will be available for inspection for at least five years from the date on which it was made<sup>12</sup>.

Every person keeping a register by means of a computer must secure that the information comprised in the register can readily be produced in a form in which it is visible and legible and can be taken away<sup>13</sup>.

1 Nothing in the Firearms Act 1968 s 40 applies to the sale of firearms or ammunition by auction in accordance with the terms of a permit issued under s 9(2) (see PARA 648 ante): s 40(6).

2 As to the meaning of 'transfer' see PARA 637 note 1 ante.

3 This reference, and the reference in the Firearms Act 1968 Sch 4, is to be construed as not including references to air weapons or component parts of, or accessories to, air weapons: s 40(2). For the meaning of 'air weapon' see PARA 633 ante. A chief officer of police may, if he thinks fit, by notice in writing, exempt transactions in certain parts and accessories for shot guns, so long as the notice is in force, from all or any of the requirements of s 40(1), Sch 4, if it appears to him that: (1) a person required to be registered as a firearms dealer (see PARA 688 ante) carries on a trade or business in the course of which he manufactures, tests or repairs component parts or accessories for shot guns but does not manufacture, test or repair complete shot guns; and (2) it is impossible to assemble a shot gun from the parts likely to come into that person's possession in the course of that trade or business: see s 41.

4 Any reference in ibid s 40(1), Sch 4 to ammunition is to be construed as not including:

164 (1) cartridges containing five or more shot, none of which exceeds .36 inch in diameter (s 40(2)(a));

165 (2) ammunition for an air gun, air rifle or air pistol (s 40(2)(b)); or 166 (3) blank cartridges not more than 1 inch in diameter measured immediately in front of the rim or cannellure of the base of the cartridge (s 40(2)(c)).

For the meaning of 'ammunition' within the Firearms Act 1968 generally see PARA 634 note 10 ante.

5 Ibid s 40(1). The prescribed particulars are the quantities and descriptions of firearms and ammunition:

- 167 (1) manufactured and the dates thereof (Sch 4 para 1);
- 168 (2) purchased or acquired, with the sellers' or transferors' names and addresses (Sch 4 para 2);
- 169 (3) accepted for sale, repair, test, proof, cleaning, storage, destruction or other purpose, with the transferors' names and addresses and the dates of the several transactions (Sch 4 para 3);
- 170 (4) sold or transferred, with the purchasers' or transferees' names and addresses and (except where the purchaser or transferee is a registered firearms dealer) the police areas in which the firearms certificates were issued, and the dates of the several transactions (Sch 4 para 4 (substituted by the Firearms Rules 1998, SI 1998/1941, r 10(5)); and
- 171 (5) in possession for sale or transfer at the date of the last stocktaking or such other date in such each year as is specified in the register (Firearms Act 1968 Sch 4 para 5).

Schedule 4 may be amended by rules made by the Secretary of State under s 53 (see PARA 633 ante): see s 40(7).

6 See ibid s 40(3). Failure to comply with any provision of s 40 (as amended) or knowingly to make any false entry in the register is an offence: s 40(5). Such an offence is punishable on summary conviction by imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or both: see s 51, Sch 6 Pt I (as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the limitation of time for summary proceedings see PARA 696 post.

7 As to the meanings of 'transferor' and 'transferee' see PARA 636 note 1 ante.

This refers only to the common law powers and not to the power under the Justices of the Peace Act 1361 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 151): Goodlad v Chief Constable of South Yorkshire [1979] Crim LR 51.

4 Firearms Act 1968 s 52(1)(b). For the meaning of 'firearm' see PARA 630 ante. See also PARA 631 ante.

5 Is a community order within the meaning of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 163) made in England and Wales, or a probation order made in Scotland: Firearms Act 1968 s 52(1A) (added by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 304, Sch 32 paras 11, 13(1), (3)).

6 Firearms Act 1968 s 52(1)(c) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sch 32 paras 11, 13(1), (2)).

7 For the meaning of 'ammunition' see PARA 634 note 10 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'shot gun certificate' see PARA 635 note 5 ante.

10 Firearms Act 1968 s 52(1). Where the court so cancels a certificate, it must cause notice to be sent to the chief officer of police by whom the certificate was granted and the chief officer of police must by notice in writing require the holder of the certificate to surrender it: s 52(2)(a), (b). A holder who fails to surrender a certificate within 21 days from the date of the notice given him by the chief officer of police is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: ss 51(1), (2), 52(2)(c), Sch 6 Pt I (Sch 6 Pt I as amended: see PARA 634 note 15 ante). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. As to the limitation of time for summary proceedings see PARA 696 ante. A constable may seize and detain any firearm or ammunition which may be the subject of an order for forfeiture under s 52 (as amended) (s 52(3)); and a magistrates' court may, on the application of the chief officer of police, order any such firearm or ammunition so seized and detained to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of (s 52(4)). Where, however, a person is convicted of an offence under the Firearms (Amendment) Act 1988 s 19, Schedule (see PARA 660 ante), no order may be made for the forfeiture of anything in his possession for the purposes of the museum in question: s 25(5). The Firearms Act 1968 s 52(3) is not to be taken as prejudicing the power of a constable, when arresting a person for an offence, to seize property found in his possession or any other power of a constable to seize firearms, ammunition or other property, being a power exercisable apart from s 52(3): s 58(4). As to the restrictions on the possession of firearms or ammunition by persons who have been convicted of crime see PARA 672 ante; and as to the power to order deprivation of property used for crime see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 481.

630-698 Firearms, Ammunition and Air Weapons

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(3) OFFENSIVE WEAPONS/699. Carrying offensive weapons in a public place.

(3) OFFENSIVE WEAPONS

699. Carrying offensive weapons in a public place.

Any person who, without lawful authority<sup>1</sup> or reasonable excuse<sup>2</sup>, the proof whereof lies on him<sup>3</sup>, has with him<sup>4</sup> in any public place<sup>5</sup> any offensive weapon<sup>6</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding four years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>8</sup>.

Where a person is convicted of such an offence, the court may make an order for the forfeiture or disposal of any weapon in respect of which the offence was committed<sup>9</sup>.

1 'Lawful authority' covers persons whose duty it is to carry offensive weapons: Bryan v Mott (1975) 62 Cr App Rep 71, DC; and see also Crafter v Kelly [1941] SASR 237 at 243. However, there is no lawful authority for security guards to carry truncheons as part of their uniforms: see R v Spanner, Poulter and Ward [1973] Crim LR 704, CA. 'Lawful authority' is to be distinguished from a lawful excuse: Wong Pooh Yin v Public Prosecutor [1955] AC 93 at 101, [1954] 3 All ER 31 at 34, PC.

2 'Reasonable excuse' is to be identified with the carrying of the weapon and not with its use: R v Jura [1954] 1 QB 503, 38 Cr App Rep 53, CCA; R v Dayle [1973] 3 All ER 1151, 58 Cr App Rep 100, CA. The expression 'reasonable excuse' is intended to cover the particular moment at which a weapon is carried: see Evans v Wright [1964] Crim LR 466, DC. Whether there is a reasonable excuse depends on whether a reasonable person would think it excusable in the circumstances to carry the weapon in question: Bryan v Mott (1975) 62 Cr App Rep 71, DC. However, whether an excuse is capable of being a reasonable excuse is a question of law, and as a matter of law limitations have been imposed on what a reasonable person might think in this context: Bryan v Mott supra. Where a weapon is carried by a person for self-defence if attacked, for the defence of reasonable excuse to be successful it must be shown that there was an imminent particular threat affecting the particular circumstances in which the weapon was carried; constant carrying of a weapon on account of some enduring threat or danger is, however, insufficient: Evans v Hughes [1972] 3 All ER 412, 56 Cr App Rep 813, DC (weapon carried seven days after attack could constitute excuse), applying Evans v Wright supra (weapon for self-defence when collecting wages; carrying weapon two days after wages last collected not a reasonable excuse) and Grieve v MacLeod 1967 JC 32 (continuing fear of assault not a reasonable excuse for taxi-driver to carry cash). See also Pittard v Mahoney [1977] Crim LR 169, DC (defendant failed to show the kind of imminent danger which could possibly justify the carrying of an offensive weapon; the nature of the weapon had to be taken into account in deciding whether the carrying was justified); R v Peacock [1973] Crim LR 639, CA ('it must be very rare that someone not under immediate fear of attack could claim to be entitled to carry a weapon for self-defence on the off chance of being attacked'); Bradley v Moss [1974] Crim LR 430, DC (previous threats but no assault; no defence of reasonable excuse available for carrying four weapons for self-defence); Bryan v Mott supra (defendant's intended suicide so remote from the carrying of the offensive weapon that it was not a reasonable excuse); Malnik v DPP [1989] Crim LR 451, DC (ordinarily people may not legitimately arm themselves with an offensive weapon to repel unlawful violence which an individual knowingly and deliberately brought about by creating a situation in which violence was liable to be inflicted; but the situation is quite different where the carrying of offensive weapons is by people concerned with security and law enforcement). The fact that the defendant had forgotten that he had the weapon with him is not in itself capable of being a reasonable excuse: R v McCalla (1988) 87 Cr App Rep 372, CA. However, if such forgetfulness is coupled with particular circumstances relating to the original acquisition of the weapon, the combination of the original acquisition and the subsequent forgetfulness of possessing it may, given sufficient facts, be a reasonable excuse for having the weapon with him; an example would be where the defendant had retrieved a police truncheon from the gutter in order to return it to the nearest police station, but then forgotten about it and retained it: R v McCalla supra. See also R v Glidewell (1999) 163 JP 557, CA.

Where a weapon, offensive per se, is carried merely as a theatrical property, as part and parcel of a fancy dress worn by a person going to or from a fancy dress party, that does constitute a reasonable excuse for carrying that particular prop: Houghton v Chief Constable of Greater Manchester (1987) 84 Cr App Rep 319, CA (wearing police truncheon solely as part of a police uniform for a fancy dress party was a reasonable excuse).

Where a weapon, offensive per se, is carried in order to obtain food for wild birds kept under licence, that may be a reasonable excuse: see Southwell v Chadwick (1986) 85 Cr App Rep 235, CA (machete knife in scabbard and catapult for use in killing grey squirrels).

Possession originally unlawful and without excuse may, it seems, by a change of circumstances become possession with reasonable excuse: Wong Pooh Yin v Public Prosecutor [1955] AC 93, [1954] 3 All ER 31, PC.

Ignorance that the thing which the defendant knowingly has with him is an offensive weapon is not capable of amounting to a reasonable excuse: R v Densu [1998] 1 Cr App Rep 400, CA. On the other hand, a mistaken belief in facts which, if true, would constitute lawful authority is so capable: R v Jones [1995] QB 235, [1995] 3 All ER 139, CA.

3 The defendant must satisfy the jury only on a balance of probabilities and not beyond a reasonable doubt: R v Brown (1971) 55 Cr App Rep 478, CA; and see PARA 1368 post. As to the compatibility of this with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence) see PARA 1368 post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq. The question of lawful authority or reasonable excuse does not arise until it has been established that the defendant had with him an offensive weapon: R v Petrie [1961] 1 All ER 466, 45 Cr App Rep 72, CCA.

4 This offence is concerned with a person who with no excuse goes out with an offensive weapon: R v Jura [1954] 1 QB 503, 38 Cr App Rep 53, CCA (defendant, on payment, obtained possession of an air rifle at a shooting gallery for the purposes of firing at a target, but, losing his temper, he fired at and hit a woman who was with him; it was held that he had a reasonable excuse for his possession of the air rifle, and the unlawful use of it did not bring him within the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1 (as amended); but it could have been an offence under the Offences against the Person Act 1861 (see PARA 118 et seq ante)). This offence is also concerned with a person who, while out, deliberately selects an offensive weapon with the intent of using it without lawful authority or reasonable excuse: R v Dayle [1973] 3 All ER 1151, 58 Cr App Rep 100, CA.

The offence is not, however, committed where the defendant arms himself with a weapon for instant attack on his victim; the offence is concerned with a person who, possessed of a weapon, forms the necessary intent before an occasion to use actual violence has arisen. The offence is concerned not with the actual use but with the carrying of a weapon with intent to use it if the occasion arises. The defendant does not have to have the intention from the moment he set out on his expedition: Ohlson v Hylton [1975] 2 All ER 490, [1975] 1 WLR 724, DC (workman attacked fellow passenger with hammer with him for work purposes; no offence under the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1 (as amended)); and see also R v Humphreys [1977] Crim LR 225, CA (if person happens to have penknife and uses it in desperation, no offence, because not carried in a public place with necessary intent to cause injury). The purport of the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 is to cover the situation where a defendant has with him and is carrying an offensive weapon intending that it shall be used, if necessary, for offensive purposes. Actual use is better dealt with by a substantive offence: Bates v Bulman [1979] 3 All ER 170, 68 Cr App Rep 21, DC. See also R v Veasey [1999] Crim LR 158, CA; C (A Juvenile) v DPP [2001] EWHC 1093 (Admin), [2001] All ER (D) 396 (Dec), DC. The distinction between an innocent weapon subsequently used with the intention of an assault and which is being carried innocently, and a similar article which is acquired either by borrowing from somebody else or fortuitously by being picked up in the street, is a rather academic and overly-analytical approach: Bates v Bulman supra. Cf Harrison v Thornton (1966) 68 Cr App Rep 28, DC (defendant picked up a stone and threw it at another person who was fighting with the defendant's friend; offence committed); but this case was not followed in Ohlson v Hylton supra nor in Bates v Bulman supra where the court cast doubt on it.

5 'Has with him in any public place' means 'knowingly has with him in a public place' and the prosecution must establish knowledge: R v Cugullere [1961] 2 All ER 343, 45 Cr App Rep 108, CCA. A person who forgets he has possession of an offensive weapon continues to have it 'with him': R v McCalla (1988) 87 Cr App Rep 372, CA.

If the defendant has with him a car in a public place, he also has with him in a public place an article which is inside the car: Bates v DPP (1993) 157 JP 1004, DC. Also see PARAS 679 note 1 ante, 700 note 4 post.

Where two or more persons are jointly charged with possession of an offensive weapon, the prosecution must establish that each knew of weapons carried by the other or others and that there was a common purpose: R v Edmonds [1963] 2 QB 142, 47 Cr App Rep 114, CCA.

For these purposes, 'public place' includes any highway and any other premises or place to which at the material time the public has or is permitted to have access, whether on payment or otherwise: Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(4). Justices are entitled to find that premises where there are no barriers or notices restricting access, such as the upper level of a block of flats which could be entered by members of the public without hindrance, are a public place: Knox v Anderton (1983) 76 Cr App Rep 156, DC; and see also Sandy v Martin [1974] Crim LR 258, DC. On the other hand, the landing of a communal block of flats, to which access could be gained only by way of a key, security code, tenants' intercom or the caretaker has been held not to be a 'public place' because only those admitted by or with the implied consent of an occupier of the flats had access; people with access were, therefore, not present as members of the public: Williams v DPP (1992) 95 Cr App Rep 415, DC. Cf the Public Order Act 1936 s 9(1) (see PARA 380 note 2 ante) and the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139 (see PARA 700 note 1 post). See also R v Powell [1963] Crim LR 511, CCA (part of hospital grounds where visitors to the hospital and their friends were permitted to enter was held to be a public place); R v Mehmed [1963] Crim LR 780, CCA (pistol produced by the defendant in a private dwelling house; held that the jury, having regard to the defendant's defence, was entitled to infer that he brought it to, or took it away from, the house through public streets and had accordingly been in possession of it in a public place).

6 'Offensive weapon' means any article made or adapted for use for causing injury to the person or intended by the person having it with him for such use by him or by some other person: Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(4) (amended by the Public Order Act 1986 s 40(2), Sch 2 para 2).

There are three possible categories of offensive weapon: (1) weapons made for use for causing injury to the person, ie a weapon offensive per se eg a bayonet, a stiletto or a gun; (2) a weapon adapted for such a purpose eg a bottle deliberately broken in order that the jagged end may be inserted into the victim's face; (3) an object not so made or adapted but one which the person carrying intends to use for the purpose of causing injury to the person: R v Simpson [1983] 3 All ER 789, 78 Cr App Rep 115, CA. Weapons within heads (1) and (2) supra are described as offensive weapons per se.

A flick knife is an offensive weapon per se: Gibson v Wales [1983] 1 All ER 869, 76 Cr App Rep 60, DC (a flick knife is made for the purpose of causing injury to the person; the defendant has the burden of proving that it was possessed for wholly innocent purposes (see note 3 supra)); and see also R v Allamby, R v Medford [1974] 3 All ER 126, [1974] 1 WLR 1494, CA; R v Lawrence, R v Pomroy (1971) 57 Cr App Rep 64, CA. Judicial notice may be taken of the fact that a flick knife is an offensive weapon per se: R v Simpson supra. A sword stick is also an offensive weapon per se: R v Butler [1988] Crim LR 695, CA, affg Davis v Alexander (1970) 54 Cr App Rep 398, DC. The conclusion that a rice flail was a weapon offensive per se was legitimately reached in accordance with the evidence because the only evidence found acceptable was that such an implement is used as a weapon: Copus v DPP [1989] Crim LR 577, DC. In DPP v Hynde [1998] 1 All ER 649, [1998] 1 WLR 1222, DC, where judicial notice was taken that a butterfly knife is made for use for causing injury, the Divisional Court was influenced by the fact that such knives are listed in the Criminal Justice Act 1988 (Offensive Weapons) Order 1988, SI 1988/2019, art 2, Schedule (see PARA 702 post) as a weapon to which the offence of manufacture or sale etc of specified weapons, contrary to the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141 (see PARA 702 post), applies.

Whether an article is adapted to cause injury to a person is a matter of fact for the magistrates or jury: R v Williamson (1977) 67 Cr App Rep 35, CA (question of fact whether a sheath knife an offensive weapon); R v Simpson supra (explaining R v Williamson supra; not possible to classify all sheath knives as offensive per se unlike flick knives). Where the weapon is offensive per se, intention to use it to cause injury need not be proved: Davis v Alexander supra.

In relation to head (3) supra, in Bryan v Mott (1975) 62 Cr App Rep 71, DC, the decision of the Crown Court that 'injury to the person' included the defendant's own person was not challenged in the Divisional Court. Cf R v Fleming [1989] Crim LR 71 (intention to harm oneself cannot sensibly be held to be offensive). See also Patterson v Block [1984] LS Gaz R 2458, DC (defendant had with him a lock knife (not an offensive weapon per se); the only evidence against him was his statement to the police that he carried the knife for his self-defence; it was held that the justices could properly draw the inference that for the purposes of defending himself he would, if necessary, use the knife to cause injury to the person). Cf R v Byrne [2003] EWCA Crim 3253, [2004] Crim LR 582 (possession of article not offensive per se; it was held that being reckless as to how it might be used on a future occasion was insufficient). The burden of proving intention to use the weapon to cause injury lies on the prosecution throughout: R v Petrie [1961] 1 All ER 466, 45 Cr App Rep 72, CCA. The use made of the weapon may, but does not necessarily, establish the required intent: see Harrison v Thornton (1966) 68 Cr App Rep 28, DC; R v Dayle [1973] 3 All ER 1151, 58 Cr App Rep 100, CA; Ohlson v Hylton [1975] 2 All ER 490, [1975] 1 WLR 724, DC. It must be proved that, at the time and place charged, the defendant had the intent to use the article offensively at some time in the future; proof that he had the intention at some time previously when in possession of the article is insufficient: R v Allamby, R v Medford supra. An intention to frighten is not sufficient; an intention to intimidate is more appropriate as a description when the intention was to cause injury by shock; such circumstances are exceedingly rare: R v Rapier (1979) 70 Cr App Rep 17, CA. See also R v Snooks, R v Sergeant [1997] Crim LR 230, CA.

Any experiment intended to assist in determining the use of a weapon must take place in open court and not in the jury's retiring room: R v Higgins (1989) Times, 16 February, CA. See PARA 1332 post. As to the meaning of 'open court' see PARA 90 note 10 ante.

8 Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(1) (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 32(1); the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2); the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 46(1), (3); and the Offensive Weapons Act 1996 s 2(1), (4)). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141. For a consideration of the relevant sentencing guidelines to be taken into account for an offence under the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(1) see R v Poulton, R v Cellaire [2002] EWCA Crim 2487, [2003] 4 All ER 869, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 610.

An indictment need not contain two counts, one to cover the weapon's being offensive per se and one referring to a weapon being offensive because of the intent: R v Flynn (1985) 150 JP 112, CA.

9 Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(2). An order may be so made even though an offender is placed on probation or discharged absolutely or conditionally: see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 41.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(3) OFFENSIVE WEAPONS/700. Having article with blade or point in public place.

700. Having article with blade or point in public place.

Any person who has with him in a public place<sup>1</sup> an article which has a blade<sup>2</sup> or is sharply pointed, except a folding pocketknife<sup>3</sup>, is guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to a term of imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>. It is a defence, however, for a person charged with such an offence to prove<sup>7</sup> that: (1) he had good reason or lawful authority for having the article with him in a public place<sup>8</sup>; or (2) without prejudice to the generality of head (1) above, he had the article with him for use at work, for religious reasons or as part of any national costume<sup>9</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'public place' includes any place to which at the material time the public has or is permitted access, whether on payment or otherwise: Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(7). 'Public place' in s 139(7) does not embrace land adjacent to areas where the public has access, even if harm against which the offence is designed to provide protection can be inflicted from that place; for this reason a defendant's front garden has been held not to be a public place within s 139(7): R v Roberts [2003] EWCA Crim 2753, [2004] 1 WLR 181, (2003) 167 JP 675. See also Harriott v DPP [2005] EWHC 965 (Admin), [2006] Crim LR 440, DC. Cf the definitions of 'public place' in the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 s 1(4) (see PARA 699 note 5 ante) and the Public Order Act 1936 s 9(1) (as amended) (see PARA 380 note 2 ante). It is also an offence to have an article with a blade or point (or offensive weapon) on school premises: see PARA 701 post.

2 A screwdriver is not a bladed article for this purpose because, although it has a blade, the present provision is limited to instruments within the same broad category as a knife or sharply pointed instrument: R v Davis [1998] Crim LR 564, CA. A butter knife without a handle and with no cutting edge and no point has been held to be a bladed article within the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(2): Brooker v DPP [2005] EWHC 1132 (Admin), 169 JP 368, DC.

3 The Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139 applies to a folding pocketknife if the cutting edge of its blade exceeds three inches: s 139(3). To be a folding pocketknife, the knife has to be immediately foldable at all times simply by the folding process: Harris v DPP, Fehmi v DPP [1993] 1 All ER 562, [1993] 1 WLR 82, DC. A locking knife, whether it folds or not, is not a folding pocketknife: R v Deegan [1998] 2 Cr App Rep 121, [1998] Crim LR 562, CA. However, a locking knife whose locking mechanism is not in working order and is unable to lock the blade in the extended position, so that the blade is immediately foldable, is a folding pocketknife: McAuley v Brown 2003 SLT 736, High Ct of Justiciary.

4 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(1), (2). For the meaning of 'has with him' for the purposes of related offences see PARAS 679 ante, 699 ante. A person who believes that an instrument is somewhere in his vehicle, but who does not know precisely where, does not have it with him: R v Daubney (2000) 164 JP 519, CA. As to a constable's power to stop and search see PARA 860 post.

6 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(6) (amended by the Offensive Weapons Act 1996 s 3). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

7 This provision places the legal (or persuasive) burden on the defendant, but this does not contravene the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence) (see PARA 1368 et seq post): L v DPP [2001] EWHC Admin 882, [2003] QB 137, [2002] 2 All ER 854; R v Matthews [2003] EWCA Crim 813, [2004] QB 690. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

8 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(4). As to the meaning of 'lawful authority' see PARA 699 note 1 ante. A judge may withdraw a defence under s 139(4) or (5) from the jury only if there is no evidence to support it; if there is some evidence, however tenuous or nebulous, the defence should be left to the jury: R v Wang [2005] UKHL 9, [2005] 1 All ER 782, [2005] 1 WLR 661 (impliedly disapproving R v Bown [2003] EWCA Crim 1989, [2004] 1 Cr App Rep 151). It has been held that forgetfulness that one has the article with one is not a good reason (DPP v Gregson (1992) 96 Cr App Rep 240, DC; R v Hargreaves [2000] 1 Archbold News 2, CA), but that forgetfulness combined with another reason may afford a good reason (R v Jolie [2003] EWCA Crim 1543, [2004] 1 Cr App Rep 44, (2003) 167 JP 313). It has also been held that self-defence can be a good reason where there is a fear of imminent attack: R v Emmanuel [1998] Crim LR 347, CA. If the jury rejects or the justices reject a defendant's explanation of carrying a knife with good reason, they are bound to convict even if the prosecution calls no evidence to disprove it: Godwin v DPP (1993) 157 JP 197, DC. Having with one out of habit an article with a bladed part but also with other features which are not bladed (eg a multi-purpose utility tool) is not in itself a good reason: R v Giles [2003] EWCA Crim 1287, 5 Archbold News 3.

9 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 139(5). 'For use at work' is a matter for the jury to determine in the context of the case and does not require judicial definition: R v Manning [1998] Crim LR 198, CA. As to withdrawal of the defence from the jury see note 8 supra.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(3) OFFENSIVE WEAPONS/702. Manufacture, sale, hire etc of specified weapons.

702. Manufacture, sale, hire etc of specified weapons.

Any person who manufactures, sells or hires, or offers for sale or hire, exposes or has in his possession for the purpose of sale or hire, or lends or gives to any other person, a specified weapon<sup>1</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>2</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>3</sup>. It is a defence, however, for any person charged in respect of any conduct of his relating to such a weapon to prove that his conduct was only for the purposes of functions carried out on behalf of the Crown or of a visiting force<sup>4</sup>. It is also a defence for any person charged in respect of any conduct of his relating to such a weapon to prove that the conduct in question was only for the purposes of making the weapon available to a museum or gallery<sup>5</sup>; and if a person acting on behalf of such a museum or gallery is charged with hiring or lending such a weapon, it is a defence for him to prove that he had reasonable grounds for believing that the person to whom he lent or hired it would use it only for cultural, artistic or educational purposes<sup>6</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> The Secretary of State may by order made by statutory instrument direct that the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141 is to apply to any description of weapon specified in the order except: (1) any weapon subject to the Firearms Act 1968 (see PARA 630 et seq ante); or (2) crossbows (see PARAS 708-710 post): Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(2). A statutory instrument containing such an order may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and has been approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 141(3). The importation of such weapons is prohibited: s 141(4); and see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE.

Section 141 applies to the following descriptions of weapons, other than weapons of those descriptions which are antiques:

- 172 (1) a knuckleduster, that is, a band of metal or other hard material worn on one or more fingers, and designed to cause injury, and any weapon incorporating a knuckleduster (Criminal Justice Act 1988 (Offensive Weapons) Order 1988, SI 1988/2019, art 2, Schedule para 1(a));
- 173 (2) a swordstick, that is, a hollow walking-stick or cane containing a blade which may be used as a sword (Schedule para 1(b));
- 174 (3) the weapon sometimes known as a 'handclaw', being a band of metal or other hard material from which a number of sharp spikes protrude and worn around the hand (Schedule para 1(c));
- 175 (4) the weapon sometimes known as a 'belt buckle knife', being a buckle which incorporates or conceals a knife (Schedule para 1(d));
- 176 (5) the weapon sometimes known as a 'push dagger', being a knife the handle of which fits within a clenched fist and the blade of which protrudes from between two fingers (Schedule para 1(e));
- 177 (6) the weapon sometimes known as a 'hollow kubotan', being a cylindrical container containing a number of sharp spikes (Schedule para 1(f));
- 178 (7) the weapon sometimes known as a 'footclaw', being a bar of metal or other hard material from which a number of sharp spikes protrude, and worn strapped to the foot (Schedule para 1(g));
- 179 (8) the weapon sometimes known as a 'shruiken', 'shaken' or 'death star', being a hard non-flexible plate having three or more sharp radiating points and designed to be thrown (Schedule para 1(h));

- 180 (9) the weapon sometimes known as a 'balisong' or 'butterfly knife', being a blade enclosed by its handle, which is designed to split down the middle, without the operation of a spring or other mechanical means, to reveal the blade (Schedule para 1(i));
- 181 (10) the weapon sometimes known as a 'telescopic truncheon', being a truncheon which extends automatically by hand pressure applied to a button, spring or other device in or attached to its handle (Schedule para 1(j));
- 182 (11) the weapon sometimes known as a 'blowpipe' or 'blow gun', being a hollow tube out of which hard pellets or darts are shot by the use of breath (Schedule para 1(k));
- 183 (12) the weapon sometimes known as a 'kusari gama', being a length of rope, cord, wire or chain fastened at one end to a sickle (Schedule para 1(l));
- 184 (13) the weapon sometimes known as a 'kyoketsu shoge', being a length of rope, cord, wire or chain fastened at one end to a hooked knife (Schedule para 1(m));
- 185 (14) the weapon sometimes known as a 'manrikigusari' or 'kusari', being a length of rope, cord or wire or chain fastened at each end to a hard weight or hand grip (Schedule para 1(n));
- 186 (15) a disguised knife, that is any knife which has a concealed blade or concealed sharp point and is designed to appear to be an everyday object of a kind commonly carried on the person or in a handbag, briefcase, or other hand luggage (such as a comb, brush, writing instrument, cigarette lighter, key, lipstick or telephone) (Schedule para 1(o) (added by SI 2002/1668));
- 187 (16) a stealth knife, that is a knife or spike, which has a blade, or sharp point, made from a material that is not readily detectable by apparatus used for detecting metal and which is not designed for domestic use or for use in the processing, preparation or consumption of food or as a toy (Criminal Justice Act 1988 (Offensive Weapons) Order 1988, SI 1988/2019, Schedule para 1(p) (added by SI 2004/1271));
- 188 (17) a straight, side-handled or friction-lock truncheon (sometimes known as a baton) (Criminal Justice Act 1988 (Offensive Weapons) Order 1988, SI 1988/2019, Schedule para 1(q) (added by SI 2004/1271)).

For these purposes, a weapon is an antique if it was manufactured more than 100 years before the date of any offence alleged to have been committed in respect of that weapon under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(1) or the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 50(2) or (3) (improper importation: see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 994): Criminal Justice Act 1988 (Offensive Weapons) Order 1988, SI 1988/2019, Schedule para 2.

2 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(1). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

If on an application made by a constable a justice of the peace is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing: (1) that there are on premises specified in the application knives such as are mentioned in the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959 s 1(1) (as amended) (see PARA 705 post) or weapons to which the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141 applies; and (2) that an offence under the Restriction of Offensive Weapons Act 1959 s 1 (as amended) or the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141 has been or is being committed in relation to them; and (3) that any of the specified conditions applies, he may issue a warrant authorising a constable to enter and search the premises: s 142(1). The specified conditions are: (a) that it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant entry to the premises; (b) that it is practicable to communicate with a person entitled to grant entry to the premises but it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant access to the knives or weapons to which the application relates; (c) that entry to the premises will not be granted unless a warrant is produced; (d) that the purpose of a search may be frustrated or seriously prejudiced unless a constable arriving at the premises can secure immediate entry to them: s 142(3). A constable may seize and retain anything for which a search has been authorised under s 142(1): s 142(2).

4 Ibid s 141(5)(a). It is also a defence for any person charged in respect of any conduct of his relating to such a weapon with an offence under the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 50(2) or (3) (improper importation: see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 994) to prove that his conduct was only for the purposes of functions carried out on behalf of the Crown or of a visiting force: Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(5)(b). As to whether s 141(5)(a) or (b) imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms

(Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

For these purposes, the reference to the Crown includes the Crown in right of Her Majesty's government in Northern Ireland; and 'visiting force' means any body, contingent or detachment of the forces of a country: (1) mentioned in the Visiting Forces Act 1952 s 1(1)(a) (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 138); or (2) designated for the purposes of any provision of that Act by Order in Council under s 1(2) (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 138), which is present in the United Kingdom, including United Kingdom territorial waters, or in any place on, under or above an installation in a designated area within the meaning of the Continental Shelf Act 1964 s 1(7) (as amended) or any waters within 500 metres of such an installation, on the invitation of Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom: Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(6), (7). As to designated areas within the meaning of the Continental Shelf Act 1964 s 1(7) (as amended) see FUEL AND ENERGY vol 19(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1636. As to United Kingdom territorial waters see INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS LAW vol 61 (2010) PARAS 124-126; WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 100 (2009) PARA 31. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

5 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(8)(a). It is also a defence for any person charged in respect of any conduct of his relating to such a weapon with an offence under the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 50(2) or (3) (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 994) to prove that the conduct in question was only for the purposes of making the weapon available to a museum or gallery: Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141(8)(b).

Section 141(8) applies to a museum or gallery only if it does not distribute profits: s 141(10). For these purposes, 'museum or gallery' includes any institution which has as its purpose, or one of its purposes, the preservation, display and interpretation of material of historical, artistic or scientific interest and gives the public access to it: s 141(11).

As to proof in respect of the defence under s 141(8) see note 4 supra.

6 Ibid s 141(9). As to proof in respect of the defence under s 141(9) see note 4 supra.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(3) OFFENSIVE WEAPONS/703. Unlawful marketing of knives.

703. Unlawful marketing of knives.

A person is guilty of an offence if he markets a knife<sup>1</sup> in a way which indicates, or suggests that, it is suitable for combat<sup>2</sup>, or is otherwise likely to stimulate or encourage violent behaviour<sup>3</sup> involving the use of the knife as a weapon<sup>4</sup>. Such a person is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>5</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

It is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove<sup>7</sup> that the knife was marketed for use by the armed forces of any country, or as an antique or curio, or as falling within such other category (if any) as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup>, and that it was reasonable for the knife to be marketed in that way, and that there were no reasonable grounds for suspecting that a person into whose possession the knife might come in consequence of the way in which it was marketed would use it for an unlawful purpose<sup>9</sup>. It is also a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove that he did not know or suspect, and had no reasonable grounds for suspecting, that the way in which the knife was marketed amounted to an indication or suggestion that the knife was suitable for combat or was likely to stimulate or encourage violent behaviour involving the use of the knife as a weapon<sup>10</sup>. Lastly, it is a defence for a person charged with such an offence to prove that he took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid committing the offence<sup>11</sup>.

If, on an application by a constable, a justice of the peace is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that a person has committed an offence under the above provisions in relation to knives of a particular description, and that knives of that description and in the person's possession or under his control are to be found on particular premises, he may issue a warrant authorising a constable to enter those premises, search for knives and seize and remove any that he finds<sup>12</sup>. Where a person is convicted of such an offence in relation to a knife of a particular description, the Crown Court or a magistrates' court may make an order for forfeiture in respect of any knives of that description which have been seized under such a warrant, or were in the offender's possession or under his control at the time of his arrest for the offence or at the time of the issue of a summons in respect of it<sup>13</sup>. A person who claims property to which a forfeiture order applies, but who is not the offender, may apply, within six months of the date of the forfeiture order, for the return of the property to himself under a recovery order<sup>14</sup>. Such a person must satisfy the court that he had not consented to the offender having possession of the property and that he did not know, and had no reason to suspect, that the offence was likely to be committed<sup>15</sup>.

1 A 'knife' is an instrument which has a blade or is sharply pointed: Knives Act 1997 s 10. A person 'markets a knife' if he sells or hires it, offers or exposes it for sale or hire, or has it in his possession for the purpose of sale or hire: s 1(4).

2 'Suitable for combat' means suitable for use as a weapon for inflicting injury on a person or causing a person to fear injury: ibid ss 1(2), 10. An indication or suggestion that a knife is suitable for combat may, in particular, be given or made by a name or description applied to the knife, on the knife or on any packaging in which it is contained, or included in any advertisement which, expressly or by implication, relates to the knife: s 1(3).

3 'Violent behaviour' means an unlawful act inflicting injury on a person or causing a person to fear injury: ibid ss 1(2), 10.

4 Ibid s 1(1). Where the offence is committed by a body corporate and is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of an officer or to be attributable to neglect on his part, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of the offence and liable to prosecution: s 9(1). 'Officer' means a director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body, or a person purporting to act in such a capacity: s 9(2). Where a body corporate is managed by its members, such members are liable as if they were directors: s 9(3). See PARA 38 ante.

6 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 1(5). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

7 As to whether 'prove' as used in these provisions imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

8 'Prescribed' means prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: Knives Act 1997 s 3(3). The power to make regulations under ss 3, 7, 11 is exercisable by statutory instrument: s 11(5). A statutory instrument made under ss 3, 7 is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 11(6). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made under ss 3, 11. As to regulations made under s 7 see note 15 infra.

9 Ibid s 3(1).

12 Ibid s 5(1). 'Premises' includes any place and, in particular, any vehicle, vessel, aircraft or hovercraft and any tent or movable structure: s 5(6). Reasonable force may be used by a constable in the exercise of powers under the warrant: s 5(3). Any knives seized and removed by a constable under the warrant may be retained until the person is found guilty and sentenced or otherwise dealt with for the offence or is acquitted, or the proceedings are discontinued, or a decision is made not to prosecute him: s 5(4), (5).

13 Ibid s 6(1), (5). The power to make a forfeiture order is in addition to the power to deal with the offender in any other way and is unfettered by any existing statutory restrictions on forfeiture: see s 6(3). When considering whether to make a forfeiture order, the court must have regard to the value of the property and the financial implications for the offender of such an order, taken together with any other order that the court contemplates making: s 6(4). Forfeiture deprives the offender of any rights that he might have had in relation to the property to which it relates: s 7(1). The property to which the forfeiture relates must be taken into the possession of the police: see s 7(2).

15 Ibid s 7(6). If a person has a right to recover property which is in the possession of another in pursuance of a recovery order, that right is not affected by the making of the recovery order at any time before the end of the period of six months beginning with the date on which the order is made, but is lost at the end of that period: s 7(7). Knives subject to a forfeiture where either no application for a recovery order has been made within six months of the making of the order or an application for such an order has been unsuccessful may be disposed of, and the proceeds applied, in the prescribed manner: see s 7(8)-(10); and the Knives (Forfeited Property) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1907 (amended by SI 2000/1549).

A person is guilty of an offence if he publishes any written, pictorial or other material in connection with the marketing of any knife<sup>1</sup> and that material indicates, or suggests, that it is suitable for combat<sup>2</sup>, or is otherwise likely to stimulate or encourage violent behaviour<sup>3</sup> involving the use of the knife as a weapon<sup>4</sup>. ### 706 Sale of certain articles with blade or point to persons under [eighteen]

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/7. WEAPONS OFFENCES/(3) OFFENSIVE WEAPONS/706A. Using someone to mind a weapon.

706A. Using someone to mind a weapon.

A person is guilty of an offence if (1) he uses another to look after, hide or transport a dangerous weapon<sup>1</sup> for him; and (2) he does so under arrangements or in circumstances that facilitate, or are intended to facilitate, the weapon's being available to him for an unlawful purpose<sup>2</sup>.

Provision is made<sup>3</sup> with respect to penalties for an offence under the above provisions<sup>4</sup>.

1 In the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 'dangerous weapon' means (1) a firearm other than an air weapon or a component part of, or accessory to, an air weapon; or (2) a weapon to which the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141 (see PARA 702) or 141A (see PARA 706) applies: Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 s 28(3).

2 Ibid s 28(1). For the purposes of s 28 the cases in which a dangerous weapon is to be regarded as available to a person for an unlawful purpose include any case where (1) the weapon is available for him to take possession of it at a time and place; and (2) his possession of the weapon at that time and place would constitute, or be likely to involve or to lead to, the commission by him of an offence: s 28(3).

4 Ie under ibid s 28: s 29(1).

Where the dangerous weapon in respect of which the offence was committed is a weapon to which the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 141 or 141A applies, the offender is liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding four years or to a fine, or to both: s 29(2). Where (1) at the time of the offence, the offender was aged 16 or over, and (2) the dangerous weapon in respect of which the offence was committed was a firearm mentioned in Firearms Act 1968 s 5(1)(a)-(af) or (c) or s 5(1A)(a) (firearms possession of which attracts a minimum sentence: see PARA 661), the offender is liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years or to a fine, or to both: 2006 Act s 29(3). On a conviction in England and Wales, where (a) s 29(3) applies, and (b) the offender is aged 18 or over at the time of conviction, the court must impose (with or without a fine) a term of imprisonment of not less than five years, unless it is of the opinion that there are exceptional circumstances relating to the offence or to the offender which justify its not doing so: s 29(4). In relation to times before the commencement of the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 Sch 7 para 180, the reference in the 2006 Act s 29(4) to a sentence of imprisonment, in relation to an offender aged under 21 at the time of conviction, is to be read as a reference to a sentence of detention in a young offender institution: s 29(5). On a conviction in England and Wales, where s 29(3) applies, and the offender is aged under 18 at the time of conviction, the court must impose (with or without a fine) a term of detention under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 91 of not less than three years, unless it is of the opinion that there are exceptional circumstances relating to the offence or to the offender which justify its not doing so: 2006 Act s 29(6). In any case not mentioned in s 29(2) or (3), the offender is liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine, or to both: s 29(10). Where (i) a court is considering for the purposes of sentencing the seriousness of an offence under s 28, and (ii) at the time of the offence the offender was aged 18 or over and the person used to look after, hide or transport the weapon was not, the court must treat the fact that that person was under the age of 18 at that time as an aggravating factor (that is to say, a factor increasing the seriousness of the offence): s 29(11). Where a court treats a person's age as an aggravating factor in accordance with s 29(11), it must state in open court that the offence was aggravated as mentioned in s 29(11): s 29(12). Where (A) an offence under s 28 of using another person for a particular purpose is found to have involved that other person's having possession of a weapon, or being able to make it available, over a period of two or more days, or at some time during a period of two or more days, and (B) on any day in that period, an age requirement was satisfied, the question whether s 29(3) applies or (as the case may be) the question whether the offence was aggravated under s 29 is to be determined as if the offence had been committed on that day: s 29(13). In s 29(13) the reference to an age requirement is a reference to either of the following (aa) the requirement of s 29(3) that the offender was aged 16 or over at the time of the offence; (bb) the requirement of s 29(11) that the offender was aged 18 or over at that time and that the other person was not: s 29(14).

The Secretary of State may by order amend s 29(3) by substituting for the word '16' the word '18': Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 291(1)(aa) (added by 2006 Act Sch 1 para 9(7)).

For the purposes of the 2003 Act Pt 12 (ss 142-305) a sentence falls to be imposed under the 2006 Act s 29(4) or (6) if it is required by that provision and the court is not of the opinion there mentioned: 2003 Act s 305(4) (ba) (added by 2006 Act Sch 1 para 9(8)).

At the date at which this volume states the law, a government Bill known as the Violent Crime Reduction Bill was before Parliament, having been introduced in the House of Commons on 8 June 2005<sup>1</sup>.

The Bill contains provisions relating to air weapons and imitation firearms; restricts the sale and purchase of primers; introduces a power to search pupils, students and persons in attendance centres for weapons; and creates an offence of using someone to mind a weapon<sup>2</sup>. It also amends provisions of the Firearms Act 1968<sup>3</sup>, and certain provisions of the Criminal Justice Act 1988<sup>4</sup> and the Crossbows Act 1987<sup>5</sup> relating to the sale of knives and other weapons and crossbows.

1 The description of the proposed legislation given in the text is based on the Bill as ordered to be printed in the House of Lords on 22 May 2006.

In addition to provisions relating to weapons, the Bill contains provisions relating to alcohol-related violence and disorder (see Pt 1) and sexual offences (see Pt 3). For the purposes of exercising the powers conferred by s 4, a constable may enter any land other than a dwelling-house: s 4(4). TEXT AND NOTE 4--The Crossbows Act 1987 s 1 (amended by the Violent Crime Reduction Act 2006 s 44 (in force 1 October 2007: SI 2007/2180)) now refers to a person under the age of 18.

WEAPONS OFFENCES/(5) EXPLOSIVE SUBSTANCES ETC/711. Possessing explosive substances etc.

(5) EXPLOSIVE SUBSTANCES ETC

711. Possessing explosive substances etc.

Any person who knowingly has in his possession, or makes or manufactures, any gunpowder, explosive substance<sup>1</sup>, or any dangerous or noxious thing, or any machine, engine, instrument or thing, with intent by means of it to commit, or for the purpose of enabling any other person to commit, any of certain offences<sup>2</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years<sup>3</sup>.

Any person who makes<sup>4</sup> or knowingly<sup>5</sup> has in his possession or under his control any explosive substance<sup>6</sup>, under such circumstances as to give rise to a reasonable suspicion that he is not making it or does not have it in his possession or under his control for a lawful object<sup>7</sup>, is, unless he can show<sup>8</sup> that he made it or had it in his possession or under his control for a lawful object, guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years, and the explosive substance must be forfeited<sup>9</sup>. A person charged with an offence under these provisions<sup>10</sup> may plead self-defence as a defence to any such charge<sup>11</sup>.

Other offences involving explosives are dealt with elsewhere in this work<sup>12</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'explosive substance' in relation to another offence under the Offences against the Person Act 1861 see PARA 126 ante.

2 The offences specified are the felonies mentioned in the Offences against the Person Act 1861 and any other offence there mentioned for which a person (not previously convicted) may be tried on indictment otherwise than at his own instance: s 64; Criminal Law Act 1967 s 10(1), Sch 2 para 8 (amended by the Criminal Damage Act 1971 s 11(8), Schedule). All distinctions between felonies and misdemeanours were abolished by the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 1(1), and any earlier enactment creating an offence by directing it to be a felony is to be read as directing it to be an offence: s 12(5)(a). Nothing in Pt I (ss 1-12) affects the operation of any reference to an offence in earlier enactments specially relating to that offence by reason only of the reference being in terms which are no longer applicable: s 12(5)(a).

The extant provisions of the Offences against the Person Act 1861 (not all of which are relevant for this purpose) which declare offences to be felonies or so triable on indictment are: ss 4, 5, 16-18, 20-24, 27-33, 35-38, 47, 57-60. To these provisions s 1 (whosoever shall be convicted of murder shall suffer death as a felon) must be added: the repeal of s 1 was expressed to be 'without prejudice to the operation of' ss 64, 65, 68: see the Murder (Abolition of Death Penalty) Act 1965 s 3(2), Schedule. The Offences against the Person Act 1861 ss 64, 65, in so far as they relate to offences mentioned in ss 48, 52-55, 61-63 (all repealed), have been specifically repealed: see the Sexual Offences Act 1956 s 51, Sch 4.

3 Offences against the Person Act 1861 s 64 (amended by the Statute Law Revision (No 2) Act 1893; and the Criminal Justice Act 1948 s 83(3), Sch 10 Pt I). This offence is one of those specified in the Terrorism Act 2000 s 63B (as added) (terrorist acts abroad by United Kingdom nationals or residents) for the purposes of the extra-territorial jurisdiction provisions: see PARA 474 ante.

As to the partial repeal of the Offences against the Person Act 1861 s 64 (as amended) by the Sexual Offences Act 1956 s 51, Sch 4 see note 2 supra.

4 The offence of making explosives requires mens rea (ie knowledge as to the explosive nature of the substance, as defined by the Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 9 (see PARA 127 ante)): R v Berry (No 3) [1994] 2 All ER 913, 99 Cr App Rep 88, CA.

5 The defendant must know that he is in possession of the substance and that it is an explosive substance, as defined by Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 9 (see PARA 127 ante): R v Hallam [1957] 1 QB 569, 41 Cr App Rep 111, CCA. If there is evidence that the defendant had an explosive substance in his possession, and that the defendant's possession was in such circumstances as to give rise to a reasonable suspicion that he did not have it in his possession or control for a lawful object, the jury is entitled to infer knowledge that the substance was explosive: R v Hallam supra.

6 For the meaning of 'explosive substance' see PARA 127 note 7 ante.

7 'Lawful object' is not confined to a purpose which takes place in the United Kingdom and the lawfulness of which is to be defined by English law; thus if a defendant is charged with manufacturing in England timers for time bombs to be exploded abroad and cannot show on the balance of probabilities that the timers were to be used for a lawful purpose outside the United Kingdom, he is liable to conviction of an offence: R v Berry [1985] AC 246, [1984] 3 All ER 1008, HL.

8 This imposes the legal (or persuasive) burden on the defendant: A-G's Reference (No 2 of 1983) [1984] QB 456, 78 Cr App Rep 183, CA. As to this burden see PARA 1368 et seq post.

9 Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 4(1); Criminal Justice Act 1948 s 1(1), (2); Criminal Law Act 1967 s 12(5) (a). Any person who within or (being a subject of Her Majesty) without Her Majesty's dominions by the supply of or solicitation for money, the providing of premises, the supply of materials, or in any manner whatsoever, procures, counsels, aids, abets, or is accessory to, the commission of any crime under the Explosive Substances Act 1883 is guilty of an offence and liable to be tried and punished for that crime, as if he had been guilty as a principal: s 5. Notwithstanding s 5 there may be a conviction under s 4 on the basis of aiding and abetting the commission of an offence contrary to that provision: R v McCarthy [1964] 1 All ER 95, 48 Cr App Rep 111, CCA. The Explosives Act 1875 ss 73-75, 89, 96 (search for, seizure and detention of explosive substances, the forfeiture thereof, and the disposal of explosive substances seized or forfeited) apply as if a crime or forfeiture under the Explosive Substances Act 1883 were an offence or forfeiture under the Explosives Act 1875: Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 8(1). No proceedings for an offence under the Explosive Substances Act 1883 may be instituted except by or with the consent of the Attorney General: see s 7(1) (amended by the Criminal Jurisdiction Act 1975 s 14(5), Sch 6 Pt I). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

10 It is an offence under the Explosive Substances Act 1883 s 4: see note 9 supra.

11 A-G's Reference (No 2 of 1983) [1984] QB 456, 78 Cr App Rep 183, CA (person making petrol bomb with the lawful object of protection against imminent apprehended attack). Once the imminence has passed, however, possession of the explosive substance may cease to be lawful: A-G's Reference (No 2 of 1983) supra.

(1) PERJURY AND OFFENCES AKIN TO PERJURY

(i) Perjury

712. Meaning of 'perjury'.

If any person lawfully sworn<sup>1</sup> as a witness<sup>2</sup> or as an interpreter in a judicial proceeding<sup>3</sup> wilfully<sup>4</sup> makes a statement<sup>5</sup>, material<sup>6</sup> in that proceeding, which he knows to be false or does not believe to be true<sup>7</sup>, he is guilty of perjury and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years or to a fine or to both<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'lawfully sworn' see PARA 713 post.

2 A person who is not a competent witness, but is sworn by mistake, cannot be indicted for perjury: R v Clegg (1868) 19 LT 47. As to competence of witnesses in criminal proceedings see PARA 1401 post.

3 For the meaning of 'judicial proceeding' and as to statements which must be treated as made in a judicial proceeding see PARA 714 post.

4 The statement must be made deliberately and not inadvertently or by mistake: R v Millward [1985] QB 519, [1985] 1 All ER 859, CA. See also 1 Hawk PC c 27(4) s 2; R v Mawbey (1796) 6 Term Rep 619; R v Stollady (1859) 1 F & F 518. Cf R v London (1871) 24 LT 232, CCR. The prosecution does not have to prove that the witness knew or believed the statement to be material: R v Millward supra.

5 An expression of opinion, if not genuinely held, can found a charge of perjury: R v Pedley (1784) 1 Leach 325 per Lord Mansfield; R v Schlesinger (1847) 10 QB 670. Cf R v Crespigny (1795) 1 Esp 280 per Kenyon CJ (perjury cannot be assigned on evidence stating the opinion of the witness as to the construction of a deed).

6 As to material statements see PARA 715 post.

7 Swearing to a fact without knowing at the time whether it was true or false has been held to be perjury: see R v Mawbey (1796) 6 Term Rep 619 at 637. It seems that it is sufficient if the person does not believe the statement to be true, even if, in fact, it is true: 1 Hawk PC c 27(4) s 6; 3 Co Inst 166; Ockley and Whitleybyes Case (1622) Palm 294; Allen v Westley (1629) Het 97; R v Rider (1986) 83 Cr App Rep 207, [1986] Crim LR 626, CA.

Factors to be taken into account when considering the appropriate level of sentence for perjury and related offences include: (1) the number of offences committed; (2) the time scale over which the offences were committed; (3) whether the offences were planned or spontaneous; (4) whether the offences were persistent; (5) whether the lies told had any impact on the proceedings; (6) whether the defendant involved others in his activities; and (7) the nature of the relationship between the defendant and any others drawn into the conduct: R v Archer [2002] EWCA Crim 1996, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 446.

may be proceeded against as if he were a principal: see PARA 720 post. As to false written statements tendered in evidence in criminal proceedings see PARA 719 post; and as to false statements on oath made otherwise than in a judicial proceeding see PARA 716 post. A person, whether a British citizen or not, who, in sworn evidence before the Court of Justice of the European Communities or any court attached to it, makes any statement which he knows to be false or does not believe to be true is guilty of an offence and may be proceeded against and punished in England and Wales as for an offence under the Perjury Act 1911 s 1(1): European Communities Act 1972 s 11(1)(a). The Perjury Act 1911 s 1 applies in relation to a person acting as an intermediary under the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s 29 (see PARA 1427 post) as it applies to a person lawfully sworn as an interpreter in a judicial proceeding; and for this purpose, where a person acts as an intermediary in any proceeding which is not a judicial proceeding for the purposes of the Perjury Act 1911 s 1, that proceeding is to be taken to be part of the judicial proceeding in which the witness's evidence is given: Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s 29(7). Where any statement made by a person on oath in any proceeding which is not a judicial proceeding is received in evidence in pursuance of a special measures direction under the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999, that proceeding is to be taken for the purposes of the Perjury Act 1911 s 1 to be part of the judicial proceeding in which the statement is so received in evidence: Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s 31(6). 1 'Oath' includes 'affirmation' and 'declaration'; and the expression 'swear' includes 'affirm' and 'declare': Perjury Act 1911 s 15(2) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1967 s 10(2), Sch 3 Pt III; and the Administration of Justice Act 1977 ss 8(3), 32(4), Sch 5 Pt III).

OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(1) PERJURY AND OFFENCES AKIN TO PERJURY/(i) Perjury/714. Statements made in judicial proceedings.

714. Statements made in judicial proceedings.

A judicial proceeding includes a proceeding before any court, tribunal or person having by law power to hear, receive and examine evidence on oath<sup>1</sup>.

Where a statement made for the purposes of a judicial proceeding is not made before the tribunal itself, but is made on oath before a person authorised by law to administer an oath to the person who makes the statement, and to record or authenticate the statement, it is to be treated<sup>2</sup> as having been made in a judicial proceeding<sup>3</sup>.

A statement made by a person lawfully sworn in England for the purposes of a judicial proceeding:

- 822 (1) in another part of Her Majesty's dominions<sup>4</sup>; or
- 823 (2) in a British tribunal lawfully constituted in any place by sea or land outside Her Majesty's dominions<sup>5</sup>; or
- 824 (3) in a tribunal of any foreign state, is to be treated as a statement made in a judicial proceeding in England<sup>6</sup>.

Except where otherwise provided<sup>7</sup>, where, for the purposes of a judicial proceeding in England and Wales, a person is lawfully sworn under the authority of an Act of Parliament:

- 825 (a) in any other part of Her Majesty's dominions; or
- 826 (b) before a British tribunal or a British officer in a foreign country, or within the Admiralty jurisdiction<sup>8</sup>, a statement made by such person so sworn is to be treated as having been made in the judicial proceeding in England for the purposes of which it was made<sup>9</sup>.

An Order in Council has been made extending the provisions of the Perjury Act 1911 to the Court of Justice of the European Communities: see the Evidence (European Court) Order 1976, SI 1976/428.

A statement made on oath by a witness outside the United Kingdom and given through a television link by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 32 (see PARA 1414 post) is to be treated for the purposes of the Perjury Act 1911 s 1 as having been made in the proceedings in which it is given in evidence: Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 32(3).

Where a person in the United Kingdom gives evidence through a live television link, or by the telephone, in criminal proceedings before a court in a country outside the United Kingdom, any statement on oath made by him in England and Wales is treated for the purposes of the Perjury Act 1911 s 1 as made in proceedings before the court nominated by the Secretary of State as the court where the witness may be heard in the proceedings in question through a live television link, or by telephone, as the case may be: Crime (International Co-operation) Act 2003 ss 30(5), 31(6). OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(1) PERJURY AND OFFENCES AKIN TO PERJURY/(i) Perjury/715. Materiality of statement.

715. Materiality of statement.

The question whether a statement which forms the subject of proceedings for perjury was material is a question of law to be determined by the trial court<sup>1</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Perjury Act 1911 s 1(6). The test for materiality is whether a statement might have affected the outcome of the proceedings, not that it would have done: R v Lavey (1850) 3 Car & Kir 26 at 30; R v Millward [1985] QB 519, 80 Cr App Rep 280, CA (disapproving R v Sweet-Escott (1971) 55 Cr App Rep 316 on this point). The prosecution does not have to prove that the witness knew or believed the statement to be material: R v Millward supra. A statement may be material, although it relates to a mere circumstance, if it induces the court to believe the substantial part of the witness's evidence (R v Tyson (1867) LR 1 CCR 107) or a more material part (Bac Abr, Perjury (A); 1 Hawk PC c 27(4) s 8). Evidence may be material if it induces the court to admit other material evidence (R v Phillpotts (1851) 21 LJMC 18, CCR) even though that evidence was not strictly admissible (R v Yates (1841) Car & M 132) or was withdrawn by counsel (R v Phillpotts supra; R v Gibbon (1862) Le & Ca 109, CCR). A statement going solely to a witness's credit, as opposed to the issue to be determined, may be material: see R v Gripe (1697) 1 Ld Raym 256; R v Overton (1843) 4 QB 83; R v Baker [1895] 1 QB 797, CCR (defendant's statement as to plea on previous charge); R v Lavey supra (claimant's denial of ever having been convicted). Evidence on oath by a convicted person in mitigation of sentence is material: R v Hewitt (1913) 9 Cr App Rep 192, CCA; R v Wheeler [1917] 1 KB 283, CCA. As to material statements see also R v Courtney (1856) 7 Cox CC 111 (evidence at coroner's inquest as to deceased's conduct not relevant to cause of death); R v Mullany (1865) Le & Ca 593, CCR (defendant's denial that his Christian names were those given in a summons for debt). As to immaterial statements see R v Townsend (1866) 4 F & F 1089 (evidence of truth of alleged criminal libel; truth irrelevant to charge at common law); R v Tate (1871) 12 Cox CC 7 (charge of assault; evidence of adultery by defendant's wife). Denial of an agreement void under the Statute of Frauds (1677) has been held immaterial: see R v Benesech (1796) Peake Add Cas 93; R v Dunston (1824) Ry & M 109. Evidence so collateral as to be almost irrelevant is insufficient to found a charge of perjury: see R v Holden (1872) 12 Cox CC 166; R v Atlass (1844) 1 Cox CC 17; R v Southwood (1858) 1 F & F 356.

If any person:

- 827 (1) being required or authorised by law to make any statement on oath for any purpose<sup>1</sup>, and being lawfully sworn<sup>2</sup> (otherwise than in a judicial proceeding<sup>3</sup>), wilfully makes a statement which is material for that purpose and which he knows to be false or does not believe to be true<sup>4</sup>; or

If any person knowingly and wilfully makes, otherwise than on oath<sup>1</sup>, a statement false in a material particular, and the statement is made:

- 829 (1) in a statutory declaration<sup>2</sup>; or
- 830 (2) in an abstract, account, balance sheet, book, certificate, declaration, entry, estimate, inventory, notice, report, return, or other document which he is authorised or required to make, attest, or verify by any statute for the time being in force<sup>3</sup>; or

(iv) Procedure

722. Indictment.

In an indictment for an offence under the Perjury Act 1911 it is sufficient to set out the substance of the offence charged and before which court or person (if any) the offence was committed, without setting out the proceedings or any part of the proceedings in the course of which the offence was committed and the authority of any court or person before whom the offence was committed<sup>1</sup>.

In an indictment for aiding, abetting, counselling, suborning<sup>2</sup> or procuring any other person, or for conspiring with any other person, to commit any offence within the Act, it is sufficient: (1) where such offence has been committed, to allege that offence and then to allege that the defendant procured its commission<sup>3</sup>; and (2) where such offence has not been committed, to set forth the substance of the offence charged against the defendant without setting forth anything which it is unnecessary to aver in the case of an indictment for such offence<sup>4</sup>.

OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(1) PERJURY AND OFFENCES AKIN TO PERJURY/(iv) Procedure/723. Evidence.

723. Evidence.

A person may not be convicted of any offence under the Perjury Act 1911, or of any offence declared by any other Act to be perjury or subornation of perjury<sup>1</sup> or to be punishable as such, solely upon the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of any statement alleged to be false<sup>2</sup>. It is not essential to have more than one witness, however, if there is something else which confirms his testimony<sup>3</sup>. This requirement would appear not to apply where there is a formal admission either made before the trial or on evidence at the trial by the defendant that the statement was false<sup>4</sup>. Nor does the requirement apply in the very rare cases where the prosecution proceeds on the basis that the truth or falsity of the statement forms no part of its case<sup>5</sup>.

On a prosecution for perjury alleged to have been committed on a trial on indictment or for procuring or suborning the commission of perjury on any such trial, the fact of the former trial is sufficiently proved by the production of a certificate containing the substance and effect, omitting the formal parts, of the indictment and trial, purporting to be signed by the appropriate officer of the Crown Court or other person having the custody of the court records or either's deputy, without proof of the signature or official character of the person appearing to have signed it<sup>6</sup>.

There is no bar to the admission in a subsequent prosecution for perjury of evidence given at the first trial directed to establishing a perjury at that trial, even though that evidence, if accepted at the second trial, would lead to the inference that the defendant was guilty of the offence of which he was acquitted at the first trial; the doctrine of issue estoppel has no application in criminal proceedings<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the meaning of 'suborn' see PARA 720 note 1 ante.

2 Perjury Act 1911 s 13. This requirement only relates to the issue of falsity; it does not relate to proof that the defendant knew that what he was saying was false: R v O'Connor [1980] Crim LR 43, CA. Where the defendant is alleged to have confessed before the trial, the evidence of two witnesses to the confession on the same occasion is sufficient for the purposes of the Perjury Act 1911 s 13; it is not necessary that they should have witnessed confessions on different occasions: R v Peach [1990] 2 All ER 966, 91 Cr App Rep 279, CA.

A letter written by the defendant contradicting his sworn evidence may be sufficient (R v Mayhew (1834) 6 C & P 315; R v Threlfall supra), or clear statements made by him directly contrary to his sworn evidence (R v Hook (1858) Dears & B 606, CCR; R v Knill (1822) 5 B & Ald 929n). The judge is required in directing a jury in any case where the Perjury Act 1911 applies to refer to s 13 and the need for the jury to have before it evidence which it accepts of more than one witness, ie one or more other witnesses, or supporting evidence (eg by way of confession) which supplements that of a single witness: R v Carroll, Perkins and Dickerson supra. Statements in a deposition before a magistrate differing from the defendant's evidence at the trial are not in themselves sufficient: R v Wheatland (1838) 8 C & P 238; R v Hughes (1844) 1 Car & Kir 519; R v Jackson (1823) 1 Lew CC 270. contradiction between the Perjury Act 1911 s 1(1) (a witness who wilfully makes a false statement is guilty of perjury: see PARA 714 ante) and the s 13 requirement for more than one witness as to the falsity of a statement alleged to be false).

Where the making of a false statement is not only an offence under the Perjury Act 1911 but also by virtue of some other Act is a corrupt practice<sup>1</sup> or subjects the offender to any forfeiture or disqualification or to any penalty other than imprisonment or fine, the offender's liability under the Perjury Act 1911 is in addition to, and not in substitution for, his liability under such other Act<sup>2</sup>. ## (2) OFFENCES RELATING TO WITNESSES, JURIES AND OTHERS

(i) Intimidation of Witnesses, Jurors etc and Harming or Threatening to Harm such Persons

726. Intimidation, etc of witnesses, jurors and others in proceedings for a criminal offence.

A person commits an offence if:

- 834 (1) he does an act which intimidates<sup>1</sup>, and is intended to intimidate, another person ('the victim')<sup>2</sup>;
- 835 (2) he does the act knowing or believing that the victim is assisting in the investigation of an offence<sup>3</sup> or is a witness or potential witness or a juror or potential juror<sup>4</sup> in proceedings for an offence<sup>5</sup>; and
- 836 (3) he does it intending thereby to cause the investigation or the course of justice to be obstructed, perverted or interfered with<sup>6</sup>.

If it is proved that the defendant did an act falling within head (1) above with the knowledge or belief required by head (2) above, he is to be presumed, unless the contrary is proved<sup>7</sup>, to have done the act with the intention required by head (3) above<sup>8</sup>.

A person commits an offence if:

- 837 (a) he does an act which harms, and is intended to harm, another person or, intending to cause another person to fear harm, he threatens to do an act which would harm that other person<sup>9</sup>;
- 838 (b) he does or threatens to do the act knowing or believing that the person harmed or threatened to be harmed ('the victim'), or some other person, has assisted in an investigation into an offence or has given evidence or particular evidence in proceedings for an offence, or has acted as a juror or concurred in a particular verdict in proceedings for an offence<sup>10</sup>; and
- 839 (c) he does or threatens to do it because of that knowledge or belief<sup>11</sup>.

For these purposes it is immaterial that the act is or would be done, or that the threat is made, otherwise than in the presence of the victim, or to a person other than the victim<sup>12</sup>. The harm that may be done or threatened may be financial as well as physical (whether to the person or a person's property) and similarly as respects an intimidatory act which consists of threats<sup>13</sup>. If it is proved that within the relevant period<sup>14</sup>:

- 840 (i) the defendant did an act which harmed, and was intended to harm, another person<sup>15</sup>; or

841 (ii) intending to cause another person fear or harm, he threatened to do an act which would harm that other person<sup>16</sup>, and that he did the act, or (as the case may be) threatened to do the act, with the knowledge or belief required by head (b) above, he is to be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, to have done the act or (as the case may be) threatened to do the act with the motive required by head (c) above<sup>17</sup>.

A person guilty of one of the above offences is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, and on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>18</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>19</sup> or to both<sup>20</sup>.

1 For these purposes, a person does 'an act which intimidates' another person not only if he puts the victim in fear, but also if he seeks to deter the victim from some relevant action by threat or violence; a threat unaccompanied by violence may be sufficient, and the threat need not necessarily be a threat of violence, but mere pressure is insufficient: R v Patrascu [2004] EWCA Crim 2417, [2004] 4 All ER 1066, [2005] 1 WLR 3344. The pressure must put the victim in some fear, or, if it does not, there must be an element of threat or violence such that the pressure was improper pressure: R v Patrascu supra.

2 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(1)(a) (s 51(1)-(3) substituted by the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 s 67(1), Sch 4 paras 21, 22(1), (2)).

3 'Investigation into an offence' means such an investigation by the police or other person charged with the duty of investigating offences or charging offenders; and 'offence' includes an alleged or suspected offence: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(9). There must be an investigation under way at the time of the alleged act: R v Singh [2000] 1 Cr App Rep 31, [1999] Crim LR 681, CA.

4 'Potential', in relation to a juror, means a person who has been summoned for jury service at the court at which proceedings for the offence are pending: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(9).

5 Ibid s 51(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

6 Ibid s 51(1)(c) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). The threat may be made through a third party: A-G's Reference (No 1 of 1999) [2000] QB 365, [1999] 2 Cr App Rep 418, CA (a decision relating to the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(1) as originally enacted).

The intention required by head (3) in the text need not be the only or the predominating intention with which the act is done: s 51(5).

7 'Proved' imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden on the defendant which is compatible with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence): see A-G's Reference (No 1 of 2004), R v Edwards, R v Denton and Jackson, R v Hendley, R v Crowley [2004] EWCA Crim 1025, [2004] 1 WLR 2111, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep 424; and PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

10 Ibid s 51(2)(b) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

11 Ibid s 51(2)(c) (as substituted: see note 2 supra). The motive required by head (c) in the text need not be the only or the predominating motive with which the act is threatened: s 51(5).

12 Ibid s 51(3) (as substituted: see note 2 supra).

13 Ibid s 51(4). 'Physical harm' bears its ordinary meaning: R v Normanton [1998] Crim LR 220, DC.

14 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(8) (amended by the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 Sch 4 paras 21, 22(1), (3)(b)).

'The relevant period' means: (1) in relation to a witness or juror in any proceedings for an offence, means the period beginning with the institution of the proceedings and ending with the first anniversary of the conclusion of the trial or, if there is an appeal or a reference under the Criminal Appeal Act 1995 s 9 or s 11 (see PARAS 1963, 1982 post), of the conclusion of the appeal; (2) in relation to a person who has, or is believed by the defendant to have, assisted in an investigation into an offence, but was not also a witness in proceedings for an offence, the period of one year beginning with any act of his, or any act believed by the defendant to be an act of his, assisting in the investigation; and (3) in relation to a person who has, or is believed by the defendant to have, assisted in the investigation into an offence and was a witness in proceedings for the offence, the period beginning with any act of his, or any act believed by the defendant to be an act of his, assisting in the investigation and ending with the anniversary mentioned in head (1) supra: Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(9) (definition amended by the Criminal Appeal Act 1995 s 29, Sch 2 para 19). For these purposes:

189 (a) proceedings for an offence are instituted at the earliest of the following times:

8. (i) when a justice of the peace issues a summons or warrant under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 1 (see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 522) in respect of the offence (Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(10)(a)(i));

9. (ii) when a person is charged with the offence after being taken into custody without a warrant (s 51(10)(a)(ii)); or

10

10. (iii) when a bill of indictment is preferred by virtue of the Administration of Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1933 s 2(2)(b) (see PARA 1206 post) (Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(10)(a)(iii));

11

190 (b) proceedings at a trial of an offence are concluded with the occurrence of any of: (A) the discontinuance of the prosecution; (B) the discharge of the jury without a finding (otherwise than in circumstances where the proceedings are continued without a jury); (C) the acquittal of the defendant; or (D) the sentencing of or other dealing with the defendant for the offence of which he was convicted (s 51(10)(b) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 331, Sch 36 paras 62, 64));

191 (c) proceedings on an appeal are concluded on the determination of the appeal or the abandonment of the appeal (Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(10)(c)).

As from a day to be appointed, there is a fourth alternative to be included in head (a) supra, namely, when a public prosecutor issues a written charge and requisition in respect of the offence (s 51(10)(a)(ia) (prospectively added by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 331, Sch 36 para 11(1), (3)). For these purposes, 'public prosecutor', 'requisition' and 'written charge' have the same meanings as in the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 29 (see PARAS 912, 915 post): Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(9) (prospectively added by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sch 36 para 11(1), (2)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

15 Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 51(8)(a) (s 51(8) amended by the Youth Justice and Criminal Evidence Act 1999 Sch 4 paras 21, 22(1), (3)(b)).

17 Ibid s 51(8) (as amended: see note 15 supra).

18 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(2) OFFENCES RELATING TO WITNESSES, JURIES AND OTHERS/(i) Intimidation of Witnesses, Jurors etc and Harming or Threatening to Harm such Persons/727. Intimidation of witnesses, etc, in proceedings other than for a criminal offence.

727. Intimidation of witnesses, etc, in proceedings other than for a criminal offence.

A person commits an offence if: (1) he does an act<sup>1</sup> which intimidates, and is intended to intimidate, another person ('the victim')<sup>2</sup>; (2) he does the act: (a) knowing or believing that the victim is or may be a witness<sup>3</sup> in any relevant proceedings<sup>4</sup>; and (b) intending, by his act, to cause the course of justice to be obstructed, perverted or interfered with<sup>5</sup>; and (3) the act is done after the commencement of those proceedings<sup>6</sup>. It is immaterial whether or not the act that is done is done in the presence of the victim, or whether that act is done to the victim himself or to another person<sup>7</sup>. If it is proved that the defendant did any act that intimidated, and was intended to intimidate, another person, and that he did that act knowing or believing that that other person was or might be a witness in any relevant proceedings that had already commenced, he is to be presumed, unless the contrary is shown, to have done the act with the intention of causing the course of justice to be obstructed, perverted or interfered with<sup>8</sup>.

A person commits an offence if, in specified circumstances: (i) he does an act which harms, and is intended to harm, another person<sup>9</sup>; or (ii) intending to cause another person to fear harm, he threatens to do an act which would harm that other person<sup>10</sup>. Those circumstances are that: (A) the person doing or threatening to do the act does so knowing or believing that some person (whether or not the person harmed or threatened or the person against whom harm is threatened) has been a witness<sup>11</sup> in relevant proceedings<sup>12</sup>; and (B) he does or threatens to do that act because of that knowledge or belief<sup>13</sup>. If it is proved that, within the relevant period<sup>14</sup>, the defendant did an act which harmed, and was intended to harm, another person or, intending to cause another person to fear harm, he threatened to do an act which would harm that other person, and that in either case he did the act, or (as the case may be) threatened to do the act, with the knowledge or belief required by head (A) above, he is to be presumed, unless the contrary is shown, to have done the act, or (as the case may be) threatened to do the act, because of that knowledge or belief<sup>15</sup>. For these purposes, it is immaterial whether or not the act that is done or threatened, or the threat that is made, is or would be done or is made in the presence of the person who is or would be harmed or of the person who is threatened, or whether the harm that is done or threatened is physical or financial or is harm to a person or to his property<sup>16</sup>.

A person guilty of any one of the above offences is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both<sup>17</sup>, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>18</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>19</sup> or to both<sup>20</sup>.

1 References in the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 39 to doing an act include references to issuing any threat (whether against a person or his finances or property or otherwise), or making any other statement: s 39(6).

2 Ibid s 39(1)(a).

3 References in ibid s 39 to a witness, in relation to any proceedings, include references to a person who provides, or is able to provide, any information or any document or other thing which might be used as evidence in those proceedings or which (whether or not admissible as evidence in those proceedings): (1) might tend to confirm evidence which will be or might be admitted in those proceedings (s 39(5)(a)); (2) might be referred to in evidence given in those proceedings by another witness (s 39(5)(b)); or (3) might be used as the basis for any cross examination in the course of those proceedings (s 39(5)(c)).

4 Ibid s 39(1)(b)(i). A reference in s 39 or s 40 to relevant proceedings is a reference to any proceedings in or before the Court of Appeal, the High Court, the Crown Court or any county court or magistrates' court which are not proceedings for an offence and were commenced after 1 August 2001 (ie the date on which ss 39, 40 came into force: Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 (Commencement No 1) Order 2001, SI 2001/2223); Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 41(1).

5 Ibid s 39(1)(b)(ii).

6 Ibid s 39(1)(c). For the purposes of any reference in s 39, s 40 or s 41 to the commencement of any proceedings, relevant proceedings are commenced (subject to s 41(5) (see note 14 infra)) at the earliest time at which one of the following occurs: (1) an information is laid or an application, claim form, complaint, petition, summons or other process is made or issued for the purpose of commencing the proceedings (s 41(2)(a)); (2) any other step is taken by means of which the subject matter of the proceedings is brought for the first time (whether as part of the proceedings or in anticipation of them) before the court (s 41(2)(b)). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

7 Ibid s 39(2)(a), (b). It is also immaterial whether or not the intention to cause the course of justice to be obstructed, perverted or interfered with is the predominating intention of the person doing the act in question: s 39(2)(c).

10 Ibid s 40(1)(b).

11 References in ibid s 40 to a witness, in relation to any proceedings, include references to a person who has provided any information or any document or other thing which was or might have been used as evidence in those proceedings or which (whether or not it was admissible as evidence in those proceedings): (1) tended to confirm or might have tended to confirm any evidence which was or could have been given in those proceedings; (2) was or might have been referred to in evidence given in those proceedings by another witness; or (3) was or might have been used as the basis for any cross examination in the course of those proceedings: s 40(7).

12 Ibid s 40(2)(a). As to relevant proceedings see s 41(1); and note 4 supra.

14 For these purposes, 'the relevant period', in relation to an act done, or threat made, with the knowledge or belief that a person has been a witness in any relevant proceedings, means the period that begins with the commencement of those proceedings and ends one year after they are finally concluded: ibid s 40(6). As to the commencement of relevant proceedings see s 41(2); note 6 supra.

Relevant proceedings are finally concluded: (1) if proceedings for an appeal against, or an application for a review of, those proceedings or of any decision taken in those proceedings are brought or is made, at the time when proceedings on that appeal or application are finally concluded; (2) if the proceedings are withdrawn or discontinued, at the time when they are withdrawn or discontinued; and (3) in any other case, when the court in or before which the proceedings are brought finally disposes of all the matters arising in those proceedings: s 41(3). However, relevant proceedings are not to be taken to be finally concluded by virtue of head (1) supra where: (a) the matters to which the appeal or application relate are such that the proceedings in respect of which it is brought or made continue or resume after the making of any determination on that appeal or application; or (b) a determination made on that appeal or application requires those proceedings to continue or to be resumed: s 41(4). Where, after having appeared to be finally concluded, any relevant proceedings continue by reason of: (i) the giving of permission to bring an appeal after a fixed time for appealing has expired; (ii) the lifting of any stay in the proceedings; (iii) the setting aside, without an appeal, of any judgment or order; or (iv) the revival of any discontinued proceedings, ss 39-41 have effect as if the proceedings had concluded when they appeared to, but as if the giving of permission, the lifting of the stay, the setting aside of the judgment or order or, as the case may be, the revival of the discontinued proceedings were the commencement of new relevant proceedings: s 41(5).

16 Ibid s 40(4)(a), (c). It is also immaterial whether or not the motive mentioned in head (b) in the text is the predominating motive for the act or threat: s 40(4)(b).

17 Ibid ss 39(4)(a), 40(5)(a).

Every person who threatens or in any way punishes, damnifies or injures or attempts to punish, damnify or injure any person for having given evidence upon any inquiry<sup>1</sup>, or on account of the evidence which he has given upon any such inquiry, unless such evidence was given in bad faith, is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months<sup>2</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level three on the standard scale<sup>3</sup>. The offender may also be ordered to pay compensation to the person injured<sup>4</sup>.

1 'Inquiry' means any inquiry held under the authority of any Royal Commission or by any committee of either House of Parliament, or pursuant to any statutory authority, whether the evidence of such inquiry is or is not given on oath, but does not include any inquiry by any court of justice: Witnesses (Public Inquiries) Protection Act 1892 s 1.

2 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term is increased to 51 weeks: see ibid s 2 (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), (3), Sch 26 para 4). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

(ii) Embracery

729. Embracery.

Embracery is an indictable offence at common law and is committed by any person<sup>1</sup> who attempts to corrupt, influence, or instruct a jury or to incline a jury to favour one side more than the other, whether by money, promises, letters, threats, or persuasion, or by any means other than by evidence and arguments in open court at the trial<sup>2</sup>. To give jurors money after their verdict constitutes embracery, even though there was no previous promise to pay<sup>3</sup>. The offence of embracery is obsolescent: conduct covered by it is more appropriately dealt with as perversion of the course of justice or contempt of court<sup>4</sup> or intimidation of jurors<sup>5</sup>.

It is also an indictable offence at common law for any person by improper means to procure himself or others to be sworn on a jury for the purpose of giving a verdict favourable to one of the parties<sup>6</sup> or for any person to induce a juror not to appear<sup>7</sup>.

The above offences are punishable by fine and imprisonment for life or any shorter term at the discretion of the court<sup>8</sup>.

730. Personating a juror.

It is an indictable offence at common law to personate a juror<sup>1</sup>. It is not necessary to prove that the defendant had any corrupt motive or any specific intention to deceive other than that which is involved in going into the jury box and taking the oath in another's name<sup>2</sup>. It is no answer that he did not know he was doing wrong<sup>3</sup>. Where a person who is not called as a juror personates a juror and sits in his place, the trial is a nullity<sup>4</sup>. The offence is punishable by fine and imprisonment for life or any shorter term at the discretion of the court<sup>5</sup>.

(3) OBSTRUCTING THE COURSE OF JUSTICE

731. Perversion of the course of justice.

It is an indictable offence at common law to pervert the course of justice<sup>1</sup>. The offence is otherwise referred to as obstructing or interfering with the administration of justice and defeating the due course or the ends of justice<sup>2</sup>. The offence consists of an act, or a series of acts,<sup>3</sup> or conduct which has the tendency<sup>4</sup> and is intended<sup>5</sup> to pervert the course<sup>6</sup> of justice<sup>7</sup>. The course of justice may be perverted by discontinuing a criminal prosecution in return for payment<sup>8</sup>; making false statements to police officers investigating an offence<sup>9</sup>; making a false complaint to the police capable of being taken seriously, whether or not it identifies particular individuals<sup>10</sup>; doing an act calculated to assist another to avoid arrest<sup>11</sup>; interfering with a witness<sup>12</sup> or a juror<sup>13</sup>; a witness deliberately absenting himself from proceedings in return for payment<sup>14</sup>; producing fabricated evidence<sup>15</sup>; publishing articles calculated to interfere with the course of justice<sup>16</sup>; improperly aborting a prosecution<sup>17</sup>; or frustrating a statutory procedure which would or could otherwise lead to a prosecution<sup>18</sup>.

The offence is punishable by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court<sup>19</sup>.

1 R v Vreones [1891] 1 QB 360, CCR; R v Rowell [1978] 1 All ER 665, 65 Cr App Rep 174, CA; R v Machin [1980] 3 All ER 151, 71 Cr App Rep 166, CA; R v Selvage, R v Morgan [1982] 1 All ER 96, 73 Cr App Rep 333, CA; R v Bassi [1985] Crim LR 671, CA. It will only be appropriate to charge this offence if police time has been wasted or where innocent persons who have been named have been arrested or if there are other aggravating factors: R v Sookoo (2000) Times, 10 April, CA.

2 R v Machin [1980] 3 All ER 151, 71 Cr App Rep 166, CA.

3 R v Rowell [1978] 1 All ER 665, 65 Cr App Rep 174, CA. Some positive act is required: R v Headley (1996) 160 JP 25, CA (defendant acquiesced in trial at which convicted in absence for offence committed by brother; defendant made no representations about false allegations that he had been the driver; simply acquiesced in trial and failed to attend; not offence of perverting course of justice); and see also R v Clark [2003] EWCA Crim 991, [2003] 2 Cr App Rep 363 (defendant involved in road traffic accident under influence of alcohol; drove home and only reported accident when sober the next day; not an offence of perverting the course of justice because no positive act of concealment of drink-driving offence).

4 The gist of the offence is conduct which may lead and is intended to lead to a miscarriage of justice whether or not a miscarriage actually occurs. Proof of intention alone is not sufficient: R v Machin [1980] 3 All ER 151, 71 Cr App Rep 166, CA; R v Bassi [1985] Crim LR 671, CA. There must be evidence that what the defendant has done is enough for there to be a risk, without further action by him, that injustice will result. In other words, there must be a possibility that what he has done without more might lead to injustice: R v Murray [1982] 2 All ER 225, 75 Cr App Rep 58, CA. The prosecution does not have to prove that the tendency in fact materialised: R v Machin supra; R v Murray supra.

5 The Crown has to prove that each of the defendants intended by the act or acts that the course of justice should be interfered with; it cannot be right to say that the only intent which has to be proved is the intent to do the act which may or may not be held to have a tendency to pervert: R v Selvage, R v Morgan [1982] QB 372, [1982] 1 All ER 96, CA (relying on R v Vreones [1891] 1 QB 360, CCR; R v Machin [1980] 3 All ER 151, 71 Cr App Rep 166, CA). The law distinguishes between the course of justice and the ends of justice; if the defendant's conduct tends, and is intended, to pervert the course of justice, it is irrelevant that he acts with the motive of promoting the ends of justice: A-G's Reference (No 1 of 2002) [2002] EWCA Crim 2392, [2003] Crim LR 410. Thus a person who presents false evidence in order to secure the conviction of someone he believes to be guilty can be convicted of perverting the course of justice: A-G's Reference (No 1 of 2002) supra.

6 The offence is not limited to matters directly concerning proceedings already in being; nor need proceedings of some kind in a court or judicial tribunal be imminent; nor is it necessary that investigations which could result in proceedings are in progress. Provided that there is the requisite tendency and the requisite intention, the offence can be committed after the perpetration of a crime but before investigations into it have begun: R v Rafique [1993] QB 843, [1993] 4 All ER 1, CA (disposal of gun after accidental shooting, but before start of police investigation which led to criminal charges, capable of amounting to offence of perverting course of justice), distinguishing R v Selva, R v Morgan [1982] QB 372, [1982] 1 All ER 96, CA (the mere act of altering X's records of endorsements on licences could not by itself be a perversion of the course of justice, because no proceedings were in the contemplation of the defendant or X; the defendant was merely acting against the possibility of the commission at some time in the future of a road traffic offence (in which case it was intended that X's previous road traffic convictions would not be taken into account in sentencing him)). Indeed, the offence can be committed even though a crime has not been committed (or cannot be proved) if the defendant believes that there may be an investigation which could result in judicial proceedings: R v Kiffin [1994] Crim LR 449, CA. Thus a person who, in order to prevent the detection of the offender, destroys the only evidence of a crime before an investigation can begin can be convicted of the present offence, since such conduct clearly has a tendency to pervert the course of justice and he would act with intent to pervert that course, and the same would be true if he mistakenly believes that it is the only evidence of a non-existent crime.

7 The offence is sometimes described as 'attempting to pervert the course of justice'. The use of 'attempt' is misleading because the offence is a substantive offence (which can itself be attempted), and not an attempt, contrary to the Criminal Attempts Act 1981, to commit a substantive offence: R v Rowell [1978] 1 All ER 665, (1977) 65 Cr App Rep 174, CA; R v Williams (1990) 92 Cr App Rep 158, CA. Where a complaint is so generalised that there is no risk, or only a minimal risk, of anyone being arrested or prosecuted, it may be more appropriate to charge the offence of causing wasteful employment of the police (see PARA 739 post): R v Cotter supra. If the named individual is, unknown to the defendant, dead there can be a conviction for attempting to pervert the course of justice: R v Brown [2004] EWCA Crim 744, [2004] Crim LR 665.

11 R v Thomas [1979] QB 326, 68 Cr App Rep 275, CA (appellants provided S with the registration numbers of unmarked police cars so that he could avoid being arrested; interference did not have to be dishonest, corrupt or threatening; cf the requirements in relation to improperly interfering with a witness (see note 12 infra)).

12 At one time this was thought to be a separate indictable offence, but it is now clear that it is an example of the offence of perverting the course of justice: R v Grimes [1968] 3 All ER 179n; R v Kellett [1976] QB 372, [1975] 3 All ER 468, CA (threat to bring proceedings for slander; intention to deter witness from giving evidence in divorce suit). The offence is not necessarily committed by a person who tried to persuade a false witness, or even a witness believed to be false, to speak the truth or to refrain from giving false evidence: R v Kellett supra. It is not necessary that an attempt at persuasion should involve improper means, such as a threat, bribe or undue pressure: R v Toney, R v Ali [1993] 2 All ER 409, [1993] 1 WLR 264, CA. The exercise of a legal right or the threat of exercising it does not excuse interfering with the administration of justice by deterring a witness from giving evidence which he wishes to give before he has given it: R v Kellett supra (right to sue for slander). There may be a material difference if the person interfered with is a litigant and not a witness: R v Kellett supra; Webster v Bakewell RDC [1916] 1 Ch 300; A-G v Times Newspapers Ltd [1974] AC 273 at 319, [1973] 3 All ER 54 at 80, HL, per Lord Simon of Glaisdale. 'Witness' includes a potential witness: R v Grimes supra. The question whether a person is to be treated as a witness can only be answered by having regard to the proceedings contemplated. Where a person has made a statement to the police and the decision not to prosecute will be made by the police, that person, although the complainant, is to be regarded as a witness: R v Panayiotou

733. Acknowledging recognisance etc in name of another.

Any person who, without lawful authority or excuse<sup>1</sup>, acknowledges in the name of any other person any recognisance<sup>2</sup> or bail or any cognovit actionem<sup>3</sup> or judgment or any deed or other instrument before any court, judge or other person lawfully authorised in that behalf<sup>4</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years<sup>5</sup>.

1 Proof of lawful authority or excuse lies on the defendant: Forgery Act 1861 s 34. See also PARA 1370 post. As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

2 'Any recognisance' refers to a valid recognisance into which a person may lawfully be required to enter and a recognisance imposing an obligation for which there is no authority is not within the Forgery Act 1861 s 34: R v McKenzie [1971] 1 All ER 729, 55 Cr App Rep 294.

(4) OFFENCES RELATING TO THE EXECUTION OF CIVIL OR CRIMINAL PROCESS

734. Concealing offences.

Where a person has committed a relevant offence<sup>1</sup>, any other person who, knowing or believing that the offence or some other relevant offence<sup>2</sup> has been committed, and that he has information which might be of material assistance in securing the prosecution or conviction of an offender for it, accepts or agrees to accept for not disclosing that information any consideration other than the making good of loss or injury caused by the offence, or the making of reasonable compensation for that loss or injury, is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction<sup>3</sup> to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>4</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>5</sup> or to both<sup>6</sup>.

Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>7</sup>.

1 For these purposes, and the purposes of the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 4 (see PARAS 58 ante, 1337 post), 'relevant offence' means: (1) an offence for which the sentence is fixed by law; and (2) an offence for which a person of 18 years or over (not previously convicted) may be sentenced to imprisonment for a term of five years (or might be so sentenced but for the restrictions imposed by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 33 (as amended) (see PARA 1114 post): Criminal Law Act 1967 s 4(1A) (added by the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 119, Sch 6 para 17; and substituted by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 111, Sch 7 para 40(1), (2)).

2 See note 1 supra.

3 The offence is triable either way where the offence to which it relates is triable either way: Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 17 Sch 1 para 26(b).

4 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(1), Sch 1 (s 32(1) prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 282(1)); and MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARAS 655-656), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 282(4) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

5 As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

6 Criminal Law Act 1967 s 5(1); Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(1). See PARA 1103 post. The compounding of an offence other than treason is not an offence otherwise than under the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 5: s 5(5). Nor is misprision an offence except in the case of treason (see PARA 365 ante), the common law offence of misprision of felony having ceased to exist with the abolition of the distinctions between felony and misdemeanour (see s 1; and PARA 49 ante). However, as to advertising rewards on certain terms for the return of lost or stolen goods see PARA 305 ante.

7 Ibid s 5(3). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/8. OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(4) OFFENCES RELATING TO THE EXECUTION OF CIVIL OR CRIMINAL PROCESS/735. Assaulting or obstructing a constable.

735. Assaulting or obstructing a constable.

Any person who assaults a constable<sup>1</sup> in the execution of his duty, or a person assisting a constable in the execution of his duty<sup>2</sup>, is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>3</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level five on the standard scale<sup>4</sup> or to both<sup>5</sup>. A person does not commit such an offence, however, unless the constable was acting in the execution of his duty, that is to say that he was acting strictly within the limits of his powers and legal duty<sup>6</sup>. The justification of self-defence is available to a defendant charged with assaulting a constable where the assault occurred in resisting an act on the constable's part which was technically an assault<sup>7</sup>.

Any person who resists or wilfully obstructs<sup>8</sup> a constable in the execution of his duty, or a person assisting a constable in the execution of his duty, is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month<sup>9</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level three on the standard scale or to both<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the office of constable see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 101 et seq. The constable's appointment need not be proved: Berryman v Wise (1791) 4 Term Rep 366. Every prison officer while acting as such has all the powers, authority, protection and privileges of a constable: see the Prison Act 1952 s 8; and PRISONS vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 516. See also Pointing v Wilson [1927] 1 KB 382. A constable or any other person required or authorised by virtue of the Mental Health Act 1983 to take any person into custody, or to convey or detain any person, has, for the purposes of taking him into custody or conveying or detaining him, all the powers, authorities, protection and privileges which a constable has within the area for which he acts as constable: see s 137(2); and MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 446. The Police Act 1996 s 89 also applies to a constable who is a member of a police force maintained in Scotland or Northern Ireland when he is executing a warrant or otherwise acting in England or Wales under a statutory power to do so: s 89(3). Section 89 also applies to a constable of the British Transport Police Force in the same way as it applies to other constables in England and Wales: see the Railways and Transport Safety Act 2003 s 68(1); and RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 283. A person carrying out surveillance in England and Wales under the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 s 76A (as added and amended) (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 498) is treated as if he were acting as a constable in the execution of his duty: Crime (International Co-operation) Act 2003 s 84(1).

2 For these purposes, 'a person assisting a constable in the execution of his duty' includes a reference to any person who is neither a constable nor in the company of a constable but who is a member of an international joint investigation team (ie an investigation team established under an international framework) led by a member of a police force and is carrying out his functions as a member of that team: Police Act 1996 s 89(4) (added by the Police Reform Act 2002 s 104; and amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 59, 174(2), Sch 4 paras 68, 81, Sch 17 Pt 2).

3 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

4 As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

5 Police Act 1996 s 89(1). As to the offence committed by a person who at the time of committing or being arrested for an offence under the Police Act 1964 s 51(1) (as amended) has in his possession a firearm or imitation firearm see PARA 677 ante; and as to assault with intent to resist arrest see PARA 737 post.

Knowledge that the person assaulted was a police officer is not necessary; the offence consists in assaulting a constable being in the execution of his duty, not in knowing him to be in the execution of his duty: R v Forbes, R v Webb (1865) 10 Cox CC 362; R v Maxwell and Clanchy (1909) 2 Cr App Rep 26, CCA; Albert v Lavin [1982] AC

546, 74 Cr App Rep 150, HL. See also McBride v Turnock [1964] Crim LR 456, DC. However, if the defendant, not knowing that his victim is a constable, and believing that he is under attack, applies force to a constable, who is exercising one of his powers, and that force would be reasonable if the victim had not been a constable (because he would not have the power in question), the defendant does not commit an offence under the Police Act 1996 s 89(1). The reason is that he lacks the mens rea required for the assault (ie battery) part of the offence, since he does not intend to apply unlawful force to his victim and he is not reckless as to the risk of such force being applied: Blackburn v Bowering [1994] 3 All ER 380, [1994] 1 WLR 1324, DC. On the other hand, if the defendant knows that his victim is a constable but mistakenly believes that the constable is acting in excess of his powers, he is not excused; it has been held that his mistake is not one of fact but one of criminal law relating to the powers of the constable: R v Fennell [1971] 1 QB 428, [1970] 3 All ER 215, CA. The correctness of this is open to doubt where the mistake about the excess of the constable's powers is based on a mistaken belief that the facts do not satisfy the requirements for the exercise of the power.

6 Where a defendant is charged with assaulting an officer in the execution of his duty, the onus is on the prosecution to prove that the officer was so acting: Chapman v DPP (1988) 89 Cr App Rep 190, CA. Where an arrest is made by a police officer for assault in the execution of his duty, arising from the arrest of a third party, it is an essential for the later arrest to be lawful that the prior arrest was lawful; and where, therefore, justices are not told of the reason for the prior arrest, it is not open to them to find that the officer was acting in the execution of his duty: Riley v DPP (1989) 154 JP 453, DC.

The cardinal principle is that that which is officially done must be done in accordance with the law: Arthur Yates & Co (Property) Ltd v Vegetable Seeds Committee (1945) 72 CLR 37 at 66, Aust HC, per Sir John Latham CJ. Thus if an arrest is not lawful, a constable is not acting in the execution of his duty: Wershof v Metropolitan Police Comr [1978] 3 All ER 540, 68 Cr App Rep 82; Grant v Gorman [1980] RTR 119, DC; G v Chief Superintendent of Police, Stroud (1986) 86 Cr App Rep 92, DC; Nicholas v Parsonage [1987] Crim LR 474, DC. Where a person is arrested upon a warrant, the fact that the constable making the arrest is not in possession of the warrant at the time does not necessarily mean he is not acting in the execution of his duty: Jones v Kelsey (1987) 85 Cr App Rep 226, DC. If a search is not lawful, a constable is not acting in the execution of his duty: Lindley v Rutter [1981] QB 128, 72 Cr App Rep 1, DC; Brazil v Chief Constable of Surrey [1983] 3 All ER 537, 77 Cr App Rep 237, DC. The fact that at the time of search the searching officer had been following instructions requiring all arrested persons to be searched without having given consideration to the individual circumstances of each case did not, of itself, render the search unlawful: Middleweek v Chief Constable of Merseyside [1992] 1 AC 179n, [1990] 3 All ER 662, CA. A police officer is not acting in the execution of his duty if he detains a person in the mistaken belief that the person has already been arrested: Kerr v DPP (1994) 158 JP 1048, [1995] Crim LR 394, DC. A police officer is not acting in the execution of his duty if he searches a person without supplying details of his name and station: Osman v DPP (1999) 163 JP 725, DC. There is no express or implied duty on a custody officer to inquire into the legality of an arrest, and therefore the fact that the arrest was unlawful does not in itself prevent a custody officer acting in the exercise of his duty: DPP v L [1999] Crim LR 752, DC. As to a constable's power of arrest see PARA 924 et seq post; and as to powers of search and entry see PARA 869 et seq post. As to the duties of a constable see Rice v Connolly [1966] 2 QB 414 at 419, [1966] 2 All ER 649 at 651, DC, per Lord Parker CJ ('... it is part of the obligations and duties of a police constable to take all steps which appear to him necessary for keeping the peace, for preventing crime and for protecting property from criminal injury. There is no exhaustive definition of the powers and obligations of the police, but they are at least those, and they further include the duty to detect crime and to bring an offender to justice'). See also Coffin v Smith (1980) 71 Cr App Rep 221, DC (a constable's duty is to be a keeper of the peace and to take all necessary steps with that in view; it was held that the constable in this case was acting in the execution of his duty because he thought his presence would assist in the keeping of the peace). Cf R v Waterfield [1964] 1 QB 164, [1963] 3 All ER 659, CCA.

As to a constable's duty to prevent, and otherwise deal with, a breach of the peace see Duncan v Jones [1936] 1 KB 218; Thomas v Sawkins [1935] 2 KB 249, DC; McGowan v Chief Constable of Kingston upon Hull [1967] Crim LR 34, DC; King v Hodges [1974] Crim LR 424, DC; Hickman v O'Dwyer [1979] Crim LR 309, DC (constable must apprehend a breach of the peace otherwise action not justified); Read v Jones (1983) 77 Cr App Rep 246, DC; R v Howell [1982] QB 416, 73 Cr App Rep 31, CA; R (on the application of Laporte) v Chief Constable of Gloucestershire [2004] EWCA Civ 1639, [2005] QB 678, [2005] 1 All ER 473. A constable who becomes a trespasser is no longer acting in execution of his duty: Davis v Lisle [1936] 2 KB 434, [1936] 2 All ER 213; McArdle v Wallace [1964] Crim LR 467, DC; Robson v Hallett [1967] 2 QB 939, 51 Cr App Rep 307, DC; Pamplin v Fraser [1981] RTR 494, DC; McLorie v Oxford [1982] QB 1290, 74 Cr App Rep 137, DC. See also R v Thornley (1980) 72 Cr App Rep 302, CA (constable on premises at invitation of occupier entitled to remain on premises for reasonable time to investigate complaint; still acting in execution of duty despite request by occupier to leave).

Unless expressly authorised by statute, a constable has no power, short of arrest, of detaining a person for questioning: Rice v Connolly supra. As to powers to stop and search see PARA 859 et seq post; and as to powers of arrest see PARA 910 et seq post. A constable who detains a person against his will without arresting him is acting outside the course of his duty: Ludlow v Burgess (1971) 75 Cr App Rep 227n, DC. However, not every trivial interference with a person's liberty amounts to a course of conduct sufficient to be outside the course of a constable's duty: Donnelly v Jackman [1970] 1 All ER 987, [1970] 1 WLR 562, DC; Squires v Botwright [1973] Crim LR 106, DC; Daniel v Morrison (1979) 70 Cr App Rep 142, DC; Pedro v Diss [1981] 2 All ER 59, 72 Cr App

Rep 193, DC; Bentley v Brudzinski (1982) 75 Cr App Rep 217, DC (whether detention by constable short of arrest is unlawful is a question of fact depending on the circumstances which precede it and the degree of force used); McBean v Parker [1983] Crim LR 399, DC; Collins v Wilcock [1984] 3 All ER 374, 79 Cr App Rep 229, DC (the word 'detaining' can be used in more than one sense. It is a commonplace that one person may request another to stop and speak to him; whether the latter stops willingly or unwillingly, the first person may be said to be 'stopping and detaining' the latter. There is nothing unlawful in such an act. If a police officer so 'stops and detains' another person, he commits no unlawful act, despite the fact that his uniform may give his request certain authority and so render it more likely to be complied with; the police force officer cannot use force; that would be a battery); Weight v Long [1986] Crim LR 746, DC. As to whether a constable is in the execution of his duty when detaining a car after arresting the driver, particularly as part of the duty to ensure that the car is properly looked after, see Stunt v Bolton [1972] RTR 435, DC; Liepins v Spearman [1986] RTR 24, DC.

If a constable is exceeding his authority, an assault is not within the Police Act 1996 s 89(1): see R v Marsden (1868) LR 1 CCR 131; R v Mabel (1840) 9 C & P 474; Chapman v DPP (1988) 89 Cr App Rep 190, DC.

Where reasonably necessary for the protection of life or property, a constable has the power to direct other persons to disobey traffic regulations; in giving such a direction in such circumstances he is acting in the execution of his duty and a refusal to obey constitutes a wilful obstruction: Johnson v Phillips [1975] 3 All ER 682, [1976] 1 WLR 65, DC.

7 Kenlin v Gardiner [1967] 2 QB 510, [1966] 3 All ER 931, DC; R v Williams [1987] 3 All ER 411, 78 Cr App Rep 276, CA. As to self-defence and defence of others see PARA 21 ante. See also R v Fennell [1971] 1 QB 428, [1970] 3 All ER 215, CA.

8 Bastable v Little [1907] 1 KB 59; Betts v Stevens [1910] 1 KB 1; Duncan v Jones [1936] 1 KB 218, DC; Piddington v Bates [1960] 3 All ER 660, [1961] 1 WLR 162, DC; Tynan v Balmer [1967] 1 QB 91, [1966] 2 All ER 133, DC; Stunt v Bolton [1972] RTR 435, DC. To 'obstruct' is to do any act (or, if there is a legal duty to do an act, to fail to do that act) which makes it more difficult for the police to carry out their duty: Hinchcliffe v Sheldon [1955] 3 All ER 406, [1955] 1 WLR 1207, DC; Rice v Connolly [1966] 2 QB 414 at 419, [1966] 2 All ER 649 at 651, DC; Dibble v Ingleton [1972] 1 QB 480 at 487, sub nom Ingleton v Dibble [1972] 1 All ER 275 at 278, DC; Ricketts v Cox (1981) 74 Cr App Rep 298, DC (whether silence can amount to obstruction must be approached in a realistic manner); Moore v Green [1983] 1 All ER 663, DC; Lewis v Cox [1985] QB 509, 80 Cr App Rep 1, DC; Bennett v Bale [1986] Crim LR 404, DC. The obstruction must be wilful, that is to say deliberate and intentional, in order to come within the Police Act 1996 s 89(3): Rice v Connolly supra; Willmott v Attack [1977] QB 498, [1976] 3 All ER 794, DC (need for criminal intention to obstruct constable); Hills v Ellis [1983] QB 680, 76 Cr App Rep 217, DC; Lewis v Cox supra (act need not be 'aimed at' or 'hostile to' the police; defendant must intend conduct to prevent police from carrying out their duty or to make it more difficult to do so). Motive is irrelevant: Hills v Ellis supra; Lewis v Cox supra. There cannot be a conviction for wilful obstruction unless the defendant knew or believed that that person was a constable: Ostler v Elliott [1980] Crim LR 584, DC.

In DPP v Glendinning [2005] EWHC 2333 (Admin), [2005] All ER (D) 130 (Oct), the court held (following Bastable v Little supra) that no offence of wilful obstruction is committed where the defendant warns other motorists of a police speed trap ahead, unless it is established that those warned were already speeding or were likely to be speeding at the location of the speed trap.

9 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to 51 weeks: see the Police Act 1996 s 89(2) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 280(2), Sch 26 para 47). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

10 Police Act 1996 s 89(2). As to aiding and abetting such an offence see Smith v Reynolds, Smith v Hancock, Smith v Lowe [1986] Crim LR 559, DC; and PARA 49 ante. As to a constable's general powers of arrest see PARA 910 post. 2    Ibid 51(1)(a). For these purposes, 'relevant power', in relation to a designated person, means a power or privilege exercisable by that person by virtue of the designation under s 43 (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 470): s 51(6).

737. Assault with intent to resist or prevent arrest.

Any person who assaults<sup>1</sup> another with intent to resist or prevent the lawful apprehension<sup>2</sup> or detainer of himself or of any other person for any offence<sup>3</sup>, is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>4</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>5</sup> or to both<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to assault see PARA 147 ante.

2 As to powers of apprehension (ie arrest) see PARA 910 et seq post. It must be proved that the person assaulted had the right to apprehend or detain the defendant for an offence: R v Self [1992] 3 All ER 476, 95 Cr App Rep 42 CA; R v Lee [2000] Crim LR 991, [2001] 1 Cr App Rep 293, CA. A defendant will intend to resist lawful apprehension if the arrest is lawful and, knowing that the victim of the assault is trying to arrest him, he intends to resist that arrest: R v Lee supra. He must also have the mens rea for assault. The fact that he is mistaken as to the arrestee's power (ie authority) to arrest him, so that he thinks the arrest is unlawful, is a mistake of criminal law and irrelevant: R v Fennell [1971] 1 QB 428, [1970] 3 All ER 215, CA. So, it has been held, is a mistaken belief which leads the defendant to think that the facts do not satisfy the requirements for a lawful arrest, as where he knows or believes he has not committed an offence: R v Lee supra. See also R v Ball (1990) 90 Cr App Rep 378, CA. On the other hand, if (because of a mistake as to the victim's capacity (eg that he is a police constable) or conduct) the defendant does not know that he is being arrested, for example because he thinks he is being attacked by a robber or a thug, he will lack the mens rea of assault and the intent to resist a lawful arrest. Here, the mistake is one of fact which prevents him knowing that he is being arrested: R v Brightling [1991] Crim LR 364, CA; R v Lee supra.

3 Consequently, it is not an offence under the present provision to assault someone with intent to resist an arrest for a breach of the peace or in civil process (a breach of the peace is not in itself an offence under English law): Davies v Griffiths [1937] 2 All ER 671, DC; Williamson v Chief Constable of West Midlands Police [2003] EWCA Civ 337, [2004] 1 WLR 14.

739. False reports causing wasteful employment of police.

Any person who causes any wasteful employment of the police by knowingly making to any person a false report tending to show that an offence has been committed, or to give rise to apprehension for the safety of any persons or property, or tending to show that he has information material to any police inquiry, is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>1</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level four on the standard scale<sup>2</sup> or to both<sup>3</sup>.

Proceedings for such an offence may be instituted only by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>4</sup>.

1 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). Obstruction of enforcement officers and court officers executing High Court or county court process.

740. Obstruction of enforcement officers and court officers executing High Court or county court process.

If a person resists or intentionally obstructs any person who is an enforcement officer<sup>1</sup>, or who is acting under the authority of an enforcement officer, and who is engaged in executing a writ issued from the High Court, he is guilty of an offence<sup>2</sup>.

If a person resists or intentionally obstructs any person who is in fact an officer of a court<sup>3</sup> engaged in executing any process issued by the High Court or any county court for the purpose of enforcing any judgment or order<sup>4</sup> for the recovery of any premises<sup>5</sup> or for the delivery of possession of any premises, he is guilty of an offence<sup>6</sup>.

A person guilty of one of the above offences is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level five on the standard scale<sup>8</sup> or to both<sup>9</sup>. In any proceedings for such an offence it is, however, a defence for the defendant to prove<sup>10</sup> that he believed that the person he was resisting or obstructing was not an enforcement officer, a person acting under the authority of an enforcement officer or an officer of a court (as the case may be)<sup>11</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'enforcement officer' means an individual who is authorised to act as an enforcement officer under the Courts Act 2003 (see COURTS): Criminal Law Act 1977 s 10(6) (substituted by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 189(1), (5)).

2 Criminal Law Act 1977 s 10(A1) (added by the Courts Act 2003 Sch 8 para 189(1), (2)). An enforcement officer or any officer of a court may arrest without warrant anyone who is, or whom he, with reasonable cause, suspects to be, guilty of committing an offence under the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 10 (as amended): s 10(5) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 Sch 8 para 189(1), (4); and the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 ss 111, 174(2), Sch 7 para 19(1), (6), Sch 17 Pt 2). A constable may enter and search any premises for the purpose of arresting a person for an offence under the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 10 (as amended): see the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 17(1)(c)(ii); and PARA 884 post.

3 For these purposes, 'officer of a court' means: (1) any sheriff, under sheriff, deputy sheriff, bailiff or officer of a sheriff; and (2) any bailiff or other person who is an officer of a county court within the meaning of the County Courts Act 1984 (as amended) (see COURTS vol 10 (Reissue PARAS 726, 731): Criminal Law Act 1977 s 10(6) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

4 Ibid s 10(1) does not apply unless the judgment or order in question was given or made in proceedings brought under any provisions of rules of court applicable only in circumstances where the person claiming possession of any premises alleges that the premises in question are occupied solely by a person or persons (not being a tenant or tenants holding over after the termination of the tenancy) who entered into or remained in occupation of the premises without the licence or consent of the person claiming possession or any predecessor in title of his: s 10(2).

5 For the purposes of ibid Pt II (ss 6-13), 'premises' means any building, any part of a building under separate occupation, any land ancillary to a building, the site comprising any building or buildings together with any land ancillary thereto, and any other place: s 12(1)(a). For the meanings of 'building', 'building under separate occupation' and 'land ancillary to a building' see PARA 602 note 4 ante.

6 Ibid s 10(1). Section s 10(1) is without prejudice to the Sheriffs Act 1887 s 8(2) (see SHERIFFS vol 42 (Reissue) PARA 1130): Criminal Law Act 1977 s 10(1). No rule of law ousting the jurisdiction of magistrates' courts to try offences where a dispute of title to property is involved will preclude magistrates' courts from trying offences under s 10 (as amended): s 12(8).

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

(i) Offences Relating to Prisons

741. Breach of prison.

Breach of prison is an indictable offence at common law and is committed by a person who, while in lawful custody for any cause, whether civil or criminal, escapes by the use of force<sup>1</sup> from the prison or other place in which he is confined<sup>2</sup>. Breach of prison is punishable by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court<sup>3</sup>.

The offence of breach of prison is an offence in itself. It is therefore no answer to a charge that the defendant was not guilty of the principal offence; the outcome of the principal offence cannot affect the lawfulness of the custody<sup>4</sup>.

1 To constitute the offence there must be an actual breaking; merely getting over walls or passing through a door is an escape (see PARA 742 post) and not a breach of prison (2 Hawk PC c 18 s 9) but the breaking need not be intentional (see R v Haswell (1821) Russ & Ry 458, CCR, where accidental breaking in the course of escape was held to be a breach of prison). If a prisoner breaks out to save his life, as in a case of fire, he is not guilty of prison breach, unless he himself started the fire: 1 Hale PC 611. An escape without the use of force constitutes the common law offence of escape: see PARA 742 post. On an indictment for prison breach it is, it seems, open to the jury to find an alternative verdict of escape when no force is used: see the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 6(3); and PARA 1335 post.

2 2 Hawk PC c 18 ss 1, 4. If a defendant has been convicted of escape (see PARA 742 post), it appears that he cannot subsequently be prosecuted for breach of prison on the same facts (R v Miles (1890) 24 QBD 423, 6 TLR 186, CCR); but, where an escape involving the use of force has been dealt with and punished as a matter of prison discipline, this is not a bar to an indictment for breach of prison (R v Hogan, R v Tomkins [1960] 2 QB 513, 44 Cr App Rep 255, CCA). A defendant may be convicted of breach of prison before being tried for the offence for which he was committed (2 Co Inst 592) but not, it seems, after being tried on indictment and acquitted (1 Hale PC 611). See, however, R v Frascati (1981) 73 Cr App Rep 28 at 30, CA, where the latter proposition is doubted. Where examining justices dismiss a charge, the defendant may subsequently be convicted of breach of prison committed while he was on remand: R v Waters (1873) 12 Cox CC 390. It has been doubted whether there can be a conviction for breach of prison where no offence has in fact been committed by anyone (2 Hawk PC c 18 s 15; 1 Hale PC 610), but see the text to note 4 infra. It is immaterial whether the prisoner is actually within a gaol, or is only in the constable's house or a lock-up, provided that he is lawfully imprisoned or restrained of his liberty: 2 Hawk PC c 18 s 21.

OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(5) OFFENCES RELATING TO ESCAPE ETC/(i) Offences Relating to Prisons/742. Escape.

742. Escape.

Escape is an indictable offence at common law, punishable by imprisonment and fine at the discretion of the court<sup>1</sup>.

Escape is committed by a person who, without the use of force<sup>2</sup>, escapes from lawful custody<sup>3</sup>. There are four requirements for this type of offence: it must be proved that:

- 842 (1) the defendant was in custody;
- 843 (2) the defendant knew that he was in custody (or at least was reckless as to whether or not he was);
- 844 (3) the custody was lawful; and
- 845 (4) the defendant intentionally escaped from that lawful custody<sup>4</sup>.

Escape is also committed by a person who, having a person in his lawful custody<sup>5</sup>, voluntarily or negligently permits him to escape<sup>6</sup>.

The offence of escape is an offence in itself. It is, therefore, no answer to a charge that the defendant was not guilty of the principal offence; the outcome of the principal offence cannot affect the lawfulness of the custody<sup>7</sup>.

1 See SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 31, 139. Where an offender at the time of his escape from prison is serving a sentence of determinate length, a consecutive sentence will generally be imposed with regard to the escape; but, if he is serving a life sentence, the new sentence will be imposed concurrently, although it ought to be of such a length as if the offender had been serving a determinate sentence: R v Coughtrey [1997] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 269, CA.

2 A person who escapes from prison, using force, commits breach of prison: see PARA 741 ante. On an indictment for escape it is, it seems, open to the jury to find an alternative verdict of prison breach where force is used: see the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 6(3); and PARA 1335 post.

3 2 Hawk PC c 17 s 5; R v Allan (1841) Car & M 295; R v Frascati (1981) 73 Cr App Rep 28, CA. 'Custody' bears its ordinary and natural meaning (ie 'confinement, imprisonment, durance'); for a person to be in custody his liberty must be subject to such restriction that he can be said to be confined by another in the sense that his immediate freedom of movement is under the direct control of another: E v DPP [2002] EWHC 433 (Admin), [2002] Crim LR 737. See also H v DPP [2003] EWHC 878 (Admin), 167 JP 486, [2003] Crim LR 560. A person on bail is not in custody (R v Reader (1986) 84 Cr App Rep 294, CA); but a person on bail who surrenders to the court is thereby in lawful custody, even if he is not under the direct control of anyone (no dock officer or security officer being present) (R v Rumble [2003] EWCA Crim 770, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 618). The custody may be as part of civil process (R v Allan supra) or of a criminal process. In respect of the latter a person may be in custody following arrest (R v Timmis [1976] Crim LR 129) or pending trial or sentence or while serving a sentence (R v Hinds (1957) 41 Cr App Rep 143, CCA), or while in transit to or from a prison, court etc (R v Moss, R v Harte (1986) 82 Cr App Rep 116, CA). The lawfulness of the custody must be proved by the prosecution; there is no presumption that the arrest was lawful: Dillon v R [1982] AC 484, 74 Cr App Rep 274, PC (in this case, the offence charged was that of a constable negligently permitting a prisoner to escape out of his custody).

4 R v Dhillon [2005] EWCA Crim 2996, [2006] 1 WLR 1535.

5 A private person who lawfully arrests another must hand him over to a constable; thereupon his liability ceases: see 1 Hale PC 595; 2 Hawk PC c 20. As to a private person's power of arrest see PARA 925 post. To render an officer liable for escape, there must have been actual and lawful arrest; if the arrest was of a nature that the prisoner would have been justified in escaping, the officer is justified in releasing him: 2 Hawk PC c 19 ss 2, 3.

6 An officer who voluntarily permits a prisoner guilty of treason to escape is, it seems, guilty of treason; in other cases he was formerly guilty of being an accessory after the fact of felony or for a misdemeanour according to whether the prisoner was guilty of a felony or misdemeanour; with the abolition of the distinction between felonies and misdemeanours (see the Criminal Law Act 1967 s 1(1); and PARA 49 ante), he is, it seems, guilty of an offence punishable by imprisonment and fine at the discretion of the court (see 1 Hale PC 593; 2 Hawk PC c 19 ss 22, 25). An officer who negligently permits his prisoner to escape is liable only to be fined: 1 Hale PC 603; 2 Hawk PC c 19 ss 31, 33. A private person is punishable in the same way as the officer: 1 Hale PC 595; 2 Hawk PC c 20. At common law, a head gaoler could be fined when an escape took place through the negligence or voluntary act of his subordinate: 2 Hawk PC c 19 ss 27, 29. At common law an officer is entitled to recapture a prisoner who has escaped by reason of his negligence and, if he does so upon fresh pursuit and without losing sight of him, the officer is not to be convicted of escape, since the law will assume that the prisoner never left his custody: 1 Hale PC 602; 2 Hawk PC c 19 ss 6, 13. As to the recapture of a prisoner by an officer who voluntarily permits his escape see 2 Hawk PC c 19 s 12. As to the statutory offence committed by a person who aids a prisoner to escape from prison see PARA 744 post.

Rescue<sup>1</sup> at common law consists in the forcible freeing of a person from lawful arrest or custody<sup>2</sup>, whether that of a constable or other officer or that of a private person; but, where a person is freed from private custody, the rescuer incurs criminal liability only if he knew the person freed was in custody on a criminal charge<sup>3</sup>. In general, rescue is punishable on indictment by a fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court<sup>4</sup>; but a person who rescues a prisoner he knows to be guilty of treason is himself guilty of treason and liable to the punishment for that offence<sup>5</sup>.

Any person who: (1) aids any prisoner in escaping or attempting to escape from a prison<sup>1</sup>; or (2) with intent to facilitate the escape of any prisoner, conveys any thing<sup>2</sup> into a prison or to a prisoner or sends any thing (by post or otherwise) into a prison or to a prisoner or places anywhere outside a prison with a view to its coming into the possession of a prisoner is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years<sup>3</sup>.

1 'Prison' does not include a naval, military or air force prison: Prison Act 1952 s 53(1). As to escape from a naval, military or air force prison see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 410. Subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in rules made by the Secretary of State, s 39 applies to remand centres and young offender institutions: see s 43(4), (5) (s 43 substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 11; and amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 5; and by virtue of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 123(6), Sch 8 Pt 1 para 1). As from a day to be appointed this provision is amended so as no longer to refer to remand centres: see the Prison Act 1952 s 43(5) (as so substituted and amended; prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 74, Sch 7 para 10). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. See also PRISONS vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 643. An escape by a remand prisoner from a police station yard or from a magistrates' court is not an escape from prison: Nicoll v Catron (1985) 81 Cr App Rep 339, DC; R v Moss and Harte (1986) 82 Cr App Rep 116, CA. An escape by a prisoner working outside the prison is an escape from prison: R v Abbott [1956] Crim LR 337.

2 Cf R v Payne (1866) LR 1 CCR 27 ('any article or thing' under the Prison Act 1865 s 37 (repealed) included a crowbar).

A person commits a summary offence if, contrary to the regulations of a prison, he brings or attempts to bring in etc any alcoholic drink or tobacco, or places any such drink or any tobacco anywhere outside the prison with intent that it will come into the possession of any prisoner, or conveys or attempts to convey any letter or other things into or out of the prison, or so places it with such intent; so does a prison officer if he allows such drink or tobacco to be sold or used in the prison: see the Prison Act 1952 ss 40, 41 (as amended); and PRISONS vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 604. As to the application of ss 40, 41 (as amended) to remand centres and youth custody centres see s 43(5) (as substituted); and note 1 supra.

OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(5) OFFENCES RELATING TO ESCAPE ETC/(i) Offences Relating to Prisons/745. Harboursing an escaped prisoner.

745. Harboursing an escaped prisoner.

If any person: (1) knowingly harbours a person who has escaped from a prison or other institution<sup>1</sup> or who, having been sentenced in any part of the United Kingdom or in any of the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man to imprisonment or detention, is otherwise unlawfully at large; or (2) gives to any such person any assistance with intent to prevent, hinder or interfere with his being taken into custody, he is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>2</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>3</sup> or to both<sup>4</sup>.

1   le an institution to which the Prison Act 1952 s 39 (as amended) applies: see PARA 744 note 1 ante.

2   As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3   As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

4   Criminal Justice Act 1961 s 22(2) (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2); and the Prison Security Act 1992 s 2(2)). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante. Some positive act to provide shelter must be proved in order to establish that an escaped prisoner has been harboured: Darch v Weight [1984] 2 All ER 245, 79 Cr App Rep 40, DC. As to offences committed by harboursing a patient who is absent without leave or otherwise at large and liable to be retaken under the Mental Health Act 1983 see MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 771.

TEXT AND NOTES--The reference in the Criminal Justice Act 1961 s 22(2) to a person who has been sentenced as mentioned there includes (1) a person on whom a custodial sentence within the meaning of the Armed Forces Act 2006 has been passed (anywhere) in respect of a service offence within the meaning of that Act (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 451); (2) a person in respect of whom an order under s 214 (detention for commission of offence during currency of order) (see ARMED FORCES vol 2(2) (Reissue) PARA 432) has been made: Criminal Justice Act 1961 s 22(2A) (substituted for s 22(3) by the Armed Forces Act 2006 Sch 16 para 46).

OFFENCES RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE/(5) OFFENCES RELATING TO ESCAPE ETC/ (ii) Pound Breach/746. Pound breach.

(ii) Pound Breach

746. Pound breach.

Pound breach is an indictable offence at common law<sup>1</sup> consisting in the removal of goods impounded upon a distress for rent<sup>2</sup> or damage feasant<sup>3</sup> from the pound against the will of the person impounding them<sup>4</sup> or in forcibly releasing cattle or other animals lawfully placed in a proper pound or forcibly damaging or destroying the pound with that object<sup>5</sup>. The offence is punishable by imprisonment and fine at the discretion of the court<sup>6</sup>.

1 See Co Litt 47b; 2 Hawk PC c 10 s 56; R v Butterfield (1893) 17 Cox CC 598.

2 As to distress for rent see DISTRESS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 905 et seq.

3 The common law right to seize and detain any animal by way of distress damage feasant has been abolished: see the Animals Act 1971 s 7(1); and ANIMALS vol 2 (2008) PARA 758. The common law remedy of distress damage feasant is, however, still available in the case of goods.

4 R v Butterfield (1893) 17 Cox CC 598 (pound breach of cattle distrained for rent); R v Nicholson and King (1901) 65 JP 298. It is doubtful whether an indictment lies in such a case if a person retakes his own goods which have been unlawfully seized: R v Walshe (1876) IR 10 CL 511; R v Knight (1908) 1 Cr App Rep 186, CCA.

5 R v Bradshaw (1835) 7 C & P 233; Green v Duckett (1883) 11 QBD 275, DC. In certain circumstances, a person who releases or attempts to release an animal seized for the purposes of being impounded commits a summary offence: see the Town Police Clauses Act 1847; and ANIMALS vol 2 (2008) PARA 761.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(1) OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS/747. Publishing an obscene article or having an obscene article for publication for gain.

9. OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY

(1) OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS

747. Publishing an obscene article or having an obscene article for publication for gain.

1 See PARAS 749-750 post.

2 For these purposes, a person publishes an article who: (1) distributes, circulates, sells, lets on hire, gives, or lends it, or who offers it for sale or for letting on hire; or (2) in the case of an article containing or embodying matter to be looked at or a record, shows, plays or projects it or, where the matter is stored electronically, transmits that data: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(3) (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 53; the Broadcasting Act 1990 ss 162, 203, Sch 21; and the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(1), Sch 9 para 3). As to the groups into which publication under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(3)(a) (see head (1) in the text) falls see R v Barker [1962] 1 All ER 748, [1962] 1 WLR 349, CCA. The development and printing and return to the customer of a photographic film depicting obscene acts can constitute an act of publication within head (1) supra: R v Taylor [1995] 1 Cr App Rep 131, 158 JP 317, CA. The fact that the customer owns the copyright in the photographs is immaterial: R v Taylor supra. The uploading or downloading of a web page constitutes publication within the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(3)(b) (as amended) (see head (2) supra): R v Wasson [2000] All ER (D) 502, CA; R v Perrin [2002] EWCA Crim 747, [2002] All ER (D) 359 (Mar); R v Fellows, R v Arnold [1997] 2 All ER 548, [1997] 1 Cr App Rep 244, CA. For these purposes, a person also publishes an article to the extent that any matter recorded on it is included by him in a programme included in a programme service: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(4) (s 1(4)-(6) added by the Broadcasting Act 1990 s 162(1)(b)). Where the inclusion of any matter in a programme so included would, if that matter were recorded matter, constitute the publication of an obscene article for the purposes of the Obscene Publications Act 1959 by virtue of s 1(4) (as added), the Act has effect in relation to the inclusion of that matter in that programme as if it were recorded matter: s 1(5) (as so added). Where: (a) any matter is included by any person in a relevant programme in circumstances falling within s 1(5) (as added); and (b) that matter has been provided, for inclusion in that programme, by some other person, the Act has effect as if that matter had been included in that programme by that other person (as well as by the person referred to in head (a) supra): Broadcasting Act 1990 s 160(2), Sch 15 para 2. 'Programme' and 'programme service' have the same meanings as in the Broadcasting Act 1990 (see TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 353): Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(6) (as so added). A 'relevant programme' means a programme included in a programme service: Broadcasting Act 1990 Sch 15 para 1.

3 As to the test of obscenity see PARA 748 post.

4 For these purposes, 'article' means any description of article containing or embodying matter to be read or looked at or both, any sound record, and any film or other record of a picture or pictures: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(2). A video cassette is an article within s 1(2) (see A-G's Reference (No 5 of 1980) [1980] 3 All ER 816, 72 Cr App Rep 71, CA), as is a computer disk (see R v Fellows, R v Arnold [1997] 2 All ER 548, [1997] 1 Cr App Rep 244, CA). The Obscene Publications Act 1959 applies to anything which is intended to be used, either alone or as one of a set, for the reproduction or manufacture therefrom of articles containing or embodying matter to be read, looked at or listened to as if it were an article containing or embodying that matter so far as that matter is to be derived from it or from the set: Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 2(1).

5 An article is deemed to be had or kept for publication if it is had or kept for the reproduction or manufacture therefrom of articles for publication: ibid s 2(2).

6 A person is deemed to have an article for publication for gain if with a view to such publication he has the article in his ownership, possession or control: ibid s 1(2). The words 'such publication' refer back to 'publication for gain': R v Levy [2004] EWCA Crim 1141, [2004] All ER (D) 321 (Apr). 'Publication for gain' applies to any publication with a view to gain, whether the gain is to accrue by way of consideration for the publication or in any other way: Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 1(5). A person who has an obscene article in his ownership, possession or control with a view to the matter recorded on it being included in a relevant programme is to be taken to have that article for publication for gain: Broadcasting Act 1990 Sch 15 para 3.

7 See the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(1) (amended by the Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 1(1)). It is no defence that the items were held at a sex establishment licensed with the local authority: see the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1982 s 2, Sch 3 para 1; and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 306.

Proceedings for such an offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions in any case where the article in question is a moving picture film of a width of not less than 16 millimetres and the relevant publication or the only other publication which followed or could reasonably have been expected to follow from the relevant publication took place or, as the case may be, was to take place in the course of an exhibition of a film: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(3A) (added by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 53(2); and amended by the Licensing Act 2003 s 198, Sch 6 para 28). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post. For these purposes, 'the relevant publication' means: (1) in the case of any proceedings under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2 (as amended) for publishing an obscene article, the publication in respect of which the defendant would be charged if the proceedings were brought; and (2) in the case of proceedings under s 2 (as amended) for having an obscene article for publication for gain, the publication which, if the proceedings were brought, the defendant would be alleged to have had in contemplation: s 2(3A) (as so added and amended). For these purposes, 'exhibition of a film' means any exhibition of moving pictures: Licensing Act 2003 Sch 1 para 15; definition applied by the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(7) (added by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 53; and substituted by the Licensing Act 2003 Sch 6 para 28(1), (3)). Except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions, proceedings for an offence under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2 (as amended) relating to the publishing of an obscene article may not be instituted in any case where the relevant publication, or the only other publication which followed from the relevant publication, took place in the course of the inclusion of a programme in a programme service: Broadcasting Act 1990 Sch 15 para 4(1). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post. For these purposes, 'the relevant publication' means the publication in respect of which the accused would be charged if the proceedings were brought: Sch 15 para 4(1). Proceedings for the offence under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2 (as amended) of having an obscene article for publication for gain may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions in any case where the relevant publication or the only other publication which could reasonably have been expected to follow from the relevant publication was to take place in the course of the inclusion of a programme in a programme service; and for these purposes 'the relevant publication' means the publication which, if proceedings were brought, the defendant would be alleged to have had in contemplation: Broadcasting Act 1990 Sch 15 para 4(2). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

Where articles are seized under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3 (as amended) (see PARA 751 post) and a person is convicted of having them for publication for gain, the court on his conviction must order their forfeiture: Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 1(4). An order for forfeiture so made, including an order so made on appeal, may not take effect until the expiration of the ordinary time within which an appeal in the matter of the proceedings in which the order was made may be instituted or, where an appeal is instituted, until it is fully decided or abandoned; and for this purpose an application for a case to be stated or for leave to appeal is to be treated as the institution of an appeal and, where a decision on appeal is subject to further appeal, the appeal is not to be deemed to be finally decided until the expiration of the ordinary time within which a further appeal may be instituted or, where a further appeal is duly instituted, until the further appeal is finally decided or abandoned: s 1(4) proviso. As to appeal on conviction on indictment see PARA 1837 et seq post; and as to appeal on summary conviction see PARA 1980 et seq post.

If a justice of the peace is satisfied by information on oath laid by a constable that there is reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2 (as amended) or the Public Order Act 1986 s 22 (as amended) (see PARA 566 ante) has been committed by any person in respect of a programme included in a programme service, he may make an order authorising any constable to require that person: (a) to produce to the constable a visual or sound recording of any matter included in that programme, if and so far as that person is able to do so; and (b) on the production of such a recording, to afford the constable an opportunity of causing a copy of it to be made: Broadcasting Act 1990 s 167(1). Such an order must describe the programme to which it relates in a manner sufficient to enable the programme to be identified: s 167(2). No order may be made under s 167(1) in respect of any recording in respect of which a warrant could be granted under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3 (as amended) (see PARA 751) or the Public Order Act 1986 s 24 (see PARA 567 ante): Broadcasting Act 1990 s 167(4)(a), (b). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to publishing etc magazines, books, etc tending to corrupt children and young persons see PRESS, PRINTING AND PUBLISHING vol 36(2) (Reissue) PARA 419 et seq; and as to the taking, making, distribution, possession etc of indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children see PARAS 757-760 post.

The offences under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(1) (as amended) are not incompatible with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 10 (right to freedom of expression) because the interference is justified under art 10(2) notwithstanding the uncertainty in the definition of obscenity, they are sufficiently well-defined to be 'prescribed by law', they serve a legitimate purpose within art 10(2) and are necessary in a democratic society for that purpose; it has been held that there is nothing in the Convention requiring that there should only be a prosecution in the country where the 'major steps' in publication took place: R v Perrin [2002] EWCA Crim 747, [2002] All ER (D) 359. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

9 See the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(1); and the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141. A sentence of imprisonment is appropriate where the offence arises out of the commercial exploitation of pornography: see R v Holloway (1982) 4 Cr App Rep (S) 128, CA; R v Zampa (1984) 6 Cr App Rep (S) 110, CA; R v Hamilton-Grant (1984) 6 Cr App Rep (S) 438, CA; R v Singh [1999] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 160, CA (these cases all concerned the offence of having an obscene publication for gain). It will not always be necessary to impose a custodial sentence, particularly in relation to a first offence: R v Tunnicliffe, R v Greenwood [1999] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 88, CA. A prosecution may not be commenced more than two years after the commission of the offence: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(3) (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 65(5), Sch 13). See also R v Barton [1976] Crim LR 514, CA.

10 Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(4). Section 2(4) does not apply to an article which is 'indecent' or 'obscene' in a sense not within the meaning of 'obscene' under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(1) (see PARA 748 post): R v Gibson, R v Sylveire [1990] 2 QB 619, [1991] 1 All ER 439, CA (conviction of curator of art gallery, and of artist concerned, for outraging public decency (see PARA 764 post) with display of earrings made from freeze-dried human foetuses; while the exhibition of the earrings might well have offended recognised standards of propriety or decency, it had not been suggested that anyone was likely to be depraved or corrupted by them). See also PARA 753 note 2 post. Without prejudice to the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(4), a person may not be proceeded against for an offence at common law in respect of an exhibition of a film or anything said or done in the course of an exhibition of a film, where it is of the essence of the common law offence that the exhibition or what was said or done is obscene, indecent, offensive, disgusting or injurious to morality; nor may a person be proceeded against for an offence at common law in respect of an agreement to give an exhibition of a film or to cause anything to be said or done in the course of such an exhibition, where the common law offence consists of conspiring to corrupt public morals or to do any act contrary to public morals or decency: s 2(4A) (added by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 53; and amended by the Licensing Act 2003 Sch 6 para 28(1), (2)). A person may not be proceeded against for an offence at common law in respect of a relevant programme or anything said or done in the course of such a programme, where it is of the essence of the common law offence that the programme or (as the case may be) what was said or done was obscene, indecent, offensive, disgusting or injurious to morality, or in respect of an agreement to cause a programme to be included in a programme service or to cause anything to be said or done in the course of a programme which is to be so included, where the common law offence consists of conspiring to corrupt public morals or to do any act contrary to public morals or decency: Broadcasting Act 1990 Sch 15 para 6. As to conspiracy to corrupt public morals and to outrage public decency see PARAS 74-75 ante.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(1) OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS/748. Test of obscenity.

748. Test of obscenity.

An article<sup>1</sup> is deemed to be obscene for the purposes of the Obscene Publications Acts 1959 and 1964<sup>2</sup> if its effect or (where the article comprises two or more distinct items) the effect of any one of its items<sup>3</sup> is, if taken as a whole, such as to tend to deprave and corrupt<sup>4</sup> persons who are likely<sup>5</sup>, having regard to all relevant circumstances, to read, see or hear the matter contained or embodied in it<sup>6</sup>.

In proceedings against a person for publishing an obscene article<sup>7</sup>, the question as to whether the article is obscene must be determined without regard to any publication by another person unless it could reasonably have been expected that the publication by that other person would follow from publication by the person charged<sup>8</sup>. In proceedings against a person for having an obscene article for publication for gain<sup>9</sup>, the question whether the article is obscene must be determined by reference to such publication for gain of the article as in the circumstances it may reasonably be inferred he had in contemplation and to any further publication that could reasonably be expected to follow from it, but not to any other publication<sup>10</sup>.

The issue of obscenity is one for the jury and expert evidence on the issue is not ordinarily admissible although in exceptional cases a jury may require the assistance of such evidence<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'article' see PARA 747 note 4 ante.

2 See PARAS 747 ante, 751-752 post. As to the test of obscenity at common law and under the Theatres Act 1968 see PARAS 753-754 note 2 post. Cf the test under the Postal Services Act 2000 s 85: see PARA 765 note 2 post.

3 It is a question of law whether an article comprises two or more distinct items: R v Goring [1999] Crim LR 670, CA. Where the article comprises a number of separate items, the individual items must be considered separately; and, if one is obscene, that is sufficient to make the whole obscene: R v Anderson [1972] 1 QB 304, 56 Cr App Rep 115, CA.

4 See Kneller (Publishing, Printing and Promotions) Ltd v DPP [1973] AC 435 at 456, 56 Cr App Rep 633 at 641, HL, per Lord Reid ('The Obscene Publications Act [1959] appears to use the words 'deprave' and 'corrupt' as synonymous, as I think they are. To deprave and corrupt does not merely mean to lead astray morally'). 'Deprave' and 'corrupt' refer to the effect of a pornographic publication on the mind, including the emotions; it is not necessary that any physical (or 'overt') sexual activity should result: DPP v Whyte [1972] AC 849, 57 Cr App Rep 74, HL.

Depravity and corruption are not, however, confined to sexual depravity and corruption: see John Calder (Publications) Ltd v Powell [1965] 1 QB 509, [1965] 1 All ER 159, DC (drug taking); and see also DPP v A and BC Chewing Gum Ltd [1968] 1 QB 159, [1967] 2 All ER 504, DC; R v Calder and Boyars Ltd [1969] 1 QB 151, 52 Cr App Rep 706, CA. An article is not necessarily obscene for the purposes of the Obscene Publications Act 1959 because it is repulsive, filthy, loathsome or lewd: R v Anderson [1972] 1 QB 304, 56 Cr App Rep 115, CA. It is open to a defendant to show that an article is so unpleasant or disgusting that it would not corrupt and deprave but cause persons to revolt from the activity it describes: R v Calder and Boyars Ltd supra; R v Anderson supra. The Obscene Publications Act 1959 is not merely concerned with the corruption of the innocent but protects equally the less innocent from further corruption and the addict from feeding his addiction; the proposition that readers whose morals are already in a state of depravity or corruption are incapable of being further depraved or corrupted is fallacious: DPP v Whyte supra. The test of obscenity depends on the article and not upon there being an intention on the part of the author or publisher to corrupt: Shaw v DPP [1962] AC 220, sub nom R v Shaw [1961] 1 All ER 330, CCA; and see also R v Penguin Books Ltd [1961] Crim LR 176. The tendency to deprave and corrupt must be determined by reference to the publication (see the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(3) (as amended); and PARA 747 ante) of the article: A-G's Reference (No 2 of 1975) [1976] 2 All ER 753, [1976] 1 WLR 710, CA.

5 Unless the offence involves circumstances where there is no possibility of a public good defence (see PARA 749 post), the reference to a tendency to deprave and corrupt persons likely to read etc the matter is a reference to a significant proportion of those likely to read it (R v Calder and Boyars Ltd [1969] 1 QB 151, 52 Cr App Rep 706, CA); but it is not appropriate to consider only the largest category of 'most likely' readers; other categories of persons may be 'likely' readers and should be disregarded only if they are numerically negligible (DPP v Whyte [1972] AC 849, 57 Cr App Rep 74, HL; DPP v Jordan [1977] AC 699, 64 Cr App Rep 33, HL; Gold Star Publications v DPP [1981] 2 All ER 257, 73 Cr App Rep 141, HL (readership abroad)).

6 Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(1). This definition retains in substance the test laid down by Cockburn J in R v Hicklin (1868) LR 3 QB 360 at 371. Evidence that other publications are also available anywhere else in the world, which are similar to, or not materially different from, the article in question is not admissible in respect of whether that article is obscene under the test in the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 1(1): R v Reiter [1954] 2 QB 16, 38 Cr App Rep 62, CCA; R v Elliott [1996] 1 Cr App Rep 432, CA.

7 See PARA 747 ante.

8 Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(6).

9 See PARA 747 ante.

10 Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 1(3)(b). The question whether an article had or kept for the reproduction or manufacture from it of articles for publication is obscene must be determined as if any reference in s 1(3)(b) to publication of the article were a reference to publication of articles reproduced or manufactured from it: s 2(2)(a).

11 R v Anderson [1972] 1 QB 304, 56 Cr App Rep 115, CA, distinguishing DPP v A and BC Chewing Gum Ltd [1968] 1 QB 159, [1967] 2 All ER 504, DC (where expert evidence as to the effect of the publication on children was held admissible); DPP v Jordan [1977] AC 699, 64 Cr App Rep 33, HL (in general no evidence, psychological or medical, may be admitted; there are, however, exceptions such as DPP v A and BC Chewing Gum Ltd supra). If expert evidence is not aimed at establishing the tendency to deprave and corrupt but is scientific evidence which is essential to ensure that the members of the jury have the necessary information, it is admissible: R v Skirving, R v Grossman [1985] QB 819, 81 Cr App Rep 9, CA. The opinion of experts is admissible in relation to the defence of public good: see PARA 749 post. As to the issues for the jury where publication is to an individual see R v Barker [1962] 1 All ER 748, 46 Cr App Rep 227, CCA.

749. Defence of public good.

A person may not be convicted of publishing an obscene article or of having an obscene article for publication for gain<sup>1</sup>, and an order for forfeiture may not be made<sup>2</sup>, if it is proved<sup>3</sup> that publication of the article in question is justified as being for the public good on the ground that it is in the interests of science, literature, art or learning<sup>4</sup>, or of other objects of general concern<sup>5</sup>.

The opinion of experts as to the literary, artistic, scientific or other merits<sup>6</sup> of an article may be admitted in any proceedings either to establish or negative such a ground<sup>7</sup>.

1    le under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(1) (as amended): see PARA 747 ante.

2    le under ibid s 3 (as amended): see PARA 752 post.

3    As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

4    'Learning' is a noun meaning the product of scholarship, something with intrinsic value coming from the work of a scholar: A-G's Reference (No 3 of 1977) [1978] 3 All ER 1166, 67 Cr App Rep 393, CA.

5    See the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 4(1). If the article is a moving picture film or soundtrack, the publication must be proved instead to be justified as being for the public good on the ground that it is in the interests of drama, opera, ballet or any other art or of literature or learning: s 4(1A) (added by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 53(6)). Where the publication in issue consists of the inclusion of any matter in a relevant programme (see PARA 747 note 2 ante), it must be proved instead that the inclusion of the matter in question in a relevant programme is justified as being for the public good on the ground that it is in the interests of drama, opera, ballet or any other art, science, literature or learning, or any other objects of general concern: Broadcasting Act 1990 s 162, Sch 15 para 5(2). Cf the Theatres Act 1968 s 3: see PARA 755 post.

A decision must first be made on the obscenity and only then does the question of public good fall for decision: R v Calder and Boyars Ltd [1969] 1 QB 151, 52 Cr App Rep 706, CA; Olympia Press Ltd v Hollis [1974] 1 All ER 108, [1973] 1 WLR 1520, DC. As to the order of witnesses, and the proper direction to the jury, see R v Calder and Boyars Ltd supra. In considering the defence, the jury should consider on the one hand the number of readers who it believes would tend to be depraved and corrupted by the publication, the strength of the tendency to deprave and corrupt and the nature of the depravity or corruption; on the other hand it should assess the strength of the literary, sociological or ethical merit which it considers the book to possess. Weighing up all these factors, it is required to decide whether on balance the publication is proved to be justified as being for the public good: R v Calder and Boyars Ltd supra at 172 and 716. Any 'other objects of general concern' must fall within the same range of considerations as 'science, literature, art or learning': DPP v Jordan [1977] AC 699, 64 Cr App Rep 33, HL.

6    'Other merits' includes ethical merits (R v Penguin Books Ltd [1961] Crim LR 176), but does not include therapeutic value (DPP v Jordan [1977] AC 699, 64 Cr App Rep 33, HL).

7    See the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 4(2). Section 4(2) applies for the purposes of the Broadcasting Act 1990 Sch 15 para 5(2): Sch 15 para 5(3). The evidence is restricted to this question and is not admissible on the issue of obscenity: see PARA 748 text and note 11 ante. See also DPP v Jordan [1977] AC 699, 64 Cr App Rep 33, HL (expert evidence of therapeutic qualities of sexually explicit material held inadmissible as evidence going to the issue of obscenity). Evidence relating to other books may be admitted to establish 'the climate of literature' in order to assess the literary merit of the article in question: R v Penguin Books Ltd [1961] Crim LR 176.

747-769 Offences against Decency and Morality

As to the new offence of possession of extreme pornographic images see PARA 769A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/9. OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(1) OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS/751. Obscene articles for publication for gain; powers of search and seizure.

751. Obscene articles for publication for gain; powers of search and seizure.

If a justice of the peace is satisfied by information<sup>1</sup> on oath that there is reasonable ground for suspecting that, in any premises, or on any stall or vehicle, being premises or a stall or vehicle specified in the information, obscene<sup>2</sup> articles<sup>3</sup> are, or are from time to time, kept for publication for gain<sup>4</sup>, he may issue a warrant<sup>5</sup> empowering any constable to enter (if need be by force) and search the premises, stall or vehicle and to seize and remove any articles found therein or thereon which the constable has reason to believe to be obscene articles and to be kept for publication for gain<sup>6</sup>.

1 As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 For the meaning of 'obscene' see PARA 748 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'article' see PARA 747 note 4 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'publication for gain' see PARA 747 note 6 ante.

5 A justice of the peace may not issue a warrant under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(1) except on an information laid by or on behalf of the Director of Public Prosecutions or by a constable: Criminal Justice Act 1967 s 25.

6 Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(1) (amended by the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 119(2), Sch 7 Pt I; and the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 106(1), (2)). As to powers of entry, search and seizure see PARA 869 et seq post.

Articles seized must be brought before a justice of the peace: see PARA 752 post. If any obscene articles are so seized, the warrant also empowers the seizure and removal of any documents found in the premises or, as the case may be, on the stall or vehicle which relate to a trade or business carried on at the premises or from the stall or vehicle: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(2).

The additional powers of seizure under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 50 (see PARA 890 post) apply to each of the powers of seizure conferred by the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(1), (2) (s 3(1) as amended): Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 58(5), Sch 1 para 5.

A warrant issued under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(1) (as amended) authorises only one entry, search and seizure of goods; and, when that is carried out, the warrant is spent: R v Adams [1980] QB 575, 70 Cr App Rep 149, CA. However, where the police act more than once on the same warrant, the judge does not necessarily have a discretion to exclude the articles seized on any subsequent occasion as the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(1) (as amended) (see PARA 747 ante) does not require strict compliance with s 3(1) (as amended) as a condition of conviction under s 2(1) (as amended): R v Adams supra (the manner in which the evidence there had been obtained under one warrant could not be said to have been oppressive merely because the police had made an error regarding the validity of the warrant for the purpose of entry on the second occasion). Items for publication outside the jurisdiction may be seized: Gold Star Publications Ltd v DPP [1981] 2 All ER 257, 73 Cr App Rep 141, HL.

A warrant which purported to empower seizure of 'any other material of a sexually explicit nature' has been held bad in law; the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3 (as amended) refers to 'obscene' articles; articles of a sexually explicit nature are not necessarily obscene, the former being a far wider category of articles: Darbo v DPP [1992] Crim LR 56, DC.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(1) OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS/752. Obscene articles for publication for gain; summary procedure for forfeiture.

752. Obscene articles for publication for gain; summary procedure for forfeiture.

Except as otherwise provided<sup>1</sup>, any articles seized under a search warrant<sup>2</sup> must be brought before a justice of the peace acting in the local justice area in which the articles were seized and the justice may thereupon issue a summons<sup>3</sup> to the occupier of the premises or, as the case may be, the user of the stall or vehicle to appear on a day specified in the summons before a magistrates' court acting in that local justice area to show cause why the articles or any of them should not be forfeited<sup>4</sup>. If the court is satisfied, as respects any of the articles, that at the time when they were seized they were obscene articles<sup>5</sup> kept for publication for gain<sup>6</sup>, the court must<sup>7</sup> order those articles to be forfeited<sup>8</sup>. However, if the person summoned does not appear, the court may not make such an order unless service of the summons is proved<sup>9</sup>. In addition to the person summoned, any other person being the owner, author or maker of any of the articles brought before the court, or any other person through whose hands they had passed before being seized, is entitled to appear before the court on the day specified in the summons to show cause<sup>10</sup> why they should not be forfeited<sup>11</sup>.

1 The provisions as to forfeiture do not apply in relation to any article seized under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(1) (as amended) (see PARA 751 ante) which is returned to the occupier of the premises or, as the case may be, to the user of the stall or vehicle in or on which it was found: s 3(3) proviso (added by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 65(4), Sch 12).

Without prejudice to the duty of the court to make an order for the forfeiture of an article where the Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 1(4) (orders made on conviction: see PARA 747 ante) applies, in a case where by virtue of the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(3A) (as added and amended) (see PARA 747 ante) proceedings under s 2 (as amended) for having an article for publication for gain could not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions, no order for the forfeiture of the article may be so made unless the warrant under which the article was seized was issued on an information laid by or on behalf of the Director of Public Prosecutions: s 3(3A) (added by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 53(5)). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3 Under the corresponding provisions of the Obscene Publications Act 1857 it was held that the summons should be issued within a reasonable time after the complaint leading to the issue of the warrant had been made: Cox v Stinton [1951] 2 KB 1021, [1951] 2 All ER 637, DC. A justice to whom articles are shown for the purpose of issuing a summons is not then precluded from hearing the case: Morgan v Bowker [1964] 1 QB 507, [1963] 1 All ER 691, DC.

4 See the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(3) (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 ss 53, 65(4), Sch 12; and the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 106(1), (3)). The Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(3) (as amended) applies in relation to an item seized under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 50 (additional powers of seizure from premises: see PARA 890 post) as if the item had been seized under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(1) (as amended) (see PARA 751 ante): Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 70, Sch 2 para 10. It is the duty of the Director of Public Prosecutions to take over the conduct of all proceedings begun by summons issued under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3 (as amended): Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s 3(2)(d). See PARA 1080 post.

5 For these purposes, the question whether an article is obscene must be determined on the assumption that copies of it would be published in any manner likely having regard to the circumstances in which it was found, but in no other manner: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(7). The question whether an article had or kept for the reproduction or manufacture from it of articles for publication is obscene must for the purposes of s 3 (as amended) be determined on the assumption that articles reproduced or manufactured from it would be published in any manner likely having regard to the circumstances in which it was found, but in no other manner: Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 2(2)(b). The intention of the defendant is immaterial, but the nature of the business and the method by which it was carried on, just as much as the nature of the premises, are relevant circumstances for the purposes of the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(7): Morgan v Bowker [1964] 1 QB 507, [1963] 1 All ER 691, DC. See also Straker v DPP [1963] 1 QB 926, [1963] 1 All ER 697, DC. For the meaning of 'obscene' see PARA 748 ante. As to the defence of public good see PARA 749 ante. It is the duty of the magistrates to read or look at the articles themselves and the onus is on the occupier or user to show cause why the publications should not be forfeited: Thomson v Chain Libraries Ltd [1954] 2 All ER 616, [1954] 1 WLR 999, DC. See also Olympia Press Ltd v Hollis [1974] 1 All ER 108, [1973] 1 WLR 1520, DC (magistrates should make themselves fully acquainted with a book, but need not read the whole); R v Crown Court at Snaresbrook, ex p Metropolitan Police Comr (1984) 79 Cr App Rep 184, DC (on an appeal from conviction by magistrates, a Crown Court judge has the jurisdiction to decline to inspect each article which is said to be obscene and may order that the police divide the offending material into categories of pornographic behaviour or sexual perversions; the judge may then take examples at random from each category); R v Croydon Metropolitan Stipendiary Magistrate, ex p Richman (1985) Times, 8 March, DC, following R v Crown Court at Snaresbrook, ex p Metropolitan Police Comr supra (a magistrate may inspect a sample but cannot decline to inspect the material or a part of the material and rely on the evidence of a police officer as to whether the articles are obscene). An article is obscene even though only part of it is obscene and an order may be made to forfeit the whole: Paget Publications Ltd v Watson [1952] 1 All ER 1256.

6 For the meaning of 'publication for gain' see PARA 747 note 6 ante.

7 On a conviction for having, for publication for gain, obscene articles which have been seized by virtue of a warrant issued under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3 (as amended), forfeiture of those articles must be ordered: Obscene Publications Act 1964 s 1(4); and see PARA 747 ante.

8 Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(3) (as amended: see note 4 supra). Such a power of forfeiture extends to articles kept for publication outside the jurisdiction of the English courts: Gold Star Publications Ltd v DPP [1981] 2 All ER 257, 73 Cr App Rep 141, HL. Where such an order for forfeiture is made, any person who appeared, or who was entitled to appear, to show cause against the making of the order may appeal to the Crown Court: see the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(5) (amended by the Courts Act 1971 s 56(2), Sch 9 Pt I). See also Burke v Copper [1962] 2 All ER 14, [1962] 1 WLR 700, DC (informant entitled to appeal by way of case stated against refusal of forfeiture). No such order may take effect until the expiration of the period within which notice of appeal to the Crown Court may be given against the order, or, if before the expiration thereof notice of appeal is duly given or application made for the statement of a case for the opinion of the High Court, until the final determination or abandonment of the proceedings on the appeal or case: see the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(5) (amended by the Courts Act 1971 s 56(2), Sch 8 para 37). If as respects any articles brought before it the magistrates' court does not order forfeiture, it may if it thinks fit order the person on whose information the warrant for the seizure of the articles was issued to pay such costs as the court thinks reasonable to any person who has appeared before the court to show cause why those articles should not be forfeited; and costs so ordered are enforceable as a civil debt: Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 3(6).

747-769 Offences against Decency and Morality

As to the new offence of possession of extreme pornographic images see PARA 769A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/9. OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(1) OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS/753. Obscene libel at common law.

753. Obscene libel at common law.

It is an indictable offence at common law to publish obscene matter<sup>1</sup>. However, a person publishing an article may not be proceeded against for an offence at common law consisting of the publication of any matter contained or embodied in the article where it is of the essence of the offence that the matter is obscene<sup>2</sup>. Obscene matter at common law is matter having the tendency to deprave and corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences and into whose hands such publication may fall<sup>3</sup>. It is also an indictable offence at common law to procure obscene prints or libels with intent to publish them<sup>4</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to a fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the court<sup>5</sup>.

1 R v Curl (1727) 2 Stra 788. See also R v De Marny [1907] 1 KB 388, CCR (liability of a newspaper proprietor or editor in relation to the insertion of advertisements for the sale of obscene books and photographs).

2 Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(4). The effect of s 2(4) is to supersede the common law offence of obscene libel unless the common law definition of obscenity is wider than the one under the Obscene Publications Act 1959, which is probably not the case: see note 3 infra; and PARA 748 note 6 ante. 'The obvious purpose of s 2(4) is to make available, where the essence of the offence is tending to deprave and corrupt, the defences which are set out in the Act': Kneller (Publishing, Printing and Promotions) Ltd v DPP [1973] AC 435 at 456, 56 Cr App Rep 633 at 637, HL, per Lord Reid. As to such defences see PARAS 749-750 ante. See also the wider provisions in respect of film exhibitions and programme services: para 747 note 8 ante.

The Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(4) does not apply to common law conspiracy to corrupt public morals since such conspiracy consists of the agreement to corrupt public morals by publishing, rather than simply publishing. Common law conspiracy to corrupt public morals is an offence, however, only where the agreement entered into would not constitute a statutory conspiracy: see the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 5(3); and PARA 74 ante. It is apprehended that all obscene libels are likely to involve the commission of a substantive offence and that no proceedings could therefore be brought in respect of an agreement to publish an obscene article as a common law conspiracy to corrupt public morals.

The law officers through the then Solicitor General (Sir Peter Rawlinson) gave undertakings to the House of Commons on 3 June 1964 (see 695 HC Official Report (5th series) col 1212) and 7 July 1964 (see 698 HC Official Report (5th series) col 314) that conspiracies to corrupt public morals would not be charged so as to circumvent the statutory defence under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 4 (see PARA 749 ante).

3 The test of obscenity laid down in R v Hicklin (1868) LR 3 QB 360 at 371. The test was applied in R v Reiter [1954] 2 QB 16 at 18-19, 38 Cr App Rep 62 at 64. See also R v Martin Secker Warburg Ltd [1954] 2 All ER 683 at 685, 38 Cr App Rep 124 at 126 (the test should be applied according to current standards). As to matters to be taken into account in determining obscenity at common law see R v Reiter supra at 20-21 and at 65; Steele v Brannan (1872) LR 7 CP 261; R v Thomson (1900) 64 JP 456. The motive for publication is irrelevant: R v Hicklin supra; Steele v Brannan supra; but see also R v De Montalk (1932) 23 Cr App Rep 182, CCA (that publication was made for the public good may be a defence).

4 Dugdale v R (1853) 1 E & B 435, CCR. Mere possession, even with intent to publish, is not an offence at common law: Dugdale v R supra; R v Rosenstein (1826) 2 C & P 414.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (2) OBSCENE PERFORMANCES OF PLAYS/754. Obscene performances of plays.

(2) OBSCENE PERFORMANCES OF PLAYS

754. Obscene performances of plays.

Subject to certain exceptions<sup>1</sup>, if an obscene performance<sup>2</sup> of a play<sup>3</sup> is given, whether in public<sup>4</sup> or in private, any person<sup>5</sup> who (whether for gain or not) presented or directed the performance<sup>6</sup> is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum<sup>8</sup>. Proceedings for such an offence may be instituted only by or with the consent of the Attorney General<sup>9</sup>.

Proceedings may not be brought against a person: (1) in respect of a performance of a play or anything said or done in the course of such a performance for an offence at common law where it is of the essence of the offence that the performance or what was said or done was obscene, indecent, offensive, disgusting or injurious to morality; or (2) for an offence at common law of conspiring to corrupt public morals, or to do any act contrary to public morals or decency, in respect of an agreement to present or give a performance of a play, or to cause anything to be said or done in the course of such a performance<sup>10</sup>.

1 The exceptions are a performance of a play: (1) justified as being for the public good (see PARA 755 post); (2) given on a domestic occasion in a private dwelling (Theatres Act 1968 s 7(1)); (3) given solely or primarily for the purpose of rehearsal, or to enable a record or cinematograph film to be made from or by means of the performance, or to enable the performance to be broadcast, or to enable the performance to be included in a programme service (ie within the meaning of the Broadcasting Act 1990: see ss 201, 202 (as amended); and TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 328), but, if it is proved that the performance was attended by persons other than persons directly connected with the giving of the performance or the recording, broadcast or inclusion, the performance must be taken not to have been given solely or primarily for such a purpose unless the contrary is shown (Theatres Act 1968 s 7(2) (amended by the Public Order Act 1986 s 40, Sch 3; and the Broadcasting Act 1990 s 203(1), Sch 20 para 13)). See also LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 233.

2 A performance of a play is deemed to be obscene if, taken as a whole, its effect was such as to tend to deprave and corrupt persons who were likely, having regard to all the relevant circumstances, to attend it: Theatres Act 1968 s 2(1). As to the test of obscenity under the Obscene Publications Act 1959 and at common law see PARAS 748, 753 ante. Cf the test under the Postal Services Act 2000 s 85: see PARA 765 note 2 post.

3 'Play' means: (1) any dramatic piece, whether involving improvisation or not, which is given wholly or in part by one or more persons actually present and performing and in which the whole or a major proportion of what is done by the person or persons performing, whether by way of speech, singing or action, involves the playing of a role; and (2) any ballet given wholly or in part by one or more persons actually present and performing, whether or not it falls within head (1) supra: Theatres Act 1968 s 18(1).

4 'Public performance' includes any performance in a public place within the meaning of the Public Order Act 1936 (see PARA 380 note 2 ante), and any performance which the public or any section of the public is permitted to attend, whether on payment or otherwise: see the Theatres Act 1968 s 18(1).

5 Where an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: ibid s 16. See PARA 38 ante.

6 A person is not to be treated as presenting a performance by reason only of his taking part in the play as a performer; a person taking part as a performer in a performance of a play directed by another person is to be treated as a person who directed the performance if without reasonable excuse he performs otherwise than in accordance with that person's direction; and a person is to be taken to have directed a performance of a play given under his direction notwithstanding that he was not present during that performance: ibid s 18(2). A person is not to be treated as aiding and abetting the commission of an offence under s 2 (as amended) in respect of a performance of a play by reason only of his taking part as a performer: see s 18(2) (amended by the Public Order Act 1986 Sch 3).

8 Theatres Act 1968 s 2(2) (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(2)). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141. As to powers of entry and inspection see the Theatres Act 1968 s 15 (as amended); and LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 251.

9 Ibid s 8 (amended by the Public Order Act 1986 Sch 3). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post. A prosecution on indictment may not be commenced more than two years after the commission of the offence: Theatres Act 1968 s 2(3). As to scripts as evidence see PARA 756 post.

10 See ibid s 2(4) (amended by the Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981 s 5(2), Schedule). As to indecent displays see PARA 768 post; and as to conspiracy to corrupt public morals and to outrage public decency see PARAS 74-75 ante.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (2) OBSCENE PERFORMANCES OF PLAYS/756. Scripts as evidence.

756. Scripts as evidence.

Where a performance of a play<sup>1</sup> was based on a script<sup>2</sup>, then, in proceedings for an offence under the Theatres Act 1968<sup>3</sup> alleged to have been committed in respect of that performance, an actual script on which the performance was based or a copy of such script made by virtue of an order relating to that performance<sup>4</sup> is admissible as evidence of what was performed and of the manner in which the performance or any part of it was given<sup>5</sup>. If such a script or copy is given in evidence on behalf of any party to the proceedings, the performance is to be taken to have been given in accordance with that script, except in so far as the contrary is shown by evidence given on behalf of the same or any other party<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'play' see PARA 754 note 3 ante.

2 'Script', in relation to the performance of a play, means the text of the play (whether expressed in words or in musical or other notation) together with any stage or other directions for its performance, whether contained in a single document or not: Theatres Act 1968 s 9(2).

3 See under ibid s 2 (as amended) (see PARA 754 ante) or s 6 (as amended) (public performance of a play provoking a breach of the peace: see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 249).

4 A police officer of or above the rank of superintendent, who has reasonable grounds for suspecting that any such offence has been committed by any person in respect of the performance of a play, or that a performance of a play is to be given and that any such offence is likely to be committed by a person in respect of it, may make a written order in relation to that person and that performance: ibid s 10(1) (amended by the Public Order Act 1986 s 40, Sch 3). The order must be signed by the police officer by whom it is made, must name the person to whom it relates, and must describe the performance to which it relates in a manner sufficient to enable that performance to be identified: Theatres Act 1968 s 10(2). Where such an order has been made any police officer, on production of the order if so required, may require the person named in it to produce, if such a thing exists, an actual script on which the performance was or will be based, and, if such a script is produced, may require that person to afford him an opportunity of causing a copy to be made: s 10(3). Any person who without reasonable excuse fails to comply with any such requirement is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: s 10(4) (amended by the Criminal Justice 1982 ss 38, 46). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

6 See the Theatres Act 1968 ss 9(1)(b), 10(5). The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

747-769 Offences against Decency and Morality

As to the new offence of possession of extreme pornographic images see PARA 769A.

(3) INDECENT PHOTOGRAPHS AND PSEUDO-PHOTOGRAPHS OF CHILDREN

757. Taking, making and distributing indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children.

It is an offence for a person<sup>1</sup>:

- 846 (1) to take<sup>2</sup>, or permit to be taken, or to make<sup>3</sup> any indecent<sup>4</sup> photograph<sup>5</sup> or pseudo-photograph<sup>6</sup> of a child<sup>7</sup>; or
- 847 (2) to distribute<sup>8</sup> or show<sup>9</sup> such indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs<sup>10</sup>; or
- 848 (3) to have in his possession such indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs, with a view to their being distributed or shown by himself or others<sup>11</sup>; or
- 849 (4) to publish or cause to be published any advertisement likely to be understood as conveying that the advertiser distributes or shows such indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs, or intends to do so<sup>12</sup>.

Proceedings for any such offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>13</sup>. A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding ten years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>14</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>15</sup>.

Where in proceedings for an offence of taking or making an indecent photograph under head (1) above, the defendant proves<sup>16</sup> that the photograph was of a child aged 16 or over, and that at the time of the offence charged the child and he were married or civil partners of each other or lived together as partners in an enduring family relationship, and sufficient evidence is adduced to raise an issue as to whether the child consented to the photograph being taken or made, or as to whether the defendant reasonably believed that the child so consented, the defendant is not guilty of the offence unless it is proved that the child did not so consent and that the defendant did not reasonably believe that the child so consented<sup>17</sup>.

In proceedings for an offence under head (1) above of making an indecent photograph or pseudo-photograph, the defendant is not guilty if he proves<sup>18</sup> that:

- 850 (a) it was necessary for him to make the photograph or pseudo-photograph for the purposes of the prevention, detection or investigation of crime, or for the purposes of criminal proceedings, in any part of the world<sup>19</sup>;
- 851 (b) at the time of the offence charged he was a member of the Security Service, and it was necessary for him to make the photograph or pseudo-photograph for the exercise of any of the functions of the Service<sup>20</sup>; or
- 852 (c) at the time of the offence charged he was a member of GCHQ, and it was necessary for him to make the photograph or pseudo-photograph for the exercise of any of the functions of GCHQ<sup>21</sup>.

Where a person is charged with an offence under head (2) or head (3) above, it is a defence for him to prove<sup>22</sup>: (i) that he had a legitimate reason for distributing or showing the photographs or pseudo-photographs or, as the case may be, having them in his possession; or (ii) that he had not himself seen the photographs or pseudo-photographs and did not know, nor had any cause to suspect, them to be indecent<sup>23</sup>.

Where in proceedings for an offence under head (2) above relating to an indecent photograph, the defendant proves<sup>24</sup> that the photograph was of a child aged 16 or over, and at the time of the offence charged, or at the time when he obtained the photograph, the child and he were married or civil partners of each other or lived together as partners in an enduring family relationship, the defendant is not guilty of the offence unless it is proved that the showing or distributing was to someone other than the child<sup>25</sup>.

Where in proceedings for an offence under head (3) above relating to an indecent photograph, the defendant proves<sup>26</sup> that the photograph was of a child aged 16 or over, and that at the time of the offence (that is, the possession) charged, or at the time when he obtained the photograph, the child and he were married or civil partners of each other or lived together as partners in an enduring family relationship, and sufficient evidence is adduced to raise an issue both: (A) as to whether the child consented to the photograph being in the defendant's possession, or as to whether the defendant reasonably believed that the child so consented; and (B) as to whether the defendant had the photograph in his possession with a view to its being distributed or shown to anyone other than the child, the defendant is not guilty of the offence unless it is proved either that the child did not so consent and that the defendant did not reasonably believe that the child so consented, or that the defendant had the photograph in his possession with a view to its being distributed or shown to a person other than the child<sup>27</sup>.

Where any of the offences described above<sup>28</sup> is committed abroad<sup>29</sup> by British citizens or residents<sup>30</sup> it also constitutes an offence under the law of England and Wales if it would have constituted an offence under the law thereof had the activity constituting the offence been done in England and Wales<sup>31</sup>.

1 Where a body corporate is guilty of an offence under the Protection of Children Act 1978 and it is proved that the offence occurred with the consent or connivance of, or was attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other officer of the body, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is deemed to be guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 3(1). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, s 3(1) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as if he were a director of the body corporate: s 3(2). See PARA 38 ante.

2 The defendant must deliberately and intentionally take the photograph: R v Graham-Kerr [1988] 1 WLR 1098, 88 Cr App Rep 302, CA.

3 'Making' does not require an original act of creation of a photograph or pseudo-photograph; it can include the production of negatives of photographs etc or copies of them: R v Bowden [2001] QB 88, [2000] 2 All ER 418, CA. 'Making' also covers the opening of an attachment to an e-mail, which contains an indecent photograph etc (R v Smith, R v Jayson [2002] EWCA Crim 683, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep 212); or downloading it from the Internet so that it is displayed by an Internet browser on the computer screen (R v Bowden supra). An opened attachment or downloaded image is automatically temporarily stored on the computer hard disk by the operation of the browser. A downloaded photograph etc need not be stored, in the sense of being retained for future use, before it can be said to be 'made'; nor is it necessary that there is an intention to store the photograph for later retrieval: R v Smith, R v Jayson supra. 'Making' also covers printing out a photograph etc stored on a computer: R v Bowden supra. It is irrelevant that the original originated from outside the jurisdiction if the making of the copy (eg the downloading or printing) is in the jurisdiction: R v Bowden supra.

The mens rea for 'making' is that the act of 'making' should be a 'deliberate and intentional act with knowledge that the image made was, or was likely to be, an indecent photograph or pseudo-photograph of a child': R v Smith, R v Jayson supra. An unintended copying or storing of an image does not constitute the offence of 'making' it: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP [2000] 2 All ER 425, [2000] 2 Cr App Rep 248, DC. Consequently, someone who opens a doubtful e-mail attachment (which turns out to be an indecent photograph) or whose computer automatically saves it on its 'cache' is not guilty of making those photographs: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP supra. Nor will he be in possession of them while they are stored on the 'cache' if he is unaware of the existence and effect of the cache, although he will be in possession of them in respect of their transient downloading onto the computer's screen (and would be guilty under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160 (as amended): see PARA 758 post): Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP supra.

4 It is for the jury to decide whether the photograph or pseudo-photograph is indecent: R v Owen [1988] 1 WLR 134, 86 Cr App Rep 291, CA; R v Graham-Kerr [1988] 1 WLR 1098, 88 Cr App Rep 302, CA. 'Indecent' in the context of these offences relating to photographs and pseudo-photographs means offending against the recognised standard of propriety, upon which the jury must decide by looking at the material in question: R v Stamford [1972] 2 QB 391, 56 Cr App Rep 398, CA (applied in R v Owen supra; R v Graham-Kerr supra). This is judged objectively; the defendant's purpose is irrelevant: R v Smethurst [2001] EWCA Crim 772, [2002] 1 Cr App Rep 50. This approach does not fall foul of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 8 (right to respect for private life) or art 10 (right to freedom of expression) because it can be justified under arts 8(2) and 10(2) as necessary in a democratic society for the prevention of crime, for the protection of morals and in particular for the protection of children from being exploited: R v Smethurst supra. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

In determining whether a photograph is indecent, evidence of the circumstances in which it came to be taken or the motivation of the photographer are irrelevant to the issue of indecency, though they may be relevant if the issue is raised as to whether the photographer intended to take the photographs or intended to take them in the form in which they appeared (as where it is claimed that the photograph was taken accidentally or the photographer inadvertently included the indecent matter). The only evidence that is relevant to the issue of indecency is the photographs themselves: R v Graham-Kerr supra, applying R v Stamford supra (decided under the Post Office Act 1953 s 11 (repealed: see now the Postal Services Act 2000 s 85; and PARA 765 post)); distinguishing R v Court [1989] AC 28, 87 Cr App Rep 144, HL. In the case of a photograph, the jury must know the age of the child and is entitled to have regard to that age when answering the question, 'is this an indecent photograph of a child?': R v Owen supra. Something abstracted from a decent set of images can be indecent: see R v Murray [2004] EWCA Crim 2211, [2005] Crim LR 387 (edited and slowed down version of video-recorded medical documentary which concentrated, with sound removed, on sequence where doctor manipulated boy's penis held capable of being indecent, even though documentary was not; jury was being asked to look at a quite separate set of images from those in the documentary and was entitled to look at the images independently of the documentary and to determine whether, objectively speaking, those images were indecent).

5 For these purposes, references to an indecent photograph include an indecent film, a copy of an indecent photograph or film, and an indecent photograph comprised in a film: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(1), (2). Photographs, including those comprised in a film, are to be treated, if they show children and are indecent, for all purposes of the Act as indecent photographs of children and so as respects pseudo-photographs: s 7(1), (3) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (3)(a)).

References to a photograph include the negative as well as the positive version, and data stored on a computer disk or other electronic means which is capable of conversion into a photograph; and 'film' includes any form of video-recording: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(1), (4), (5) (s 7(4) substituted by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (3)(b)).

6 'Pseudo-photograph' means an image, whether made by computer-graphics or otherwise howsoever, which appears to be a photograph: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(7) (added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (3)(c)). An image made by an exhibit which obviously consists of parts of two different photographs taped together cannot be said to 'appear to be a photograph' and is therefore not a 'pseudo-photograph', although if it was itself photocopied it could: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP [2000] 2 All ER 425, [2000] 1 WLR 1427, DC. References to an indecent pseudo-photograph include a copy of an indecent pseudo-photograph, and data stored on a computer disk or by other electronic means which is capable of conversion into a pseudo-photograph: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(9) (added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (3)(c)).

7 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(1)(a) (s 1(1) amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (2)(a), (b); and the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(1)(a) amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(3), Sch 11). In the case of a photograph, 'child' means a person under the age of 18: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(1), (6) (s 7(6)-(9) added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (3)(c); and the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(6) amended by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 45(2)). Expert evidence is inadmissible: R v Land [1999] QB 65, [1998] 1 All ER 403, CA. In proceedings under the Protection of Children Act 1978 relating to indecent photographs of children, a person is to be taken as having been a child at any material time if it appears from the evidence as a whole that he was then under the age of 18: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 2(3) (amended by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 45(1), (2); and the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(2), Sch 10 para 37(2)). If the impression conveyed by a pseudo-photograph is that the person shown is a child, the pseudo-photograph must be treated for all purposes of this Act as showing a child and so must a pseudo-photograph where the predominant impression conveyed is that the person shown is a child notwithstanding that some of the physical characteristics shown are those of an adult: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7(8) (as so added).

8 For these purposes, a person is to be regarded as distributing an indecent photograph or pseudo-photograph if he parts with possession of it to, or exposes or offers it for acquisition by, another person: ibid s 1(2) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(2)(c), (d)). For a conspiracy to distribute indecent photographs etc the conspiracy must relate to distribution to one or more persons outside the conspiracy: R v Barker [1998] 5 Archbold News 1, CA.

9 'Showing' includes 'making available', as where a person gives to another a password to a computer enabling him to access an indecent photograph stored on it: R v Fellows, R v Arnold [1997] 2 All ER 548, [1997] 1 Cr App Rep 244, CA.

10 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(1)(b) (as amended: see note 7 supra).

11 Ibid s 1(1)(c) (as amended: see note 7 supra). The defendant must have a view to showing the photographs etc to another or others, and not simply to himself: R v ET (1999) 163 JP 349, CA. A person possesses an indecent photograph etc with a view to it being distributed or shown by him to others only if one reason (not necessarily the primary reason) for possessing it is that it would be distributed or shown to others; thus a person who allows files containing indecent photographs etc to remain in his shared electronic folder, where they can be accessed and downloaded into the shared folders of other members of a file-sharing system, possesses those files with a view to their being shown or distributed only if one of his reasons, but not necessarily the primary reason, for doing so was to enable others to use them or download them: R v Dooley [2005] EWCA Crim 3093, [2006] 1 WLR 775, (2005) Times, 10 November.

12 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(1)(d) (as amended: see note 7 supra). As to the application of notification requirements under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 to an offence under the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1 (as amended) see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 557 et seq. With the apparent exception of an offence of 'making' (see R v Smith, R v Jayson [2002] EWCA Crim 683, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep 212), proof that the defendant knew that the subject of a photograph was a child (as defined) is not required (R v Land [1999] QB 65, [1998] 1 All ER 403, CA). An offence under the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(1) (as amended) committed outside the United Kingdom is triable in England and Wales if the requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 72 are satisfied: see PARA 243 ante. Nothing in the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1982 s 2, Sch 3 (as amended) (control of sex establishments: see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 306) affords a defence to a charge in respect of any offence at common law or under any enactments other than Sch 3 (as amended): Sch 3 para 1(a). As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

As to jurisdiction where the photograph or pseudo-photograph shows a child under 16 see PARA 758 post. As to the offence of possession of indecent photographs of children see PARA 758 post; as to entry, search and seizure see PARA 759 post; as to forfeiture of such photographs see PARA 760 post; and as to the competence and compellability of the defendant's spouse as a witness see PARA 1405 post. As to procedural provisions applying to offences under the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(1)(a) (as amended) see PARA 1164 post.

13 Ibid s 1(3). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

15 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 6 (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 154(1), Sch 7 para 171; and the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 41(1)). As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141. As to sentencing guidelines see R v Oliver, R v Hartrey, R v Baldwin [2002] EWCA Crim 2766, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep 463. Two primary factors determinative of the seriousness of an offence are the nature of the material and the nature and degree of the offender's involvement with it. Such material should be graded in five categories: (1) images depicting erotic posing with no sexual activity; (2) sexual activity between children or solo masturbation; (3) non-penetrative sexual activity involving an adult; (4) penetrative activity with an adult; and (5) sadism or bestiality: see R v Oliver, R v Hartrey, R v Baldwin supra. In R v Saunders [2004] EWCA Crim 777, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 459, it was stated that R v Oliver, R v Hartrey, R v Baldwin supra was a valuable case where images had been downloaded from the Internet but that the taking of photographs and making of videotapes gave rise to serious considerations for sentencing and fell outside the guidelines in that case.

16 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the European Convention for Human Rights art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post.

17 See the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1A(1), (4) (s 1A added by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 45(1), (3); and the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1A(1), (2) amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 261(1), 21 Ibid s 1B(1)(c) (as added: see note 19 supra). 'GCHQ' has the same meaning as in the Intelligence Services Act 1994 (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 473): Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1B(2) (as so added).

22 See note 16 supra.

26 See note 16 supra.

27 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1A(1), (6) (s 1A as added, and s 1A(1) as amended: see note 17 supra). These provisions apply whether the photograph showed the child alone or with the defendant, but not if it showed any other person: s 1A(3) (as so added).

28 Is an offence under ibid s 1 (as amended) (see the text and notes 1-13 supra).

29 Is in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom in which the relevant act constituted an offence under the law in force in that country or territory: see the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 72(1)(a); and PARA 243 ante.

747-769 Offences against Decency and Morality

As to the new offence of possession of extreme pornographic images see PARA 769A.

757 Taking, making and distributing indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children

NOTE 5--References to a photograph also include (1) a tracing or other image, whether made by electronic or other means (of whatever nature) (a) which is not itself a photograph or pseudo-photograph, but (b) which is derived from the whole or part of a photograph or pseudo-photograph (or a combination of either or both); and (2) data stored on a computer disc or by other electronic means which is capable of conversion into an image within head (1); and the 1978 Act s 7(8) applies in relation to such an image as it applies in relation to a pseudo-photograph: s 7(4A) (added by Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 69(3)). For transitional provisions and savings see Sch 27 para 24(1).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/9. OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (3) INDECENT PHOTOGRAPHS AND PSEUDO-PHOTOGRAPHS OF CHILDREN/758. Possession of indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children.

758. Possession of indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children.

It is an offence for a person<sup>1</sup> to have any indecent photograph<sup>2</sup> or pseudo-photograph of a child<sup>3</sup> in his possession<sup>4</sup>. Proceedings for any such offence may not be instituted except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions<sup>5</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to a term of imprisonment not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both<sup>6</sup>, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>8</sup>.

Where a person is charged with such an offence, it is a defence for him to prove<sup>9</sup>:

- 853 (1) that he had a legitimate reason for having the photograph or pseudo-photograph in his possession<sup>10</sup>; or
- 854 (2) that he had not himself seen the photograph or pseudo-photograph and did not know, nor had any cause to suspect, it to be indecent<sup>11</sup>; or
- 855 (3) that the photograph or pseudo-photograph was sent to him without any prior request made by him or on his behalf and that he did not keep it for an unreasonable time<sup>12</sup>.

Where a person charged with such an offence relating to a photograph proves<sup>13</sup> that the photograph was of a child aged 16 or over, and that at the time of the offence charged, or at the time when he obtained the photograph, the child and he were married or civil partners of each other or lived together as partners in an enduring family relationship, and sufficient evidence is adduced to raise an issue as to whether the child consented to the photograph being in the defendant's possession, or as to whether the defendant reasonably believed that the child so consented, the defendant is not guilty of the offence unless it is proved that the child did not so consent and that the defendant did not reasonably believe that the child so consented<sup>14</sup>.

Where such an offence relating to possession of an indecent photograph<sup>15</sup> is committed abroad<sup>16</sup> by British citizens or residents<sup>17</sup> it also constitutes an offence under the law of England and Wales if it would have constituted an offence under the law thereof had the activity constituting the offence been done in England and Wales<sup>18</sup>.

1 Where a body corporate is guilty of an offence under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160 (as amended) and it is proved that the offence occurred with the consent or connivance of, or was attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other officer of the body, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is deemed to be guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 3(1); applied by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(4). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 3(1) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as if he were a director of the body corporate: s 3(2); applied by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(4). See PARA 38 ante.

2 The provisions in the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 7 (as amended) relating to 'photographs' and 'pseudo-photographs' (see PARA 757 ante) have effect in relation to the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160 (as amended): s 160(4).

3 The provisions of the Protection of Children Act 1978 s 2(3), (7) relating to the meaning of 'child' (see PARA 757 note 7 ante) have effect in relation to the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160 (as amended) : see s 160(4).

4 Ibid s 160(1) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (4)(a)). The offence is not committed unless the defendant knew that he had, or once had, the photograph or pseudo-photograph in his possession: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP [2000] 2 All ER 425, [2000] 2 Cr App Rep 248, DC. Accordingly, a defendant cannot be convicted of possessing an indecent photograph in the 'cache' of his computer, a temporary information store created automatically by an Internet browser programme when accessing an Internet site, if he cannot be shown to have been aware of the existence of the cache: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP supra. A person is in possession of an indecent photograph in respect of its transient downloading by him on to a computer screen: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP supra. 'Possession' of a photograph on a computer includes control or custody of it, having regard to the defendant's skill and knowledge: R v Porter [2006] EWCA Crim 560, 150 Sol Jo LB 396. It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove any mens rea on the defendant's part as to the indecency of the photograph or pseudo-photograph: R v Smethurst [2001] EWCA Crim 772, [2002] 1 Cr App Rep 50. Proof by the prosecution that the defendant knew that the subject of a photograph was a child (ie under 18) is not required: R v Land [1999] QB 65, [1998] 1 All ER 403, CA. A defendant who proves that he had not seen the photograph etc and did not know or have reason to suspect that it was an indecent photograph etc of a child has a defence: R v Collier [2004] EWCA Crim 1411, [2005] 1 WLR 843, [2005] 1 Cr App Rep 129; and see head (2) in the text and note 11 infra. For guidelines about the drafting of indictments for the offence see R v Thompson [2004] EWCA Crim 669, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep 262. As to the application of notification requirements to this offence under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 557 et seq.

5 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 1(3); applied by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(4). As to the effect of this limitation see PARA 1071 post.

6 Protection of Children Act 1978 s 160(2A) (added by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 41(3)). As to the custody threshold see R v Wild (No 2) [2001] EWCA Crim 1433, [2002] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 162.

8 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(3) (amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 86). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

9 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

10 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(2)(a) (s 160(2) amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 84(1), (4)(b)). The Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(2)(a) (as amended) and s 160(2)(c) (as amended) (see the text to note 12 infra) proceed on the assumption that the defendant is aware that the photograph etc is an indecent photograph of a child and that either he has a legitimate reason for possessing it or it has been sent to him without prior request and he did not keep it for an unreasonable time: R v Collier [2004] EWCA Crim 1411 at [19], [2005] 1 WLR 843 at [19], [2005] 1 Cr App Rep 134 at [19], per Hooper LJ. The question of what constitutes a legitimate reason is a question of fact in each case: Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP [2000] 2 All ER 425, [2000] 1 WLR 1427, DC. 'The central question where the defence is legitimate research will be whether the defendant is essentially a person of unhealthy interests in possession of indecent photographs, or by contrast a genuine researcher with no alternative but to have this sort of unpleasant material in his possession. In other cases there will be other categories of legitimate reasons advanced. They will each have to be considered on their own facts': Atkins v DPP, Goodland v DPP supra at 432-433 and 1435 per Simon Brown LJ (with whom Blofield J agreed).

11 Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160(2)(b) (as amended: see note 10 supra). The word 'it' in s 160(2)(b) (as amended) refers to the indecent photograph etc with the possession of which the defendant is charged, and the defence under s 160(2)(b) (as amended) is available if the defendant proves that he has not seen the photograph etc and did not know or have cause to suspect it to be an indecent photograph of a child: R v Collier [2004] EWCA Crim 1411 at [19], [2005] 1 WLR 843 at [19], [2005] 1 Cr App Rep 129 at [19], per Hooper LJ.

13 See note 9 supra.

14 See the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160A(1), (2), (4) (s 160A added by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 45(1), (4); and the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160A(1), (2) amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 s 261(1), Sch 27 para 127). The exception applies whether the photograph showed the child alone or with the defendant, but not if it showed any other person: Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 160A(3) (as so added).

15 Ie under ibid s 160 (as amended): see the text and notes 1-12 supra.

16 Ie in a country or territory outside the United Kingdom in which the relevant act constituted an offence under the law in force in that country or territory: see the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s 72(1)(a); and PARA 243 ante. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

17 As to British citizenship see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARAS 23-43. As to residence see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 134 et seq. Proceedings by virtue of these provisions may be brought only against a person who was on 1 September 1997, or has since become, a British citizen or resident in the United Kingdom: see ibid s 72(2); and PARA 243 ante.

18 See ibid s 72(1), Sch 2 para 1(d)(ii); and PARA 243 ante.

760. Forfeiture of indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children.

The justice before whom any articles are brought<sup>1</sup> may issue a summons to the occupier of premises<sup>2</sup> to appear on a day specified in the summons before a magistrates' court acting in that local justice area to show cause why such articles should not be forfeited<sup>3</sup>. If the court is satisfied that the articles are in fact indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children, the court must order them to be forfeited; but if the person summoned does not appear, the court may not make an order unless service of the summons is proved<sup>4</sup>. In addition to the person summoned, any other person being the owner of the articles brought before the court, or the persons who made them, or any other person through whose hands they had passed before being seized, is or are entitled to appear before the court on the day specified in the summons to show cause why such articles should not be forfeited<sup>5</sup>. Where any of the articles are ordered so to be forfeited, any person who appears, or was entitled to appear, to show cause against the making of the order may appeal to the Crown Court<sup>6</sup>.

If as respects any articles brought before it the court does not order forfeiture, the court may, if it thinks fit, order the person on whose information the warrant for their seizure was issued to pay such costs as the court thinks reasonable to any person who has appeared before it to show cause why the photographs or pseudo-photographs should not be forfeited; and costs so ordered to be paid are recoverable as a civil debt<sup>7</sup>.

Where indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children are seized<sup>8</sup>, and a person is convicted of offences<sup>9</sup> in respect of those photographs, the court must order them to be forfeited<sup>10</sup>.

A forfeiture order so made<sup>11</sup> (including an order made on appeal) does not take effect until the expiration of the ordinary time within which an appeal may be instituted, or, where there is an appeal, until it is finally decided or abandoned<sup>12</sup>.

760 Forfeiture of indecent photographs or pseudo-photographs of children

TEXT AND NOTES--Replaced. The Protection of Children Act 1978 Schedule (added by the Police and Justice Act 2006 s 39(4), Sch 11) makes provision about the forfeiture of indecent photographs and pseudo-photographs: Protection of Children Act 1978 s 5 (substituted by the Police and Justice Act 2006 s 39(3)).

The Protection of Children Act 1978 Schedule applies where (1) property which has been lawfully seized in England and Wales is in the custody of a constable; (2) ignoring the Schedule, there is no legitimate reason for the constable to retain custody of the property; (3) the constable is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that the property is or is likely to be forfeitable property; and (4) ignoring the Schedule, the constable is not aware of any person who has a legitimate reason for possessing the property or any readily separable part of it: Schedule para 1(1). 'Forfeitable property' is (a) any indecent photograph or pseudo-photograph of a child; (b) any property which it is not reasonably practicable to separate from any property within head (a) above: Schedule para 1(2). For these purposes, a part of any property is a 'readily separable part' of the property if, in all the circumstances, which include the time and costs involved in separating the property, it is reasonably practicable for it to be separated from the remainder of that property, and it is reasonably practicable for a part of any property to be separated from the remainder if it is reasonably practicable to separate it without prejudicing the remainder of the property or another part of it: Schedule para 1(3), (4). The property must be retained in the custody of a constable until it is returned or otherwise disposed of in accordance with the Schedule: Schedule para 2(1). Nothing in the Police (Property) Act 1897 (see POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARAS 520-522) applies to property held under the Protection of Children Act 1978 Schedule: Schedule para 2(2). The relevant officer (ie the constable who for the time being has custody of the property) must give notice of the intended forfeiture of the property ('notice of intended forfeiture') to (i) every person whom he believes to have been the owner of the property, or one of its owners, at the time of the seizure of the property; (ii) where the property was seized from premises, every person whom the relevant officer believes to have been an occupier of the premises at that time; and (iii) where the property was seized as a result of a search of any person, that person: Schedule paras 3, 4(1). For the meaning of 'premises' see PARA 759. The notice of intended forfeiture must set out a description of the property and how a person may give a notice of claim under the Schedule and the period within which such a notice must be given: Schedule para 4(2). The notice must be served in accordance with the Schedule para 4(3)-(7). A person claiming that he has a legitimate reason for possessing the property or a part of it may give notice of his claim to a constable at any police station in the police area in which the property was seized: see Schedule para 5. A notice of claim may not be given more than one month after the date of the giving of the notice of intended forfeiture, or if no such notice has been given, the date on which the property began to be retained under the Schedule: see Schedule para 6. If the property is unclaimed it is treated as forfeited: see Schedule para 7. Where a notice of claim in respect of the property, or part of it, is duly given in accordance with Schedule paras 5, 6, the relevant officer must decide whether to take proceedings to ask the court to condemn the property or a part of it as forfeited: see Schedule para 8. If, in a case in which a notice of claim has been given, the relevant officer decides not to take proceedings for condemnation of the property, or not to take proceedings for condemnation of a part of the property, he must return the property or part to the person who appears to him to have a legitimate reason for possessing the property or, if there is more than one such person, to one of those persons: see Schedule para 9. If, in a case in which a notice of claim has been given, the relevant officer decides to take proceedings for condemnation of the property or a part of it ('the relevant property'), the court must condemn the relevant property if it is satisfied that the relevant property is forfeitable property and that no-one who has given a notice of claim has a legitimate reason for possessing the relevant property: see Schedule para 10. Where the court condemns property in such a way it may order the relevant officer to take such steps in relation to the property or any part of it as it thinks appropriate and where it orders a step to be taken, it may make that order conditional on specified costs relating to the taking of that step being paid by a specified person within a specified period: see Schedule para 11. Proceedings by virtue of the Schedule are civil proceedings and may be instituted in a magistrates' court which has jurisdiction in relation to the place where the property to which the proceedings relate was seized; and 'the court', in the Schedule, is to be construed accordingly: Schedule para 12, 21(1). As to appeals against the decision of the magistrates' court see the Schedule paras 13, 14. See also Schedule para 15 (effect of forfeiture), Schedule paras 16, 17 (disposal of property which is not returned) and Schedule paras 18, 19 (provisions as to proof). As to the circumstances in which a person has a legitimate reason for possessing an indecent photograph of a child see Schedule para 21(2).

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (4) VIDEO RECORDINGS AND PROGRAMME SERVICES/761. Supplying video recording of unclassified work.

(4) VIDEO RECORDINGS AND PROGRAMME SERVICES

761. Supplying video recording of unclassified work.

It is a defence to a charge of committing such an offence to prove<sup>10</sup> that the defendant believed on reasonable grounds: (1) that the video work concerned or, if the video recording contained more than one work to which the charge relates, each of those works was either an exempted work or a work in respect of which a classification certificate had been issued; or (2) that the supply was, or would if it took place be, an exempted<sup>11</sup> supply<sup>12</sup>.

It is also a defence to prove<sup>13</sup>: (a) that the commission of the offence was due to the act or default of a person other than the defendant; and (b) that the defendant took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence by anyone under his control<sup>14</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'supply' means supply in any manner, whether or not for reward, and it therefore includes supply by way of sale, letting on hire, exchange or loan; and references to a supply are to be interpreted accordingly: Video Recordings Act 1984 s 1(1), (4).

2 For these purposes, 'video recording' means any disc, magnetic tape or any other device capable of storing data electronically containing information by the use of which the whole or a part of a video work may be produced: ibid s 1(1), (3) (s 1(3) amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(1), Sch 9 para 22, Sch 11).

3 For these purposes, a video recording contains a video work if it contains information by the use of which the whole or a part of the work may be produced; but where a video work includes any extract from another video work, that extract is not to be regarded for these purposes as a part of that other work: Video Recordings Act 1984 s 22(2).

4 For these purposes, 'video work' means any series of visual images (with or without sound): (1) produced electronically by the use of information contained on any disc, magnetic tape or any other device capable of storing data electronically; and (2) shown as a moving picture: ibid s 1(1), (2) (s 1(2) amended by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 Sch 9 para 22, Sch 11).

5 For these purposes, 'classification certificate' means a certificate issued in respect of a video work in pursuance of arrangements made by the designated authority and satisfying the prescribed requirements: Video Recordings Act 1984 s 7(1). As to classification certificates and the designated authority see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 279.

6 Ie an exempted supply within the meaning of ibid s 3 (as amended): see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 278.

7 Ibid s 9(1). An 'exempted work' means a work exempted under s 3 (as amended): see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 284. Where an offence under the Video Recordings Act 1984 committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of the offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 16(1). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, s 16(1) applies in relation to the acts and defaults of a member in connection with his functions of management as if he were a director of the body corporate: s 16(2). See PARA 38 ante. No prosecution may be brought for an offence under the Video Recordings Act 1984 after the expiry of the period of three years beginning with the date of the commission of the offence or one year beginning with the date of the discovery by the prosecutor, whichever is earlier: s 15(1) (substituted by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 168(2), Sch 10 para 52(3)). As to forfeiture see PARA 763 post. See further LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARAS 290-291. As to supplying a video recording of a classified work in breach of the classification see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 286; as to the supply of specified video recordings otherwise than in a sex shop see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 287; and as to breach of labelling etc requirements see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 288.

9 Video Recordings Act 1984 s 9(3) (added by the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 88(1), (2)).

10 As to whether this imposes a legal (or persuasive) burden or an evidential one, and, if the former, its compatibility with the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2) (the presumption of innocence), see PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

11 Is exempted by virtue of the Video Recordings Act 1984 s 3(4) or (5): see LICENSING AND GAMBLING vol 67 (2008) PARA 278.

13 See note 10 supra.

14 Video Recordings Act 1984 s 14A (added by the Video Recordings Act 1993 s 2). A defendant can rely on this defence, even though he has not taken any positive steps to avoid the commission of the offence, since it is enough under head (b) in the text for the retailer merely to prove that he acted without negligence: R (on the application of Bilon) v WH Smith Trading Ltd [2001] EWHC Admin 469, [2001] Crim LR 850 (not negligent in circumstances for defendant retailer to have relied on reputable supplier with whom defendant had dealt for 20 years without any cause for concern).

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (4) VIDEO RECORDINGS AND PROGRAMME SERVICES/762. Possession of video recording of unclassified work for the purposes of supply.

762. Possession of video recording of unclassified work for the purposes of supply.

Where a video recording<sup>1</sup> contains<sup>2</sup> a video work<sup>3</sup> in respect of which no classification certificate<sup>4</sup> has been issued, a person<sup>5</sup> who has the recording in his possession for the purposes of supplying<sup>6</sup> it is guilty of an offence unless he has it in his possession for the purpose only of a supply which, if it took place, would be an exempted supply<sup>7</sup> or the video work is an exempted work<sup>8</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months<sup>9</sup> or to a fine not exceeding £20,000 or to both<sup>10</sup>.

It is a defence to a charge of committing such an offence to prove<sup>11</sup>:

- 856 (1) that the accused believed on reasonable grounds that the video work concerned or, if the video recording contained more than one work to which the charge relates, each of those works was either an exempted work or a work in respect of which a classification certificate had been issued<sup>12</sup>;
- 857 (2) that the accused had the video recording in his possession for the purpose only of a supply which he believed on reasonable grounds would, if it took place, be an exempted<sup>13</sup> supply<sup>14</sup>; or
- 858 (3) that the accused did not intend to supply the video recording until a classification certificate had been issued in respect of the video work concerned<sup>15</sup>.

It is also a defence to prove that the commission of the offence was due to the act or default of a person other than the defendant, and that the defendant took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid the commission of the offence by anyone under his control<sup>16</sup>.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (5) OUTRAGING PUBLIC DECENCY/764. Outraging public decency.

(5) OUTRAGING PUBLIC DECENCY

764. Outraging public decency.

It is an indictable offence at common law<sup>1</sup> for a person to commit in public<sup>2</sup> an act of such a lewd, obscene or disgusting nature as to amount to an outrage to public decency, whether or not it tends to deprave and corrupt those who see it<sup>3</sup>. The offence is punishable on conviction on indictment by imprisonment or fine or both at the discretion of the court, or on summary conviction by imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>4</sup> or a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or both<sup>5</sup>.

1 As to the restrictions on prosecutions for common law offences contained in the Obscene Publications Act 1959 s 2(4), (4A) (as added and amended), the Theatres Act 1968 s 2(4) (as amended) and the Broadcasting Act 1990 s 162(2), Sch 15 para 6 see PARAS 355, 362 ante.

2 'In public' means that the conduct or matter must occur in a place where there was a real possibility at the time that at least two members of the general public might see it, although not necessarily simultaneously: R v Walker [1996] 1 Cr App Rep 111, CA; Kneller (Printing, Publishing and Promotions) Ltd v DPP [1973] AC 435 at 494, [1972] 3 All ER 898 at 935-936 per Lord Simon of Glaisdale (with whose speech Lord Kilbrandon agreed). See also R v Watson (1847) 2 Cox CC 376; R v Webb (1848) 3 Cox CC 183; R v Farrell (1862) 9 Cox CC 446; R v Mayling [1963] 2 QB 717, 47 Cr App Rep 102, CCA; R v May (1989) 91 Cr App Rep 157, CA. If one person is proved to have seen the act and others might have seen it, that is sufficient (R v May supra) but the offence is not made out if only one person saw, or could have seen, the act in question (Rose v DPP [2006] EWHC 852 (Admin), [2006] All ER (D) 225 (Mar)).

3 R v Mayling [1963] 2 QB 717, 47 Cr App Rep 102, CCA; R v May (1989) 91 Cr App Rep 157, CA. See also Kneller (Publishing, Printing and Promotions) Ltd v DPP [1973] AC 435, 56 Cr App Rep 633, HL; Shaw v DPP [1962] AC 220 at 281, 45 Cr App Rep 113 at 151, HL, per Lord Reid. It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove actual disgust or annoyance on the part of any observer: R v Mayling supra. It is sufficient if the act is calculated to have that effect: R v May supra. Exposure of the naked person or any other lewd act in public is within the ambit of the offence: R v Sidney (1663) 1 Sid 168; R v Harris (1871) LR 1 CCR 282 (contrast R v Walker [1996] 1 Cr App Rep 111, CA, where indecent exposure to two young girls in defendant's own home was not an outrage to public decency because it was not 'in public'); R v Mayling supra (homosexual conduct); R v Crunden (1809) 2 Camp 89; R v Reed (1871) 12 Cox CC 1 (men bathing nude); R v May supra (simulated sexual intercourse). The offence is not limited to acts involving a sexual element: see R v Lynn (1788) 2 Term Rep 733 (disinterring a corpse); R v Saunders (1875) 1 QBD 15, CCR (showing an indecent exhibition in a booth at Epsom races; public admitted on payment); R v Gibson, R v Sylveire [1990] 2 QB 619, [1991] 1 All ER 439, CA (public exhibition of earrings made from freeze-dried human fetuses). If the defendant's conduct does not in itself result in an outrage to public decency the offence is not committed, regardless of the defendant's motive or ultimate intent: R v Rowley [1991] 4 All ER 649, [1981] 1 WLR 1020, CA. As to conspiracy to outrage public decency see PARA 75 ante. As to indecent displays see also PARA 768 post.

4 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32(1), Sch 1 (s 32(1) prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 282(1)); and MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARAS 655-656), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 282(4) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

5 Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss 17, 32(1), Sch 1 para 1A (added by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 320(1)). See also SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 31, 139. An offence committed before 20 January 2004 is triable only on indictment: see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 320(2); and the Criminal Justice Act 2003 (Commencement No 2 and Saving Provisions) Order 2004, SI 2004/81, art 2.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(6) INDECENT MATTER SENT BY POST OR TELEPHONE/765. Sending indecent or obscene prints etc by post.

(6) INDECENT MATTER SENT BY POST OR TELEPHONE

765. Sending indecent or obscene prints etc by post.

A person commits an offence if he sends a postal packet<sup>1</sup> which encloses any indecent or obscene<sup>2</sup> print, painting, photograph, lithograph, engraving, cinematograph film or other record of a picture or pictures, book, card or written communication, or any other indecent or obscene article (whether or not of a similar kind to those described above)<sup>3</sup>. A person commits an offence if he sends by post a postal packet which has on the packet, or on its cover, any words, marks, or designs which are of an indecent or obscene character<sup>4</sup>.

If a person commits an offence under these provisions, he is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>5</sup>.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(6) INDECENT MATTER SENT BY POST OR TELEPHONE/766. Improper use of public electronic communications network.

766. Improper use of public electronic communications network.

A person is guilty of an offence if he sends by means of a public electronic communications network<sup>1</sup> a message or other matter that is grossly offensive<sup>2</sup> or of an indecent, obscene<sup>3</sup> or menacing character, or causes any such message or matter to be sent<sup>4</sup>.

A person is guilty of an offence if, for the purpose of causing annoyance, inconvenience or needless anxiety to another, he sends by such means a message that he knows to be false<sup>5</sup>, causes such a message to be sent, or persistently makes use of a public electronic communications network<sup>6</sup>.

A person guilty of an offence under these provisions is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>7</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Communications Act 2003, 'electronic communications network' means: (1) a transmission system for the conveyance, by the use of electrical, magnetic or electro-magnetic energy, of signals of any description; (2) such of the following as are used, by the person providing the system and in association with it, for the conveyance of the signals: (a) apparatus comprised in the system; (b) apparatus used for the switching or routing of the signals; and (c) software and stored data: see the Communications Act 2003 ss 32(1), 405(1); and TELECOMMUNICATIONS vol 97 (2010) PARA 60.

2 For these purposes, what is an offensive message, and thus what is a grossly offensive message, has to be judged in the context of the message and by the standards of an open and just multi-racial society (ie via the application of reasonably enlightened, but not perfectionist, contemporary standards): DPP v Collins [2006] UKHL 40, [2006] 1 WLR 2223, [2006] All ER (D) 249 (Jul). Whether a message falls into the category of grossly offensive depends on whether it is couched in terms liable to cause gross offence to those to whom it relates, and for an offence to be committed the defendant has to intend his words to be grossly offensive to those to whom they relate, or be aware that they might be taken to be so: DPP v Collins supra.

3 See PARA 765 note 2 ante.

4 Communications Act 2003 s 127(1). Where a body corporate is guilty of an offence under the Communications Act 2003 and that offence is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he, as well as the body corporate, is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly: s 404(1). Where the affairs of a body corporate are managed by its members, 'director' means a member of the body corporate: s 404(3). The provisions of s 127(1), (2) (see the text and notes 5, 6 infra) do not apply to anything done in the course of providing a programme service (within the meaning of the Broadcasting Act 1990): see the Communications Act 2003 s 127(4); and TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND BROADCASTING vol 45(1) (2005 Reissue) PARAS 328; TELECOMMUNICATIONS vol 97 (2010) PARA 196. As to threatening telephone calls see also PARA 105 ante; and as to harassment by telephone calls see PARA 152 ante.

5 As to bomb hoaxes see PARA 853 post.

6 Communications Act 2003 s 127(2). See also ss 127(4), 404(1), (3); and note 4 supra.

7 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>10</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>11</sup>.

A person is not guilty of an offence under head (1)(b) above, however, if he shows: (i) that the threat was used to reinforce a demand made by him on reasonable grounds; and (ii) that he believed and had reasonable grounds for believing that the use of the threat was a proper means of reinforcing the demand<sup>12</sup>.

OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/(7) INDECENT DISPLAYS/768. Indecent displays.

(7) INDECENT DISPLAYS

768. Indecent displays.

If any indecent<sup>1</sup> matter<sup>2</sup> is publicly displayed<sup>3</sup>, the person making the display and any person causing or permitting the display to be made is guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>5</sup>.

Nothing in these provisions applies, however, in relation to any matter:

- 861 (1) included in a television broadcasting service or other television programme service<sup>6</sup> by any person<sup>7</sup>; or
- 862 (2) included in the display of an art gallery or museum and visible only from within the gallery or museum<sup>8</sup>; or
- 863 (3) displayed by or with the authority of, and visible only from within a building occupied by, the Crown or any local authority<sup>9</sup>; or
- 864 (4) included in a performance of a play<sup>10</sup>; or
- 865 (5) included in an exhibition of a film<sup>11</sup>: (a) given in a place which as regards that exhibition is required to be licensed<sup>12</sup> or which in specified circumstances<sup>13</sup> is not required to be so licensed; or (b) which is an exhibition<sup>14</sup> given by an exempted<sup>15</sup> organisation<sup>16</sup>.

A constable may seize any article which he has reasonable grounds for believing to be or to contain indecent matter and to have been used in the commission of an offence under these provisions<sup>17</sup>. A justice of the peace, if satisfied on information on oath that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that such an offence has been or is being committed on any premises, may issue a warrant authorising any constable to enter the premises specified in the information (if need be by force) to seize any article which the constable has reasonable grounds for believing to be or to contain indecent matter and to have been used in the commission of such an offence<sup>18</sup>.

1 For these purposes, in determining whether any displayed matter is indecent: (1) there is to be disregarded any part of that matter which is not exposed to view; and (2) account may be taken of the effect of juxtaposing one thing with another: Indecent Displays (Control) Act 1981 s 1(5).

2 For these purposes, 'matter' includes anything capable of being displayed, except that it does not include an actual human body or part thereof: ibid s 1(5).

3 For these purposes, any matter which is displayed in or so as to be visible from any public place is deemed to be publicly displayed: ibid s 1(2). 'Public place', in relation to the display of any matter, means any place to which the public has or is permitted to have access (whether on payment or otherwise) while that matter is displayed except: (1) a place to which the public is permitted to have access only on payment which is or includes payment for that display; or (2) a shop or any part of a shop to which the public can only gain access by passing beyond an adequate warning notice, but the exclusions in heads (1), (2) supra only apply where persons under the age of 18 years are not permitted to enter while the display in question is continuing: s 1(3). A warning notice is not adequate unless it complies with the following requirements:

- 192 (a) the warning notice must contain the following words, and no others: 'WARNING Persons passing beyond this notice will find material on display which they may consider indecent. No admittance to persons under 18 years of age' (s 1(6)(a));
- 193 (b) the word 'WARNING' must appear as a heading (s 1(6)(b));
- 194 (c) no pictures or other matter may appear on the notice (s 1(6)(c));
- 195 (d) the notice must be so situated that no one could reasonably gain access to the shop or part of the shop in question without being aware of the notice, and it must be easily legible by any person gaining such access (s 1(6)(d)).

A person who sends<sup>1</sup> or causes to be sent to another person any book, magazine or leaflet (or advertising material for any such publication)<sup>2</sup> which he knows or ought reasonably to know is unsolicited<sup>3</sup> and which describes or illustrates human sexual techniques, is guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup>. OFFENCES AGAINST DECENCY AND MORALITY/ (8) UNSOLICITED PUBLICATIONS ON HUMAN SEXUAL TECHNIQUES/769A. Possession of extreme pornographic images.

769A. Possession of extreme pornographic images.

It is an offence for a person to be in possession of an extreme pornographic image: Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 63(1). An 'extreme pornographic image' is an image which is both pornographic, and an extreme image: s 63(2). An image is 'pornographic' if it is of such a nature that it must reasonably be assumed to have been produced solely or principally for the purpose of sexual arousal: s 63(3). Where (as found in the person's possession) an image forms part of a series of images, the question whether the image is of such a nature as is mentioned in s 63(3) is to be determined by reference to (1) the image itself, and (2) (if the series of images is such as to be capable of providing a context for the image) the context in which it occurs in the series of images: s 63(4). So, for example, where (a) an image forms an integral part of a narrative constituted by a series of images, and (b) having regard to those images as a whole, they are not of such a nature that they must reasonably be assumed to have been produced solely or principally for the purpose of sexual arousal, the image may, by virtue of being part of that narrative, be found not to be pornographic, even though it might have been found to be pornographic if taken by itself: s 63(5). An 'extreme image' is an image which falls within s 63(7), and is grossly offensive, disgusting or otherwise of an obscene character: s 63(6). An image falls within s 63(7) if it portrays, in an explicit and realistic way, any of the following (i) an act which threatens a person's life, (ii) an act which results, or is likely to result, in serious injury to a person's anus, breasts or genitals, (iii) an act which involves sexual interference with a human corpse, or (iv) a person performing an act of intercourse or oral sex with an animal (whether dead or alive), and a reasonable person looking at the image would think that any such person or animal was real: s 63(7). In s 63 'image' means (A) a moving or still image (produced by any means); or (B) data (stored by any means) which is capable of conversion into an image within head (A): s 63(8). In s 63 references to a part of the body include references to a part surgically constructed (in particular through gender reassignment surgery): s 63(9). Proceedings for an offence under s 63 may not be instituted in England and Wales, except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions: s 63(10).

Section 63 does not apply to excluded images (images which form part of a series of images contained in a recording of the whole or part of a classified work): see Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 64.

A series of defences to the offence of possession of extreme pornographic images is set out: see Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 65. Provision is also made for an additional defence relating to the participation in consensual acts: see Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 66.

The penalties that will apply to persons found guilty of an offence under s 63 are set out: see Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 67. For transitional provision see Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 Sch 27 para 23.

Special provision is made in connection with the operation of s 63 in relation to persons providing information society services: see Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 s 68, Sch 14.

10. OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC

(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS

770. Unlawful possession of a controlled drug.

It is an offence<sup>1</sup> for a person: (1) to have a controlled drug<sup>2</sup> in his possession<sup>3</sup> unlawfully<sup>4</sup>; or (2) to incite another to commit an offence under head (1) above<sup>5</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to imprisonment or to a fine or to both; the maximum penalties vary to some extent, dependent upon the controlled drug in relation to which the offence was committed<sup>6</sup>.

In any proceedings for an offence under head (1) above in which it is proved that the defendant had a controlled drug in his possession, it is a defence for him to prove<sup>7</sup> that, knowing or suspecting it to be a controlled drug:

- 866 (a) he took possession of it for the purpose of preventing another from committing or continuing to commit an offence in connection with that drug and, as soon as possible after taking possession of it, took all such steps as were reasonably open to him to destroy<sup>8</sup> the drug or to deliver it into the custody of a person lawfully entitled to take custody of it<sup>9</sup>; or
- 867 (b) he took possession of it for the purpose of delivering it into the custody of a person lawfully entitled to take custody of it and, as soon as possible after taking possession of it, took all such steps as were reasonably open to him to deliver it into the custody of such a person<sup>10</sup>.

1 On the authority of R v Courtie [1984] AC 463, 78 Cr App Rep 292, HL it is submitted that there is more than one offence, because of the difference in penalties imposed: see note 7 infra. R v Courtie supra has been applied to the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 170 (as amended): see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1232. Cf the statement in R v Leeson [2000] 1 Cr App Rep 233 at 238, CA, per Roch LJ: 'The only relevance of the different classes of drug . . . is that that factor affects the sentence that can be passed on conviction'. This statement was made without reference to R v Courtie supra.

Where any offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 or the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 Pt II (ss 12-24) (as amended) committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or any person purporting to act in such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against accordingly: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (amended by the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 23(3); the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 65(1), Sch 1 para 3; and the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 457, Sch 12). See PARA 38 ante.

As to the power of the Secretary of State to make grants in relation to combating drug misuse and drug trafficking see the Criminal Justice Act 1993 s 73.

2 'Controlled drug' means any substance or product for the time being specified in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 2(1)(a), Sch 2 Pt I, II or III (see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 239-241): s 2(1)(a). Her Majesty may by Order in Council amend Sch 2: see s 2(2)-(5). The list of controlled drugs divides them into three classes: Class A, Class B and Class C. The expressions 'Class A drug', 'Class B drug' and 'Class C drug' mean any of the substances and products for the time being specified respectively in Sch 2 Pts I, II and III (see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 239-241): s 2(1)(b). This classification is relevant in terms of the maximum punishments for some offences under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. In addition, some statutory provisions (in other statutes) only apply to Class A drugs. Unlawful possession of any controlled drug described in Sch 2 by its scientific name is not established by proof of possession of naturally occurring material of which the described drug is one of the unseparated constituents; and this is so whether or not the naturally occurring material is also included as another item in the list of controlled drugs: DPP v Goodchild [1978] 2 All ER 161, 67 Cr App Rep 56, HL. As to the admissibility as evidence of an admission by a defendant that the substance in his possession is a controlled drug see R v Chatwood [1980] 1 All ER 467, sub nom R v Chatwood, R v Egan, R v Flaherty, R v Proctor, R v Walker (1979) 70 Cr App Rep 39, CA.

3 For these purposes, the things which a person has in his possession are to be taken to include any thing subject to his control which is in the custody of another: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 37(3). It is for the prosecution to prove basic possession: R v McNamara (1988) 87 Cr App Rep 246, CA. As to possession see PARA 771 post.

4 Ie in contravention of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(1). For these purposes, 'contravention' includes failure to comply; and 'contravene' has a corresponding meaning: s 37(1). Subject to any regulations under s 7 for the time being in force (see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 259), it is not lawful for a person to have a controlled drug in his possession: s 5(1). As to the statutory defences see the text and notes 7-10 infra; and PARA 778 post.

The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument make provision for excluding in such cases as may be prescribed the application of any provision of the Act which creates an offence: see ss 22(a)(i), 31(1)-(3); and MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 242-243.

Notwithstanding anything in the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 127(1) (limitation of time: see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 589), a magistrates' court may try an information for an offence under the 1971 Act if the information was laid at any time within 12 months from the commission of the offence: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 25(4) (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 154, Sch 7 para 103). As from a day to be appointed a reference to an information includes a reference to a written charge: see PARA 915 post. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply another unlawfully see PARA 772 post.

Transporting or storing a controlled drug where possession contravenes the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(1) is drug trafficking for the purposes of the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 ss 55-59 (as amended) (see PARA 784 et seq post): s 59A(4)(b) (s 59A added by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 456, Sch 11 paras 1, 25(1), (4)).

5 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 ss 5(2), 19 (amended by the Criminal Attempts Act 1981 ss 10, 11, Sch Pt I). See also note 4 supra. The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 19 (as amended) applies to an incitement to commit any offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971: R v Marlow [1998] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 273, [1997] Crim LR 897, CA.

An offence of incitement under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 19 (as amended) is punishable on summary conviction, on indictment or in either way according to whether, under Sch 4 (as amended) (see note 6 infra), the substantive offence is punishable on summary conviction, on indictment or in either way; and the penalties which may be imposed on a person so convicted are the same as those which under Sch 4 (as amended) may be imposed on a person convicted of the substantive offence (ie the offence to which the incitement mentioned in s 19 (as amended) was directed): s 25(3) (amended by the Criminal Attempts Act 1981 ss 10, 11, Schedule Pt I). As to incitement see PARA 65 ante.

Except where a charge is brought against a person under 17 and subject to the Bail Act 1976 s 4 (see PARA 1169 post), where a person is brought before a magistrates' court on a charge of an offence against the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(2) or a drug trafficking offence and the court has power to remand him, it may, if it considers it appropriate to do so, remand him to the custody of an officer of Revenue and Customs or a constable for a period not exceeding 192 hours: see the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 152(1), (1A), (2) (s 152(1A) added by the Drugs Act 2005 s 8(b)); and the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(2), (7). As to officers of Revenue and Customs see PARA 354 note 2 ante.

6 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 25(1), (2), Sch 4 (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 ss 27, 28, Sch 5; the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss 31, 32; and the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 157(2), Sch 8 Pt II). In the case of a Class A drug the maxima are, on conviction on indictment, imprisonment for seven years or a fine or both, or, on summary conviction, imprisonment for six months or a fine of the prescribed sum or both; in the case of a Class B drug the maxima are, on conviction on indictment, imprisonment for five years or a fine or both, or, on summary conviction, imprisonment for three months or a fine of £2,500 or both; and in the case of a Class C drug the maxima are, on conviction on indictment, imprisonment for two years or a fine or both, or, on summary conviction, imprisonment for three months or a fine of £1,000 or both: see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sch 4 (as so amended). As from a day to be appointed the maximum terms of imprisonment on summary conviction are increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

As to the power to order forfeiture of anything shown to relate to the offence see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 480.

7 In R v Lambert [2001] UKHL 37, [2002] 2 AC 545, [2001] 3 All ER 577, it was held that 'prove' in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 28 (defence of lack of knowledge etc) simply placed an evidential burden on the defendant, rather than the legal (or persuasive) burden: see PARA 1368 et seq post. The House of Lords did not deal with the meaning of 'prove' in s 5(4) but the same interpretation might be expected to apply.

8 It is not enough for the defendant simply to show that he left the drug to be destroyed by the forces of nature (eg by burying it); what is required are reasonable steps by the defendant to destroy the drug by his own acts: R v Murphy [2002] EWCA Crim 1587, [2003] 1 WLR 422, [2003] 1 Cr App Rep 276.

9 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(4)(a). See also note 10 infra.

10 Ibid s 5(4)(b). Nothing in s 5(4) prejudices any defence which it is open to a person charged with an offence under s 5 to raise apart from s 5(4): s 5(6) (amended by the Criminal Attempts Act 1981 s 10, Schedule Pt I). As to the statutory defence available to a person charged with an offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(2) (see the text to note 5 supra) see PARA 778 post.

The right to private life under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 8 does not include a right to possess a controlled drug, and, even if it did, a prosecution under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(2) would be a proportionate interference within the terms of art 8(2) of the Convention: R v Morgan [2002] EWCA Crim 721. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq. On the ground of public policy, freedom of religion is no defence to the unlawful possession of a drug; and even if it were the case that a prosecution under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(2) interferes with the right to freedom of religion under the art 9 of the Convention, that interference would be justified under art 9(2): R v Taylor [2001] EWCA Crim 2263, [2002] 1 Cr App Rep 519. OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/771. Meaning of 'possession'.

771. Meaning of 'possession'.

The question of what constitutes possession is an illusive concept at common law<sup>1</sup>. A person has a controlled drug<sup>2</sup> in his possession when he has physical control or custody of a thing plus knowledge that he has it in his custody and control. He may possess a controlled drug without knowing or comprehending its nature; but he does not possess it unless he knows he has it<sup>3</sup>.

The quantity of the drug is important in two respects: (1) whether the quantity is sufficient to enable the court to find as a matter of fact that it amounts to something<sup>4</sup>; (2) if the quantity is minute, whether the defendant knew that he possessed something<sup>5</sup>. It is no defence that the presence of the drug has been forgotten<sup>6</sup>; nor will ignorance or mistake as to the quality of a substance prevent the defendant from being in possession of it if that substance turns out to be a controlled drug<sup>7</sup>.

If the defendant orders a controlled drug and directs that it be sent by post to his address, he is in possession of such drug from the time it arrives through the letter box<sup>8</sup>.

If the drug is in a container, the defendant does not automatically possess the drug, although he possesses the container<sup>9</sup>.

Where several drugs are specified in the particulars of charge, proof of any of them is sufficient<sup>10</sup>. Where defendants are jointly charged, joint possession must be established; mere knowledge of the existence of the drugs on the part of a defendant does not amount to possession by him<sup>11</sup>.

4 If it is visible, touchable and measurable, it is certainly something: R v Boyesen [1982] AC 768, 75 Cr App Rep 51, HL, explaining Bocking v Roberts [1974] QB 307, [1973] 3 All ER 962, DC. See also R v Worsell [1969] 2 All ER 1183, 53 Cr App Rep 322, CA; R v Graham [1969] 2 All ER 1181, [1970] 1 WLR 113n, CA (scrappings in defendant's pockets sufficient to be measured).

5 See Police v Emirali [1976] 1 NZLR 286; R v Colyer [1974] Crim LR 243; R v Hierowski [1978] Crim LR 563; R v Boyesen [1982] AC 768, 75 Cr App Rep 51, HL (overruling R v Carver [1978] QB 472, 67 Cr App Rep 352, CA). A small trace of a drug may prove earlier possession (R v Worsell [1969] 2 All ER 1183, 53 Cr App Rep 322, CA; R v Graham [1969] 2 All ER 1181, [1970] 1 WLR 113n, CA), but care must be taken in bringing charges (R v Pragliola [1977] Crim LR 612 (pipe contained drug trace; pipe returned to defendant; defendant charged with possession of drug; charge oppressive and not justifiable)). A defendant is not in possession of a drug when a trace of amphetamine powder is found in a urine sample, because of the changed character of the substance; but a sample may prove possession at an earlier time: Hambleton v Callinan [1968] 2 QB 427, [1968] 2 All ER 943, DC. The admissibility as evidence of a urine sample required by the police, to determine possession, is at the discretion of the trial judge depending on the facts of the particular case: R v Beet (1977) 66 Cr App Rep 188, CA; and see PARA 1365 post. If a man smokes cannabis resin, he does have cannabis resin in his possession at the time of the smoking: Chief Constable of Cheshire Constabulary v Hunt (1983) 147 JP 567, DC.

8 R v Peaston (1978) 69 Cr App Rep 203, CA.

9 Warner v Metropolitan Police Comr [1969] 2 AC 256, 52 Cr App Rep 373, HL. Possession of the container leads to a strong inference that the defendant was in possession of the contents: R v McNamara (1988) 87 Cr App Rep 246, CA. It would appear that the defendant is not in possession of a drug in a container when: (1) he is completely mistaken as to the nature of the contents of the container (confirmed in R v McNamara supra); (2) he does not suspect that there is anything wrong with those contents: Warner v Metropolitan Police Comr supra (decided under the Drugs (Prevention of Misuse) Act 1964 s 1(1) (repealed)); R v Wright (1975) 62 Cr App Rep 169, CA (not in possession when drug was in tin which the defendant was handed; he did not know or suspect what it contained and, having been told to throw it away, he did so immediately); R v Ashton-Rickardt [1978] 1 All ER 173, 65 Cr App Rep 67, CA; R v Peaston (1978) 69 Cr App Rep 203, CA.

The prosecution has the initial burden of proving that the defendant had, and knew that he had, the box in his control and also that the box contained something. That establishes the necessary possession. The prosecution must also prove that the box in fact contained the drug alleged: R v McNamara supra. As to the statutory defence which may then arise see PARA 778 post. Cf the approach to possession of drugs in a house rather than a container: see R v Lewis (1988) 87 Cr App Rep 270, CA. A man does not possess something put into his house or pocket without his knowledge: R v McNamara supra.

11 R v Searle [1971] Crim LR 592, CA. An appropriate direction would be to invite the jury to consider whether the drugs formed a common pool from which all had the right to draw at will and whether there was a joint enterprise to consume drugs together because then the possession of drugs by one in pursuance of that common enterprise might well be possession on the part of all: R v Searle supra. See also R v Wright (1975) 119 Sol Jo 825, CA; R v Strong, R v Berry [1989] 10 LS Gaz R 41, CA (mere presence in the same vehicle as the drug and in particular where there was no evidence of knowledge cannot amount to evidence from which the jury can properly infer possession, whether individual or joint).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/10. OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/772. Unlawful production or supply of controlled drugs; possession with intent to supply unlawfully.

772. Unlawful production or supply of controlled drugs; possession with intent to supply unlawfully.

It is an offence for a person<sup>1</sup>:

- 868 (1) to produce<sup>2</sup> a controlled drug<sup>3</sup> unlawfully<sup>4</sup> or to be concerned in the production of such a drug unlawfully<sup>5</sup>;
- 869 (2) to supply<sup>6</sup> or offer to supply<sup>7</sup> a controlled drug<sup>8</sup> to another<sup>9</sup> unlawfully<sup>10</sup> or to be concerned<sup>11</sup> in the supplying of such a drug to another unlawfully or to be concerned in the making to another unlawfully of an offer to supply such a drug<sup>12</sup>;
- 870 (3) to have a controlled drug in his possession<sup>13</sup>, whether lawfully or not, with intent to supply<sup>14</sup> it to another unlawfully<sup>15</sup>;
- 871 (4) to incite another to commit an offence under head (1), (2) or (3) above<sup>16</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to imprisonment or to a fine or to both; the maximum penalties vary to some extent, dependent upon the controlled drug in relation to which the offence was committed<sup>17</sup>.

Where a court is considering the seriousness of an offence under head (2) above<sup>18</sup>, and at the time the offence was committed the offender had attained the age of 18<sup>19</sup>, then if either of the two conditions set out below is met the court: (a) must treat the fact that the condition is met as an aggravating factor (that is to say, a factor that increases the seriousness of the offence)<sup>20</sup>; and (b) must state in open court that the offence is so aggravated<sup>21</sup>. The first condition is that the offence was committed on or in the vicinity of school premises at a relevant time<sup>22</sup>. The second condition is that in connection with the commission of the offence the offender used a courier who, at the time the offence was committed, was under the age of 18<sup>23</sup>.

1 Unless the contrary intention appears, this includes a body of persons corporate or unincorporate: Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. As to the liability of directors and officers where an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 770 note 1 ante. As to the manufacture and supply of substances to be used in the supply of a controlled drug see PARA 773 post.

2 For these purposes, 'produce', where the reference is to producing a controlled drug, means producing it by manufacture, cultivation or any other method; and 'production' has a corresponding meaning: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 37(1). See also R v Russell (1991) 94 Cr App Rep 351, CA (conversion of cocaine hydrochloride into free base cocaine constituted 'production'); R v Harris, R v Cox [1996] 1 Cr App Rep 369, CA ('production' of cannabis includes stripping cannabis plants (which are themselves controlled drugs) after they have been cut and harvested in order to produce that part which is a controlled drug; in those circumstances, the 'other method' involves discarding the parts of the plant which are not usable, and putting together the parts which are).

3 For the meaning of 'controlled drug' see PARA 770 note 2 ante.

4 ie in contravention of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(1)(a). For the meaning of 'contravention' see PARA 770 note 4 ante. Subject to any regulations under s 7 for the time being in force (see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 259), it is not lawful for a person: (1) to produce a controlled drug; or (2) to supply or offer to supply a controlled drug to another: s 4(1).

Producing or supplying a controlled drug where the production or supply contravenes s 4(1) is drug trafficking for the purposes of the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 ss 55-59 (as amended) (see PARA 784 et seq post): s 59A(4)(a) (s 59A added by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 456, Sch 11 paras 1, 25(1), (4)).

5 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(2). As to the statutory defence see PARA 778 post. The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument make provision for excluding in such cases as may be prescribed the application of any provision of the Act which creates an offence: see ss 22(a)(i), 31(1)-(3); and MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 242-243.

An offence contrary to s 4(2) or s 4(3) (see head (2) in the text) or s 5(3) (see head (3) in the text) is a 'lifestyle offence' for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 393): s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 1(1)(a), (b). In respect of a 'lifestyle offence', the court may make a financial reporting order under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 76 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARAS 475-476).

6 For these purposes, 'supplying' includes distributing: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 37(1). The word 'supply' appears in s 4(1)(b) which is referred to for the purposes of creating the offences under heads (2) and (3) in the text. The meaning of the word is, therefore, the same for both offences. 'Supplying' must be given its ordinary natural meaning: Holmes v Chief Constable Merseyside Police [1976] Crim LR 125, DC; R v Maginnis [1987] AC 303, 85 Cr App Rep 127, HL. The word 'supply' in its ordinary natural meaning conveys the idea of furnishing or providing to another something which is wanted or required in order to meet the wants or requirements of that other. It connotes more than the mere transfer of physical control of some chattel or object from one person to another. The additional concept is that of enabling the recipient to apply the thing handed over to purposes for which he desires or has a duty to apply it: R v Maginnis supra. A person who places drugs in temporary custody with another person is not supplying, because the person having custody of them will not use the drugs for his own use: R v Maginnis supra, approving R v Dempsey (1985) 82 Cr App Rep 291, CA (defendant, a registered drug addict, asked the other defendant to hold some drugs for him while he went to the toilet; defendant's conviction for supplying other defendant quashed). On the other hand, the person having custody (even if involuntary: R v Panton [2001] EWCA Crim 611, [2001] All ER (D) 134 (Mar)) supplies when he hands back the controlled drugs to the person who had deposited them with him so as to enable those persons to apply the drugs to their own purposes: R v Maginnis supra, approving R v Delgado [1984] 1 All ER 449, 78 Cr App Rep 175, CA (defendant had drugs in a holdall; said he had them for safe-keeping; defendant did intend to transfer the drugs to another at an agreed time; thus he had committed offence contrary to the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(3)) and Donnelly v HM Advocate 1985 SLT 243. Likewise, someone who sells drugs to a drugs dealer so that the latter can re-sell them supplies the dealer: R v X [1994] Crim LR 827, CA. Injecting another with a drug in the latter's possession is not 'supplying': R v Harris [1968] 2 All ER 49n, 52 Cr App Rep 277, CA. The division of drugs in joint possession may be a supply: Holmes v Chief Constable Merseyside Police supra. Distribution of drugs purchased after pooling of money is a supply: R v Buckley, R v Lane (1979) 69 Cr App Rep 371, approving Holmes v Chief Constable Merseyside Police supra. Where the defendant offered two girls a reefer cigarette to smoke, it was held that there was an offer to supply: R v Moore [1979] Crim LR 789. There is, however, no possession with intent to supply when the defendant makes reefer cigarettes which are passed round a group of people, because taking a puff and passing on a cigarette does not amount to a supply: R v King [1978] Crim LR 228. It is not a necessary element in the conception of supply that the provision should be made out of the personal resources of the person who does the supplying: R v Maginnis supra.

7 Offering to supply a substance which the defendant believes is a controlled drug is sufficient, even though the substance is not a controlled drug: Haggard v Mason [1976] 1 All ER 337, [1976] 1 WLR 187, DC. A person who offers to supply a controlled drug can be convicted on the basis of 'offering to supply' a controlled drug, even though (to the offeror's knowledge or belief) the thing offered is in reality not a controlled drug or even though he does not intend to carry out his offer: R v Goodard [1992] Crim LR 588, CA; R v Mitchell [1992] Crim LR 723, CA; R v Gill (1993) 97 Cr App Rep 215, CA; R v Prior (Neil) [2004] EWCA Crim 1147, [2004] Crim LR 849. Contrast the offence of conspiring to offer to supply a controlled drug, where it must be proved that the conspirators intended that the controlled drug be supplied: R v Gill supra. Where an offer is not genuine and the offeree knows this, as where the offer is made to an undercover police officer who knows the truth, there can nevertheless be an offer for the purpose of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(3), except possibly where the 'offer' was so obviously a joke or charade that it cannot be regarded as an offer in any real sense: R v Kray (10 November 1998) Lexis, CA. In determining whether there has been an offer, the principles of the law of contract about 'offer and acceptance' are irrelevant, including the rule that an offer, once accepted, cannot be regarded as continuing to constitute an offer: R v Dhillon [2000] Crim LR 760, CA. Likewise, unlike contract law, an offer cannot be withdrawn before acceptance: R v Prior supra.

The question whether the words uttered, or the manner of their utterance, amounted, in ordinary parlance, to an offer to supply a controlled drug is essentially a matter of fact for the jury. What is important is the effect of the words, having regard to any other relevant circumstances apparent to the offeree at the time: R v Prior supra. There can be an offer to supply despite the fact that it is an offer of a future supply at an unspecified date and place: R v Prior supra. It is immaterial whether it is the offeror or offeree who has taken the initiative: R v Prior supra.

8 As to supply of intoxicating substances other than controlled drugs see PARA 788 post. As to offences relating to the supply of articles for administering controlled drugs see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 9A (as added); and PARA 776 post.

9 The other person may be a defendant charged in another count of the indictment, but may not be a co-defendant in the same count: R v Connelly (1992) 156 JP 406, CA (distinguishing R v Lubren, R v Adepoju [1988] Crim LR 378, CA).

10 le in contravention of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(1)(b).

11 It is the duty of the judge to assist the jury as to the meaning of the word 'concerned': R v Hughes (1985) 81 Cr App Rep 344, CA. A person may be concerned by being involved at a distance in making an offer to supply a controlled drug: R v Blake, R v O'Connor (1978) 68 Cr App Rep 1, CA.

12 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(3). See also note 6 supra. In R v Hughes (1985) 81 Cr App Rep 344, CA, the three ingredients of the offence were listed as: (1) the supply of a drug to another, or as the case may be, the making of an offer to supply the drug to another; (2) participation by the defendant in an enterprise involving such a supply or, as the case may be, such an offer to supply; and (3) knowledge by the defendant of the nature of the enterprise, either knowledge that it is a venture to supply or to make an offer to supply the drug in question.

13 For the meaning of 'possession' see PARA 771 ante.

14 'Intent to supply' predicates that it should be the intent by the possessor of the drugs and not the intent of some other person: R v Greenfield (1983) 78 Cr App Rep 179n, CA. A person has an intention to supply a controlled drug to another if his intention is to return the drug to the person who deposited it with him: R v Maginnis [1987] AC 303, 85 Cr App Rep 127, HL (the intention to supply therefore relies upon the meaning of 'supply': see note 6 supra). Provided that he intended unlawfully to supply to another the substance proved to have been in his possession, it need not be proved that the defendant knew the identity of the substance, even though the type of drug which it is proved to be is relevant to the maximum sentence available: R v Leeson [2000] 1 Cr App Rep 233, [2000] Crim LR 195, CA. A mistaken belief as to its nature will only excuse the defendant if the defence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 28 (see PARA 778 post) is established: R v Leeson supra. Where a person is in joint possession of a drug but does not intend personally to supply it, he can be convicted as an accomplice of the present offence if he knows that his co-possessor intends to supply and he intentionally assists or encourages his co-possessor: R v Downes [1984] Crim LR 552, [1984] LS Gaz R 2216, CA. See also R v Greenfield supra.

See R v Taylor (Paul) [2001] EWCA Crim 2263, [2002] 1 Cr App Rep 519 (assuming that a prosecution under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(3) of someone in possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply it for religious purposes interfered with his right to freedom of religion under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 9, that interference would be justified under art 9(2)). The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

As from a day to be appointed, in any proceedings for an offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(3), if it is proved that the defendant had an amount of a controlled drug in his possession which is not less than the prescribed amount, the court or jury must assume that he had the drug in his possession with the intent to supply it to another unlawfully: s 5(4A) (s 5(4A)-(4C) prospectively added by the Drugs Act 2005 s 2(1), (2)). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(4A) (prospectively added) does not apply if evidence is adduced which is sufficient to raise an issue that the defendant may not have had the drug in his possession with that intent: s 5(4B) (as so prospectively added). Regulations under s 5(4A) (prospectively added) have effect only in relation to proceedings for an offence committed after the regulations came into force: s 5(4C) (as so prospectively added). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

Evidence of current large amounts of money or of a current extravagant lifestyle, prima facie explicable only if derived from drug dealing, is admissible in cases of possession of drugs with intent to supply, and is of probative significance to an issue in the case, even if the defendant gives an explanation for the money etc. If the judge decides that such evidence is admissible in law he must then decide whether or not to admit it in his discretion, having regard to its probative value and prejudicial effect. If such evidence is admitted, the judge must tell the jury what its probative significance can be and make it clear that it is for the jury to decide whether or not it has probative significance. He must warn the members of the jury that, if they conclude that the defendant is a drugs dealer this is not of itself evidence of possession on a particular occasion or a basis for disbelieving the defendant: R v Morris [1995] 2 Cr App Rep 69, 159 JP 1, CA. Evidence of past amounts of money or a past extravagant lifestyle is irrelevant and inadmissible because it can only found an inference of past drug dealing: R v Gordon [1995] 2 Cr App Rep 61, [1995] Crim LR 142, CA.

Although evidence of current large amounts of money or of a current extravagant lifestyle is not automatically excluded where the issue is whether the defendant was in possession, as opposed to whether he intended to supply (see R v Guney [1998] 2 Cr App Rep 242, [1999] Crim LR 485, CA; R v Edwards [1998] Crim LR 207, CA; R v Griffiths [1998] Crim LR 567, CA), it will rarely be relevant and admissible.

16 Ibid s 19 (amended by the Criminal Attempts Act 1981 s 10, Schedule Pt I). As to incitement see PARA 65 ante. See R v Marlow [1998] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 273, [1997] Crim LR 897, CA (writing and publishing a book on the cultivation and production of cannabis constituted incitement to commit an offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, contrary to s 19).

As to conspiracy to supply a controlled drug see R v Drew [2000] 1 Cr App Rep 91, [1999] Crim LR 581, CA; R v Jackson [2000] 1 Cr App Rep 97n, CA (where a conspiracy to supply 'another' is alleged, the 'other' must be taken to relate to someone other than a conspirator; however, it is permissible to allege a conspiracy to supply one of the conspirators; in such a case this must be made clear in the particulars of offence in the indictment).

17 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 25(1), (2), Sch 4 (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 ss 27, 28, Sch 5; the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss 31, 32; the Controlled Drugs (Penalties) Act 1985 s 1(1); the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 157(2), Sch 8 Pt II; and the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 284, Sch 28 para 1). In the case of a Class A drug the maxima are, on conviction on indictment, life imprisonment or a fine or both, or, on summary conviction, six months or a fine of the prescribed sum or both; in the case of a Class B drug the maxima are, on conviction on indictment, imprisonment for 14 years or a fine or both, or, on summary conviction, imprisonment for six months or a fine of the prescribed sum or both; and in the case of a Class C drug the maxima are, on conviction on indictment, imprisonment for 14 years or a fine or both, or, on summary conviction, imprisonment for three months or a fine of £2,500 or both: see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sch 4 (as so amended). As from a day to be appointed the maximum terms of imprisonment on summary conviction are increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

For the meanings of 'Class A drug', 'Class B drug' and 'Class C drug' see PARA 770 note 2 ante. As to the prescribed sum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141. As to the penalties for incitement see PARA 770 note 5 ante.

Conviction for a third Class A drug trafficking offence carries a minimum sentence of seven years. Where: (1) a person is convicted of a Class A drug trafficking offence committed after 30 September 1997; (2) at the time when that offence was committed, he was 18 or over and had been convicted in any part of the United Kingdom of two other Class A drug trafficking offences; and (3) one of those other offences was committed after he had been convicted of the other, the court must impose an appropriate custodial sentence for a term of at least seven years except where the court is of the opinion that there are particular circumstances which: (a) relate to any of the offences or to the offender; and (b) would make it unjust to do so in all the circumstances: Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 110(1), (2). As from a day to be appointed, these provisions are amended so as to refer to a term of imprisonment instead of a custodial sentence: see s 110(1), (2) (prospectively amended by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 s 74, Sch 7 para 190). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. For these purposes, 'an appropriate custodial sentence' means: (i) in relation to a person who is 21 or over when convicted of the offence mentioned in head (1) supra, a sentence of imprisonment; and (ii) in relation to a person who is under 21 at that time, a sentence of detention in a young offender institution: Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 110(6) (prospectively repealed by the Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 ss 74, 75, Sch 7 paras 160, 190, Sch 8).

Where a person is charged with a Class A drug trafficking offence (which otherwise would be triable either way), and the circumstances are such that, if he were convicted of the offence, he could be sentenced for it under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 110(2) (prospectively amended), the offence is triable only on indictment: s 110(4).

In s 110 (as amended), 'Class A drug trafficking offence' means a drug trafficking offence committed in respect of a Class A drug; and for this purpose 'Class A drug' has the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (see note 2 supra): Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 110(5). 'Drug trafficking offence' means any of the following offences: (A) an offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(2) or s 4(3) (unlawful production or supply of controlled drugs: see PARA 772 post), s 5(3) (possession of controlled drug with intent to supply: see PARA 772 post), s 8 (permitting certain activities relating to controlled drugs: see PARA 777 post), s 20 (assisting in or inducing the commission outside the United Kingdom of an offence punishable under a corresponding law: see PARA 779 post), or an offence under the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 50(2) or s 50(3) (improper importation of goods), s 68(2) (exportation of prohibited or restricted goods) or s 170 (fraudulent evasion) (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1232) if committed in connection with a prohibition or restriction on importation or exportation which has effect by virtue of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 3, or an offence under the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12 (manufacture or supply of a specified substance: see PARA 773 post) or s 19 (using a ship for illicit traffic in controlled drugs:

see PARA 780 post); (B) an offence of attempting, conspiring or inciting the commission of an offence listed in head (A) supra or an offence of aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring the commission of such an offence: Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 110(5) (definition substituted by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 456, Sch 11 para 37(1), (2)); Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75, Sch 2 paras 1, 10. Anything which would constitute a drug trafficking offence if done on land in any part of the United Kingdom also constitutes that offence if done on a British ship: Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 18. For the meaning of 'British ship' see PARA 780 note 1 post.

As to the discount for a guilty plea see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 144(2); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 623. Where a sentence has been imposed under the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 110 (as amended) and any previous conviction without which s 110 (as amended) would not have applied has subsequently been set aside on appeal, then notwithstanding the Criminal Appeal Act 1968 s 18 (see PARA 1863 post) notice of appeal against the sentence may be given within 28 days from the date on which the previous conviction was set aside: Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 112. Where an offence is found to have been committed over a period of two or more days, or at some time during a period of two or more days, it is to be taken for the purposes of s 110 (as amended) to have been committed on the last of those days: s 115. Where the court certifies that a person has been convicted of a Class A drug trafficking offence, the certificate is evidence of the previous conviction (and the date of the offence) for the purposes of s 110 (as amended): see s 113. As to offences under service law see s 114.

The object of s 110 (as amended) plainly is to require courts to impose a sentence of at least seven years in circumstances where, but for s 110, they would not or might not do so: R v Harvey [2000] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 368, CA.

As to the power to order forfeiture of anything shown to relate to the offence see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 480. As to the power to make a travel restriction order see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 372.

Where a defendant convicted of supplying drugs is made the subject of a confiscation order, that order may be adjusted to take into account the fact that the drugs were supplied in bulk and at a discount: R v Berry [2000] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 352, CA.

For the purposes of s 4A(3) (as added), a relevant time is: (1) any time when the school premises are in use by persons under the age of 18; (2) one hour before the start and one hour after the end of any such time: s 4A(5) (as so added).

23    Ibid s 4A(4) (as added: see note 19 supra). For these purposes, a drug related consideration is a consideration of any description which is obtained in connection with the supply of a controlled drug, or is intended to be used in connection with obtaining a controlled drug: s 4A(7) (as so added). Section 4A (as added) does not apply to an offence committed before 1 January 2006: Drugs Act 2005 s 1(2); Drugs Act 2005 (Commencement No 3) Order 2005, SI 2005/3053.

OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/773. Manufacture and supply of scheduled substances.

773. Manufacture and supply of scheduled substances.

It is an offence to manufacture or supply a scheduled substance<sup>1</sup> knowing or suspecting that the substance is to be used in or for the unlawful production of a controlled drug<sup>2</sup>. However, a person does not commit such an offence if he manufactures or, as the case may be, supplies the scheduled substance with the express consent of a constable<sup>3</sup>.

A person guilty of such an offence is liable, on conviction on indictment, to a term of imprisonment not exceeding 14 years or to a fine or to both, or, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>4</sup> months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both<sup>5</sup>.

Regulations may make provision: (1) imposing requirements as to the documentation of transactions involving scheduled substances; (2) requiring the keeping of records and the furnishing of information with respect to such substances; (3) for the inspection of records kept pursuant to the regulations; and (4) for the labelling of consignments of scheduled substances<sup>6</sup>.

1     I.e. a substance specified in the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12(5), Sch 2 (amended by the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 (Modification) Order 1992, SI 1992/2873; and the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 (Modification) Order 2001, SI 2001/3933); Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12(4). The Schedule may be amended by Order in Council: see s 12(5).

2     Ibid s 12(1). 'Controlled drug' has the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (see PARA 770 note 2 ante); Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12(3). 'Unlawful production of a controlled drug' means the production of such a drug which is unlawful by virtue of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(1)(a) (see PARA 772 ante); Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12(3). As to the application of the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 to Anguilla see the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) (Anguilla) Order 1994, SI 1994/1635.

As to the liability of directors and officers where an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 770 note 1 ante.

The powers to search and obtain evidence under s 23(3) (as amended) (excluding s 23(3)(a)) (see PARA 781 post) apply to the offence under the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12 (as amended): Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(3A) (added by the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 23(1), (4); and amended by the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 65, Sch 1 para 4).

Manufacturing or supplying a scheduled substance within the meaning of the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12 (as amended) where the manufacture or supply is an offence under s 12 (as amended) or would be such an offence if it took place in England and Wales is drug trafficking for the purposes of the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 ss 55-59 (as amended) (see PARA 784 et seq post): s 59A(4)(d) (s 59A added by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 456, Sch 11 paras 1, 25(1), (4)).

3     Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12(1A) (added by the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) (Amendment) Act 1998 s 1).

4     As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4); (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to special provisions relating to the minimum sentence and mode of trial for a third Class A drug trafficking offence see the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss 110, 112-115 (as amended); and PARA 772 note 17 ante. As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. An offence contrary to s 12 (as amended) is a 'lifestyle offence' for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 393): s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 1(3)(a). In respect of a 'lifestyle offence', the court may make a financial reporting order under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 76 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 475 et seq). As to forfeiture see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 480.

6 See the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 13 (amended by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 ss 456, 457, Sch 11 paras 1, 21, Sch 12). The Controlled Drugs (Substances Useful for Manufacture) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/1285 (amended by SI 1992/2914) implement EC Council Regulation 3677/90 (OJ L357, 20.12.1990, p 1) laying down measures to be taken to discourage the diversion of certain substances to the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances (as amended), under which member states are required to adopt, within the framework of domestic law, measures enabling competent authorities to obtain information on orders for or operations involving scheduled substances and to enter operators' business premises to obtain evidence of irregularities. The Controlled Drugs (Substances Useful for Manufacture) (Intra-Community Trade) Regulations 1993, SI 1993/2166 (amended by SI 2001/3683; SI 2004/850) implement EC Council Directive 92/109 (OJ L370, 19.12.1992, p 76) on the manufacture and placing on the market of certain substances used in the illicit manufacture of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances (as amended), and provide that the requirements of certain Community provisions are to be treated as if they were requirements of regulations made under the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 13 (as amended).

It is an offence<sup>1</sup> for a person: (1) to cultivate any plant of the genus Cannabis<sup>2</sup> unlawfully<sup>3</sup>; or (2) to incite another to commit an offence under head (1) above<sup>4</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>5</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the liability of directors and officers where an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 770 note 1 ante.

2 Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'cannabis', except in the expression 'cannabis resin', means any plant of the genus Cannabis or any part of any such plant, by whatever name designated, except that it does not include cannabis resin or any of the following products after separation from the rest of the plant, namely: (1) mature stalk of any such plant; (2) fibre produced from mature stalk of any such plant; and (3) seed of any such plant: ibid s 37(1) (definition substituted by the Criminal Law Act 1977 s 52). 'Cannabis resin' means the separated resin, whether crude or purified, obtained from any plant of the genus Cannabis: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 37(1).

3 Ibid s 6(2). Subject to any regulations under s 7 for the time being in force (see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 259), it is not lawful for a person to cultivate any plant of the genus Cannabis: s 6(1). The prosecution does not have to prove that the defendant knew that the plant being cultivated was cannabis: R v Champ (1981) 73 Cr App Rep 367, CA. As to the statutory defence see PARA 778 post.

The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument make provision for excluding in such cases as may be prescribed the application of any provision of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 which creates an offence: see ss 22(a)(i), 31(1)-(3); and MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 242-243.

TEXT AND NOTE 6--1971 Act s 19 further amended: Serious Crime Act 2007 Sch 6 para 53.

OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/776. Prohibition of supply etc of articles for administering or preparing controlled drugs.

A person<sup>1</sup> who:

- 876 (1) supplies or offers to supply any article<sup>2</sup> which may be used or adapted to be used (whether by itself or in combination with another article or other articles) in the administration by any person of a controlled drug<sup>3</sup> to himself<sup>4</sup> or another, believing that the article (or the article as adapted) is to be so used in circumstances where the administration is unlawful<sup>5</sup>; or
- 877 (2) supplies or offers to supply any article which may be used to prepare a controlled drug for administration by any person to himself or another believing that the article is to be so used in circumstances where the administration is unlawful<sup>6</sup>; or
- 878 (3) incites another to commit an offence under head (1) or head (2) above<sup>7</sup>, is guilty of an offence<sup>8</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>9</sup> or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to the liability of directors and officers where an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 770 note 1 ante.

2 It is not an offence under ibid s 9A(1) (as added) (see head (1) in the text) to supply or offer to supply a hypodermic syringe, or any part of one: s 9A(2) (s 9A added by the Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 s 34).

3 For the meaning of 'controlled drug' see PARA 770 note 2 ante.

4 For these purposes, references to administration by any person of a controlled drug to himself include a reference to his administering it to himself with the assistance of another: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 9A(5) (as added: see note 2 supra).

5 Ibid s 9A(1) (as added: see note 2 supra). For these purposes, any administration of a controlled drug is unlawful except: (1) the administration by any person of a controlled drug to another in circumstances where the administration of the drug is not unlawful under s 4(1) (see PARA 772 ante); or (2) the administration by any person of a controlled drug to himself in circumstances where having the controlled drug in his possession is not unlawful under s 5(1) (see PARA 770 ante): s 9A(4) (as so added).

6 Ibid s 9A(3) (as added: see note 2 supra).

7 Ibid s 19 (amended by the Criminal Attempts Act 1981 ss 10, 11, Schedule Pt I). See R v Marlow [1998] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 273, [1997] Crim LR 897, CA; and PARA 770 note 6 ante. As to incitement see PARA 65 ante.

8 See PARA 770 note 5 ante.

9 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/777. Offences by occupiers or managers of premises.

A person commits an offence<sup>1</sup> if, being the occupier<sup>2</sup> or concerned in the management<sup>3</sup> of any premises, he knowingly<sup>4</sup> permits or suffers<sup>5</sup> any of the following activities to take place on those premises: (1) producing<sup>6</sup> or attempting to produce a controlled drug<sup>7</sup> unlawfully<sup>8</sup>; (2) supplying<sup>9</sup> or attempting to supply a controlled drug to another unlawfully, or offering to supply a controlled drug to another unlawfully; (3) preparing opium for smoking; (4) smoking cannabis<sup>10</sup>, cannabis resin<sup>11</sup> or prepared opium<sup>12</sup>. It is also an offence to incite another to commit an offence under head (1), (2), (3) or (4) above<sup>13</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment or on summary conviction to imprisonment or a fine, or to both; in the case of summary conviction, the maximum fine is dependent upon the controlled drug in relation to which the offence was committed<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to the liability of directors and managers where an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 770 note 1 ante.

2 The phrase 'the occupier' should be given a commonsense interpretation. A person 'in occupation' such that he has the requisite degree of control over the premises to exclude from them those who might otherwise smoke cannabis, or engage in other activity is covered by this provision. A person can have exclusive possession without being a tenant or having an estate in the land: R v Tao [1977] QB 141, 63 Cr App Rep 163, CA (undergraduate had an exclusive contractual licence from college which gave him not merely a right to use but a sufficient exclusivity of possession; he was an occupier; appeal against conviction dismissed), disapproving the principle in, but agreeing with the decision on the facts of R v Mogford [1970] 1 WLR 988, 63 Cr App Rep 168n (for persons to be 'occupiers' under the Dangerous Drugs Act 1965 s 5 (repealed) they had to have legal possession of and control over the premises; two daughters not occupiers for the purposes of the Act when parents temporarily away on holiday). See also R v Coid [1998] Crim LR 199, CA.

3 If the defendant is managing the premises in the sense that he is running them, organising them and planning them, the fact that he has no lawful right or title to be on the premises and is a mere squatter does not prevent him from coming within the terms of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 8: R v Josephs, R v Christie (1977) 65 Cr App Rep 253, CA.

4 Knowledge can be either actual or inferred from wilful blindness, but not mere suspicion: R v Thomas, R v Thompson (1976) 63 Cr App Rep 65, CA. It is enough simply to prove on a charge of permitting premises to be used for the production or supply of a controlled drug that the defendant knew that a controlled drug was being produced or supplied there; proof of knowledge of the precise nature of the drug in question is not required, even though the particular drug is specified in the indictment or information: R v Bett [1999] 1 All ER 600, [1999] 1 Cr App Rep 361, CA.

5 Mere acquiescence in one of the prohibited activities does not amount to permitting (or, presumably, suffering) it; assistance or encouragement is required: R v Bradbury [1996] Crim LR 808, CA. This decision might be considered doubtful, since neither of the authorities relied on was actually relevant to the issue, and in ordinary language one who has the right to prevent something but acquiesces in it would be said to 'permit' or 'suffer' it; cf the later Court of Appeal decision in R v Brock [2001] 1 WLR 1159, [2001] 2 Cr App Rep 31, CA ('permit' (or presumably 'suffer') requires proof of unwillingness to prevent the prohibited activity in question, which could be inferred from failure to take reasonable steps readily available to prevent it; 'reasonable steps' in this context are to be judged in the light of the defendant's level of knowledge of the prohibited activity, but the fact that the defendant believed that he had taken reasonable steps was irrelevant). 'Suffer' does not add anything to 'permits': R v Thomas, R v Thompson (1976) 63 Cr App Rep 65, CA.

6 For the meaning of 'produce' see PARA 772 note 2 ante. An occupier permitting another to cultivate cannabis plants is permitting or suffering their production: Taylor v Chief Constable of Kent [1981] 1 WLR 606, 72 Cr App Rep 318, DC. As to cultivation of cannabis see PARA 774 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'controlled drug' see PARA 770 note 2 ante.

8 In contravention of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(1): see PARA 772 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'supply' see PARA 772 note 6 ante.

10 For the meaning of 'cannabis' see PARA 774 note 2 ante.

11 For the meaning of 'cannabis resin' see PARA 774 note 2 ante.

12 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 8. Cf R v Ashdown (1974) 59 Cr App Rep 193, CA (co-tenant permitting another co-tenant to smoke cannabis is guilty of the offence). For the meaning of 'prepared opium' see PARA 775 note 2 ante. One of the prohibited activities allegedly permitted or suffered must actually take place on the premises; merely giving tacit approval in advance is insufficient: R v Auguste [2003] EWCA Crim 3929, [2004] 4 All ER 373, [2004] 2 Cr App Rep 173.

The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument make provision for excluding in such cases as may be prescribed the application of any provision of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 which creates an offence: see ss 22(a)(i), 31(1)-(3); and MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 242-243.

See PARA 770 note 5 ante.

14 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 25(1), (2), Sch 4 (amended by the Criminal Law Act 1977 ss 27, 28, Sch 5; the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 ss 31(1)-(3), 32; the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 s 157(2), Sch 8 Pt II; and the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 284(1), Sch 28 para 1). Whichever class of drug is involved, the maxima, on conviction on indictment, are imprisonment for 14 years or a fine or both; in the case of a Class A drug or Class B drug the maxima, on summary conviction, are six months or the prescribed sum or both; in the case of a Class C drug the maximum, on summary conviction, is three months or a fine of £2,500 or both: see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 Sch 4 (as so amended). As from a day to be appointed the maximum terms of imprisonment on summary conviction are increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. The maximum of 14 years on conviction on indictment (increased from five years in respect of a Class C drug) only applies to offences involving a Class C drug committed on or after 29 January 2004: Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 284(2); Criminal Justice Act 2003 (Commencement No 2 and Saving Provisions) Order 2004, SI 2004/81.

As to special provisions relating to the minimum sentence and mode of trial for a third Class A drug trafficking offence see the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 ss 110, 112-115 (as amended); and PARA 772 note 17 ante. For the meanings of 'Class A drug', 'Class B drug' and 'Class C drug' see PARA 770 note 2 ante. Opium is a Class A drug and cannabis and cannabis resin are Class C drugs: see s 2, Sch 2 Pts I, II (amended by the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (Modification) (No 2) Order 2003, SI 2003/3201, art 2). As to the penalties for incitement see PARA 770 note 6 ante. As to the power to order forfeiture of anything shown to relate to the offence see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 480. An offence contrary to the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 8 is a 'lifestyle offence' for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 393): s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 1(1)(c). In respect of a 'lifestyle offence', the court may make a financial reporting order under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 76 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 475 et seq).

777 Offences by occupiers or managers of premises

NOTE 14--Cannabis and cannabis resin now Class B drugs: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 2, Sch 2 Pt II (amended by SI 2008/3130).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/10. OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/778. Defence of lack of knowledge in proceedings for certain offences.

778. Defence of lack of knowledge in proceedings for certain offences.

Where in any specified proceedings<sup>1</sup> it is necessary, if the defendant is to be convicted of the offence charged, for the prosecution to prove that some substance or product involved in the alleged offence was the controlled drug<sup>2</sup> which the prosecution alleges it to have been, and it is proved that the substance or product in question was that controlled drug, the defendant must be acquitted if he proves<sup>3</sup>: (1) that he neither believed nor suspected nor had reason to suspect<sup>4</sup> that the substance or product in question was a controlled drug<sup>5</sup>; or (2) that he believed the substance or product in question to be a controlled drug, or a controlled drug of a description, such that, if it had in fact been that controlled drug or a controlled drug of that description, he would not at the material time have been committing any specified offence<sup>6</sup>; but he must not be acquitted of the offence charged by reason only of proving that he neither knew nor suspected nor had reason to suspect that the substance or product in question was the particular controlled drug alleged<sup>7</sup>. However, in any proceedings for a specified offence it is a defence for the defendant to prove that he neither knew of nor suspected nor had reason to suspect the existence of some fact alleged by the prosecution which it is necessary for the prosecution to prove if he is to be convicted of the offence charged<sup>8</sup>.

1 In proceedings in respect of offences under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 ss 4(2), (3), 5(3) (see PARA 772 ante), s 5(2) (see PARA 770 ante), s 6(2) (see PARA 774 ante), s 9 (see PARA 775 ante): s 28(1). The defence also applies to an offence under the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19 (as amended) (see PARA 780 post): s 19(5). Nothing in s 28 prejudices any defence which it is open to a person charged with an offence to which s 28 applies to raise apart from s 28: s 28(4).

3 This merely imposes an evidential burden; the imposition of the legal (or persuasive) burden would be incompatible with the presumption of innocence under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) art 6(2): see R v Lambert [2001] UKHL 37, [2002] 2 AC 545, [2001] 3 All ER 577; approved in A-G's Reference (No 4 of 2002), Sheldrake v DPP [2004] UKHL 43 at [30], [2005] 1 AC 264 at [30], [2005] 1 Cr App Rep 450 at [30], per Lord Bingham of Cornhill. See also PARA 1368 et seq post. The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

4 The test of whether the defendant had no 'reason to suspect' the substance was a controlled drug is objective and not subjective; voluntary intoxication (see PARA 28 ante) which makes the defendant unable to hold a belief or register a suspicion is not a relevant consideration in the exercise of this statutory defence: R v Young [1984] 2 All ER 164, 78 Cr App Rep 288, C-MAC.

5 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 28(3)(b)(i).

7 Ibid s 28(3)(a).

8 Ibid s 28(2). On a charge of possession or possession with intent to supply, the burden of proving the requisite knowledge of the article required for possession rests on the prosecution; this is not affected by s 28(2): R v Ashton-Rickardt [1978] 1 All ER 173, 65 Cr App Rep 67, CA. Once the prosecution has proved that the defendant had control of a box, knew that he had control and knew that the box contained something which was in fact the drug alleged, the burden is cast upon the defendant to bring himself within the Misuse of Drugs

Act 1971 s 28: R v McNamara (1988) 87 Cr App Rep 246, CA. The burden on the defendant under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 28(2) is merely evidential: see note 3 supra.

The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 28 does not apply to offences of conspiracy (R v McGowan [1990] Crim LR 399, CA), nor does it apply to an offer to supply a substance which the offeror knows or believes not to be a controlled drug at all (R v Mitchell [1992] Crim LR 723, CA).

Halsbury's Laws of England/CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE (VOLUME 11(1) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1-620; VOLUME 11(2) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 621-1049; VOLUME 11(3) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1050-1557; VOLUME 11(4) (2006 REISSUE) PARAS 1558-2180)/10. OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/779. Assisting in or inducing commission outside the United Kingdom of an offence punishable under a corresponding law.

779. Assisting in or inducing commission outside the United Kingdom of an offence punishable under a corresponding law.

A person commits an offence<sup>1</sup> if: (1) in the United Kingdom<sup>2</sup> he assists in or induces<sup>3</sup> the commission<sup>4</sup> in any place outside the United Kingdom of an offence punishable under the provisions of a corresponding law<sup>5</sup> in force in that place<sup>6</sup>; or (2) he incites another to commit the offence in head (1) above<sup>7</sup>.

A person guilty of any such offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>8</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>9</sup>.

1 As to the liability of directors and officers where an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 397 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

3 'Assisting or inducing' is to be construed in its natural broad sense: R v Vickers [1975] 2 All ER 945, 61 Cr App Rep 48, CA; R v Evans (1976) 64 Cr App Rep 237, CA; R v Panayi, R v Karte (1987) 86 Cr App Rep 261, CA.

4 On the true construction of this provision a person cannot be guilty of assisting in or inducing an offence in a place outside the United Kingdom unless the offence outside the United Kingdom was committed: R v Panayi, R v Karte (1987) 86 Cr App Rep 261, CA. If an offence is committed in a place outside the United Kingdom and the defendant has in the United Kingdom assisted in or induced its commission, it is irrelevant that it is not possible to identify the principal offender, or that the final act of commission was effected by an innocent third party: R v Ahmed [1990] Crim LR 648, CA.

5 For these purposes, 'corresponding law' means a law stated in a certificate purporting to be issued by or on behalf of the government of a country outside the United Kingdom to be a law providing for the control and regulation in that country of the production, supply, use, export and import of drugs and other substances in accordance with the provisions of the Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs (New York, 30 March 1961; Misc 1 (1962); Cmnd 1580), or a law providing for the control and regulation in that country of the production, supply, use, export and import of dangerous or otherwise harmful drugs in pursuance of any treaty, convention or other agreement or arrangement to which the government of that country and Her Majesty's government in the United Kingdom are for the time being parties: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 36(1). A statement in any such certificate to the effect that any facts constitute an offence against the law mentioned in the certificate is evidence of the matters stated: s 36(2).

6 Ibid s 20. The offence is not one of strict liability: R v Vickers [1975] 2 All ER 945, 61 Cr App Rep 48, CA. It must be proved that the defendant was aware that he was assisting in or inducing the commission of an offence under a corresponding law; it is not necessary to prove that the defendant intended that that offence be committed in the actual country where it was committed: R v Ahmed [1990] Crim LR 648, CA (defendant assisted in course of conduct which resulted in drugs being imported illegally into Belgium, though the final act of importation was by an innocent third party; defendant had intended drug to be imported illegally into the Netherlands; defendant's conviction for offence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 20 upheld).

The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument make provision for excluding in such cases as may be prescribed the application of any provision of the Act which creates an offence: see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 ss 22(a)(i), 31(1)-(3); and MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 242-243.

8 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to the power to order forfeiture of anything shown to relate to the offence see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 480.

An offence contrary to the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 20 is a 'lifestyle offence' for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 393); s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 1(1)(d). In respect of a 'lifestyle offence', the court may make a financial reporting order under the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 76 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 475 et seq).

OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/780. Ships used for illicit traffic.

780. Ships used for illicit traffic.

A person is guilty of an offence if on a specified ship<sup>1</sup>, wherever it may be, he: (1) has a controlled drug<sup>2</sup> in his possession; or (2) is in any way knowingly concerned in the carrying or concealing of a controlled drug on a ship, knowing or having reasonable grounds to suspect that the drug is intended to be imported or has been exported contrary to the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971<sup>3</sup> or the law of any state other than the United Kingdom<sup>4</sup>. A certificate purporting to be issued by or on behalf of the government of any state to the effect that the importation or export of a controlled drug is prohibited by the law of that state is evidence that it is so prohibited<sup>5</sup>. Proceedings in respect of the offence may be taken in the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup>, but no such proceedings are to be instituted in England and Wales without the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions or the Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions<sup>7</sup>.

1    I.e. a British ship, a ship registered in a state other than the United Kingdom which is a party to the United Nations Convention against Illicit Traffic of Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (Vienna, 20 December 1988, TS 26 (1992); Cmd 1927), or a ship not registered in any country or territory: Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 ss 19(1), 24. 'British ship' means a ship registered in the United Kingdom or a colony; and 'ship' includes any vessel used in navigation: s 24. For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

2    'Controlled drug' and references to controlled drugs of a specified class have the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (see PARA 770 note 2 ante): Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19(5).

3    I.e. contrary to the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 3(1): see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 248.

4    Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19(2). The defence under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 28 (see PARA 778 ante) applies to this offence: Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19(5). As to the liability of directors and officers when an offence is committed by a body corporate see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 21 (as amended); and PARA 770 note 1 ante.

A person guilty of the offence is liable, in the case of a Class A drug, on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for life or a fine or both, and on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both; in the case of a Class B drug, on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both; in the case of a Class C drug, on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 14 years or a fine or both, and on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or both: Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19(4) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 284, Sch 28 para 3). As from a day to be appointed the maximum terms of imprisonment on summary conviction are increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

Where drugs have been intercepted on the high seas and those drugs were destined for a country other than England and Wales, the maximum sentence available in that country is irrelevant to sentence: R v Wagenaar, R v Pronk [1997] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 178, [1996] Crim LR 839, CA; R v Maguire [1997] 1 Cr App Rep (S) 130, CA. An offence contrary to the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19 is a 'lifestyle offence' for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75 (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 393): s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 1(3)(b). OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(1) CONTROLLED DRUGS/781. Powers of search and seizure.

781. Powers of search and seizure.

If a constable has reasonable grounds to suspect that any person is in possession<sup>1</sup> of a controlled drug<sup>2</sup> in contravention of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 or of any regulations made thereunder, the constable may:

- 879 (1) search that person, and detain him for the purpose of searching him<sup>3</sup>;
- 880 (2) search any vehicle or vessel<sup>4</sup> in which the constable suspects that the drug may be found, and for that purpose require the person in control of the vehicle or vessel to stop it<sup>5</sup>;
- 881 (3) seize and detain, for the purpose of proceedings under the Act, anything found in the course of the search which appears to the constable to be evidence of an offence under the Act<sup>6</sup>.

If a justice of the peace is satisfied by information on oath that there is reasonable ground for suspecting:

- 882 (a) that any controlled drugs are, in contravention of the Act or any regulations made thereunder, in the possession of a person on any premises; or
- 883 (b) that a document directly or indirectly relating to, or connected with, a transaction or dealing which was, or an intended transaction or dealing which would if carried out be, an offence under the Act, or in the case of a transaction or dealing carried out or intended to be carried out in a place outside the United Kingdom<sup>7</sup>, an offence against the provisions of a corresponding law<sup>8</sup> in force in that place, is in the possession of a person on any premises, he may grant a warrant authorising any constable<sup>9</sup> to enter and search<sup>10</sup> the premises named in it and any person found there and, if there is reasonable ground for suspecting that an offence under the Act has been committed in relation to any controlled drugs found on the premises or in the possession of any such person, or that a document is such as is mentioned under head (b) above, to seize and detain those controlled drugs or that document, as the case may be<sup>11</sup>.

A person who intentionally obstructs a person in the exercise of the above powers of search and seizure is guilty of an offence<sup>12</sup> and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>13</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the prescribed sum or to both<sup>14</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'possession' see PARA 771 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'controlled drug' see PARA 770 note 2 ante.

3 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(2)(a). This power does not, however, authorise a search by a constable of a person in police detention at a police station or an intimate search of a person by a constable: see the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 53(1); and PARA 1006 post.

The Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(2) is without prejudice to any other power of search or any power to seize or detain property which is exercisable by a constable: s 23(2). As to powers of stop and search see further PARA 859 et seq post. The additional powers of seizure from the person under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 s 51 apply: see s 51(5), Sch 1 Pt 2 para 77; and PARA 891 post.

As to the power of constables and other duly authorised persons to enter premises of a person carrying on business as a producer or supplier of any controlled drugs see the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(1), (4)(b), (c); and MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 279-280.

10 Such a warrant authorises entry, if need be by force, and search at any time or times within one month from the date of the warrant: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(3).

11 Ibid s 23(3). Excluding s 23(3)(a) (see head (a) in the text), s 23(3) also applies to offences under the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 ss 12, 13 (see PARA 773 ante), taking references in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(2)(b) to controlled drugs as references to scheduled substances within the meaning of the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 Pt II (ss 12-24) (as amended): Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(3A) (added by the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 23(1), (4); and amended by the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 65, Sch 1 para 4; and the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 457, Sch 12). The additional powers of seizure from premises and from the person under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 ss 50, 51 apply: see ss 50(5), 51(5), Sch 1 Pt 1 para 14, Pt 2 para 77; and PARA 890 post.

Money seized under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23 (as amended) cannot be retained by the police if the person entitled to possession of the money is not convicted of a drug trafficking offence: Webb v Chief Constable of Merseyside Police, Porter v Chief Constable of Merseyside Police [2000] QB 427, [2000] 1 All ER 209, CA. See Hepburn v Chief Constable of Thames Valley Police [2002] EWCA Civ 1841, (2002) Times, 19 December (warrant only authorised police officers to enter and search premises, not to stop and search claimant; subsequent assault on claimant as he tried to leave building not lawful). See also DPP v Meaden [2003] EWHC 3005 (Admin), [2004] 4 All ER 75, [2004] Crim LR 587 (the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 conferred the power to detain people on the premises to search them and the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 authorised police officers to use reasonable force to restrict the movement of persons to one room while another room was being searched, by using no more force than was necessary). The warrant authorises entry only to the premises described in it: R v Atkinson [1976] Crim LR 307 (wrong flat number stated in warrant; held warrant did not authorise entry etc in relation to flat intended). However, misspelling or trivial errors will not necessarily invalidate a warrant: R v Atkinson supra.

12 Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 23(4)(a). A person only commits the offence if he knows that the constable is acting for the purposes of a search under s 23 (as amended) and if the obstruction was intentional, ie if his conduct viewed objectively (through the eyes of a bystander) did obstruct the constable's detention or search, and the defendant himself intended to bring about that objective obstructive result: R v Forde (1985) 81 Cr App Rep 19, [1985] Crim LR 323, CA.

782. Closure of premises where drugs used unlawfully.

A police officer not below the rank of superintendent ('the authorising officer') may authorise<sup>1</sup> the issue of a closure notice<sup>2</sup> in respect of premises<sup>3</sup> if he has reasonable grounds for believing:

- 884 (1) that at any time during the relevant period<sup>4</sup> the premises have been used in connection with the unlawful use, production or supply of a Class A controlled drug<sup>5</sup>; and
- 885 (2) that the use of the premises is associated with the occurrence of disorder or serious nuisance to members of the public<sup>6</sup>, and he is satisfied: (a) that the local authority<sup>7</sup> for the area in which the premises are situated has been consulted; and (b) that reasonable steps have been taken to establish the identity of any person who lives on the premises or who has control of or responsibility for or an interest in the premises<sup>8</sup>.

If a closure notice has been issued, a constable must apply to a magistrates' court for the making of a closure order<sup>9</sup> requiring that the premises in respect of which the order is made are to be closed to all persons for such period (not exceeding three months) as the court decides<sup>10</sup>. The application must be heard by the magistrates' court not later than 48 hours after the notice was served<sup>11</sup>.

The magistrates' court may make a closure order if and only if it is satisfied<sup>12</sup> that each of the following applies:

- 886 (i) the premises in respect of which the closure notice was issued have been used in connection with the unlawful use, production or supply of a Class A controlled drug<sup>13</sup>;
- 887 (ii) the use of the premises is associated with the occurrence of disorder or serious nuisance to members of the public<sup>14</sup>;
- 888 (iii) the making of the order is necessary to prevent the occurrence of such disorder or serious nuisance for the period specified in the order<sup>15</sup>.

A constable or an authorised person<sup>16</sup> may enter the premises in respect of which the order is made, and do anything reasonably necessary to secure the premises against entry by any person<sup>17</sup>. A constable or authorised person may also enter the premises at any time while the order has effect for the purpose of carrying out essential maintenance of or repairs to the premises<sup>18</sup>.

At any time before the end of the period for which a closure order is made or extended a constable may make a complaint to a justice of the peace for an extension or further extension of the period for which it has effect<sup>19</sup>. A complaint, however, must not be made unless it is authorised by a police officer not below the rank of superintendent who has reasonable grounds for believing that it is necessary to extend the period for which the closure order has effect for the purpose of preventing the occurrence of disorder or serious nuisance to members of the public, and who is satisfied that the local authority has been consulted about the intention to make the complaint<sup>20</sup>. If the court is satisfied that the order is necessary to prevent the occurrence of disorder or serious nuisance for a further period it may extend the period for which the order has effect by a period not exceeding three months<sup>21</sup>. A closure order must not have effect for more than six months<sup>22</sup>. A closure order can be discharged by a magistrates' court on complaint to a justice of the peace by a specified person<sup>23</sup>, but the court must not make an order discharging a closure order unless it is satisfied that the closure order is no longer necessary to prevent the occurrence of disorder or serious nuisance to members of the public<sup>24</sup>.

Where a closure order<sup>25</sup> is made, extended or discharged, or a court decides not to make an order or not to extend or discharge it, an appeal against the order or decision must be brought to the Crown Court before the end of the period of 21 days beginning with the day on which the order or decision is made<sup>26</sup>. On such an appeal the Crown Court may make such order as it thinks appropriate<sup>27</sup>.

It is an offence to remain on or enter premises in contravention of a closure notice<sup>28</sup>. A person also commits an offence if:

- 889 (A) he obstructs a constable or an authorised person acting under the power<sup>29</sup> to fix copies of a closure notice or to give a copy of the notice to specified persons or under the power<sup>30</sup> to enter premises in respect of which a closure order has been made and to take reasonable steps to secure them<sup>31</sup>;
- 890 (B) he remains on premises in respect of which a closure order has been made<sup>32</sup>; or
- 891 (C) he enters the premises<sup>33</sup>.

A person does not commit an offence by remaining on or entering premises<sup>34</sup> in contravention of a closure notice<sup>35</sup>, or by remaining on premises in respect of which a closure order has been made<sup>36</sup>, or by entering the premises<sup>37</sup>, if he has a reasonable excuse for entering or being on the premises (as the case may be)<sup>38</sup>.

A person guilty of an offence mentioned above is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale, or to both such imprisonment and fine<sup>39</sup>.

The court which made the closure order may, on application by a police authority or local authority, make an order that the owner<sup>40</sup> of the premises reimburse any expenditure incurred by the applicant authority in clearing, securing or maintaining the premises in respect of which the order has effect<sup>41</sup>.

A constable is not liable for relevant damages<sup>42</sup> in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by him in the performance or purported performance of his functions under the above provisions<sup>43</sup>. Nor is a chief officer of police liable for relevant damages in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by a constable under his direction or control in the performance or purported performance of the constable's functions under the above provisions<sup>44</sup>. These exemptions do not apply in certain circumstances<sup>45</sup>.

Compensation may be paid out of central funds, on application by a person who incurs financial loss in consequence of the issue of a closure notice or of a closure order having effect, by the magistrates' court which considered the application for the order or by the Crown Court if the closure order was made or extended by that court on an appeal<sup>46</sup>.

1 An authorisation may be given orally or in writing, but if it is given orally the authorising officer must confirm it in writing as soon as it is practicable: Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 1(3).

2 'Closure notice' means a notice issued under ibid s 1 (as amended): s 11(4). A closure notice must: (1) give notice that an application will be made under s 2 for the closure of the premises (see the text and notes 9-15 infra); (2) state that access to the premises by any person other than a person who habitually resides in the premises or the owner of the premises is prohibited; (3) specify the date and time when and the place at which the application will be heard; (4) explain the effects of an order made in pursuance of s 2; (5) state that failure to comply with the notice amounts to an offence; (6) give information about relevant advice providers: s 1(4). Information about relevant advice providers is information about the names of and means of contacting persons and organisations in the area that provide advice about housing and legal matters: s 1(11).

The closure notice must be served by a constable: s 1(5). Service is effected by: (a) fixing a copy of the notice to at least one prominent place on the premises (s 1(6)(a)); (b) fixing a copy of the notice to each normal means of access to the premises (s 1(6)(b)); (c) fixing a copy of the notice to any outbuildings which appear to the constable to be used with or as part of the premises (s 1(6)(c)); (d) giving a copy of the notice to at least one person who appears to the constable to have control of or responsibility for the premises (s 1(6)(d)); and (e) giving a copy of the notice to the persons identified in pursuance of head (b) in the text and to any other person appearing to the constable to be a person of a description mentioned in that head (s 1(6)(e)). For the purpose of head (a) supra, a constable may enter any premises to which s 1 (as amended) applies, using reasonable force if necessary: s 1(7A) (added by the Drugs Act s 23, Sch 1 para 7).

The closure notice must also be served on any person who occupies any other part of the building or other structure in which the premises are situated if the constable reasonably believes at the time of serving the notice that the person's access to the other part of the building or structure will be impeded if a closure order is made: Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 1(7).

3 'Premises' includes any land or other place (whether enclosed or not), and any outbuildings which are or are used as part of the premises: ibid s 11(3). The Secretary of State may by regulations specify premises or descriptions of premises to which s 1 (as amended) does not apply: s 1(9). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

Subordinate legislation under the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 (ie an order of the Secretary of State or the National Assembly for Wales (s 94(1)(a)) and regulations (s 94(1)(b))) may make different provision for different purposes, different cases and different areas (s 94(2)(a)) and may include incidental, supplemental, consequential, saving or transitional provisions (including provisions applying, with or without modification, provision contained in an enactment) (s 94(2)(b)). A power to make subordinate legislation is exercisable by statutory instrument (s 94(3)), and that instrument is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament if it contains subordinate legislation made by the Secretary of State other than regulations under s 81 or s 83 (s 94(4)(a)) or an order under s 93 (s 94(4)(b)). No regulations may be made by the Secretary of State under s 81 or s 83 (whether alone or with other provisions) unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing the regulations has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament: s 94(5).

4 The relevant period is the period of three months ending with the day on which the authorising officer considers whether to authorise the issue of a closure notice in respect of the premises: ibid s 1(10).

5 Ibid s 1(a). The reference to a 'controlled drug' is a reference to a Class A drug within the meaning of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 2 (see PARA 770 note 2 ante): Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 11(2).

7 For these purposes (1) each of the following is a local authority in relation to England: a district council, a London borough council, a county council for an area for which there is no district council, the Common Council of the City of London in its capacity as a local authority, and the Council of the Isles of Scilly; and (2) each of the following is a local authority in relation to Wales: a county council and a county borough council: s 11(6), (7). The reference to the local authority is a reference to the local authority for the area in which the premises to which the closure notice applies are situated: s 11(8)(a). As to areas and authorities in England and Wales see further LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 22 et seq.

8 Ibid s 1(2). It is immaterial whether any person has been convicted of an offence relating to the use, production or supply of a controlled drug (see PARA 770 et seq ante): s 1(8). References to the production or supply of a controlled drug are to be construed in accordance with the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (see PARA 772 ante): Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 11(1).

9 Ibid s 2(1). A 'closure order' is an order that the premises in respect of which the order is made are to be closed to all persons for such period (not exceeding three months) as the court decides: s 2(4). As well as being used for an order made under s 2, it is also the term used to describe an order extended under s 5 (see the text and notes 19-24 infra) and an order made or extended under s 6 (see the text and notes 25-27 infra) which has the like effect as an order made or extended under s 2 or s 5 as the case may be: s 11(5).

Proceedings for the making of such an order are civil proceedings; they engage a person's rights under the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1 Pt I and the relevant provisions must be read in a way which is compatible with that Act: Metropolitan Police Comr v Hooper [2005] EWHC 340 (Admin), [2005] 4 All ER 1095, [2005] 1 WLR 1995.

10 Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 2(4). The order may include such provision as the court thinks appropriate relating to access to any part of the building or structure of which the premises form part: s 2(5). A closure order may be made in respect of all or any part of the premises in respect of which the closure notice was issued: s 2(8).

A person who occupies or owns any part of a building or structure in which closed premises (ie premises in respect of which a closure order has effect) are situated, and in respect of which the closure order does not have effect, may apply for an order in relation to any access to his part of the building or structure: ss 7(1), (2), 11(9). Such a person may at any time while a closure order has effect apply to the magistrates' court in respect of an order made under s 2 or s 5, or to the Crown Court in respect of an order made under s 6 (see the text and notes 25-27 infra): s 7(2). If such an application is made, notice of the date, time and place of the hearing to consider the application must be given to every person mentioned in s 5(6) (as amended) (see note 23 infra): s 7(3). On such an application the court may make such order as it thinks appropriate in relation to access to any part of a building or structure in which closed premises are situated: s 7(4). It is immaterial whether any provision has been made as mentioned in s 2(5): s 7(5).

11 Ibid s 2(2). 'Served' in this context means served in pursuance of s 1(6)(a), ie by fixing a copy to at least one prominent place on the premises: s 2(2).

The magistrates' court may adjourn the hearing on the application for a period of not more than 14 days to enable:

- 196 (1) the occupier of the premises;
- 197 (2) the person who has control of or responsibility for the premises; or
- 198 (3) any other person with an interest in the premises, to show why a closure order should not be made: s 2(6). If the magistrates' court adjourns the hearing it may order that the closure notice is to continue in effect until the end of the period of the adjournment: s 2(7).

Note that the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 does not expressly or impliedly exclude the operation of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 54 (adjournment of hearing of complaint: see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 707) so that in exceptional circumstances the power to adjourn is available over and above the express statutory power in the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 2(6). The power under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 54 should not be used to frustrate the statutory purpose; it should be exercised only when there is no other way to avoid a breach of a person's rights under the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (Rome, 4 November 1950; TS 71 (1953); Cmd 8969) and consideration should always be given to the statutory purpose of closing down premises by way of a speedy procedure. Furthermore, if the power to adjourn under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 54 is exercised, the express power to order that the closure notice should continue until the end of the period of adjournment is not available. Magistrates should have in mind the possibility of adjourning the case to another bench if, due to lack of availability, it would not be possible to continue within the statutory timeframe: Metropolitan Police Comr v Hooper [2005] EWHC 340 (Admin), [2005] 4 All ER 1095, [2005] 1 WLR 1995. The phrase 'exceptional circumstances' in the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 54 encompasses circumstances, however frequent or infrequent, that are so compelling as to make it necessary in the interests of justice to override Parliament's clear intention, expressed in the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 2(6), that closure order proceedings should be concluded speedily: R (on the application of Turner) v Highbury Corner Magistrates' Court [2005] EWHC 2568 (Admin), 170 JP 93.

The Convention is commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights and is enshrined in the Human Rights Act 1998 Sch 1: see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 122 et seq.

12 The standard of proof applicable is the civil standard (ie the balance of probabilities): Chief Constable of Merseyside Police v Harrison (Secretary of State for the Home Department intervening) [2006] EWHC 1106 (Admin), [2006] 3 WLR 171, (2006) Times, 14 April, DC.

13 Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 2(3)(a). It is immaterial whether any person has been convicted of an offence relating to the use, production or supply of a controlled drug (see PARA 770 et seq ante): s 2(9).

14 Ibid s 2(3)(b). See note 13 supra.

15 Ibid s 2(3)(c). See note 13 supra.

16 Ie a person authorised by the chief officer of police for the area in which the premises are situated: ibid s 3(1), (6).

17 Ibid s 3(2). A person acting under s 3(2) may use reasonable force: s 3(3). However, a constable or authorised person seeking to enter the premises for the purposes of s 3(2) must, if required to do so by or on behalf of the owner, occupier or other person in charge of the premises, produce evidence of his identity and authority before entering the premises: s 3(4).

18 Ibid s 3(5).

19 Ibid s 5(1) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 (Consequential Provisions) Order 2005, SI 2005/886, art 2, Schedule para 98). If such a complaint is made, the justice may issue a summons directed to: (1) the persons on whom the closure notice relating to the closed premises was served under s 1(6)(d) or s 1(6)(e) or s 1(7) (see note 2 supra); (2) any other person who appears to the justice to have an interest in the closed premises but on whom the closure notice was not served, requiring such person to appear before the magistrates' court to answer to the complaint: s 5(3).

If a summons is issued in accordance with s 5(3), a notice stating the date, time and place at which the complaint will be heard must be served on: (a) the persons to whom the summons is directed; (b) such constable as the justice thinks appropriate (unless he is the complainant); (c) the local authority (unless it is the complainant): see s 5(9). The reference to a local authority in respect of a closure order is a reference to the local authority for the area in which the premises in respect of which a closure order has effect are situated: s 11(8)(b).

20 Ibid s 5(2).

22 Ibid s 5(5).

23 Ibid s 5(6) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 (Consequential Provisions) Order 2005, SI 2005/886, Schedule para 98). The following persons are specified for these purposes: a constable; the local authority; a person on whom the closure notice relating to the closed premises was served under the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 1(6)(d) or s 1(6)(e) or s 1(7) (see note 2 supra); a person who has an interest in the closed premises but on whom the closure notice was not served: s 5(6)(a)-(d). If a complaint is made by a person other than a constable the justice may issue a summons directed to such constable as he thinks appropriate requiring the constable to appear before the magistrates' court to answer to the complaint: s 5(7). If a summons is issued in accordance with s 5(7), a notice stating the date, time and place at which the complaint will be heard must be served on: (1) the persons mentioned in s 1(6)(c) or s 1(6)(d) (see note 2 supra) (except the complainant); (2) such constable as the justice thinks appropriate (unless he is the complainant); (3) the local authority (unless it is the complainant): see s 5(9); and note 19 supra.

24 Ibid s 5(8).

25 Ie an order under ibid s 2 or s 5: s 6(1).

26 Ibid s 6(1), (2). An appeal against the making or extension of a closure order may be brought by a person on whom the closure notice relating to the closed premises was served under s 1(6)(d) or s 1(6)(e) (see note 2 supra), or by a person who has an interest in the closed premises but on whom the closure notice was not served: s 6(3). An appeal against the decision of a court not to make such an order may be brought by a constable or by the local authority: s 6(4).

27 Ibid s 6(5).

29 Ie the power under ibid s 1(6) (see note 2 supra).

30 Ie the power under ibid s 3(2) (see the text to note 17 supra).

31 Ibid s 4(2)(a).

32 Ibid s 4(2)(b).

33 Ibid s 4(2)(c).

34 See note 3 supra.

35 Ie the offence under the Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 4(1): see the text to note 26 supra.

36 Ie the offence under ibid s 4(2)(b): see head (b) in the text.

37 Ie the offence under ibid s 4(2)(c): see head (c) in the text.

38 Ibid s 4(4).

39 Ibid s 4(3). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 51 weeks (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 281(4), (5), (7) (not yet in force)), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (s 281(6)(b) (not yet in force)). As to the standard scale see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142.

40 A person is the owner of premises if he is either: (1) a person (other than a mortgagee not in possession) who is for the time being entitled to dispose of the fee simple in the premises, whether in possession or in reversion; or (2) a person who holds or is entitled to the rents and profits of the premises under a lease which (when granted) was for a term of not less than three years: Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 11(10).

41 Ibid s 8(1), (2). An application under s 8 must be served on the police authority for the area in which the premises are situated if the application is made by the local authority (and vice versa), and on the owner of the premises: s 8(4). Such an application must not be entertained unless it is made not later than the end of the period of three months starting with the day the closure order ceases to have effect: s 8(3).

42 Relevant damages are damages in proceedings for judicial review or for the tort of negligence or misfeasance in public duty: ibid s 9(5). As to judicial review see JUDICIAL REVIEW. As to negligence see generally NEGLIGENCE. As to misfeasance in public duty see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 188; TORT vol 97 (2010) PARA 719.

43 Ibid s 9(1). Section 9 does not affect any other exemption from liability for damages (whether at common law or otherwise): s 9(4). As to damages generally see DAMAGES.

45 The exemptions contained in ibid s 9(1), (2) do not apply if the act or omission is shown to have been in bad faith; nor do they apply so as to prevent an award of damages made in respect of an act or omission on the ground that it was unlawful by virtue of the Human Rights Act 1998 s 6(1): Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 9(3). The Human Rights Act 1998 s 6 makes it unlawful for a public authority to act in a way which is incompatible with a Convention right: see s 6(1); and JUDICIAL REVIEW vol 61 (2010) PARA 651.

46 Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 s 10(1), (2). 'On an appeal' refers to an appeal under s 6: see s 10(2). An application under s 10 must not be entertained unless it is made not later than the end of the period of three months starting with whichever is the later of: (1) the day the court decides not to make a closure order; (2) the day the Crown Court dismisses an appeal against a decision not to make a closure order; (3) the day a closure order ceases to have effect: s 10(3). On such an application the court may order the payment of compensation out of central funds if it is satisfied:

- 199 (a) that the person had no connection with the use of the premises as mentioned in s 1(1) (see the text and notes 1-6 supra) (s 10(4)(a));
- 200 (b) if the person is the owner or occupier of the premises, that he took reasonable steps to prevent the use (s 10(4)(b));
- 201 (c) that the person has incurred financial loss in consequence of the issue of a closure notice or the closure order having effect (s 10(4)(a)); and
- 202 (d) having regard to all the circumstances it is appropriate to order payment of compensation in respect of that loss (s 10(4)(d)).

For these purposes, 'central funds' has the same meaning as in enactments providing for the payment of costs: s 10(5). See PARA 2058 note 13 post.

Orders to make material available.

(2) INVESTIGATION OF DRUG TRAFFICKING

784. Orders to make material available.

A constable<sup>1</sup> may, for the purpose of an investigation into drug trafficking<sup>2</sup>, apply to a circuit judge for an order in relation to particular material or material of a particular description<sup>3</sup>. If on such an application the judge is satisfied that the prescribed conditions are fulfilled, he may make an order that the person who appears to him to be in possession of the material to which the application relates must: (1) produce it to a constable for him to take away<sup>4</sup>; or (2) give a constable access to it<sup>5</sup>, within such period<sup>6</sup> as the order may specify<sup>7</sup>.

The prescribed conditions are:

- 892 (a) that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that a specified person has carried on drug trafficking<sup>8</sup>;
- 893 (b) that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that the material to which the application relates:
  - 27 37. (i) is likely to be of substantial value (whether by itself or together with other material) to the investigation for the purpose of which the application is made<sup>9</sup>; and
  - 38. (ii) does not consist of or include items subject to legal privilege<sup>10</sup> or excluded material<sup>11</sup>; and
- 28 894 (c) that there are reasonable grounds for believing that it is in the public interest (having regard to the benefit likely to accrue to the investigation if the material is obtained, and to the circumstances under which the person in possession of the material holds it) that the material should be produced or that access to it should be given<sup>12</sup>.

Where any such order has been made by the Crown Court, any person affected by it may apply<sup>13</sup> in writing to the court officer for the order to be discharged or varied; and on hearing such an application a circuit judge may discharge the order or make such variations to it as he thinks fit<sup>14</sup>.

1 'Constable' includes a person commissioned as an officer by the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (see PARA 354 note 2 ante): see the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(1), (2) (s 59A added by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 456, Sch 11 para 25(1), (4)); and the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7).

2 For these purposes, 'drug trafficking' means doing or being concerned in any of the following (whether in England and Wales or elsewhere):

203 (1) producing or supplying a controlled drug where the production or supply contravenes the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 4(1) (see PARA 772 ante) or a corresponding law (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(4)(a) (as added: see note 1 supra));

- 204 (2) transporting or storing a controlled drug where possession of the drug contravenes the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 5(1) (see PARA 770 ante) or a corresponding law (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(4)(b) (as so added));
- 205 (3) importing or exporting a controlled drug where the importation or exportation is prohibited by the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 s 3(1) (see MEDICINAL PRODUCTS AND DRUGS vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 248) or a corresponding law (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(4)(c) (as so added));
- 206 (4) manufacturing or supplying a scheduled substance within the meaning of the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 12 (see PARA 773 ante) where the manufacture or supply is an offence under that provision or would be such an offence if it took place in England and Wales (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(4)(d) (as so added));
- 207 (5) using any ship for illicit traffic in controlled drugs in circumstances which amount to the commission of an offence under the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 19 (see PARA 780 ante) (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(4)(e) (as so added)).

In s 59A(4) (as added), 'corresponding law' has the same meaning as in the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 (see PARA 779 note 5 ante): Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 59A(5) (as so added). For the purposes of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 ss 21, 22 (see PARAS 888-889 post), an investigation into drug trafficking is to be treated as if it were an investigation of or in connection with an offence: Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 57(1)(a). Where material produced under s 55 (as amended) (see PARA 784 post) is retained under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 22, the constable retaining it may make information contained in the material available to a foreign law enforcement agency: R v Crown Court at Southwark, ex p Customs and Excise Comrs [1990] 1 QB 650, [1989] 3 All ER 673, DC (decision in respect of the Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 s 27 (repealed), which is almost identical to the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55).

As to the power of the Secretary of State to make grants in relation to combating drug misuse and drug trafficking see the Criminal Justice Act 1993 s 73.

3 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(1). An application under s 55(1) may be made without notice to the person apparently in possession of the material to a judge in private: s 55(6). An order of a circuit judge made under s 55 (as amended) has effect as if it were an order of the Crown Court: s 55(8). Provision may be made by the Criminal Procedure Rules as to the discharge and variation of orders under the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55 (as amended) and proceedings relating to such orders: s 55(7) (amended by the Courts Act 2003 s 109(1), Sch 8 para 364). See the text and notes 13, 14 infra.

The power to make an order under the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(1) is not limited to an investigation conducted by officers of Revenue and Customs in the United Kingdom; but an information laid in support of an application for such an order made solely or partly to assist an investigation by a foreign law enforcement agency must so indicate on its face: R v Crown Court at Southwark, ex p Customs and Excise Comrs [1990] 1 QB 650, [1989] 3 All ER 673, DC (decided under the Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 s 27 (now repealed)).

4 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(2)(a). Where the material to which such an application relates consists of information contained in a computer, an order under s 55(2)(a) has effect as an order to produce the material in a form in which it can be taken away and in which it is visible and legible: s 55(9)(a). For the purposes of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 ss 21, 22 (see PARAS 888-889 post), material produced in pursuance of an order under the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(2)(a) is to be treated as if it were material seized by a constable: s 57(1)(b).

If the prescribed conditions for making a production order are satisfied, the judge has a discretion whether to make such an order; but only in exceptional circumstances is it appropriate to require undertakings from the applicant before making an order: R v Crown Court at Southwark, ex p Customs and Excise Comrs [1990] 1 QB 650, [1989] 3 All ER 673, DC (decided under the Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 s 27 (now repealed)).

5 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(2)(b). Where the material to which such an application relates consists of information contained in a computer, an order under s 55(2)(b) has effect as an order to give access to the material in a form in which it is visible and legible: s 55(9)(b). Where the judge makes an order under s 55(2)(b) in relation to material on any premises, he may, on the application of a constable, order any person who appears to him to be entitled to grant entry to the premises to allow a constable to enter the premises to obtain access to the material: s 55(5). An application under s 55(5) may be made without notice to the person apparently in possession of the material to a judge in private: s 55(6).

6 The period to be specified must be seven days unless it appears to the judge that a longer or shorter period would be appropriate in the particular circumstances of the application: ibid s 55(3).

7 Ibid s 55(2). Section 55(2) is subject to s 59(11) (see PARA 786 post): s 55(2).

An order under s 55(2) does not confer any right to production of, or access to, items subject to legal privilege (see note 10 infra) or excluded material (see note 11 infra): s 55(10)(a). It has effect notwithstanding any obligation as to secrecy or other restriction upon the disclosure of information imposed by statute or otherwise: s 55(10)(b). It may be made in relation to material in the possession of an authorised government department: s 55(10)(c). For these purposes, 'authorised government department' means a government department which is an authorised department for the purposes of the Crown Proceedings Act 1947 (see CROWN PROCEEDINGS AND CROWN PRACTICE): Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(10).

8 Ibid s 55(4)(a) (amended by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 ss 456, 457, Sch 11 paras 1, 25(1), (2)(b), Sch 12).

9 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55(4)(b)(i).

10 For these purposes, 'item subject to legal privilege' has the same meaning as in the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (see PARA 873 note 8 post): Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 57(2).

11 Ibid s 55(4)(b)(ii). For these purposes, 'excluded material' has the same meaning as in the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (see PARA 875 post): Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 57(2).

12 Ibid s 55(4)(c).

13 Where a person proposes so to make an application, he must give a copy of the application, not later than 48 hours before the making of the application, to a constable at the police station specified in the order, together with a notice indicating the time and place at which the application for discharge or variation is to be made: CrimPR 56.4(2). For these purposes, 'constable' includes a person commissioned as an officer by the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (see PARA 354 note 2 ante); and 'police station' includes a place for the time being occupied by Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs: see CrimPR 56.4(4); and the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (2), (7). A circuit judge may, however, direct that CrimPR 56.4(2) need not be complied with if he is satisfied that the person making the application has good reason to seek a discharge or variation of the order as soon as possible and it is not practicable to comply with CrimPR 56.4(2): see CrimPR 56.4(3).

14 CrimPR 56.4(1). 'Appropriate officer' has the same meaning as in the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 378 (see PARA 804 note 2 post): CrimPR 56.4(4).

785. Authority for search.

A constable<sup>1</sup> may, for the purpose of an investigation into drug trafficking<sup>2</sup>, apply to a circuit judge for a warrant in relation to specified premises<sup>3</sup>. On such an application the judge may issue a warrant authorising a constable to enter and search the premises if he is satisfied that an order made<sup>4</sup> in relation to material on the premises has not been complied with, or that either of the two sets of prescribed conditions<sup>5</sup> is fulfilled<sup>6</sup>.

The first set of prescribed conditions is:

- 895 (1) that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that a specified person has carried on drug trafficking<sup>7</sup>; and
  - 896 (2) that the statutory conditions<sup>8</sup> are fulfilled in relation to any material on the premises<sup>9</sup>; and
  - 897 (3) that it would not be appropriate to make an order to make material available because:
- 29
- 39. (a) it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to produce the material<sup>10</sup>; or
  - 40. (b) it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant access to the material or entitled to grant entry to the premises on which the material is situated<sup>11</sup>; or
  - 41. (c) the investigation for the purpose of which the application is made might be seriously prejudiced unless a constable could secure immediate access to the material<sup>12</sup>.
- 30

The second set of prescribed conditions is:

- 898 (i) that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that a specified person has carried on drug trafficking<sup>13</sup>; and
  - 899 (ii) that there are reasonable grounds for suspecting that there is on the premises material relating to the specified person or to drug trafficking which is likely to be of substantial value (whether by itself or together with other material) to the investigation for the purpose of which the application is made, but that the material cannot at the time of the application be particularised<sup>14</sup>; and
  - 900 (iii) that:
- 31
- 42. (A) it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant entry to the premises<sup>15</sup>; or
  - 43. (B) entry to the premises will not be granted unless a warrant is produced<sup>16</sup>; or
  - 44. (C) the investigation for the purpose of which the application is made might be seriously prejudiced unless a constable arriving at the premises could secure immediate entry to them<sup>17</sup>.
- 32

Where a constable has entered premises in the execution of a warrant so issued, he may seize and retain any material, other than items subject to legal privilege<sup>18</sup> and excluded material<sup>19</sup>, which is likely to be of substantial value, whether by itself or together with other material, to the investigation for the purpose of which the warrant was issued<sup>20</sup>.

786. Disclosure of information held by government departments.

In the case of material in the possession of an authorised government department<sup>1</sup>, an order for its production<sup>2</sup> may require any officer of the department (whether named in the order or not) who may for the time being be in possession of the material concerned to comply with it, and such an order must be served as if the proceedings were proceedings against the department<sup>3</sup>. The person on whom such an order is served:

901 (1) must take all reasonable steps to bring it to the attention of the officer concerned; and

902 (2) if the order is not brought to that officer's attention within a specified period<sup>4</sup>, must report the reasons for the failure to the court, and it is the duty of any other officer of the department in receipt of the order to take such steps as are mentioned in head (1) above<sup>5</sup>.

OFFENCES RELATING TO CONTROLLED DRUGS ETC/(2) INVESTIGATION OF DRUG TRAFFICKING/787. Prejudicing investigation.

787. Prejudicing investigation.

Where, in relation to an investigation into drug trafficking<sup>1</sup>, an order<sup>2</sup> to make material available has been made or has been applied for and has not been refused, or a warrant<sup>3</sup> to enter and search has been issued, a person who, knowing or suspecting that the investigation is taking place, makes any disclosure which is likely to prejudice the investigation is guilty of an offence<sup>4</sup>. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six<sup>5</sup> months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both<sup>6</sup>.

In proceedings against a person for such an offence it is a defence to prove that he did not know or suspect that the disclosure was likely to prejudice the investigation or that he had lawful authority or reasonable excuse for making the disclosure<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'drug trafficking' see PARA 784 note 2 ante.

2 Ie under the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 55 (as amended): see PARA 784 ante.

3 Ie under ibid s 56: see PARA 785 ante.

4 Ibid s 58(1). Nothing in s 58(1) makes it an offence for a professional legal adviser to disclose any information or other matter: (1) to, or to a representative of, a client of his in connection with the giving by the legal adviser of legal advice to the client; or (2) to any person in contemplation of, or in connection with, legal proceedings, and for the purposes of those proceedings: s 58(3). However, s 58(3) does not apply in relation to any information or other matter which is disclosed with a view to furthering a criminal purpose: s 58(4).

The Secretary of State may by regulations made by statutory instrument provide that, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, s 58 is to apply to such persons in the public service of the Crown, or such categories of person in that service, as may be prescribed: s 61(1), (6) (s 61(1) amended by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 456, Sch 11 para 25(1), (6)). Any such instrument is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 61(7). 'The Crown' includes the Crown in right of Her Majesty's government in Northern Ireland; and 'prescribed' means prescribed by regulations made by the Secretary of State: s 61(5). See the Drug Trafficking Offences Act 1986 (Crown Servants and Regulators etc) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1757 (amended by SI 1998/1129, SI 2001/3649). These regulations have continued effect under the Drug Trafficking Act 1994: see s 66(1), (3), Sch 2 para 3.

Proceedings for an offence under s 58 or for any attempt, conspiracy or incitement to commit any such offence may be instituted by the Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions (see PARA 1068 post) or by order of the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs (see PARA 354 note 2 ante): s 60(1), (6) (s 60(1), (2), (5) (b), (6) amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 ss 50(6), 52(2), Sch 4 para 59(a), (b), (d), (e), Sch 5; and the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 60(6) further amended, and s 60(6A), (6B) added, by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 ss 456, 457, Sch 11 para 25(1), (2), (5), Sch 12).

Proceedings for an offence are instituted: (a) when a justice of the peace issues a summons or warrant under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 1 (issue of summons to, or warrant for arrest of, accused: see MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARAS 522-523) in respect of the offence (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 60(6A)(a) (as so added)); (b) when a person is charged with the offence after being taken into custody without a warrant (s 60(6A)(b) (as so added)); (c) when a bill of indictment is preferred under the Administration of Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1933 s 2 (see PARA 1206 post) in a case falling within s 2(2)(b) (preference by direction of the criminal division of the Court of Appeal or by direction, or with the consent, of a High Court judge) (Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 60(6A)(c) (as so added)); (d) when a public prosecutor issues a written charge and requisition in respect of the offence (s 60(6A)(aa) (s 60(6A) as so added; s 60(6A)(aa) prospectively added by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 331, Sch 36 para 12(1), (3))). Head (d) supra is added with effect as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. Where the application of the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 60(6A) (as added and amended) would result in there being more than one time for the institution of proceedings, they must be taken to have been instituted at the earliest of those times: s 60(6B) (as so added). Any proceedings for such an offence which are instituted by order of the Commissioners must be commenced in the name of an officer of Revenue and Customs: s 60(2) (as so amended).

Where the Commissioners investigate, or propose to investigate, any matter with a view to determining whether there are grounds for believing that a specified offence has been committed (s 60(4)(a)) or whether a person should be prosecuted for a specified offence (s 60(4)(b)), that matter must be treated as an assigned matter within the meaning of the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 (see s 1(1); and CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 903).

Nothing in the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 60 (as amended) is to be taken either to prevent any person (including any officer) who has power to arrest, detain or prosecute any person for a specified offence from doing so (s 60(5)(a)) or to prevent a court from proceeding to deal with a person brought before it following his arrest by an officer for a specified offence, even though the proceedings have not been instituted in accordance with s 60 (s 60(5)(b) (as so amended)).

5 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 58(5). As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

he is guilty of an offence, if he knows or has reasonable cause to believe that the substance is, or its fumes are, likely to be inhaled by the person under the age of 18 for the purposes of causing intoxication<sup>2</sup>. ## 11. MISCELLANEOUS OFFENCES

(1) MONEY LAUNDERING OFFENCES

(i) Introduction

789. The Proceeds of Crime Act 2002.

The Proceeds of Crime Act 2002<sup>1</sup> reformed, repealed and replaced the previous provisions relating to money laundering<sup>2</sup>, other than those relating to terrorist funds<sup>3</sup>. The relevant provisions of the Act can be grouped as follows:

- 905 (1) the three principal money laundering<sup>4</sup> offences<sup>5</sup>;
- 906 (2) offences involving a failure to disclose<sup>6</sup>;
- 907 (3) the offence of tipping-off<sup>7</sup>.

In addition, regulations have been made under the Act which oblige financial institutions to have systems to detect and prevent money laundering<sup>8</sup>.

Guidance notes on money laundering have been produced by various bodies<sup>9</sup>.

1 le the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 Pt 7 (ss 327-340) (as amended): see PARAS 790-803 post.

2 le the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 ss 49-54 (repealed) (proceeds of drug trafficking); and the Criminal Justice Act 1988 ss 93A-93D (repealed) (proceeds of other criminal conduct).

3 le the Terrorism Act 2000 s 18: see PARA 393 ante.

4 For the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 Pt 7 (as amended), 'money laundering' is an act which:

- 208 (1) constitutes an offence under s 327, s 328 or s 329 (see PARAS 791-793 post) (s 340(11)(a));
- 209 (2) constitutes an attempt, conspiracy or incitement to commit such an offence (see PARAS 65-67, 79 ante) (s 340(11)(b));
- 210 (3) constitutes aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring the commission of an offence specified in head (1) supra (see PARAS 791-793 ante) (s 340(11)(c)); or
- 211 (4) would constitute an offence specified in head (1), (2) or (3) supra if done in the United Kingdom (s 340(11)(d)).

For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

5 See ibid ss 327-329 (as amended); and PARAS 791-793 post. The principal money laundering offences under ss 327-329 (as amended) do not have effect where the conduct constituting an offence under those provisions began before 24 February 2003 and ended on or after that date and the old principal money laundering offences (ie under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 ss 93A-93C (repealed); the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 ss 49-51 (repealed); and the Criminal Justice (International Co-operation) Act 1990 s 14 (repealed)) continue to have effect in such circumstances: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Commencement No 4, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2003, SI 2003/120, arts 1, 3 (amended by SI 2003/333).

6 See the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 ss 330-332 (as amended); and PARAS 797-799 post. The failure to disclose offences under ss 330-332 do not have effect where the information or other matter on which knowledge or suspicion that another person is engaged in money laundering is based, or which gives reasonable grounds for such knowledge or suspicion, came to a person before 24 February 2003; and the old failure to disclose offence under the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 52 (repealed) continues to have effect in such circumstances: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Commencement No 4, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2003, SI 2003/120, arts 1, 4.

7 See the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 333; and PARA 803 post.

Proceedings for an offence under Pt 7 (as amended), or for attempt, conspiracy or incitement to commit any such offence, or aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring any such offence, may be started by the Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions or by order of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs: see s 451(1), (6)(a), (c), (d) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(6), Sch 4 para 99(a)). Where proceedings are so instituted by the Commissioners, the proceedings must be brought in the name of an officer of Revenue and Customs: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 451(2) (substituted by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 Sch 4 para 99(b)). See also the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 451(4), (5) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 Sch 4 para 99(d)). As to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 354 note 2 ante. The Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions is appointed under the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 34: see PARA 1068 post.

The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that any of the offences under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 Pt 7 (as amended) are to apply to persons in the public service of the Crown: s 452(1), (2)(a). Any subordinate legislation (ie any Order in Council, order or regulations) made under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 may make different provision for different purposes and may include supplementary, incidental, saving or transitional provisions: see s 459(1), (2). Any power to make such subordinate legislation is exercisable by statutory instrument (s 459(3)) and (except in the case of an order under s 75(7) or (8) (see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 392), s 223(7) or (8), s 282 (see PARA 2161 post), s 292(4) (see PARA 2165 post), s 309 (see PARA 2149 post), s 339A(7) (as added) (see PARA 791 post), s 364(4) (see PARA 814 post), s 377(4) (see PARA 818 post), s 436(6), s 438(9) or s 458) is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament (s 459(4)(a) (amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 103(1), (7))). No order may be made by the Secretary of State under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75(7) or (8), s 223(7) or (8), s 282, s 292(4), s 309, s 339A(7) (as added), s 364(4), s 377(4), s 436(6) or s 438(9) unless a draft of the order has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: s 459(6)(a) (amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 103(1), (7)). Provision is also made in connection with the making of subordinate legislation by the Scottish Ministers and in connection with the making of subordinate legislation which makes provision only in relation to Scotland: see the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 459(4)(b), (c), (5), (6)(b), (7).

The offences in Pt 7 (as amended) apply to the Director of Savings appointed under the National Debt Act 1972 s 1 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 810) and any person employed or otherwise engaged in his service: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Crown Servants) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/173. For savings in relation to prosecutions and as to offences committed before 24 February 2003 see the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Commencement No 4, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2003, SI 2003/120, art 6.

In respect of tipping-off, the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 342 (see PARA 804 post) does not have effect where the conduct constituting an offence under s 342 began before 24 February 2003 and ended on or after that date, and the tipping-off offences under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 93D(1) (repealed) and the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 53(1) (repealed) and s 58 continue to have effect in such circumstances: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Commencement No 4, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2003, SI 2003/120, arts 1, 5(1). The tipping-off offences under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 93D(2), (3) (repealed) continue to have effect where the disclosure mentioned in s 93D(2)(a) (repealed) or s 93D(3)(a) (repealed), as the case may be, was made before 24 February 2003, and the provisions of the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 52(2), (3) (repealed) continue to have effect where the disclosure mentioned in s 52(2)(a) (repealed) or s 53(3)(a) (repealed), as the case may be, was made before 24 February 2003: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Commencement No 4, Transitional Provisions and Savings) Order 2003, SI 2003/120, arts 1, 5(2), (3).

8 Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075 (amended by SI 2006/308). These regulations, which replace the Money Laundering Regulations 1993, SI 1993/1933, and the Money Laundering Regulations 2001, SI 2001/3641, implement EC Council Directive 91/308/EEC (OJ L166, 28.06.1991, p 77) on prevention of the use of the financial system for the purpose of money laundering (amended by European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2001/97 (OJ L344, 28.12.01, p 76)). The Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075 (as amended) also revoke the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 (Regulations Relating to Money Laundering) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1819.

Where business relationships are formed, or one-off transactions are carried out, in the course of relevant business (defined in the Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075, reg 2), the persons carrying out such relevant business are required to maintain certain identification procedures (see reg 4), record-keeping procedures (see reg 6) and internal reporting procedures (see reg 7 (amended by SI 2006/308; SI 2006/594) and to establish other appropriate procedures for the purpose of forestalling or preventing money laundering (see the Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075, reg 3(1)(b)). They are also required to train their employees in those procedures and, more generally, in the recognition of money laundering transactions and the law relating to money laundering; see reg 3(1)(c). A person who fails to maintain the procedures or carry out the training is guilty of a criminal offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum: reg 3(2). In deciding whether a person has committed such an offence, the court must consider whether he followed any relevant guidance which was at the time concerned: (1) issued by a supervisory authority or any other appropriate body (reg 3(3)(a)); (2) approved by the Treasury (reg 3(3)(b)); and (3) published in a manner approved by the Treasury as appropriate in its opinion to bring the guidance to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it (reg 3(3)(c)). See note 9 infra; and PARA 797 note 1 post.

Casino operators must obtain satisfactory evidence of the identity of all people using their gaming facilities (see reg 8).

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are required to keep a register of money service operators and a register of high value dealers and may charge a fee for registration: see regs 2, 9, 14; Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(1), (7). A person who acts as a money service operator or as a high value dealer is required to be registered and to provide the Commissioners with specified information: see the Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075, regs 10, 11. Registration may be refused or cancelled by the Commissioners: see regs 12, 13. The Commissioners have certain powers in relation to money service operators and high value dealers, including a power to enter and inspect premises: see regs 15-19. Where there are reasonable grounds for believing that an offence under the Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075 (as amended) is being, has been or is about to be committed by a money service operator or high value dealer, the Commissioners may seek a court order requiring any person in possession of certain information to allow them access to it: see reg 16. The Commissioners may also obtain a warrant to enter premises, to search persons and to take away documents: see reg 19. Under certain circumstances the Commissioners may impose a civil penalty (not exceeding £20,000): see reg 20. There is a mechanism for a formal review by the Commissioners of their decisions: see regs 21, 22. Offences under the Money Laundering Regulations 2003, SI 2003/3075 (as amended) may be instituted by the Commissioners: see reg 23. Fees and penalties imposed may be recovered as a civil debt: see reg 24.

People who are operating a bureaux de change must inform the Financial Services Authority ('the FSA') before they operate: see reg 25.

Supervisory authorities (defined in reg 2) and various other people who obtain information indicative of money laundering are required to inform a constable: see reg 26. The Treasury may direct any people who carry on relevant business to refrain from doing business with people in certain non-EEA states: see reg 28.

790. Criminal property.

For the purposes of the money laundering provisions of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002<sup>1</sup>, property is criminal property if:

- 908 (1) it constitutes a person's benefit from criminal conduct<sup>2</sup> or it represents such a benefit<sup>3</sup>, in whole or part and whether directly or indirectly<sup>4</sup>; and
- 909 (2) the alleged offender knows or suspects that it constitutes or represents such a benefit<sup>5</sup>.

1 Ie the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 Pt 7 (ss 327-340) (as amended): s 340(1).

2 For the purposes of ibid Pt 7 (as amended), 'criminal conduct' is conduct which: (1) constitutes an offence in any part of the United Kingdom; or (2) would constitute an offence in any part of the United Kingdom if it occurred there: s 340(2). It is immaterial: (a) who carried out the conduct; (b) who benefited from it; (c) whether the conduct occurred before or after 24 July 2002 (ie the passing of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002): s 340(4). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

3 A person 'benefits from conduct' if he obtains property as a result of or in connection with the conduct: ibid s 340(5). If a person obtains a pecuniary advantage as a result of or in connection with conduct, he is to be taken to obtain as a result of or in connection with the conduct a sum of money equal to the value of the pecuniary advantage: s 340(6). References to property or a pecuniary advantage obtained in connection with conduct include references to property or a pecuniary advantage obtained in both that connection and some other: s 340(7). If a person benefits from conduct his benefit is the property obtained as a result of or in connection with the conduct: s 340(8).

'Property' is all property wherever situated and includes: (1) money (s 340(9)(a)); (2) all forms of property, real or personal, heritable or moveable (s 340(9)(b)); (3) things in action and other intangible or incorporeal property (s 340(9)(c)).

The following rules apply in relation to property:

- 212 (a) property is obtained by a person if he obtains an interest in it (s 340(10)(a));
- 213 (b) references to an interest, in relation to land in England and Wales or Northern Ireland, are references to any legal estate or equitable interest or power (s 340(10)(b));
- 214 (c) references to an interest, in relation to land in Scotland, are references to any estate, interest, servitude or other heritable right in or over land, including a heritable security (s 340(10)(c));
- 215 (d) references to an interest, in relation to property other than land, include references to a right (including a right to possession) (s 340(10)(d)).

MISCELLANEOUS OFFENCES/(1) MONEY LAUNDERING OFFENCES/(ii) Principal Money Laundering Offences/791. Concealing etc criminal property.

(ii) Principal Money Laundering Offences

791. Concealing etc criminal property.

A person commits an offence if he conceals<sup>1</sup>, disguises, converts or removes<sup>2</sup> criminal property<sup>3</sup>. Such an offence is a 'lifestyle offence' in respect of a which the court may make a financial reporting order<sup>4</sup>.

A person does not commit such an offence if: (1) he makes an authorised disclosure<sup>5</sup> and, if the disclosure is made before he does the act mentioned<sup>6</sup>, he has the appropriate consent<sup>7</sup>; (2) he intended to make such a disclosure but had a reasonable excuse for not doing so<sup>8</sup>; (3) the act he does is done in carrying out a function he has relating to the enforcement of any provision of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 or of any other enactment relating to criminal conduct or benefit from criminal conduct<sup>9</sup>.

It is also provided that if a person conceals, disguises, converts or removes criminal property<sup>14</sup>, he does not commit an offence, if: (a) he knows, or believes on reasonable grounds, that the relevant criminal conduct<sup>15</sup> occurred in a particular country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>16</sup>; and (b) the relevant criminal conduct was not, at the time it occurred, unlawful under the criminal law then applying in that country or territory, and is not of a description prescribed by an order made by the Secretary of State<sup>17</sup>.

1 Concealing or disguising criminal property includes concealing or disguising its nature, source, location, disposition, movement or ownership or any rights with respect to it: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 327(3). As to the institution of proceedings for offences under Pt 7 (ss 327-340) (as amended) and as to the application of such offences to the Crown and the Director of Savings and persons employed in his service see PARA 789 note 7 ante. See also R v Montila [2004] UKHL 50, [2005] 1 All ER 113 (decided under the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 93C and the Drug Trafficking Act 1994 s 49(2) (both repealed)).

2 This includes removing property from England and Wales or from Scotland or from Northern Ireland: see the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 327(1)(d).

3 Ibid s 327(1). For the penalty for such an offence see PARA 796 post. For the meaning of 'criminal property' see PARA 790 ante. The natural meaning of s 327(1) is that the property concealed, disguised, converted or transferred has to be criminal property at the time that it is concealed, disguised, converted or transferred, so that, in a case of transfer, the offence of transferring criminal property will not be committed if the property is not criminal property at the time of the transfer: R v Loizou [2005] EWCA Crim 1579, [2005] 2 Cr App Rep 618, [2005] Crim LR 885. It cannot be said that property acquired legitimately would become criminal property within the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 340 (see PARA 790 ante) if a person formed an intention to use it for criminal purposes: R v Loizou supra.

4 See the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 75(2)(a), Sch 2 para 2(a); the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 76(3)(c); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 476.

5 Ie under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 338 (as amended): see PARA 795 post.

6 Ie an act mentioned in ibid s 327(1): see the text to notes 1-3 supra.

7 Ibid s 327(2)(a). As to the meaning of 'appropriate consent' see PARA 794 post.

8 Ibid s 327(2)(b).

9 Ibid s 327(2)(c). As to when a person benefits from criminal conduct and the meaning of 'criminal conduct' see PARA 790 notes 2-3 ante.

10 For the purposes of ibid Pt 7 (as amended), 'deposit-taking body' means: (1) a business which engages in the activity of accepting deposits; or (2) the National Savings Bank (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 810): s 340(14) (added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 103(1), (6)).

11 It does an act mentioned in the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 327(1)(c) or (d).

12 It determined under ibid s 339A (as added), which applies for the purposes of s 327(2C) (as added) (see the text to note 13 infra), s 328(5) (as added) (see PARA 792 post), s 329(2C) (as added) (see PARA 793 post): s 339A(1) (s 339A added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 103(1), (5)).

The threshold amount for acts done by a deposit-taking body in operating an account is £250 unless a higher amount is specified under the provisions of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002s 339A (as added) (in which event it is that higher amount): s 339A(2) (as so added). The Secretary of State may by order vary the amount for the time being specified in s 339A(2) (as added): s 339A(7) (as so added). As to orders made under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 see further PARA 789 note 7 ante.

An officer of Revenue and Customs, or a constable, may specify the threshold for acts done by a deposit-taking body in operating an account: (1) when he gives consent, or gives notice of refusing consent, to the deposit-taking body's doing of an act mentioned in s 327(1), s 328(1) or s 329(1) in opening, or operating, the account or a related account; or (2) on a request from the deposit-taking body: s 339A(3) (as so added); Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(2), (7). As to officers of Revenue and Customs see PARA 354 note 2 ante.

Where the threshold amount for acts done in operating an account is specified under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 339A(3) or (4) (as added), an officer of Revenue and Customs, or a constable, may vary the amount (whether on a request from the deposit-taking body or otherwise) by specifying a different amount: s 339A(4) (as so added); Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(2), (7). Different threshold amounts may be specified under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 339A(3), (4) (as added) for different acts done in operating the same account: s 339A(5) (as so added). The amount specified under s 339A(3) or (4) (as added) as the threshold amount for acts done in operating an account must, when specified, not be less than the amount specified in s 339A(2) (as added): s 339A(6) (as so added).

For the purposes of s 339A (as added), an account is related to another if each is maintained with the same deposit-taking body and there is a person who, in relation to each account, is the person or one of the persons, entitled to instruct the body as respects the operation of the account: s 339A(8) (as so added).

References to a constable include references to a person authorised by the Director General of the Serious Organised Crime Agency: s 340(13) (amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 59, Sch 4 paras 168, 174). As to the establishment of the Serious Organised Crime Agency and the appointment of the Director General of the Serious Crime Agency see the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 1, Sch 1; and POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 430 et seq.

13 Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 327(2C) (added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 103(1), (2)).

14 It is an offence under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 327(1): see the text to notes 1-3 supra.

15 For these purposes, 'the relevant criminal conduct' is the criminal conduct by reference to which the property concerned is criminal property: ibid s 327(2B) (s 327(2A), (2B) added by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 102(1), (2)).

16 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante.

17 Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 327(2A) (as added: see note 15 supra). For these purposes, the Secretary of State has prescribed conduct which would constitute an offence punishable by imprisonment for a maximum term in excess of 12 months in any part of the United Kingdom if it occurred there, other than an offence under the Gaming Act 1968 (repealed), an offence under the Lotteries and Amusements Act 1976 or an offence under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 23 or s 25 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARAS 80, 225): Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Money Laundering: Exceptions to Overseas Conduct Defence) Order 2006, SI 2006/1070, art 2. As to the making of orders under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 see PARA 789 note 7 ante.

792. Arrangements.

A person commits an offence if he enters into or becomes concerned in an arrangement which he knows or suspects facilitates, by whatever means, the acquisition, retention, use or control of criminal property<sup>1</sup> by or on behalf of another person<sup>2</sup>. Such an offence is a 'lifestyle offence' in respect of a which the court may make a financial reporting order<sup>3</sup>.

A person does not commit such an offence if: (1) he makes an authorised disclosure<sup>4</sup> and, if the disclosure is made before he does the act of entering into or becoming concerned in such an arrangement, he has the appropriate consent<sup>5</sup>; (2) he intended to make such a disclosure but had a reasonable excuse for not doing so<sup>6</sup>; (3) the act he does is done in carrying out a function he has relating to the enforcement of any provision of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 or of any other enactment relating to criminal conduct or benefit from criminal conduct<sup>7</sup>. A deposit-taking body<sup>8</sup> that does an act of entering into or becoming concerned in such an arrangement does not commit such an offence if it does the act in operating an account maintained with it and the arrangement facilitates the acquisition, retention, use or control of criminal property of a value that is less than the threshold amount determined<sup>9</sup> for the act<sup>10</sup>.

It is also provided that a person does not commit such an offence if he knows, or believes on reasonable grounds, that the relevant criminal conduct<sup>11</sup> occurred in a particular country or territory outside the United Kingdom<sup>12</sup>, and the relevant criminal conduct was not, at the time it occurred, unlawful under the criminal law then applying in that country or territory, and is not of a description prescribed by an order made by the Secretary of State<sup>13</sup>.

See also R v Craig [2007] EWCA Crim 2913, [2008] All ER (D) 386 (Apr).

794. Appropriate consent.

Certain offences under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 are not committed if carried out with the 'appropriate consent'<sup>1</sup>. The appropriate consent is: (1) the consent of a nominated officer<sup>2</sup> to do a prohibited act if an authorised disclosure<sup>3</sup> is made to the nominated officer; (2) the consent of a constable<sup>4</sup> to do a prohibited act if an authorised disclosure is made to a constable; (3) the consent of an officer of Revenue and Customs to do a prohibited act if an authorised disclosure is made to an officer of Revenue and Customs<sup>5</sup>.

A person must be treated as having the appropriate consent if he makes an authorised disclosure to a constable or an officer of Revenue and Customs, and the first or second condition below is satisfied<sup>6</sup>. The first condition is that before the end of the notice period he does not receive notice from a constable or an officer of Revenue and Customs that consent to the doing of the act is refused<sup>7</sup>. The second condition is that before the end of the notice period he receives notice from a constable or an officer of Revenue and Customs that consent to the doing of the act is refused and the moratorium period has expired<sup>8</sup>.

The notice period is the period of seven working days<sup>9</sup> starting with the first working day after the person makes the disclosure<sup>10</sup>. The moratorium period is the period of 31 days starting with the day on which the person receives notice that consent to the doing of the act is refused<sup>11</sup>.

1 See the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 ss 327-329; and PARAS 791-793 ante.

2 A nominated officer is a person nominated to receive disclosures under ibid s 338 (as amended) (see PARA 795 post): ss 335(9), 336(11). A nominated officer must not give the appropriate consent to the doing of a prohibited act unless:

- 216 (1) he makes a disclosure that property is criminal property to a person authorised for the purposes of Pt 7 (ss 327-340) (as amended) by the Director General of the Serious Organised Crime Agency and such a person gives consent to the doing of the act (s 336(1), (2) (s 336(2)(a), (3)(a), (4)(a) amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 59, Sch 4 paras 168, 173));
- 217 (2) he makes a disclosure that property is criminal property to a person authorised for the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 Pt 7 (as amended) by the Director General of the Serious Organised Crime Agency, and before the end of the notice period he does not receive notice from such a person that consent to the doing of the act is refused (s 336(3) (as so amended)); or
- 218 (3) he makes a disclosure that property is criminal property to a person authorised for the purposes of Pt 7 (as amended) by the Director General of the Serious Organised Crime Agency, and before the end of the notice period he receives notice from such a person that consent to the doing of the act is refused, and the moratorium period has expired (s 336(4) (as so amended)).

As to the establishment of the Serious Organised Crime Agency and the appointment of the Director General of the Serious Crime Agency see the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 1, Sch 1; and POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 430 et seq.

The notice period is the period of seven working days starting with the first working day after the nominated officer makes the disclosure: s 336(7). A working day is a day other than a Saturday, a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday or a day which is a bank holiday under the Banking and Financial Dealings Act 1971 (see TIME vol 97 (2010) PARA 321) in the part of the United Kingdom in which the person is when he makes the disclosure: s 336(9). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 45 note 2 ante. The moratorium period is the period of 31 days starting with the first working day after the nominated officer is given notice that consent to the doing of the act is refused: s 336(8).

A person who is a nominated officer commits an offence if he gives consent to a prohibited act in circumstances where none of the conditions in heads (1)-(3) supra is satisfied, and he knows or suspects that the act is a prohibited act: s 336(5).

A person guilty of such an offence is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both: s 336(6). As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. MISCELLANEOUS OFFENCES/(1) MONEY LAUNDERING OFFENCES/(v) Money Laundering Investigations, Confiscation Investigations and Civil Recovery Investigations/A. OFFENCES/804. Offences prejudicing investigation.

(v) Money Laundering Investigations, Confiscation Investigations and Civil Recovery Investigations

A. OFFENCES

804. Offences prejudicing investigation.

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply if a person knows or suspects that an appropriate officer<sup>2</sup> is acting, or proposing to act, in connection with a confiscation investigation<sup>3</sup>, a civil recovery investigation<sup>4</sup> or a money laundering investigation<sup>5</sup> which is being or is about to be conducted<sup>6</sup>.

The person commits an offence if he makes a disclosure which is likely to prejudice the investigation<sup>7</sup>. However, a person does not commit such an offence if:

- 933 (1) he does not know or suspect that the disclosure is likely to prejudice the investigation<sup>8</sup>;
- 934 (2) the disclosure is made in the exercise of a function under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 or any other enactment relating to criminal conduct or benefit from criminal conduct or in compliance with a requirement imposed under or by virtue of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002<sup>9</sup>; or
- 935 (3) he is a professional legal adviser and the disclosure is to, or to a representative of, a client of the professional legal adviser in connection with the giving by the adviser of legal advice to the client, or to any person in connection with legal proceedings or contemplated legal proceedings<sup>10</sup>.

The person also commits an offence if he falsifies, conceals, destroys or otherwise disposes of, or causes or permits the falsification, concealment, destruction or disposal of, documents which are relevant to the investigation<sup>11</sup>. However, a person does not commit such an offence if he does not know or suspect that the documents are relevant to the investigation or he does not intend to conceal any facts disclosed by the documents from any appropriate officer carrying out the investigation<sup>12</sup>.

A person guilty of an offence under these provisions is liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years or to a fine or to both, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months<sup>13</sup> or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum<sup>14</sup> or to both<sup>15</sup>.

note 5 infra), an accredited financial investigator, a constable, and an officer of Revenue and Customs, are appropriate officers: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 378(4); Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(2), (7). For the purposes of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 342, in relation to a money laundering investigation, a person authorised for the purposes of money laundering investigations by the Director General of the Serious Organised Crime Agency is also an appropriate officer: ss 1(2), 378(5). As to the establishment of the Serious Organised Crime Agency and the appointment of the Director General of the Serious Crime Agency see the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 1, Sch 1; and POLICE vol 36(1) (2007 Reissue) PARA 430 et seq. However, a person is not an appropriate officer in relation to a money laundering investigation if he is a member of staff of the Assets Recovery Agency, or a person providing services under arrangements made by the Director of that Agency: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 ss 1(1), 378(7).

The Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Investigations in England and Wales and Northern Ireland: Code of Practice) Order 2003, SI 2003/334 (made under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 377: see PARA 818 post) brought into operation a code of practice as to the exercise of functions under ss 343-379 (see PARAS 805-817 post) by the Director, members of staff of the Assets Recovery Agency, accredited financial investigators and officers of Revenue and Customs. As to the officers and Commissioners for Revenue and Customs see PARA 354 note 2 ante.

3 For the purposes of ibid Pt 8 (ss 341-416), a 'confiscation investigation' is an investigation into whether a person has benefited from his criminal conduct, or the extent or whereabouts of his benefit from his criminal conduct: s 341(1).

4 For the purpose of ibid Pt 8, a 'civil recovery investigation' is an investigation into whether property is recoverable property or associated property, who holds the property, or its extent or whereabouts: s 341(2). But an investigation is not a civil recovery investigation if: (1) proceedings for a recovery order have been started in respect of the property in question; (2) an interim receiving order applies to the property in question; (3) an interim administration order applies to the property in question; or (4) the property in question is detained under s 295 (see PARA 2166 post): s 341(3).

'Property' is all property wherever situated and includes: (1) money; (2) all forms of property, real or personal, heritable or moveable; (3) things in action and other intangible or incorporeal property: s 414(1). For the meaning of 'recoverable property' see PARA 2149 post.

5 For the purpose of ibid Pt 8, 'money laundering investigation' is an investigation into whether a person has committed a money laundering offence: s 341(4). For the meaning of 'money laundering' see PARA 789 note 4 ante.

6 Ibid s 342(1).

7 Ibid s 342(2)(a). Proceedings for an offence under s 342 may be started by the Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions or by order of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs: see s 451(1), (6)(b) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50(6), Sch 4 para 99(a)). Where proceedings are so instituted by the Commissioners, the proceedings must be brought in the name of an officer of Revenue and Customs: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 451(2) (substituted by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 Sch 4 para 99(b)). See also the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 451(4), (5) (amended by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 Sch 4 para 99(d)). The Director of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions is appointed under the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 34: see PARA 1068 post.

The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that any of the offences under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 342 apply to persons in the public service of the Crown: s 452(1), (2)(b). The offences in s 342 apply to the Director of Savings appointed under the National Debt Act 1972 s 1 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 810) and any person employed or otherwise engaged in his service: Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Crown Servants) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/173. As to the making of orders and regulations under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 see PARA 789 note 7 ante.

9 Ibid s 342(3)(b).

10 Ibid s 342(3)(c), (4). Such a disclosure does not include one made with the intention of furthering a criminal purpose: see s 342(5).

11 Ibid s 342(2)(b).

12 Ibid s 342(6).

13 As from a day to be appointed this maximum term of imprisonment is increased to a maximum term of 12 months (see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 ss 281(7), 282(2), (3) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post), although this does not affect the penalty for any offence committed before that day (see s 282(4) (not yet in force); and PARA 1121 post). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

14 As to the statutory maximum see SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140.

15 Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 s 342(7). Provision may be made by Order in Council creating offences in relation to an investigation by an overseas authority, or enabling orders to be issued for the purposes of an investigation by such an authority, which are equivalent to those under Pt 8: s 445 (amended by the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 s 59, Sch 4 paras 168, 178).
